NOTE.—Compared with the preceding fortnight, the rise in the price of rice in Assam, Delhi and the Punjab, of gram in Bihar and Orissa, and of maize in the Punjab is noticeable as well as that of arhar dál in the United Provinces and of raw sugar in Delhi and Sind and Baluchistan. The fall in the price of salt in Burma is also noteworthy.

The yield of the cotton crop of 1917-18 was estimated in February, 1918, at 4,035,000 bales on an area of 24,781,000 acres, as compared with 4,489,000 bales on an area of 21,745,000 acres, the revised final figures of the preceding year. There was a decrease of 10 per cent in outturn. There were 1,410,000 bales of cotton pressed in the pressing factories, and 453,000 bales of unpressed cotton received in the spinning mills, from 1st September, 1917, to 30th June, 1918, as against 1,958,000 bales and 439,000 bales, respectively, during the corresponding period of last year, showing a decrease of 28 per cent in the case of presses, but an increase of 3 per cent in the case of mills. Too much stress should not be laid on the accuracy of these returns as a means of checking the forecast estimates of outturn, as there is at present no system in vogue of furnishing complete returns from all presses and mills. The figures for the Native States of Hyderabad, Central India, Rajputana, and Mysore are, as will be seen from the footnotes to the tables, mostly incomplete and have been excluded from this comparison.

DEPARTMENT OF STATISTICS, INDIA

Director of Statistics.

Published by order of the Governor-General in Council.

DEPARTMENT OF STATISTICS, INDIA.

TRADE FLUCTUATIONS IN SELECTED ARTICLES IN JUNE, 1918.

The object of the tables appended is to show the quantities of the principal staples of agricultural produce imported from the various provinces, etc., and from foreign countries into the ports of Calcutta, Bombay, and Karachi, and into the Madras ports during the month of June, 1918, and for the three months April to June, 1918, as compared with the corresponding periods of 1917. The statistics include foreign sea-borne and coasting trade as well as inland (rail and river-borne) trade. They have been furnished by Collectors of Customs, Steamer Companies, Railway Audit Officers, the Commissioners for the Port of Calcutta, etc.

TRADE FLUCTUATIONS IN JUNE, 1917 AND 1918.

It will be seen from table I, that the imports by rail, river, and sea in June, 1918, as against the corresponding month of 1917, show (in round numbers) an increase of—

278 per cent in Jute
(450,100 bales as against 119,200 bales last year),

106 per cent in linseed
(25,600 tons as against 12,400 tons last year),

45 per cent in rice (including paddy)
(71,000 tons as against 18,800 tons last year), and

11 per cent in gram and pulse
(115,100 tons as against 103,800 tons last year).

The imports of cotton, raw, and wheat (excluding wheat flour) by rail, river, and sea into the ports show a decrease of 42 per cent each (227,600 bales of cotton, raw, as against 391,600 bales last year, and 229,200 tons of wheat as against 394,700 tons last year). The decrease in the case of cotton, raw, was due mainly to smaller exports from Bombay, the Central Provinces and Berar, Rajputana and Central India, and Madras, and that in the case of wheat (excluding wheat flour) to smaller exports from the Punjab, the Central Provinces and Berar, Rajputana and Central India, and the United Provinces. There was a slight decrease of 1 per cent (14,100 tons as against 14,300 tons last year) in the imports of rape and mustard seed.

It will be seen from Table IV (wheat, excluding wheat flour) that the principal sources of the imports in June, 1917, were the Punjab (51 per cent), the United Provinces (21 per cent) and the Central Provinces and Berar (11 per cent). During June, 1918, the Provinces from which the ports received their supplies were mainly the Punjab (61 per cent of the total), the United

One maund is equivalent to 82⅔ lbs.
One maund of paddy is taken as equivalent to 25 seers of rice.

Provinces (29 per cent), and Bihar and Orissa (5 per cent).

GENERAL RESULTS—THREE MONTHS' IMPORTS INTO THE PORTS FROM UP-COUNTRY, ETC., THIS YEAR AND LAST YEAR.

The three months' figures in table I show (in round numbers) an increase of—

105 per cent in jute
(970,800 bales as against 472,600 bales last year),

25 per cent in gram and pulse
(298,200 tons as against 238,400 tons last year),

24 per cent in tea
(42,231,000 lbs as against 34,018,400 lbs last year),

15 per cent in rice (including paddy)
(240,900 tons as against 209,400 tons last year), and

1 per cent in linseed
(62,800 tons as against 62,400 tons last year).

The imports of wheat (excluding wheat flour), by rail, river, and sea into the ports show a decrease of 45 per cent (452,400 tons as against 818,500 tons last year) mainly on account of smaller exports from the Punjab, the Central Provinces and Berar, Rajputana and Central India, and Sind and British Baluchistan. The decrease of 34 per cent (855,000 bales as against 1,301,300 bales last year) in raw cotton is mainly due to smaller exports from Bombay, the Central Provinces and Berar, Rajputana and Central India, and Madras. The fall of 23 per cent (38,400 tons as against 50,200 tons last year) in rape and mustard seed is accounted for by smaller exports into the ports from the United Provinces.

TRADE FLUCTUATIONS IN JUNE, 1918, AS COMPARED WITH THE PREVIOUS MONTH.

As compared with May, 1918, the imports in June, 1918, into the ports referred to above show (in round numbers) an increase of—

140 per cent in jute
(450,100 bales as against 187,600 bales previous month),

85 per cent in wheat (excluding wheat flour)
(229,200 tons as against 124,000 tons previous month),

84 per cent in rape and mustard seed
(14,100 tons as against 7,700 tons previous month),

22 per cent in gram and pulse
(115,400 tons as against 94,200 tons previous month),

18 per cent in tea
(16,677,200 lbs as against 14,150,500 lbs previous month), and

8 per cent in linseed
(25,660 tons as against 23,700 tons previous month).

and a decrease of—

28 per cent in rice (including paddy)
(71,000 tons as against 98,000 tons previous month), and

27 per cent in raw cotton
(227,600 bales as against 312,700 bales previous month).

The statistics for June, 1917 and 1918, as also for the three months ending June, 1917 and 1918, together with those for May and June, 1918, are summarised below :—

DEPARTMENT OF STATISTICS, INDIA

CALCUTTA, AUGUST 21, 1918.

First COTTON Forecast, 1918-19.

This forecast is based upon reports on the condition of the crop at the end of July and early August. They relate, as will be seen below, not to the entire cotton area, but to 75 per cent of the total, as sowings, especially of the late crop, have in many places, as in Madras, not yet commenced. No attempt has been made at this stage to estimate the probable outturn.

The returns show that an area of 11,638,000 acres has been sown this year, as against 13,263,000 acres on this date last year, a decrease of 12 per cent.

The decrease, as against corresponding date last year, occurs in Ajmer-Merwara (69 per cent), Rajputana (50 per cent), the United Provinces (42 per cent), Bombay (17 per cent), Hyderadad (16 per cent), the Central Provinces and Berar and Central India (9 per cent each), and Bengal (3 per cent). On the other hand, the North-West Frontier Province shows an increase of 44 per cent, Burma 30 per cent, Punjab 14 per cent, Bihar and Orissa 12 per cent, Madras 6 per cent, and Assam 3 per cent.

Owing to a prolonged break in the monsoon climatic conditions at sowing time have not, on the whole, been favourable, and the dry weather has adversely affected the young plants, except in the Central Provinces and Berar, Burma, Bengal, Bihar and Orissa, the North-West Frontier Province, and Assam. In these provinces the condition and prospects of the crop are generally good.

Detailed figures for the provinces and States are as follows:—

Bombay (27·2 per cent of the total area under cotton in India).—The report relates only to the early crop of the Deccan (7 per cent), which up to the 1st August showed 1,201,500 acres (including 500 acres in the Native States), or a decrease of 17 per cent as compared with the area reported at the corresponding date of last year. In Khandesh, where the crop is mainly grown, the prolonged break after sowing somewhat adversely affected the young crop, but the rain at the end of July has been beneficial and the condition of the crop is at present fairly satisfactory. Elsewhere rains have been very deficient and what little has been sown is withering. The future of the Khandesh crop depends on early rain.

Central Provinces and Berar (20·2 per cent of the total area under cotton in India).—The total area sown is estimated at 4,068,000 acres (2,732,000 acres being in Berar), as against 4,496,000 acres estimated at this date last year, or a decrease of 9 per cent, which is attributed to the reservation of larger areas for food crops. The monsoon broke in the beginning of June and the rainfall of that month was well distributed and generally sufficient. Sowings were successful, and germination was on the whole good. Some resowing was, however, necessary in parts of certain districts where the germination was defective. Moderate to heavy rain fell throughout the province in the first week of July, but the subsequent break for three weeks caused some anxiety and is reported to have slightly damaged the crop and stunted its growth in Narsinghpur, Nimar, Akola, and Buldana. Most opportune rain was received at the end of July, which still continues. This has dispelled all anxiety and has immensely improved the condition of the young plants. Prospects at present are distinctly good, for the crop was well weeded during the long break, and the damage is slight and confined to light land.

Madras (10·2 per cent of the total area under cotton in India).—The total area sown up to 1st August is reported to be 112,000 acres, which is 6 per cent above the area reported at the corresponding date of last year. The south-west monsoon gave rain in May in the 'Northerns and Westerns' and 'Cocanadas' areas; but there was practically no rain in June and July, and the early sowings were, therefore, greatly restricted. The small area that was sown with the May rains has mostly failed. There is a small increase in the area sown early in Vizagapatam and Ganjam where the season has been more favourable. A large increase is reported under 'Cambodia' cotton. This is due to the inclusion, in the present estimate, of a large area under old crop still standing on the ground.

Punjab (6·7 per cent of the total area under cotton in India).—The total area sown is estimated at 1,525,000 acres (87,000 acres being in the Native States), which is 14 per cent above the corresponding forecast of last year. The corresponding forecast of last year was, however, an underestimate. As compared with the actual area of that year, the present estimate shows a decrease of 12 per cent. Owing to deficient rainfall climatic conditions were unfavourable at the time of sowing and have remained so since then, especially in the Ambala Division where cotton is largely grown on unirrigated areas. The supply of water from canals was also generally deficient. The prospects of the crop have been adversely affected by the abnormally dry weather, and some damage has also been done by insects. Generally speaking, the condition of the irrigated crop is fairly good so far; but the unirrigated crop is decidedly below average and is withering in many places owing to want of rain.

United Provinces (5·6 per cent of the total area under cotton in India).—The area sown is estimated at 700,000 acres, as against 1,206,000 acres estimated at this time last year, or a decrease of 42 per cent. Some rain was received in the latter half of June, but it was insufficient for sowing throughout the Doab and Bundelkhand, which comprise the principal cotton growing tracts of the province. In Rohilkhand and parts of Oudh a normal area was sown, but the plants have suffered severely from the holding off of the rains. In July only light showers were received in the cotton tracts and sowings were impracticable except with irrigation from canals or wells. The high prices of cotton induced cultivators to put down a certain area with well-water, but the area thus sown is not large. The total area sown with canal irrigation up to the end of July is reported to be not less than that of last year.

Burma (1·1 per cent of the total area under cotton in India).—The total area is estimated at 218,000 acres, which is 30 per cent above the area estimated at the corresponding date of last year. The increase is attributed to high prices realized in the two previous years. In the dry zone the rainfall during the last fortnight of July was light, and more rain is required. On the whole the prospects of the crop are fair.

Bengal (0·4 per cent of the total area under cotton in India).—The area sown up to date with both early and late cotton is reported to be 71,000 acres, which is 3 per cent below the area estimated at this date last year. Although the weather, on the whole, has been too wet for the crop, its present condition is reported to be fairly satisfactory.

Bihar and Orissa (0·3 per cent of the total area under cotton in India).—The total area sown up to date with both early and late cotton is estimated at 75,000 acres, which is 12 per cent above the area reported at this date last year. The increase is attributed to high prices of cotton and dearness of piece-goods. The weather conditions for the early crop have so far been favourable, except in the Santhal Parganas where the plants were affected by drought in July The present condition of the crop is reported to be generally good. Fair progress has been made with the sowings of the late crop. In Cuttack, Balasore, and Angul sowings have not yet begun.

North-West Frontier Province (0·2 per cent of the total area under cotton in India).—The total area sown up to the end of July is estimated at 39,000 acres, which is 44 per cent above the area estimated at this date last year. The increase is reported mainly from Peshawar, where the figures given in the first forecast of last year were underestimated. The present estimate is practically the same as the final figure of last year. The rainfall was above the average in March and April and some showers were also received in May. The climatic conditions were therefore favourable for sowings.

Assam (0·2 per cent of the total area under cotton in India).—The area is estimated at 33,000 acres, which is 3 per cent above that of last year. The increase is attributed partly to high prices and partly to the inclusion for the first time of information for the Naga Hills district. The present prospects of the crop are generally good except in Sylhet.

Ajmer-Merwara (0·2 per cent of the total area under cotton in India).—The area is estimated at 9,000 acres (Ajmer 6,400, Kekri 300, and Merwara 2,600 acres) against 29,000 acres reported at this date last year, or a decrease of 69 per cent, which is attributed to the absence of rains.

Hyderabad (14·7 per cent of the total area under cotton in India).—Sowings of the crop have generally been delayed owing to the break in the monsoon, and therefore kharif (early) sowings are comparatively little this year. Complete figures of acreage are not available as sowings have only lately been resumed. According to the estimate of this Department, the area sown may amount to 2,200,000 acres, which is 16 per cent less than the figure reported at this date last year.

Central India (6 per cent of the total area under cotton in India).—The total area reported amounts to 1,122,000 acres, which is 9 per cent below the area reported at this date last year. Sowings are still in progress in Bundelkhand The detailed figures are as follows:—

	1918-19	1917-18

Rajputana (1 7 per cent of the total area under cotton in India).—The total area sown is estimated at 175,000 acres as against 352,000 acres reported at this time last year, or a decrease of 50 per cent The detailed figures are as follows —

Sowings have been adversely affected by deficient rainfall in almost all the States.

Mysore (0 8 per cent of the total area under cotton in India).—The total area sown up to date amounts to 9,000 acres, the same as reported at this date last year. Sowing has not yet commenced in many places owing to deficient rainfall The district details are as follows.—

AREA OF COTTON

(In million acres)

Cotton crop in foreign countries.—The latest information published by the International Institute of Agriculture, Rome, shows that in Egypt the weather, although changeable, has on the whole been favourable, and the water supply has been abundant. In Upper Egypt and the southern parts of the Delta the greater part of the area intended for cotton has been sown. Germination has been regular, but the cold weather at the beginning of March slightly checked the growth of the early crop which was also somewhat damaged by rain, and some resowing was necessary. Slight insect and parasitical attacks are reported.

COTTON PRESS RETURN

No. 21 OF 1917-18.

PREFATORY NOTE.

THE COTTON SEASON, 1917-18.

The yield of the cotton crop of 1917-18 was estimated in February, 1918, at 4,035,000 bales on an area of 24,781,000 acres, as compared with 4,489,000 bales on an area of 21,745,000 acres, the revised final figures of the preceding year. There was a decrease of 10 per cent in outturn. There were 1,457,000 bales of cotton pressed in the pressing factories, and 473,000 bales of unpressed cotton received in the spinning mills, from 1st September, 1917, to 15th July, 1918, as against 2,006,000 bales and 457,000 bales, respectively, during the corresponding period of last year, showing a decrease of 27 per cent in the case of presses, but an increase of 4 per cent in the case of mills. Too much stress should not be laid on the accuracy of these returns as a means of checking the forecast estimates of outturn, as there is at present no system in vogue of furnishing complete returns from all presses and mills. The figures for the Native States of Hyderabad, Central India, Rajputana, and Mysore are, as will be seen from the footnotes to the tables, mostly incomplete and have been excluded from this comparison.

NOTE.

The monsoon was very heavy and was generally beneficial to the autumn crops, except cotton, the outturn of which was greatly affected by continuous rains. The failure of winter rains affected the winter crops, especially winter oilseeds.

The average yield per acre was greater than in the preceding year for the following crops: rice, sugarcane, groundnut, and jute, but less for wheat, linseed, rape and mustard, sesamum, and cotton. In the case of indigo the yield per acre was the same as in 1916-17.

The total production of rice in 1917-18—35,952,000 tons—was 1,161,000 tons or 3 per cent greater than in 1916-17; the yield per acre being 37 lbs above that of 1916-17 and 86 lbs above the last decennial average. The total production of wheat—10,174,000 tons—was 60,000 tons or 0·6 per cent less than in 1916-17; the outturn per acre showed a decrease of 54 lbs and 50 lbs, respectively, as compared with the previous year and the average of the last ten years. Sugarcane yielded 86 lbs and 398 lbs more per acre than in 1916-17 and the average, respectively Linseed and rape and mustard yielded, respectively, 27 lbs and 50 lbs less per acre than in 1916-17. The yield per acre of sesamum was 30 lbs less than that of 1916-17. The total yield of groundnuts 1,042,000 tons—was 154,000 tons less than that of 1916-17, although the yield per acre increased by 85 lbs as compared with the previous year. The total yield of indigo—88,000 cwts—was 8,000 cwts less than that of 1916-17, although the yield per acre was the same as in the previous year. The total production of cotton—4,035,000 bales—was 454,000 bales or 10 per cent less than in 1916-17; the yield per acre was 65 lbs, which is 18 lbs and 12 lbs less, respectively, than that of the previous year and the average. The total outturn of jute—8,840,000 bales—exceeded that of 1916-17 by 534,000 bales or 6 per cent, and the yield per acre was 66 lbs more than in 1916-17.

Bills introduced in the Indian Legislative Council, Reports of Select Committees, presented to the Council, and Bills published under Rule 23.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

The following Bill was introduced in the Indian Legislative Council on the 11th September 1918 :—

No. 18 OF 1918.

A Bill to amend the Indian Army (Suspension of Sentences) Act, 1917.

WHEREAS it is expedient to amend the Indian Army (Suspension of Sentences) Act, 1917 ; It is hereby enacted as follows :— (IV of 1917.)

Short title. 1. This Act may be called the Indian Army (Suspension of Sentences) Amendment Act, 191 .

Amendment of section 2, Act IV of 1917. 2. In clause (5) of section 2 of the Indian Army (Suspension of Sentences) Act, 1917 (hereinafter referred to as the said Act), for the words "in which the offender, at the time of his conviction, was serving," the words "in which an offender is for the time being serving, or within the limits of whose command an offender who has been committed is for the time being undergoing his sentence" shall be substituted.

Amendment of section 3, Act IV of 1917. 3. In section 3 of the said Act,—

(1) in sub-section (1) the words "or dismissed from the service (if liable to such dismissal)" shall be omitted ;

(2) in sub-section (5) after the words "may be required," the words "by a superior military authority" shall be inserted ;

(3) in sub-section (6) for the word "three," the word "four" shall be substituted ;

(4) in sub-section (7), the words "and the prisoner, if liable to be dismissed from the service under section 15 of the principal Act, shall be forthwith dismissed from the service," shall be omitted ;

(5) for sub-section (8) the following sub-section shall be substituted, namely :—

"(8) Where an offender, whilst a sentence on him is suspended under this Act, is sentenced for any other offence, then—

(a) if the further sentence is also suspended under this Act, the authority ordering such suspension may direct that the two sentences shall run either concurrently or consecutively ; provided that the aggregate term of imprisonment to be served under two or more sentences shall not exceed fourteen consecutive years ;

(b) if the further sentence exceeds three months and is not suspended under this Act, the offender shall be deemed to have been committed on the previous sentence from the date on which the further sentence was passed unless a superior military authority otherwise directs ;

(c) where the sentence for such other offence is a sentence of transportation, then whether or not that sentence is suspended, any previous sentence of imprisonment which has been suspended shall be avoided so far as the period of such imprisonment does not exceed that of the transportation."

(6) in sub-section (9) for the figures "99," the figures "112" shall be substituted,

(7) after sub-section (9) the following sub-sections shall be added, namely:—

"(10) Sentences which are suspended under this Act when this Act ceases to be in force shall be deemed to be remitted.

(11) Where a punishment of dismissal has been awarded by a court-martial in addition to a sentence to which this Act applies, then notwithstanding anything contained in the principal Act or in any rules made thereunder, such dismissal shall not take effect until the completion of the sentence or until this Act ceases to be in force, whichever is the earlier event:

Provided that, if a sentence is remitted under this Act, the punishment of dismissal shall also be remitted."

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

Certain sections of the Indian Army (Suspension of Sentences) Act, 1917, provided for the cases of soldiers dismissed under the provisions of section 15 of the Indian Army Act, 1911. The latter section having been repealed, it is necessary to make consequential amendments in the former Act, and the present Bill effects this.

2. Experience in the practical working of the Act has shown the desirability of further minor amendments in order to facilitate its application and to remove certain doubts. The Bill therefore provides for—

(1) a larger number of superior Military Authorities;

(2) extension of the time within which a suspended sentence must be reconsidered;

(3) removal of doubt regarding the authority who has power to make an order under sub-section (5) of section 3; and

(4) removal of doubt regarding the effect of a second unsuspended sentence on a former suspended one.

3. The Bill also provides that sentences which are still suspended when the Act ceases to be in force shall be deemed to be remitted.

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

The following Bill was introduced in the Indian Legislative Council on the 11th September 1918 :—

No. 19 OF 1918.

A Bill further to amend the Indian Defence Force Act, 1917.

WHEREAS it is expedient further to amend the Indian Defence Force Act, 1917; It is hereby enacted as follows :— III of 1917.

Short title. 1. This Act may be called the Indian Defence Force (Further Amendment) Act, 191 .

Insertion of new section 11-A. in Act III of 1917. 2. After section 11 of the Indian Defence Force Act, 1917, the following section shall be inserted, namely :— III of 1917.

Enrolment of European British subjects above the age of 50 years. "11-A. Any European British subject who for the time being has attained the age of 50 years may offer himself for enrolment for general military service or local military service, and may be enrolled accordingly in the prescribed manner, and any person so enrolled shall be liable to all the obligations imposed on persons deemed to be enrolled for general military service or local military service within the meaning of this Act as the case may be, and shall continue to be so liable until relieved thereof in the prescribed manner."

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

One of the recommendations of the War Resources Committee was to the effect that European British subjects in India of over fifty years of age, who voluntarily offer their services for general or local service and for whom suitable employment can be found, should be allowed voluntarily to be enrolled under the Indian Defence Force Act. The Bill provides for a small amendment to that Act so as to give effect to the recommendation.

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

The following Bill was introduced in the Indian Legislative Council on the 11th September 1918 —

No. 20 OF 1918.

A Bill to take power to prohibit the alteration, except with the sanction of the Governor General in Council, of articles of association which restrict foreign interests in certain Companies, and to provide for other purposes connected therewith.

WHEREAS it is expedient to take power to prohibit the alteration, except with the sanction of the Governor General in Council, of articles of association which restrict foreign interests in certain companies, and to provide for other purposes connected therewith, It is hereby enacted as follows:—

Short title.

1. This Act may be called the Indian Companies (Foreign Interests) Act, 191 .

Definitions.

2 (1) In this Act—

(a) the expression "British subject" has the same meaning as in section 27 of the British Nationality and Status of Aliens Act, 1914, but shall include any person who holds a certificate of naturalization as a British subject granted under any Act of the Governor General in Council for the time being in force, and any association incorporated in any part of His Majesty's dominions: Provided that the said expression shall for the purposes of this Act be deemed to apply to any subject of a State in India;

4 & 5 Geo. 5, c. 17.

(b) the expression "restrictive provision" means any provision in the articles of association of a company which, in the opinion of the Governor General, is designed to restrict or limit or has the effect of restricting or limiting the share or shares or interest which may be held, or the rights, powers or authority which may be conferred upon or exercised by or on behalf of persons other than British subjects in the company, or in respect of the control, management or direction of the affairs thereof.

(2) All words and expressions used in this Act and defined in the Indian Companies Act, 1913, shall be deemed to have the meanings respectively attributed to them by that Act.

VII of 1913.

Application of Act.

3 This Act shall apply to such companies as the Governor General in Council may, by notification in the Gazette of India, declare to be companies with restrictive provisions, and any such notification shall specify the restrictive provisions.

Alterations in restrictive provisions and winding up.

4 So long as a notification issued under section 3 is in force in respect of any company, notwithstanding anything to the contrary in any other Act—

(1) no alteration of the articles of association of the company affecting either directly or indirectly any restrictive provision shall be of any effect until it has received the consent in writing of the Governor General in Council;

(2) a resolution for the voluntary winding up of the company shall be of no effect unless the Governor General in Council authorises or ratifies it by a written consent;

(3) any Court which has jurisdiction to wind up the company may in its discretion refuse to make a winding up order. In the exercise of its discretion the Court shall be guided by the consideration whether the winding up is bonâ fide with a view to the discontinuance of the undertaking, or is with a view to continuing the undertaking freed either wholly or in part from any restrictive provision;

(4) the Governor General in Council in giving consent, or the Court in making a winding up order, as the case may be, may impose such terms or conditions for giving effect to the purposes of this Act as he or it thinks fit.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS

It is considered desirable that companies which, during the war, have been reconstituted in India on lines approved by the Government of India and that new companies, whose business is of importance to the security of India and of the British Empire as a whole, should be restrained from altering their articles of association in such a way as to bring them under the control of foreign interests. It is therefore proposed that the provisions in the articles of association of such companies, which are designed to restrict the shares or interests to be held or the powers to be exercised by persons other than British subjects, should not be altered without the consent of the Governor General in Council. Similar legislation in the United Kingdom has resulted in the Companies (Foreign Interests) Act, 191 (7 & 8 Geo. 5, Ch. 18), which prohibits the alteration of restrictive articles of this nature without the permission of the Board of Trade Clauses 3 and 4 (1) of the Bill are designed to give effect to this proposal, and the remaining sub-clauses of clause 4 have been inserted to prevent evasion of this provision by voluntary liquidation on the part of the companies concerned.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

The following Bill was introduced in the Indian Legislative Council on the 11th September 1918 :—

No. 21 OF 1918.

A Bill further to amend the Land Acquisition Act, 1894.

WHEREAS it is expedient further to amend the Land Acquisition Act, 1894 ; It is hereby enacted as follows :— (I of 1894.)

Short title.

1. This Act may be called the Land Acquisition (Amendment) Act, 191 .

Substitution of new section for section 54, Act I, 1894.

2. For section 54 of the Land Acquisition Act, 1894, (I of 1894.) the following section shall be substituted, namely :—

"54. Subject to the provisions of the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908, applicable to appeals, (V of 1908.) an appeal shall lie in any proceedings under this Act to the High Court from the award or from any part of the award, of the Court of first instance or of appeal, and to His Majesty in Council from that of the High Court."

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

The object of this Bill is two-fold :—

Firstly, to secure the right of appeal to the High Court whatever the amount of claim of compensation may be. The amendment is necessitated because the High Court of Bombay has held that, where a claim under Rs. 5,000 in value has been decided by a Court of first instance, an appeal lies to the District Court, in virtue of section 16 of the Bombay Civil Courts Act, 1869 (XIV of 1869), and the right of appeal given by section 54 of the Land Acquisition Act, 1894 (I of 1894), is thus exhausted, and no further appeal lies to the High Court (See Nathubhai vs. Manordas, 14 Bombay Law Reporter, 325, and Ahmedbhoy vs. Waman, 16 Bombay Law Reporter, 72).

Secondly, to secure the right of appeal to His Majesty in Council. An appeal to His Majesty in Council was allowed in land acquisition proceedings as a matter of course, subject to the provisions of sections 109 and 110 of the Civil Procedure Code, 1908 (Act V of 1908). But the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council held in Rangoon Batataung Co., Limited, vs. The Collector of Rangoon (L. R. 39 Indian Appeals, 1917) that in proceedings under the Land Acquisition Act no appeal lay to the Privy Council from the award of the Chief Court of Lower Burma inasmuch as section 54 gave only a special and limited right of appeal to the High Court from the award of the Court, and therefore no further appeal lay to His Majesty in Council. In the light of this pronouncement the High Court of Bombay has also recently held that no appeal lies to His Majesty in Council from its decision under the Land Acquisition Act (The Special Officer, Salsette Building Sites vs. Dossabhai, 14 Bombay Law Reporter, 1194). The proposed amendment is intended to give in express terms a right of appeal to His Majesty in Council—a right which was not doubted and which was often availed of till the decision in the Rangoon case.

FOREIGN SEA-BORNE TRADE.

PREFATORY NOTE.

The returns of Indian imports and exports, including re-exports of merchandise, (exclusive of treasure and Government stores), by sea during the three months, April to June, 1918, show a trade balance (excluding treasure) in favour of India of nearly R19 crores or 27 per cent below that of the corresponding period of the previous year. In the three months, April to June, 1917, the balance in favour of India was nearly R26 crores.

India's Balance of Trade in the three months, April to June, 1916, 1917, and 1918, was as follows :—

	Three months, April to June.

Balance of Trade . .	—	—	—

As the publication of the treasure figures has been temporarily discontinued, it is not possible to give here the net (private) exports from April to June, nor the net balance of trade in the same period. It may be of interest to note that the net (private) exports, including treasure, are below those of 1917, but higher than those of 1916. The balance of trade, so far as shown by the statistics of merchandise, treasure, Council Bills, and Enfaced Rupee paper, in the three months ended June, 1918, was in favour of India, though not to so large an extent as in the corresponding period of 1916 and 1917.

The total exports of Indian merchandise in the three months ended June, 1918, amounted to nearly R55 crores, of which R30 crores went to ports within the British Empire and R25 crores to ports outside the Empire. The United Kingdom took 25·8 per cent of the exports, followed by Japan 14·9 per cent, the United States 14·4 per cent, Italy 2·8 per cent, and France 1·8 per cent. Egypt took 11·8 per cent, but a considerable portion of the shipments to Egypt was transit trade, the exports being consigned to Port Said "for orders." During the same period there were imported into India goods of the value of over R38 crores. Of this amount nearly R24 crores were sent from ports within the Empire, R20 crores alone coming from British ports. The principal exporter to India, apart from the United Kingdom (20 crores or 52 per cent), was Japan, which exported goods to the value of R6 crores (16 per cent). The United States were the third largest exporter (9 per cent), and Java the fourth (5 per cent).

The following figures showing India's trade with the British Empire and Allies, and Neutral countries during the three months (April to June) of the years 1916, 1917, and 1918, are interesting :—

COTTON PRESS RETURN

No. 22 of 1917-18.

PREFATORY NOTE.

The Cotton Season, 1917-18.

The yield of the cotton crop of 1917-18 was estimated in February, 1918, at 4,035,000 bales on an area of 24,781,000 acres, as compared with 4,489,000 bales on an area of 21,745,000 acres, the revised final figures of the preceding year. There was a decrease of 10 per cent in outturn. There were 1,590,000 bales of cotton pressed in the pressing factories, and 505,000 bales of unpressed cotton received in the spinning mills, from 1st September, 1917, to 31st July, 1918, as against 2,040,000 bales and 478,000 bales, respectively, during the corresponding period of last year, showing a decrease of 22 per cent in the case of presses, but an increase of 6 per cent in the case of mills. Too much stress should not be laid on the accuracy of these returns as a means of checking the forecast estimates of outturn, as there is at present no system in vogue of furnishing complete returns from all presses and mills. The figures for the Native States of Hyderabad, Central India, Rajputana, and Mysore are, as will be seen from the footnotes to the tables, mostly incomplete and have been excluded from this comparison.

PART V.

Bills introduced in the Indian Legislative Council, Reports of Select Committees, presented to the Council, and Bills published under Rule 23.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

The following Report of the Select Committee on the Bill to take powers to provide for the cheap supply of cotton cloth to the poorer classes of the community was presented to the Indian Legislative Council on the 18th September 1918 :—

1. WE, the undersigned Members of the Select Committee to which the Bill to take powers to provide for the cheap supply of cotton cloth to the poorer classes of the community was referred, have considered the Bill, and have now the honour to submit this our Report, with the Bill as amended by us annexed thereto.

2. The Hon'ble Sir Fazulbhoy Currimbhoy urged the necessity of standard cloth being marked in such a way as to be recognisable by even the most illiterate classes and the desirability of such mark being woven into the whole length of the fabric. We recognise that this point is one of very considerable practical importance, and we have therefore inserted a special power (b) in sub-clause (2) of clause 4 giving the Controller power to prescribe the manner in which standard cloth shall be marked and have also modified clause 8 of the Bill so as to penalize misuse of any prescribed mark. With reference to clause 4 (2) it was further suggested that definite provision should be inserted in the Bill making it clear that a manufacturer might at his own risk pass on his obligation to manufacture standard cloth to another manufacturer by such private arrangement as he thought fit. It appeared to us that there was no objection to this course, on the understanding that the responsibility for the supply of the cloth remained with the manufacturer on whom the order under the Bill was made. We have, therefore, made a slight modification in (b), now (c), of the same sub-clause and a consequential alteration in clause 6.

We discussed at some length the question of the power given by the Bill to the Controller to fix different prices in the case of different manufacturers in the same locality. It was pointed out, and this view was accepted by the Committee, that in normal circumstances the Controller should fix a flat rate governing mills in the same locality, but it was recognised that under exceptional conditions this might not be possible. We have accordingly modified the proviso to (c), now (d), of the same sub-clause to indicate the view that it is only in special circumstances that the Controller shall exercise the power of discriminating between different manufacturers in the same locality. The power of entry and inspection given by (d) of the same sub-clause in the Bill as referred to us was criticised by some of the non-official Members of the Committee as unnecessary, and likely to be unduly harassing. The Committee were prepared to accept the view that the clause should be struck out, not only for this reason, but also because the other powers conferred on the Controller would enable him to compel recalcitrant persons to produce such information as he considered necessary. We have accordingly deleted the provision in question.

3. We consider that the relations between the Controller and his Advisory Committee which are contemplated by clause 5 need revision, and we have accordingly amended that clause so as to provide that, where the majority of the Committee who have been consulted by the Controller differ from his opinion, the matter must be referred to the Government of India.

4. With reference to clause 9, we think we ought to indicate in the Bill itself the importance which we attach to wide publication for public information of orders passed by the Local Government fixing prices of standard cloth, and we have amplified the provisions of this clause accordingly.

5. There is a point which arises in connection with clause 10 which we should like to mention, although we have not thought it necessary to amend the Bill, namely, the desirability of providing that persons licensed to sell standard cloth should maintain and display in their places of business a notice or list of the authorised prices. This, we think, can be sufficiently provided for by a condition to be annexed to the license, but we desire to refer to it here in order that the matter may not be lost sight of.

6. At the suggestion of our colleague, the Hon'ble Mr. Sarma, we have increased the penalty imposed by clause 10 (2) from three to six months, as we agree with him that the maximum penalty provided in the Bill is hardly sufficient to indicate what we regard as the gravity of an offence against this clause.

7. With the exception of trifling drafting changes, to which we need not allude in detail, we have not otherwise modified the Bill.

8. We think that the Bill has not been so altered as to require re-publication, and we recommend that it be passed as now amended.

[AS AMENDED BY THE SELECT COMMITTEE.]

[Words printed in italics indicate the amendments suggested by the Select Committee.]

A Bill to take powers to provide for the cheap supply of cotton cloth to the poorer classes of the community.

WHEREAS it is expedient to take powers for the purpose of encouraging or maintaining the supply, at reasonable rates, to the poorer classes of the community, of cotton cloth manufactured in this country; It is hereby enacted as follows:—

Short title.

1. This Act may be called the Cotton Cloth Act, 191 .

Definitions.

2. In this Act, unless there is anything repugnant in the subject or context,—

(a) "Controller" means a Controller appointed under this Act;

(b) "Cotton cloth" means cotton cloth manufactured in this country;

(c) "Standard cloth" means any kind of cotton cloth which a Controller may from time to time declare to be standard cloth.

Power to appoint Controllers.

3. The Governor General in Council may, by notification in the Gazette of India, appoint one or more persons as he may think fit to be Controllers for the purposes of this Act, and shall specify in any such notification the area in which any Controller so appointed shall exercise his powers.

Powers of the Controller.

4. (1) Whenever it appears to a Controller that such a course is necessary or expedient for the purpose of encouraging or maintaining the supply of standard cloth, at reasonable rates to the poorer classes of the community, he may (subject to this Act and the rules made thereunder and to the control of the Governor General in Council) make general or special orders regulating or giving directions within the area in which he is empowered, with respect to the manufacture, transport, distribution and sale or purchase of, or other dealings in, cotton cloth.

(2) Without prejudice to the generality of the foregoing power, orders may be made by a Controller—

(a) declaring and defining the classes of standard cloth;

(b) prescribing distinctive indications which shall be woven into, impressed or otherwise displayed upon different classes of standard cloth;

(c) requiring any person, who ordinarily manufactures cotton cloth, to manufacture, or provide for the manufacture of, standard cloth in such quantity, of such quality and by such date as the Controller may direct;

(d) fixing the prices to be paid to the manufacturer for standard cloth or for any particular class of standard cloth, and providing for the payment thereof on delivery:

Provided that in fixing prices the Controller shall have regard to the cost of production and to the allowance of a reasonable profit, without necessarily taking into consideration the market-price:

Provided further that the Controller may fix different prices in the case of different localities or if special reasons exist, in respect of different manufacturers in the same locality.

Appointment of Advisory Committees.

5. Where a Controller is appointed in exercise of the power conferred by section 3, the Governor General in Council shall appoint a Committee consisting of such number of persons having knowledge of the cotton or cotton cloth trade as he thinks fit to assist the Controller with their advice in the performance of his duties. Before a Controller issues any order declaring and defining the classes of standard cloth or fixing the prices to be paid to the manufacturer, he shall consult the Committee, and he may consult the Committee on any other matter connected with his duties:

Provided that if the opinion of the majority of members of the Committee who are present at any meeting is adverse to the issue of any order, the Controller shall, if he does not accept the Committee's advice, refer the matter for the decision of the Governor General in Council.

Manufacture and delivery of standard cloth.

6. Where, by an order made in the exercise of powers conferred by section 4, the Controller has directed a manufacturer to manufacture, or provide for the manufacture of, standard cloth and has fixed the price therefor, the manufacturer shall deliver the same at such time and place and in such manner as the Controller may specify from time to time, and the Controller shall pay or cause to be paid to the manufacturer the said price, together with the freight, if any, actually paid by the manufacturer.

Delegation of powers.

7. Subject to the control of the Governor General in Council a Controller may, from time to time by order in writing, delegate all or any of his powers subject to such conditions and restrictions as may be prescribed therein.

Penalty for disobedience of orders under section 4.

8. If any person acts in contravention of or, without reasonable cause, fails to comply with the provisions of any order made under section 4, or counterfeits upon any cloth a distinctive indication prescribed by the Controller, such person shall be punishable with imprisonment which may extend to six months, or with fine or with both.

Power to fix prices of standard cloth.

9. (1) The Local Government shall, if standard cloth is sold in the province, by order in writing which shall be notified in the local official gazette, fix the price at which alone standard cloth or any class of standard cloth shall be sold to the public.

(2) Orders may be made fixing different prices for different localities or for different methods of sale.

(3) Every such order shall be published in such manner as the Local Government may consider to be best adapted for bringing the prices so fixed to the notice of the poorer classes.

Limitation of sale of standard cloth.

10. (1) No person shall sell or keep, offer or expose for sale to the public, standard cloth otherwise than at such price as may be fixed by the Local Government and in accordance with the terms and conditions of a license issued in this behalf.

(2) If any person contravenes the provisions of sub-section (1), he shall be punishable with imprisonment which may extend to six months, or with fine or with both.

Grant of licenses for sale of standard cloth.

11. A license for the sale of standard cloth shall be granted by such authority, in such form and subject to such conditions as the Local Government may prescribe by rules made under this Act.

Rule-making power.

12. (1) The Governor General in Council may make rules—

(a) prescribing the powers and duties of the Controller,

(b) prescribing the manner in which the Controller's orders shall be published or served as the case may be, and

(c) generally giving effect to the provisions of this Act.

(2) The Local Government shall, if standard cloth is sold in the province, make rules prescribing the authority by which, the form in which and the conditions under which, any license or class of licenses for the sale of standard cloth shall be granted.

(3) Rules made under this Act, shall be published in the Gazette of India or the local official gazette, as the case may be, and on such publication shall have effect as if enacted in this Act.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

The following Bill was introduced in the Indian Legislative Council on the 18th of September 1918 :—

No. 22 OF 1918.

A Bill to provide that certain persons deemed to be enrolled under the Indian Defence Force Act, 1917, shall be liable to serve as well without the limits of India as within those limits, and that when so serving they shall be subject to the said Act.

WHEREAS it is expedient to provide that certain persons deemed to be enrolled under the Indian Defence Force Act, 1917, shall be liable to serve as well without the limits of India as within those limits, and that when so serving they shall be subject to the said Act, and that for this purpose it is necessary further to amend the said Act; It is hereby enacted as follows:—

III of 1917.

1. This Act may be called the Indian Defence Force (Foreign Service) Amendment Act, 1918.

Short title.

2. To sub-section (2) of section 1 of the Indian Defence Force Act, 1917 (hereinafter called the said Act), the following words shall be added, namely :—"and to persons deemed to be enrolled under section 8 of this Act whether within or without the limits of India."

Amendment of section 1(2), Act III of 1917.

3. In section 6 of the said Act for the words "to serve in any part of India," the words, "to serve within or without the limits of India" shall be substituted.

Amendment of section 6, Act III of 1917.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

It has been brought to the notice of Government that there is a general feeling among European British subjects in India that they should, in respect of liability to military service, be under equal obligations as appear to obtain in Great Britain and other parts of the British Empire, and the expansion of the scope of military service imposed by the Indian Defence Force Act has been suggested so as to satisfy this sentiment. At present, under the Indian Defence Force Act, persons who are deemed to be enrolled for general military service are liable to service within Indian territorial limits only, and the Bill accordingly provides for making them liable to serve in any place whether within or without those limits.

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

The following Bill was introduced in the Indian Legislative Council on the 18th September 1918:—

No. 23 OF 1918.

A Bill to provide that certain bronze coins coined outside British India shall be legal tender in British India

WHEREAS it is expedient to provide that certain bronze coins coined outside British India shall be legal tender in British India; It is hereby enacted as follows:—

Short title

1. This Act may be called the Bronze Coin (Legal Tender) Act, 191 .

Power to declare certain bronze coins coined outside British India to be legal tender.

2. (1) Where bronze coins of any of the denominations specified in section 8 of the Indian Coinage Act, 1906, are coined outside British India at the request of the Governor General in Council, and the Governor General in Council is satisfied that such coins are in accordance with the requirements of section 9 and of any notification for the time being in force under section 10 of the said Act, he may by notification in the Gazette of India, direct the issue of any such coins, and thereafter any such coins shall be legal tender in payment or on account in the same way and to the same extent as if they were coins referred to in section 14 of the said Act, and the provisions of the said Act shall apply accordingly.

III of 1906

(2) Every coin which is declared to be legal tender by sub-section (1) shall be deemed to be Queen's coin within the meaning of section 230 of the Indian Penal Code.

XLV of 1860

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

It is of importance to enable the Indian Mints to increase the rate of output of rupees from the large supplies which the Government of India are at present obtaining. One method of effecting this is to arrange for the coinage elsewhere of the bronze coinage which is at present carried out by the Calcutta Mint. An arrangement has accordingly been entered into with His Exalted Highness the Nizam of Hyderabad for the coinage, for the present, at the Hyderabad Mint of bronze pice or quarter-anna pieces. In order to make the pice so coined legal tender within British India, legislation is required, since under section 14 of the Indian Coinage Act, 1906 (III of 1906), read with section 8 thereof, only pice coined at the Mints established under the Indian Coinage Act are legal tender within British India. It is accordingly proposed by the present Bill that where the bronze coins specified in the Indian Coinage Act are coined outside British India at the request of the Governor General in Council, and the Governor General in Council is satisfied that such coins are in accordance with the requirements of the Act and of any notification for the time being in force thereunder, he may, by notification in the Gazette of India, direct the issue of any such coins, and these shall thereafter be legal tender in the same manner as if they had been coined under the provisions of the Indian Coinage Act.

With reference to the awards conferred as announced in the London Gazette dated 4th February, 1918, the following are the statements of services for which the decorations were conferred :—

Awarded a Bar to the Distinguished Service Order.

* * * * * * * *

Lt.-Col. Guy Archibald Hastings Beatty, D.S.O., Ind. Cav.

For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty. When a regiment to which he was in support was held up in an attack he led his regiment forward at the gallop under heavy machine-gun and rifle fire and occupied an important position, the capture of which enabled the other regiment to advance and take their objective. His quick decision and skilful handling of his men resulted in an important success.

* * * * * * * *

Maj. George Knowles, D.S.O., Ind. Cav.

For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty. He took command of his regiment when his commanding officer became a casualty, and remained in command though he was wounded. He made most skilful dispositions and clung to his position with the greatest determination, though surrounded on all sides until he was relieved. He showed great ability and courage.

* * * * * * * *

Maj. Arthur Mordaunt Mills, D.S.O., Ind. Cav.

For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty when in command of his squadron in an attack. Though, owing to heavy casualties, they were at first forced to withdraw a short distance, he reorganised, led them forward with great skill and determination, and captured his objective

* * * * * * * *

Awarded the Military Cross.

* * * * * * * *

Capt. Norman Napier Evelyn Bray, Ind. Cav.

For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty. He led his squadron with great skill and determination in an attack, and consolidated his position under heavy fire.

* * * * * * * *

Capt. Charles O'Brien Daunt, Ind. Cav.

For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty. He led two dismounted squadrons in an attack which resulted in the capture of an advanced enemy trench, though the attack was finally held up by very heavy machine-gun and rifle fire. Had it not been for his able handling of the two squadrons they would have suffered very heavy losses.

* * * * * * * *

Lt. S. Dutt, I.M.S.

For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty. He worked indefatigably and attended a large number of wounded belonging to various units at the aid post which was under heavy shell, machine-gun and rifle fire. His absolute coolness and steady devotion to duty were a splendid example to all.

* * * * * * * *

Capt. Lancelot Cecil Torbock Graham, Ind. Cav.

For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty. He continually carried orders through shell and machine-gun fire, and kept in constant touch with the situation.

* * * * * * * *

Risaldar Mukand Singh, Bahadur, Ind. Cav.

For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty. He led his troop at the gallop through the damaged wire of the enemy position, and engaged the retreating enemy with the lance, killing several of the enemy himself. Later, he assisted in organising the defence of the captured position, displaying great skill and energy and showing a fine example to his men.

Lt. William Walter Keith Page, attd. Ind. Cav.

For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty. He was sent forward to try and gain touch with a cavalry unit which had been almost cut off. Though wounded early in the day, he remained with his men, showing great courage and determination. Though finally held up in a very advanced position by heavy machine-gun fire from the front and flank, he held on to his position with a small force until nightfall, when he was relieved.

* * * * * * * *

Lt. Victor Wallace Smith, I A.R.O.

For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty He displayed great coolness, ability, and sound tactical knowledge in handling his signal troop, which was under heavy machine-gun fire. Owing to his personal influence and example every man volunteered to carry despatches thr ugh heavy fire, and he was most successful in establishing visual communication with headquarters, and displayed great initiative and tenacity.

* * * * * * * *

Capt. Dysart Edward Whitworth, Cav. I.A.

For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty. He was carrying out the duties of Adjutant to his regiment when in action, when communications to the rear were being heavily barraged. No orders having been received, he made his way on foot through the barrage to the infantry headquarters, where he received orders by telephone for the withdrawal of the regiment. He returned through the barrage and delivered these orders to his commanding officer. Though his foot was injured, he continued to perform his duties until the regiment was relieved.

STATEMENTS LAID ON THE TABLE; QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

[Sir William Vincent; Sir C. Sankaran Nair; Sir Dinshaw Wacha; Sir William Meyer.] [4TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.]

The Hon'ble Sir William Vincent laid on the table a statement* showing securities deposited, etc., by Urdu and Anglo-Urdu newspapers, journals and other periodicals, which was promised in reply to a question asked by the Hon'ble Mir Asad Ali, Khan Bahadur, on the 12th March, 1918.†

The Hon'ble Sir C. Sankaran Nair laid on the table copy* of correspondence regarding students' strikes, which was promised in reply to a question asked by the Hon'ble Rai Bahadur B. D. Shukul on the 6th February, 1918.‡

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

11-10 A.M.

The Hon'ble Sir Dinshaw Wacha asked :—

Coinage of Rupees.

1. "(a) What was the stock of rupees in the Paper Currency Reserve—

(i) on 1st April last, and

(ii) on 31st August or such date up to which the Government can conveniently give statistics?

(b) What was the total issue of rupees during this period, and how does it compare with the issues in corresponding periods of recent years?

(c) What was the total coinage of rupees during the same period?

(d) What was the amount of uncoined silver bullion in stock in India at the end of the period in question, and is this stock likely to be replenished at an early date?"

The Hon'ble Sir William Meyer replied :—

"(a) The balance of silver coin in the Paper Currency Reserve on 1st April, 1918 was 1040 lakhs and on 7th August, 1918, the last date for which all the statistics asked for are conveniently available, 819 lakhs.

(b) The total net issues of rupees from 1st April, 1918 to 7th August, 1918 amounted to 1679 lakhs as compared with 131 lakhs and 168 lakhs in the corresponding periods of 1917 and 1916, respectively.

(c) The total coinage of rupees from 1st April, 1918 to 7th August, 1918 amounted to 14½ crores.

(d) Uncoined silver bullion sufficient to coin 938 lakhs of rupees was held in the Paper Currency Reserve in India on the 7th August, 1918. In addition, consignments of silver sufficient to coin nearly 13 crores of rupees have either been, or are being, shipped and were expected to arrive between the above date, 7th of August and the middle of September, and these will be followed regularly by further shipments."

The Hon'ble Sir Dinshaw Wacha asked :—

Indian Mints.

2. "Have any steps been taken to extend the coining capacity of the Indian Mints?"

The Hon'ble Sir William Meyer replied :—

"The Government of India have taken all possible steps to increase the coining capacity of the mints in order to enable them to deal with the large amount of silver that is arriving in India from America. The principal measures taken have been as follows :—

[4TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.] [Sir William Meyer ; Sir Dinshaw Wacha.]

(1) In both the mints a system of working a two-shifts day has been adopted, as yielding better results than the previous system of working full overtime during periods of pressure.

(2) His Exalted Highness the Nizam has consented to allow the Hyderabad Mint, as soon as the pressure for the Hyderabad Government coinage relaxes, to undertake for the Government of India the coinage of bronze quarter-anna pieces, which will enable the Calcutta Mint, which ordinarily coins those pieces, to increase its output of whole rupees.

(3) The Secretary of State has been asked to send to India, as soon as possible, an increased supply of automaton balances.

(4) An increased supply of electric power for the Calcutta Mint has been arranged for.

These and some other subsidiary measures will, it is hoped, enable the two mints to work up to an average daily output of 25 lakhs of whole rupees for 22 working days monthly, provided certain difficulties regarding the supply of labour and supervising staff do not become acute, and there is no breakdown in the existing machinery, parts of which are now somewhat old. With the provision of the extra balances mentioned above, it is possible that the daily output may eventually be increased to 30 lakhs."

The Hon'ble Sir Dinshaw Wacha asked :—

One rupee and 2½ rupee notes.

3. "What has been the total issue of—

(a) One rupee, and

(b) 2½ rupee notes,

up to the last date to which Government have statistics conveniently available, and what proportion of these issues has come back for encashment ?"

The Hon'ble Sir William Meyer replied :—

"A statement giving the figures asked for is laid on the table."

Statement showing the gross issues from the seven Currency Offices, and the return from circulation, of one rupee and 2½ rupee currency notes up to 29th June, 1918, from 1st December, 1917 in the case of Re. 1 notes and 1st January, 1918 in respect of Rs. 2½ notes.

2½ " "	†2,00,21,331	19,74,769

*This includes Rs. 2,64,32,300 sent from currency offices to treasuries, Rs. 4,00,000 to Basra and Rs. 10,00,000 to Mombassa. Statistics are not readily available showing the amounts actually issued to the public from treasuries, but it seems probable that most of the notes sent to treasuries have been issued.

†This includes Rs. 1,21,75,400 sent to treasuries, but here again statistics are not available to show how many have been subsequently issued to the public.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

[Sir Dinshaw Wacha; Sir William Meyer.] [4TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.]

The Hon'ble Sir Dinshaw Wacha asked :—

Small change and encashments of notes.

4. "Has the attention of Government been drawn to complaints which have appeared in the press regarding—

(a) lack of small change in many places,

(b) difficulties in obtaining change for currency notes without a considerable discount?

If so, what steps have been taken to verify and remedy the evils complained of?"

The Hon'ble Sir William Meyer replied :—

"Both the matters referred to in the question have received the constant attention of the Government of India.

(a) As regards the lack of small change, the demand for this has considerably increased largely, no doubt, because, owing to the scarcity of rupees in many districts, the labouring classes have been accumulating small change instead of merely using the latter for amounts less than a rupee. The difficulty of supplying large quantities of small change arises from the fact that the coinage of small pieces means considerably more than a proportionate reduction in the out-turn of whole rupees by the Mints. Nevertheless, during the four months, April to July inclusive, the Mints coined over 3 million eight-anna pieces, 12⅓ million four-anna pieces, nearly 25 million two-anna nickel pieces and 15½ million one-anna nickel pieces, as compared with 2¼ million eight-anna pieces, 2 million four-anna pieces, 8 million silver and nickel two-anna pieces and 25 million one-anna pieces in the preceding four months. Now that the stocks of rupees in the Currency Offices are showing a satisfactory increase, it is hoped shortly to meet all demands for small coins.

(b) Even in normal times, when encashment facilities are in full force at all treasuries, notes were frequently at a small discount, especially in outlying places, but such discount, where it existed, was practically nothing more than a money changer's commission. In recent months, however, as my Hon'ble friend is aware, the Government have been obliged, owing to the enormous demand for silver currency, to withdraw temporarily many of the extra-legal facilities given for the encashment of notes in districts, in order to strengthen their reserves and to enable them to meet their legal liability to encash notes at the various Currency Offices. The scarcity of rupees and of small change in districts has undoubtedly led to notes being exchanged against rupees at a discount at places where they were formerly exchangeable at par, although it is satisfactory that in most places the discount has not been very large. The Government are aware that the existence of this discount is a hardship to persons who have legitimate need to change a note, more particularly those wishing to change a one-rupee note. Local Governments have been asked to do what they can to warn the public against unscrupulous people who take advantage of the ignorance of the masses to obtain an illegitimate profit by purchasing below their legal tender value notes which they know very well the Government will accept at their full value."

The Hon'ble Sir Dinshaw Wacha asked :—

Coinage of Gold Mohur pieces.

5. "(a) Will Government be pleased to give such information as they have available regarding the coinage of gold mohur pieces and the use to which these have been put?

(b) Have Government reason to believe that the melting of coins is still taking place to a considerable extent? If so, what measures have been taken to deal with this evil?"

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

[4TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.] [Sir William Meyer; Sir Dinshaw Wacha; Sir Claude Hill.]

The Hon'ble Sir William Meyer replied :—

"(a) The number of gold mohurs coined up to August 15th was 2,109,703. Of these, 389,900 had been issued up to the above date, and have been used in making purchases of food grains in Northern India on behalf of the Home Government.

(b) The Government have reason to believe that the melting of coin and specially of gold coins is still taking place to a considerable extent. The melting, breaking up, or using otherwise than as currency of any current gold or silver coin is a criminal offence, under rule 21-A of the Defence of India Rules, and Local Governments have been asked to institute prosecutions against any person concerning whom there is sufficient evidence to establish the commission of such an offence. The Government have also lately issued a prohibition against dealing in legal tender coins above their face value with the special object of checking speculation in gold coins and thereby reducing the removal of these from circulation."

The Hon'ble Sir Dinshaw Wacha asked :—

Government Loans.

6. "Will Government be pleased to state the total amount of diminution, if any, in the aggregate capital value of the various Government Loans current between 1st July 1915 and 30th June 1918 ?"

The Hon'ble Sir William Meyer replied :—

"Apart from some special loans from Ruling Chiefs, the Government of India loans current throughout the period to which my Hon'ble friend refers are the 3 and 3½ per cent loans. These have been reduced to some extent by conversion to other loans. I leave this portion out of account, as any reduction in capital has been accompanied by a higher interest yield. The latest figures for the amounts of these loans outstanding are those for the 1st June 1918, and were in the case of the 3 per cent loans Rs. 6·8 crores, and in the case of the 3½ per cent, Rs. 119 crores. On the basis of quotations of 79 and 91¼ for the 3 and 3½ per cent loans, respectively, at the commencement of the period specified by the Hon'ble Member, and of 58 and 65 respectively at the close of the period, the diminution in capital market value on the above amounts has been 32·9 crores. Since the 30th June, however, there has again been a rise in the prices quoted for our Government loans, these standing on the 22nd August at 62 and 71, respectively. On this basis the diminution in value has been 25¾ crores."

The Hon'ble Sir Dinshaw Wacha asked :

Experiments in India for obtaining a fibre as good as cotton wool.

7. "(a) Are Government aware of the research which is being carried on by scientists of the West for the purposes of obtaining a fibre as good as the cotton wool of commerce from the pulp of certain kinds of wood ?

(b) Have Government instituted, or do they contemplate instituting, research for obtaining a similar fibre from the pulp of a variety of woods growing in the State and private forests of India and Burma ?"

The Hon'ble Sir Claude Hill replied :—

"It is presumed that the expression 'cotton wool' refers to raw cotton fibre cleaned and teased up, which in this condition is used for surgical purposes, as a filtering medium and for the manufacture of gun-cotton. The Government of India are not aware of any researches which have succeeded in producing from wood a substance as good as cotton for these purposes. They know that an inferior product can be obtained from wood; but the doubtful value of this article does not seem to warrant the institution of extensive experiments in India."

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

[Sir Dinshaw Wacha ; H. E. the Commander-in-Chief in India ; Sir George Barnes ; Sir Claude Hill.] [4TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.]

The Hon'ble Sir Dinshaw Wacha asked :—

Stores purchased by Government between 1st January 1917 and 31st July 1918.

8. "Will Government be pleased to lay on the table a list of the stores, other than those specially required for war purposes, purchased for Government in India, England, the United States, Japan and elsewhere, between 1st January 1917 and 31st July 1918, giving particulars of the stores and the names of the person or persons or the companies from whom they were purchased ? "

His Excellency the Commander-in-Chief in India replied :—

"I would refer the Hon'ble Member to the answer given in Council on the 18th* March 1918, to a somewhat similar question put by him. As explained then, the expenditure of time and labour which would be necessary to enable an answer to be given to the Hon'ble Member's inquiry would not, in the opinion of the Government of India, be justified."

The Hon'ble Sir Dinshaw Wacha asked :—

Indian emigration to Colonies.

9. " (a) Are Government aware or made aware by the Secretary of State of a Resolution unanimously passed some time ago by the Fiji Legislative Council declaring that the Government of the Colony 'should take such measures as will assist in encouraging and promoting the resumption of Indian emigration after the war' ?

(b) If the answer be in the affirmative, will Government be pleased to reassure the Indian public that there is to be no departure from the declared new policy respecting Indian emigration in consequence of the said Resolution of the Fiji Legislative Council ? "

The Hon'ble Sir George Barnes replied :—

" (a) The Government have no knowledge of the Resolution referred to by the Hon'ble Member.

(b) I can, however, assure the Hon'ble Member, and through him the Indian public, that there is no departure or intended departure on the part of the Government of India from the declared new policy respecting Indian emigration, in consequence of any Resolution which may have been passed by the Fiji Legislative Council."

The Hon'ble Sir Dinshaw Wacha asked :—

Co-operative Credit Societies.

10. " Will Government be pleased to state : —

(a) the number of Co-operative Credit Societies having for their sole and exclusive object the relief of agricultural indebtedness, which existed in each province of British India on 30th June 1918;

(b) the total amount of capital, their own and borrowed, of such societies at the date aforesaid;

(c) the total amount of debt paid off from the commencement of their respective operations to 30th June 1918 ? "

The Hon'ble Sir Claude Hill replied :—

" A reference is invited to the Hon'ble Member's question on the same subject and the reply given thereto at the Council meeting of 28th February, 1917.†. So far as the Government of India are aware, there are no Co-operative Societies having for their sole and exclusive object the relief of agricultural indebtedness. The Hon'ble Member will find the figures of capital of agricultural societies for the year 1916-17 in column 29 of General Statement B in the consolidated returns for that year. The great majority of such societies are credit societies, vide columns 2-6 of the same statement."

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

[4TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.] [Sir Dinshaw Wacha ; Sir C. Sankaran Nair ; Sir William Meyer.]

The Hon'ble Sir Dinshaw Wacha asked :—

Provision of dwelling houses for the working classes.

11. " (a) Are Government aware—

(i) that the Danish Government have recently allowed in their Budget the sum of 4 million pounds sterling to provide suitable dwelling houses for the working classes, in recognition of the principle that it is the duty of a civilised State to make such provision, and (ii) that the House of Commons have made a grant of 2 million pounds sterling to the local Government Board for a similar purpose on the same principle ?

(b) Do Government propose to provide under the head of Sanitation a reasonable sum in the next annual Budget towards the same object to meet the requirements of the various provinces in this country ? "

The Hon'ble Sir C. Sankaran Nair replied :—

"(a) The answer is in the negative. It appears from a debate on the subject on the 2nd May that the House of Commons have recognised that it will be necessary to offer substantial financial assistance from public funds to local authorities in England and Wales for the carrying through of a programme of the housing of the working classes at the end of the war ; but the Government are unable to say whether this was in recognition of the principle referred to by the Hon'ble Member.

(b) The Hon'ble Member is referred to the reply given in answer to his question on the same subject on the 20th February last.* We have not been asked by any Local Government for any financial assistance to provide houses for working classes, and therefore it is not the intention of Government to provide any sum for this object in the next annual Budget."

The Hon'ble Sir Dinshaw Wacha asked :—

Increase in the volume of Indian Currency

12. "(a) Will Government be pleased to state the total amount of increase in the volume of rupees since 1900 ?

(b) Will Government be pleased to state whether the great increase in the volume of Indian currency during the last two years is normal and justified by the growth of population, trade, wealth and other kindred causes, or whether it is owing to abnormal causes which eventually lead to what is technically called 'inflation'? Has the attention of Government been drawn in this connection to the remarks made by Professor Nicholson in regard to rise of prices on page 60 of his recently published work on War Finance ?

(c) Is it correct to assume that the prevailing premium on sovereigns and the newly coined Indian gold mohurs is due to the exceptional demand for gold relatively to notes, combined with the restrictions on the imports and exports of gold ? "

The Hon'ble Sir William Meyer replied :—

"(a) The number of new rupees coined between the 1st April 1900 and 31st July 1918 has been 175 crores, and the net absorption of rupees by the public during the same period has been approximately the same.

(b) Speaking very generally, the great increase in the volume of Indian currency during the war has been due to the large balance of trade in favour of India, i.e., to the great and increasing demand for India's products, and to a continually diminishing volume of imports. In so far as this balance of trade is due to war conditions in European countries, the demand for currency may be described as due to abnormal causes. Whether or not among those abnormal causes is what is called 'inflation,' and whether the coinage of new rupees or the growth in the circulation of currency notes has led to the recent rise of prices are matters of opinion, which my Hon'ble friend will no doubt recognise cannot be satisfactorily discussed in the reply to his question. The Government of India's attention has been drawn to Professor Nicholson's remarks on the alleged inflation of currency in India. It is not possible to deal with a complicated and difficult matter of this kind by means of question and answer. It is sufficient to say at present that the remarks in question contain a number of statements which the Government of India could not admit to be correct, and that in their opinion there is no justification for Mr. Nicholson's conclusion that the rise in prices has been materially connected with the increase in the volume of rupees. On the present occasion I will merely quote some observations made by me on this matter in my reply to the debate on the Financial Statement, when referring to some remarks that had been made by certain Hon'ble Members on the inflation of currency and its effect on prices. I then said—

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

[Sir William Meyer; Mr. Kamini Kumar Chanda; Sir William Vincent; Mr. G. S. Khaparde.] [4TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.]

> 'I do not see how the currency can be said to be inflated by our coinage and note issues. We only coin when it is shown to us to be absolutely necessary to add to stock of rupees, and similarly with regard to note issues; and the result as regards our coinage, and the fact that it has not been redundant, has been shown in the way in which it is absorbed. Almost as soon as it is issued from the mint, it gets absorbed by the public, and we get once more into a state of embarrassment as to how to replenish it. The rise in prices is of course the result far more of the world demand for essential products rather than of any question of local inflation of the currency. An addition to the coinage would, in any case, be required with reference to the more active circulation of commodities that is taking place in these war circumstances.'

(c) In the five financial years previous to the war the amount of gold imported into India, excluding the amount exported, was 93·8 millions sterling, nearly all of which was absorbed by the public. Since the war, practically every country has placed restrictions on the movement of gold, and my Hon'ble friend is no doubt correct in ascribing the prevailing premium on sovereigns and gold mohurs to the fact that India has no longer been able to obtain, through the ordinary channels of trade, the gold that she has hitherto been accustomed to procure "

The Hon'ble Mr. Kamini Kumar Chanda asked :—

Abolition of capital punishment.

13. " Has the question of the abolition of capital punishment ever been proposed to, or considered by, Government ? If so, will Government publish the papers relating to the proposal ? "

The Hon'ble Sir William Vincent replied :—

" No trace has been found of any discussion on this question."

The Hon'ble Mr. G. S. Khaparde asked :—

Indian Constitutional Reforms.

14. " Do Government propose to grant an opportunity to the elected Members of this Council to express their opinions on the proposals for the Indian Constitutional Reforms during the ensuing Session at Simla ? "

The Hon'ble Sir William Vincent replied :—

" The answer is in the affirmative. "

The Hon'ble Mr. G. S. Khaparde asked :—

Appointment in London of an Agent General for India.

15. "(a) Has the attention of Government been drawn to a statement in th issue of Capital, dated 21st June 1918, suggesting the appointment in Londo of an Agent General for India and the readjusting of the existing machinery (the India Office accordingly ?

(b) Has any such suggestion been before the Government of India, and, so with what result ? "

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

[4TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.] [Sir George Barnes ; Mr. G. S. Khaparde ; Sir William Vincent.]

The Hon'ble Sir George Barnes replied :—

"(a) The attention of Government has been drawn to the statement referred to in the Hon'ble Member's question.

(b) I am unaware whether a suggestion precisely in this form has been made before, but as the Hon'ble Member knows, the Government of India have already appointed an Agent in London in the person of Mr. Chadwick, the Indian Trade Commissioner, and his duty there is to act solely in the interests of India and to further trade in Indian manufactures and other products."

The Hon'ble Mr. G. S. Khaparde asked :—

Trade Commissioner's Office in London.

16. "Has the attention of Government been drawn to a statement in the issue of Capital, dated 21st June 1918, relating to the office of the Trade Commissioner of India in London, and will Government be pleased to lay on the table the latest report on the working of the said office, together with suggestions, if any, for its expansion ?"

The Hon'ble Sir George Barnes replied :—

"The attention of Government has been drawn to the statement to which the Hon'ble Member refers.

It is less than a year since the office of the Indian Trade Commissioner in London has been opened, and no formal report has as yet been received on the working of the office. It is proposed to call for a report at the end of the year which will be published.'

The Hon'ble Mr. G. S. Khaparde asked :—

Ministry of Information in Great Britain.

17. "(a) Will Government be pleased to state the names of the gentlemen constituting the Ministry of Information in Great Britain ?

(b) Has it come to the notice of Government that the Ministry of Information in Great Britain has invited five editors of newspapers in India to England ?

(c) Will Government be pleased to state whether the editors so invited will in England be expected or allowed to discuss, or state their views on, the proposals for Indian Constitutional Reforms ?"

The Hon'ble Sir William Vincent replied :—

"(a) The Hon'ble Member is referred to the issue of the London Times, dated the 22nd February 1918, which gives the names of the gentlemen constituting the Ministry of Information as follows :—

(1) Lord Northcliffe.

(2) Mr. Robert Donald.

(3) Mr. John Buchan.

(4) General A. D. MacRae.

(5) Sir William Jury.

(6) Sir Roderick Jones.

The answer to (b) is Yes.

(c) This is a matter for the Home Government to decide, and the Government of India have no information in the matter. The object of the invitation was of course to enable representatives of the Press in India to visit the Western front. "

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

[Sir Manindra Chandra Nandi ; Sir C. Sankaran Nair ; Sir George Barnes ; Rai Bahadur B. D. Shukul.] [4TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.]

The Hon'ble Maharaja Sir Manindra Chandra Nandi asked :—

Recommendations of the Sadler Committee regarding Indian Universities.

18. "(a) Are the general recommendations of the Sadler Committee likely to be given effect to in the case of all the Universities of India?

(b) If the answer be in the negative, will Government state what steps, if any, they intend to take to ensure a uniformity of studies, examinations and degrees in all the Universities in India?

(c) Is it intended to have paid Vice-Chancellors in all the Universities of India and to have a general Educational Commissioner with the Government of India to look to a uniformity of educational standard in the Universities of India?"

The Hon'ble Sir C. Sankaran Nair replied :—

"(a) and (b) The general recommendations of the Calcutta University Commission have not yet reached the Government of India. Hence it is impossible to say how far they may prove suitable for adoption in other Universities.

(c) The Government of India have not under consideration the schemes to which the Hon'ble Member alludes."

The Hon'ble Maharaja Sir Manindra Chandra Nandi asked :—

The Indian Industries Commission.

19. "(a) Will Government be pleased to state the exact date when the report of the Industries Commission may be expected?

(b) Will any of their recommendations necessitate any legislative enactment owing to the creation of a separate Department of the Government of India, as suggested in paragraph 340 of the Report on Constitutional Reforms?

(c) Is it intended that the new department should control the purchase of Government stores both in England and India?"

The Hon'ble Sir George Barnes replied :—

"I regret to have to tell the Hon'ble Member that the Government have not yet received the Report of the Industrial Commission. The position is, I understand, as follows :—The Commission met in June to consider their draft Report and the final draft was settled at the end of June. One of the members has, however, expressed his intention to add a separate Minute of his own. The Member in question has been reminded at various times of his promise to submit his note at an early date, but so far has not been able to find time to submit it, and the completion of the Report is consequently held up. If the Hon'ble Member likes to repeat his question later in the Session, I shall be glad to give him any information which may be then available.

(b) and (c) In answer to the second and third parts of the Hon'ble Member's question, I am unable for the reasons given in answer to the first part of the Hon'ble Member's question to add anything to the forecast contained in paragraph 340 of the Report on Constitutional Reforms, and the proposal there referred to will not be considered by the Government of India until they have received the Industrial Commission's Report."

The Hon'ble Rai Bahadur B. D. Shukul asked :—

Circulation of small currency notes in rural areas.

20. "Are Government aware of the great panic leading to the spread of vague and groundless rumours among the illiterate masses caused by the circulation of small currency notes of Rs. 2-8-0 and Re. 1 in the rural areas, and, if so, will Government discourage their circulation in such areas in future?"

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

[4TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.] [Sir William Meyer; Sir Fazulbhoy Currimbhoy; Sir George Barnes.]

The Hon'ble Sir William Meyer replied :—

"The Government, who have watched unremittingly the effect of the issue of their Re. 1 and Rs. $2\frac{1}{2}$ currency notes, have received no information whatever that their circulation has at any time caused anything describable as 'a great panic,' and they deprecate the use of exaggerated language in this matter, as tending to produce the very evil which it purports to deplore. They are aware that in some parts of India Re. 1 and Rs. $2\frac{1}{2}$ notes were regarded at the outset with a certain amount of disfavour, and that, like other innovations in war time, their issue gave rise to various unfounded rumours, especially among the illiterate. Their most recent information is, however, that such unpopularity as the notes met with at starting in certain areas is gradually subsiding, and that in some tracts they are fully appreciated. It is the intention of the Government of India to do everything in their power to encourage this attitude of appreciation, and in view of the necessity, in the interest of India, for all possible action to encourage economy in the use of silver, they do not propose to take any such steps as are suggested by the Hon'ble Member."

The Hon'ble Sir Fazulbhoy Currimbhoy asked :—

Trade Commissioners in Japan and America.

21. "(a) Is it a fact—

(i) that Indian trade with Japan and the United States of America is increasing, and (ii) that most of the essential supplies for the successful running of Indian industries are being imported from those countries?

(b) Will Government be pleased to consider the advisability of appointing Trade Commissioners in Japan and in the United States?"

The Hon'ble Sir George Barnes replied :—

"(a) It is a fact that Indian trade with Japan and the United States of America is increasing. It is not true, however, to say that most of the supplies essential for the successful running of Indian industries are being imported from those countries. The United Kingdom, for instance, still remains by far the largest supplier of machinery and millwork and chemicals and chemical preparations.

(b) The Government of India would prefer to await experience of the working of the Indian Trade Commissionership in London before considering the extension of our Commercial Intelligence organization to other countries. The suggestion which the Hon'ble Member has made will not, however, be lost on the Government, and it is one which is likely to receive serious consideration as our manufacturing industries and exports of manufactured products develop."

The Hon'ble Sir Fazulbhoy Currimbhoy asked :—

Re-organization of the Consular Services.

22. "(a) Are the Consular Services to be reorganized by the Board of Trade in the United Kingdom?

(b) If so, will Government be pleased to state if they have decided to what extent India is going to share in such reorganization?

(c) Are Indian Commercial Attachés going to be appointed at some of the principal new markets where Indian goods could be sold?"

The Hon'ble Sir George Barnes replied :

"The answer to the parts of the Hon'ble Member's question marked (a) and (c) is 'yes.'

With regard to the part marked (b), I would refer to the answer which I have already given to the Hon'ble Member on a similar subject.

The reports of the Consular Officers will, I hope, be made available for traders in this country as well as for those of the United Kingdom."

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

[Sir Fazulbhoy Currimbhoy; Sir George Barnes; Sir Claude Hill.] [4TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.]

The Hon'ble Sir Fazulbhoy Currimbhoy asked :—

Trade arrangements after the war.

23. "Will Government be pleased to state whether any proposals in regard to trade arrangements between the British Empire and its Allies after the war will be submitted to Indian opinion shortly ?"

The Hon'ble Sir George Barnes replied :—

"Indian opinion has already been consulted on the commercial problems likely to arise after the war, in so far as they concern India. No definite policy has as yet been decided on, as far as the Government of India are aware, beyond that involved in the Resolutions of the Paris Economic Conference, and I am unable to make any further statement at present. The Hon'ble Member has no doubt seen the published report of the Committee on Commercial and Industrial policy after the War, which is, I believe, at present under the consideration of His Majesty's Government. If he so desires I shall be very glad to lay a copy on the table."

The Hon'ble Sir Fazulbhoy Currimbhoy asked :—

Government Wheat scheme.

24. "Will Government be pleased to state the net financial result of the working of their wheat scheme since it came into operation during the war, and particularly in the year 1916-17 ?"

The Hon'ble Sir Claude Hill replied :—

"The wheat scheme was first started in April 1915, and the system followed from then to the end of April 1916 was one of purchase and export of wheat on Government account. The financial result during this period was given in my reply to a question by the Hon'ble Rai Bahadur Bishan Dutt Shukul at the meeting of this Council on the 16th February 1917 as a profit to Government of £158,000 or Rs. 23,70,000. Later information, however, shows that the net profits from the scheme amounted to Rs. 26,02,500.

The system adopted since 1st May 1916 is one of restricted private export under license from the Wheat Commissioner. The firms employed in the export trade now act as agents for a Royal Commission appointed in England, and the Government of India have no financial interest in their purchases."

The Hon'ble Sir Fazulbhoy Currimbhoy asked :—

Appointment of an Agent-General for India in London.

25. "(a) Has the attention of Government been drawn to the following paragraph which appeared in the issue of Capital, dated 20th June :—

> 'An excellent suggestion by a man who speaks with knowledge is that India should be represented in London by an Agent-General to discharge all financial and trade obligations, and look after stores and other purchases required by the Government of India. No matter how much India may expand industrially during the war, the Government of India for a long time to come will have to make large purchases in England for State railways, and it is but ordinary business that its bargains be made by an expert. Finance is even more important. If India had had a loyal Agent in London at the outbreak of the war, she would not to-day be paying through the nose for American silver. As long as there are London Boards of Indian Railways, the Agent-General of India should be a Director on every one of them.'

(b) Will Government be pleased to state if this matter has been under consideration, and, if so, with what result ?"

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS; HIS EXCELLENCY THE PRESIDENT'S SPEECH.

[4TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.] [Sir George Barnes; The President.]

The Hon'ble Sir George Barnes replied :—

"I would refer the Hon'ble Member to the reply I have given to-day* to the question by the Hon'ble Mr. Khaparde on the same subject."

HIS EXCELLENCY THE PRESIDENT'S SPEECH.

11-85 A.M.

"Since we separated at the close of the winter Session, I have had the privilege of meeting a large number of Hon'ble Members at that historic Conference which assembled at Delhi in the last week of April. It was an assemblage without precedent in the history of India. In it Princes, representatives of the people, and Government, sat for the first time in joint conclave, taking counsel together how India could best rally her forces anew in the cause for which the Empire is fighting. I expected much from that Conference. I have not been disappointed. It has been more than justified by success. Without it the splendid results of the last four months could never have been achieved.

"The material results of the Conference were great, but I am almost tempted to think that its moral effects were greater. I had convened the Conference that India might proclaim her unity of purpose in the Empire's cause, and pledge her fullest service in the prosecution of the war. How well the Conference answered to my call, let its resolutions testify. They proclaimed to all the world that India stood solid for the cause of right which our Empire has made its own; and that much though India had done, she would never rest in putting forth her strength until that cause was triumphant. Since then those resolutions have been translated into fact. Some of us may have chafed at the delay over this or that—a delay in which India had no part. But do not let us forget the overwhelming burden that lay on those at home with whom the ultimate decision rested.

"One immediate result of the Conference was to call upon India to add half a million men to her Army in the ensuing year. Well might we have shrunk from such an undertaking had not the Central Recruiting Board been already in being. But the Board set itself at once to the task, and over 97,000 combatant and nearly 55,000 non-combatant recruits were enlisted in May, June and July. As for the new units which with the approval of the military authorities at home we set ourselves to raise, the results have outrun our expectations. Of the total number, two-thirds and more have been raised already. I wish I could tell you how many men we have recruited and sent overseas since the beginning of the war; but military reasons compel reticence. This much, however, I can say: we are now recruiting twice as many men in a month as before the war we recruited in a year. This fine record is due to the labours of the Central Recruiting Board, backed by whole-hearted co-operation in the provinces. And now that the increases in the emoluments of our Indian troops and the grant of King's Commissions, long-awaited and powerfully advocated at the Conference, have been announced, I look forward to a finer record still.

"The success of the Central Recruiting Board, with its blend of soldiers and civilians and Indian Princes and its enlistment of non-official energies in the provinces and Native States, pointed the obvious way to that re-adjusting and speeding up of our whole war machinery on which the Conference laid stress. So we set up similar central boards to cope with supplies, traffic, labour and publicity—all under the co-ordinating guidance of the War Resources Committee. Let me briefly remind you of their scope.

"To the Transport and Food-stuffs Board is allotted the organisation of our animal and mechanical transport, the fuller development of our food-stuffs and their more economical distribution. The bare recital of its duties sounds dull and unheroic. But this war is a war of material no less than of man-power. And now that the partial failure of the monsoon has reduced our foodstuffs resources, it is of the greater importance to husband and distribute them to the best advantage. Before the war, Government looked askance at any proposal to restrict the export of food-grains abroad or their free passage from province to province. Restriction was regarded as heresy. According to the orthodox doctrine the movement of food-grains must be left to follow its natural channels. But the war has upset many cherished theories; has forced on our shoulders responsibilities from which we should have shrunk a few years back. And it is now one of the main tasks of the Board to review the resources and needs of India as a whole, to reduce the cross-currents of food-stuffs and fodder to a minimum; and to graduate the flow, as evenly as may be, from the higher to the lower levels.

HIS EXCELLENCY THE PRESIDENT'S SPEECH.

[The President.] [4TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.]

"The Communications Board takes up the task of husbanding and pooling our resources where the Food-stuffs Board leaves it. It regulates traffic, holding the balance even between military and civil demands; and working through Provincial Directors of Supplies ensures priority to the carriage of commodities where they are most urgently required. Thanks to its labours, traffic has now become systematised, and railway transport is being put to its most economical use.

"The Employment and Labour Board places its advice at the disposal of those anxious to offer their services in the present crisis. It keeps us in close touch with the conditions of labour; watches the variations in the market; and advises us how the supply can best be utilised for the ever-increasing needs of Indian industries and overseas development.

"The Publicity Board is entrusted with the spread of truth. It emphasises the essential principles for which the Allies are fighting; the vital interest of India in the triumph of our cause. It sets forth the actual war situation from day to day, and contradicts the false rumours that spring up—who knows whence?—sapping the confidence and energy of the people. It advertises what India has done, in order to drive home what still remains for India to do. Its composition is largely non-official, and in the inclusion of distinguished journalists lies more than half the secret of its success. Publicity Committees have been set up in all the larger provinces and in many of the Native States, and are working with the zeal that comes from conviction. Some have established war journals of their own; others are reaching the masses by magic lantern lectures, cinematographs and the distribution of pamphlets. But one and all rely on the co-operation of the Press. And I would here voice my appreciation of the powerful help received from publicists and journalists of all shades of opinion. It is, after all, but another proof that, however much we are divided in our politics, we are one in the determination that India shall do her part in bringing the war to a triumphant conclusion.

"But this hurried review of the working of our Boards gives a very meagre idea of the vivifying influence of the Conference on all branches of India's war effort. Let us turn again to the expansion of our man-power. The Ruling Princes and Chiefs of India, ever foremost in the cause of the Empire, have responded to the call for further assistance. Signal service though the Imperial Service troops of many States have rendered on every front--which of us, for instance, was not stirred by the gallant charge of the Jodhpur Lancers in Palestine?—the Durbars are now being invited to afford their troops the opportunity for more effective service still, by incorporating them during the war in the regular Army. In the Native States at large a scheme is on foot to raise battalions for the Army composed, as far as may be, of subjects of the State, but officered, paid and equipped by Government. The scheme has met with a ready welcome. In Jodhpur, Bikaner, Bharatpur and Dholpur, in Kolhapur, and in Patiala, Chamba and Suket, units on the new model are now in process of formation. And from Baroda, from Mysore, from Alwar, from Rewa, from Tehri, and from Bahawalpur, Jhind, Kapurthala, Maler Kotla and Faridkot offers of similar help have been pouring in.

"To the Police we addressed a special call to enrol themselves in the Army, and five Police battalions have already been incorporated, two from the Punjab,

HIS EXCELLENCY THE PRESIDENT'S SPEECH.

[4TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.] [The President.]

two from the United Provinces and one from Bihar and Orissa. Gallantly indeed has that gallant body of men responded to our call.

"Meanwhile the British branch of the Indian Defence Force has been playing its useful if unobtrusive part, and we are now considering how its usefulness can be extended. But I cannot hide my disappointment at the record of the Indian branch of the force. We re-opened recruiting for it in April in response to what we were told was a genuine demand, but less than 500 recruits have so far offered themselves for enrolment. We have made good in the other enterprises to which we have set our hand. Shall we not make good here also?

"With the rapid expansion of the Army in India the demand for labour for military purposes has gone up by leaps and bounds. Taught by the war the advantage of employing labour in organised bodies, we have formed or are forming no less than 18 labour corps for work in India alone. Of the many labour companies sent to France in 1917, all have now returned with the exception of those formed from later reinforcements. They have returned in admirable condition and with a record of excellent service in strange and sometimes trying surroundings. And that they have returned gratified with the treatment that they have received, their prompt re-enrolment in large numbers is the best proof of all.

"So much for the development of our man-power. But India does not give in man-power alone. Her contribution to the second War Loan has now passed the 20 million sterling which we set before us as the minimum, and I look to a notable addition before the War Loan closes by the middle of the month. But at the Conference something further was foreshadowed; and what form that further financial assistance should take, Hon'ble Members will be asked at this Session to consider. A Resolution on the subject will be moved by the Hon'ble Finance Member; but the decision itself will be left to the non-official Members.

"And over and above her financial contributions, and over and above the many shiploads of food-stuffs and raw products with which she has been supplying the Allies, India continues to furnish Mesopotamia and other theatres of war with masses of railway material and a vast variety of engineering and other stores. These are found partly from our stocks of imports, partly from India's indigenous resources. The drain on our imports has been continuous and severe; the flow of fresh supplies is restricted; and it is becoming increasingly difficult for India to meet all the demands that are made upon her. It is becoming increasingly difficult indeed for her to supply her own needs, and public bodies are turning more and more to our central organisation for assistance. The depletion of our stocks of imports has stimulated the development of our resources, and we are doing what is possible under war conditions to foster local manufactures. What India can do when she puts forth her strength and enlists the services of experts from outside is shown by the great success of the Tata Steel Works, which has supplied most of the military railway requirements in the Eastern theatres of war. One notable demand on India has now been materially reduced—the provision of river craft for the Tigris and Euphrates. And here let me acknowledge India's indebtedness to the Rivercraft Board at Calcutta and the Committees at other ports associated with it, for their valuable services, given ungrudgingly and without remuneration, in directing this work of construction. Their work has been heavy. Apart from furnishing 100 steel pontoons, they have constructed over 400 river craft and have re-erected two hospital steamers, five tugs and 70 barges.

"Now these and other results from the stimulated mobilisation of India's resources could not have been achieved without stress and strain. In that stress and strain all have shared in varying degree,—officials, business men and general community alike. For the most part the burden has been borne cheerfully. Where murmurings and grumblings have been heard, they can almost always be traced to a failure to recognise that the restrictions or hardships, or whatever the objects of complaint may be, arise from the imperious necessities of war.

HIS EXCELLENCY THE PRESIDENT'S SPEECH.

[The President.] [4TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.]

"There have been widespread murmurings over high prices. Here in India, it is true, we have suffered less than most parts of the world, thanks to the fleet which has kept open the highway of the seas, and to our gallant armies which hold the enemy many hundreds of miles from India's frontier. None the less war must always bring high prices in its train. And there are unhappily cases where manufacturers and traders have taken advantage of the war and the shortage it occasions to demand artificial prices hugely in excess of the cost of production or import. Where materials required for war purposes are affected, we cannot afford to sit idle. If needs must, we shall not shrink from drastic action.

"But it is not in regard to war materials alone that I view high prices with concern. I view with even greater concern the pressure of the growing rise in the price of necessities on the poorer classes in the country. The dearness of cotton cloth in particular presses the masses hard. Its causes are many :—the high price of raw cotton throughout the world, the high cost of manufacture of the imported cloth, the reduction in the volume of British manufactures available for the general public. To increase the imports of Manchester cloth or to lower its price does not lie within our power. The solution of the problem must be sought on other lines. And the lines we have been advised to follow by the Committee (drawn largely from the trade) whose services we enlisted last March, are two-fold. First, the prevention of speculation in raw cotton. Second, the standardisation in India of the cloths used by the poorer classes, and their manufacture and distribution under control. The first measure we have already put into effect, by empowering the Government of Bombay to regulate forward contracts for the purchase or sale of the next cotton crop. In the carrying out of the second measure, we rely on Hon'ble Members' assistance. We are introducing a Bill at this Session to require our mills to manufacture certain kinds and certain quantities of cloth, to be paid for at cost price plus a reasonable margin of profits, and to be sold to the public at fixed prices through licensed shops or at Government depôts. That there may be difficulties at the outset in carrying this scheme into effect, I freely recognise. But I have every hope that with the co-operation of mill-owners, cloth-sellers and public these difficulties will be overcome, and that the scheme will bring relief to those who need it most.

"Again, there is the currency question. At the Delhi Conference I referred to certain rumours then afloat as to the ability of Government to meet their obligations to encash currency notes at currency offices. There had been an unprecedented drain on our stocks of metallic currency in connection with purchases for His Majesty's Government, and an unfortunate delay in obtaining fresh supplies of silver to replenish them. This obliged us to curtail those extra-legal facilities for the free encashment of notes outside the currency offices, which have been an important feature of our currency policy in recent years. But the United States of America came to our rescue and undertook to supply us with silver in large quantities. Substantial instalments have arrived in India. Indeed our mints have been busily coining them into rupees for some time past. They have also been coining our gold bullion into mohurs, which have already been used for the purchase of wheat in the Punjab and have been well received. They are now engaged on the coinage of sovereigns.

"We are thus increasingly able to meet the difficulties which temporarily faced us a few months ago. But let me again emphasise how unprofitable to India is this lavish outpouring of metallic currency. The purchase of the silver alone means that India's money is being spent abroad to unfruitful purpose. Should the present rates of absorption continue to the end of the year, more than 100 crores of India's money will have been squandered within three short years. Had it been invested, the interest would have strengthened

HIS EXCELLENCY THE PRESIDENT'S SPEECH.

[4TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.] [The President.]

our revenues, and could have been spent to India's material advantage. Everybody therefore who insists on payments in metal instead of in notes is directly hampering India's interests. We all know the parable of the servant who, entrusted by his master with a talent of silver, buried it in the ground instead of putting it to profitable use. He was rightly treated as an unprofitable servant. The moral of the old parable holds good to-day. From time immemorial India has been held up to reproach as the grave of the precious metals. If she is to take her proper place among the progressive nations of the world, she must in her own interests do as Japan and other civilised nations do put her hitherto immobile wealth to profitable uses. Happily there are signs that she is slowly—if very slowly—freeing herself from her old-world prejudice. The small notes which had to take the place of the rupee as a medium of circulation during the temporary restrictions on encashment are gradually shedding the suspicion with which they were originally regarded, and are now, we are assured, becoming more popular in various parts of the country.

"But Hon'ble Members will expect me to say something on the question of the Reforms, and I think I can deal best with the subject by recalling past history. Men's memories are so short that they dwell on the present and ignore the past which leads up to and conditions the present. And this has been notably the case in connection with this great subject of Reform.

"At the outset of my tenure of office I warned those who were insistent on political reform that the British temperament was averse from catastrophic change. This expression of opinion was the subject of criticism, and the Russian revolution which took place shortly afterwards was seized upon as a text on which to base claims to sweeping changes. I think those who sang a pæan over the Russian events have since repented. Russia indeed has pointed a moral which it would do us all good to take to heart.

"Let me remind Hon'ble Members further. In my opening speech to the Council of February 1917, I informed you that the Government of India had addressed His Majesty's Government on the subject of political Reform; and, as I told you in the September Session, I continued to press His Majesty's Government for a declaration of policy throughout the first six months of the year.

"This declaration of policy we obtained on August 20th. That policy was not a new policy devised on the spur of the moment by a Secretary of State fresh to office. It was a policy long and anxiously considered by His Majesty's Government, the promulgation of which happened to coincide with a change in the office of Secretary of State. Nor was Mr. Montagu's visit a happy thought on his part. As I pointed out last September, it was merely the carrying out of a plan on which I had long set my heart, with this change only that Mr. Chamberlain's resignation involved the transfer of my invitation to Mr. Montagu.

"It is well to recall these events to the memory of those who attack the Secretary of State as the rash innovator stepping in with a new and cut-and-dried policy immediately on his assumption of office. To these critics I would point out the sequence of events. Can it be seriously suggested that after a few days' tenure of office by a new Secretary of State, His Majesty's Government would embark on an announcement of the gravity of that of August 20th unless they had previously had it under their most careful consideration? The suggestion in its statement carries its own refutation. Mr. Montagu simply took up the policy where Mr. Chamberlain had left it.

"As for those who repudiate what they choose to term disappointing and unacceptable proposals, I would remind them again of my repeated warning that expectations must not be carried to heights of catastrophic change. In the Legislative Council in Delhi last February, with Mr. Montagu present, I spoke of sane and sober change. I have always been careful to weigh my words, to avoid raising expectations beyond those which my words would warrant. If there are those who have built up hopes on the words of others, it is of them they must make complaint and not of me.

HIS EXCELLENCY THE PRESIDENT'S SPEECH.

[The President.] [4TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.]

"I turn now to the announcement of August 20th. I cannot help thinking that some of our critics to-day have forgotten that any such statement of policy was ever made. That announcement carried the weight and authority not of the Viceroy or Secretary of State, but of His Majesty's Government. It was not challenged in Parliament at the time ; it has not been challenged in Parliament since. It was received both at home and in India—I believe I do not put it too high—with general satisfaction. And those who criticise our Report are on sure ground if they can show that our proposals are not in consonance with it. But am I far wrong when I suggest that there are two schools of critics who write and speak as if the announcement of August 20th had never been made at all :—those who reject its basic pledge, and those who reject the limitations whereby that pledge was conditioned ?

"I have always regarded the announcement of August 20th as the terms of reference in accordance with which the Secretary of State and I had to discharge the duty laid upon us during these last winter months. I regard it now as the touchstone that must be applied to our proposals. If they fall short of the policy embodied in it, then those who complain of their inadequacy have good ground for asking for a further extension of the scheme. On the other hand, if our proposals trespass beyond the limits it imposed upon us, they should be brought within its bounds. We had the right neither to fall short of nor to go beyond our terms of reference.

"I come now to the proposals themselves. Let me once again refer to the two schools of our critics. According to one the Secretary of State is the villain of the piece ; the Viceroy his unhappy victim, who has put his signature to the Report perforce and against his better judgment. According to the other, a sympathetic Secretary of State has been enmeshed in the net of the cold hard bureaucracy and has consented to proposals far short of those he would otherwise have advocated.

"I am going to ignore these criticisms. Issues of the magnitude of our proposals are outside and beyond the personal factor. Our proposals are before the public for criticism. How we arrived at our results, is neither here nor there. The one question at issue is : the scheme, is it good or bad ? if bad, how best can it be amended ? But that you may know that it did not spring forth in full panoply from our brains, like Athene from the head of Zeus, let me give you in brief the history of its production.

"In the third paragraph of the Report we have sketched in the barest outline the course of our investigation. The sketch gives but a faint impression of the close touch which we preserved with the Members of the Government of India throughout. Indeed from our return to Delhi early in January up to our departure for Dehra Dun at the end of March, we were in daily communication with them. All that time the proposals were being hammered out in frequent conferences both with them and with the Members of the Secretary of State's delegation. I could point out the originators of this or that proposal in our scheme, but it would be beside the mark. What I wish to emphasise is the very careful examination which this great problem received not only from the Secretary of State and myself, but from my Colleagues and those distinguished gentlemen who accompanied Mr. Montagu. We followed up every possible line of advance. We scrutinized all the suggestions which had been offered to us. It was only after the most careful sifting of suggested policies that we decided upon the proposals in our scheme.

"Surely it is not without significance that my Colleagues signed a despatch conveying their 'cordial support to the general policy which the Report embodies'; that the associates of the Secretary of State recorded their united support of our recommendations, which in their view, 'while safeguarding Imperial interests and providing for the proper maintenance of law and order,

HIS EXCELLENCY THE PRESIDENT'S SPEECH.

[4TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.] [The President.]

carry out His Majesty's Government's announcement of 20th August last by providing at once for such an instalment of self-government as is at present practicable and safe, together with statutory machinery for its development at subsequent stages'; and that the Council of India put on record a minute giving the general policy of our scheme their unanimous support.

"Those who would lay stress then on the personal factor in this issue would do well to remember that it is not enough to dispose of the Secretary of State and the Viceroy. They have to account for this very weighty consensus of official opinion.

"I will now turn to a general consideration of the criticisms of our proposals. It is obviously impossible for me to deal with them seriatim within the compass of a speech, but it may be useful to indicate my attitude in general terms. I take my stand, in the first place, on the announcement of August 20th. The policy embodied in that announcement is binding at all events on me. I cannot recognise the validity of criticisms which impeach it. For me they must be out of Court. The place where they should be heard is the High Court of Parliament. And I would remind Hon'ble Members that such criticisms have never once been advanced in Parliament during the twelve months since that statement of policy was made. They were not even forthcoming in the debate on the Indian Budget, the occasion of all others when the critics of our policy might have been expected to make a brave show.

"In the second place, I wish to remind Hon'ble Members of a significant sentence which occurs in paragraph 289 of the Report:—'We have carried the advance right up to the line beyond which our principles forbid us to go.' I will content myself with this extract, but the whole of the remainder of the paragraph is pertinent.

"What I wish to emphasise is this. 'Substantial steps' were promised. In my own heart I am confident that 'substantial steps' are provided in our proposals. We have not kept back something like hucksterers in the market, something which we would be prepared to give as a result of pressure. Everything has been placed on the table for all men to see. In the words of the Report 'We have carried the advance right up to the line beyond which our principles forbid us to go.'

"But within that line we are prepared to consider criticisms and suggestions. Far be it from me to claim any infallibility for our proposals. I would however say this—that it is for those who criticise to offer their alternative to our plan. We found nothing easier during the course of our inquiry last cold weather than to riddle with criticism each and every suggestion made to us. The problem before us was to select the scheme which would be open to criticism least. For do not forget this. Our task was to devise a transitional constitution containing within itself potentialities of advance, together with the machinery by which at definite periods that advance could be secured. Such a transitional constitution must in the nature of things be peculiarly open to attack, and the Secretary of State and I made it clear in our Report that we recognised this to be the case. Let me quote our own words. 'Hybrid executives, limited responsibility, assemblies partly elected and partly nominated, divisions of functions, reservations, general or particular, are devices that can have no permanent abiding place. They bear on their faces their transitional character; and they can be worked only if it is clearly recognised that that is their justification and their purpose. They cannot be so devised as to be logical. They must be charged with potentialities of friction. Hope of avoiding mischief lies in facing the fact that they are temporary expedients for training purposes, and in providing that the goal is not merely kept in sight but made attainable, not by agitation, but by the operation of machinery inherent in the scheme itself.'

"Criticise then freely. But remember that if your criticism is to be useful it must be constructive and not merely destructive. You must give us something which we can set up in the place of that which you destroy.

HIS EXCELLENCY THE PRESIDENT'S SPEECH.

[The President.] [4TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.]

"Let me now sketch in broad strokes our scheme, as I see it. In the domain of the Government of India the fundamental principle is laid down that its authority must remain in essential matters indisputable. That is basic. But consider the advance which subject to that principle we propose. An assembly, in the main elected, infinitely more representative of India than the Council as now constituted. An assembly before which all business will normally be brought; able to express its opinion and exert its influence in respect of all matters pertaining to the Government of India. And if the Government through the Council of State retains its present power to make its will effective, the use of that power is conditioned. It can only be exercised on the certificate of the Governor General in Council that the matter in issue is in the interests of peace, order and good government.

"Surely no one can say that this scheme does not involve a large increase in the influence of the representatives upon the actions of the Government of India.

"I turn next to the domain of the Provinces. Here we come upon the division of functions of Government into the two categories of Transferred and Reserved Subjects. This division has been the object of much criticism, but I doubt whether the wit of man can devise any other device whereby the progressive transfer of responsibility can be secured.

"Now what advance is secured in this domain? In the sphere of Transferred Subjects, the will of the Legislative Council is in the main to prevail. But even in the sphere of Reserved Subjects, the development is marked. Here, too, the will of the Legislative Council is normally in the main to prevail. And even in the exceptional cases where the machinery of the Grand Committee has to be set in motion on the Governor's certificate, the powers of the Legislative Council will remain unimpaired; for in the constitution of the Grand Committee will be reproduced the proportionate strength of officials and non-officials in the Councils as at present constituted. Thus, in the domain of Provincial Governments the immediate advance is immense, and the road forward lies open and defined.

"I said that I would not follow up the various criticisms which have been made on our scheme, but Hon'ble Members will probably expect something from me on the vexed question of communal representation. I cannot help thinking that much more has been read into our proposals than they were intended to convey. We wished indeed to make it clear that, in our opinion, communal electorates were to be deprecated for the reasons set out in our report. But it was in the main to the method of securing communal representation by communal electorates that we took exception, and not to communal representation itself. The careful reader of the report will see that we regard this as inevitable in India, and that we clearly contemplate the representation of those communities and classes and interests who prove their case before the Committee shortly to be appointed to examine the question. I am most anxious that the fullest representation should be secured to the various classes and communities in India; but I am frankly doubtful myself whether the best method for securing that representation is through a system of separate electorates. However, I am content to leave the unravelling of this important question in the hands of the Committee, who will have the fullest evidence placed before them and will be free to make such recommendations as they think right, unfettered by our Report.

"One last word on the subject of Reforms. Hon'ble Members are aware of the stress we lay in the Report on the necessity for educational advance. Last year we approached the Secretary of State with our proposals. But it was suggested to us that, in view of the impending discussion on Reforms, and especially on the future relation of Local, Provincial, and Imperial finances, it would be better to postpone their consideration. We have now approached the Secretary of State again; and with his consent our circular letter to Local Governments on this vital subject will be published this afternoon.

"I began with the war and it is with the war that I end. For not only does the war dominate all our thoughts; on its successful issue depends the very liberty of the world, without which these our schemes for the liberalising of India's political institutions would be vain indeed.

"The shadows seem to be slowly lifting. We can almost fancy we can see the first faint flicker of victorious peace dawning on the horizon. From March to July, Germany put forth her strength in a great effort to separate the French and British Armies, to capture Paris, to force her way to the Channel ports, -before the full flow of America's numbers should finally rob her of all hope of victory. She put forth her whole strength and failed; and with her failure came a dramatic change. The genius of Foch delivered a mighty counterstroke on the whole front from the Aisne to the Marne, and the Allied Armies hurled the Germans back. Before they could recover from the blow the Allies struck again and yet again. And ever since, the Germans have been receding, seeking in vain to husband their fast diminishing man-power. Nor can they look for help from Austria or Turkey or Bulgaria, for all three are sorely pressed.

"The fifth year of the war has thus been ushered in full of high hopes for the Allies; but the end is not yet. And so far from success tempting us to relax our efforts, it calls on us to redouble them. The greater and more sustained our efforts now, the sooner will come the triumph of the unconquerable cause of righteousness and liberty, bringing to the stricken world the unspeakable blessing of peace."

THE PROVISIONAL COLLECTION OF TAXES BILL.

The Hon'ble Sir William Meyer:—"My Lord, I beg to move for leave to introduce a Bill to provide for the immediate effect for a limited period of Bills introduced into the Indian Legislative Council which impose or vary certain taxation. The object of this Bill is fully explained in the Statement of Objects and Reasons, and it is consequently unnecessary for me to trouble the Council with any lengthy remarks regarding its provisions. Briefly, the position is that in the past when financial Bills have been introduced increasing the rates of customs duty provision has been made in these that the new rates of duty should take effect from the date of the introduction of the Bill. This is necessary in order to avoid loss to Government by the passing of goods through the Customs or the removal of goods from bond in the interval between the introduction and the passing of the Bill. Even so, since the duties can only be levied with retrospective effect, some loss may still occur owing to Government not being able to insist, pending the actual passing of a Bill, on duty being levied at the higher rates imposed by it, while subsequently they may be unable to recover retrospectively their full dues. In practice what has usually happened is that some importers have agreed to pay provisionally at the higher rates, while others have objected to doing so, and that in the latter case difficulties occasionally have actually arisen in recovering with retrospective effect the full amounts due. The present necessity for this Bill has arisen from the fact that any difficulties of the kind experienced in the past will in future be enhanced owing to the recent alterations made in the procedure for discussing the annual Financial Statement, the result of which will be, as mentioned in the Statement of Objects and Reasons, to lengthen the period ordinarily elapsing between the introduction and the final passing of a financial Bill. The Bill, as is also mentioned in the Statement of Objects and Reasons, will bring our procedure into line with that which it was found necessary to adopt in the United Kingdom as the result of certain difficulties experienced there of the nature explained above."

[Mr. V. J. Patel; Sir William Meyer.] [4TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.]

12-15 P.M. The Hon'ble Mr. V. J. Patel:—" Your Excellency, there is one point which strikes me in connection with this Bill, and it is this. Under the Government of India Act, which is a Parliamentary enactment, a Bill becomes law only when it is passed by this Council and when it receives the assent of His Excellency the Viceroy. This Bill purports to provide that a Bill shall become law before it has been passed, and before it has received the assent of His Excellency the Viceroy. I, therefore, doubt whether it is not ultra vires of this Council to pass a measure of this kind in view of the fact that this Council has no power to override a Parliamentary enactment."

12-16 P.M. The Hon'ble Sir William Meyer:—" My Lord, I appreciate the delicate scruples of the Hon'ble Member who has just spoken. However, as a matter of fact, as indicated in the Statement of Objects and Reasons, we have, when introducing fiscal changes in the past, laid down that they shall come into force with effect from the date of the introduction of the Bill embodying them, though the Bill does not pass till later. The reason of course is most obvious ; otherwise we should have a loss of revenue in the days that elapsed between the introduction of the Bill and its final passing into law.

" The constitutional question is, of course, mainly for the decision of my Hon'ble friend the Law Member. But, speaking personally, I may say that I am quite willing to abide by what has been done in the past, of which this is merely an expedient extension, and by the precedent set for us in the United Kingdom by His Majesty's Government and accepted by Parliament there."

The motion was put and agreed to.

12-17 P.M. The Hon'ble Sir William Meyer: -" My Lord, I now beg to introduce the Bill, and to move that the Bill, together with the Statement of Objects and Reasons relating thereto, be published in the Gazette of India in English."

The motion was put and agreed to.

THE INDIAN PAPER CURRENCY BILL.

12-18 P.M. The Hon'ble Sir William Meyer:—" My Lord, I beg to move for leave to introduce a Bill to provide that silver held on behalf of the Secretary of State for India in Council or the Governor General in Council may, if so held in the United States of America or in course of transmission therefrom, be deemed to be part of the reserve referred to in section 19 of the Indian Paper Currency Act, 1910.

" It is only necessary for me to say a few words with regard to this small Bill which merely continues the provisions of a Paper Currency Ordinance issued earlier in the year. The objects of the measure were explained in a Press Communiqué issued at the time, and are recapitulated in the Statement of Objects and Reasons accompanying the Bill. Briefly, the position is that, as Honourable Members are aware, we are at the present time obtaining large quantities of silver from the United States, and it is desirable that we should have power to treat this silver as a portion of the Paper Currency Reserve in the same way that we can under the provisions of the present Act treat silver held in the United Kingdom or in transit therefrom.

THE INDIAN PAPER CURRENCY BILL; THE GOLD COINAGE BILL.

[4TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.] [Sir William Meyer; Mr. Malcolm Hogg.]

"The Bill is a war measure intended to provide for present conditions, and it therefore contains the usual provision to the effect that it shall remain in force during the continuance of the present war and for a period of six months thereafter."

The motion was put and agreed to.

The Hon'ble Sir William Meyer :— "My Lord, I now introduce the Bill, and beg to move that the Bill, together with the Statement of Objects and Reasons relating thereto, be published in the Gazette of India in English." 12-20 P.M.

The motion was put and agreed to.

THE GOLD COINAGE BILL.

The Hon'ble Sir William Meyer :— "My Lord, I beg to move for leave to introduce a Bill to provide for the coinage of a gold coin at the Mints referred to in the Indian Coinage Act, 1906. 12-21 P.M.

"The present Bill, as in the case of the Currency Bill which I have just introduced, merely continues the provisions of an existing Ordinance. I think that most Honourable Members are probably familiar with the circumstances in which the issue of that Ordinance was required, and the circumstances which have necessitated this measure are fully explained in the Statement of Objects and Reasons. Under the powers which we took last year to acquire gold coin and bullion imported into India, we secured a very substantial quantity of this metal. A good deal of this, however, came into India in the form, not of sovereigns, but of foreign coin and bullion. In that shape it could not be utilised by us immediately when necessary for currency purposes, and we consequently put in train arrangements for the coinage of sovereigns at a branch of the Royal Mint to be established in Bombay. Owing, however, to the non-arrival of the necessary dies and other causes, a delay greater than was anticipated occurred before it was possible to commence the coinage of sovereigns. Meanwhile, owing to the depletion of our rupee stocks, it became necessary for us to take steps to convert some portion of our gold bullion into coin as expeditiously as possible. We consequently decided, as an interim arrangement, to coin gold mohurs or fifteen rupee gold pieces.

"As we explained at the time, the standard weight, fineness and dimensions of the gold mohur correspond exactly to those of the sovereign, and it is full legal tender at Rs. 15 per gold mohur. The only difference between our mohur and the sovereign is in the designs which it bears on its obverse and reverse. It will have been seen from a Press Communiqué published recently that we have now commenced the coinage of sovereigns at the branch mint. Meanwhile, our gold mohurs have been very useful to us, as we have employed nearly £400,000 worth of them in the purchase of wheat, while in addition to those actually issued, we have a coined up stock of £1,720,000 worth. I do not know whether it will again be necessary during the course of the war to resume the coinage of mohurs, but even if this is not the case, it will be necessary for us to continue the legal tender character of the mohurs which we have actually issued or which we may be issuing in future."

The Hon'ble Mr. Malcolm Hogg :— "My Lord, there is one point which occurs to me in connection with this Bill, and that is, that in the Statement of Objects and Reasons, one of the reasons given for introducing this Bill is to continue the legal tender character of the gold mohur coins which have been and will be issued. I do not understand therefore why the life of the Bill is limited to the continuance of the war, and for a period of six months thereafter. Will not the effect of this be that, unless other legislation is undertaken in the meantime, those coins will cease to be legal tender six months after the end of the war?" 12-24 P.M.

THE GOLD COINAGE BILL; THE INDIAN NON-FERROUS METAL INDUSTRY BILL.

[Sir George Lowndes; Sir William Meyer; Sir George Barnes.] [4TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.]

12-25 P.M. The Hon'ble Sir George Lowndes:—"The Hon'ble Member is quite correct, my Lord. We shall probably have to legislate again when the war comes to an end. There are various small points of this sort which will have to be dealt with—in this case probably by an amendment of the Indian Coinage Act."

The motion was put and agreed to.

The Hon'ble Sir William Meyer:—"My Lord, I now beg to introduce the Bill, and to move that the Bill, together with the Statement of Objects and Reasons relating thereto, be published in the Gazette of India in English."

The motion was put and agreed to.

THE INDIAN NON-FERROUS METAL INDUSTRY BILL.

12-26 P.M. The Hon'ble Sir George Barnes:—"My Lord, I beg to move for leave to introduce a Bill to restrict temporarily the persons who may engage in business connected with certain non-ferrous metals and metallic ores.

"This Bill, my Lord, is based on an English Act bearing the same name, or rather I may say that it is the English Act adapted to Indian conditions. The Home Government has invited us to introduce legislation in India on the same lines as the English Act, and a similar invitation has, we understand, been sent to each of the Dominions. It will be common knowledge to the Members of this Council that at time of the outbreak of the war, the markets in the non-ferrous metals were largely controlled by a German metal ring working through the Metallbank and the Metallurgische Gesellschaft of Frankfurt. The Act which was passed in England has for its object the securing of the independence, so far as the metals in question are concerned, of the several parts of the Empire. The metals and ores to which the Bill applies you will find in the 3rd clause, namely, zinc, copper, tin, lead, nickel and aluminium and any other non-ferrous metals and ores to which the Act may be applied by notification.

"Every Member of this Council will, I am sure, realise how important it is to the interests of India and of the Empire at large that these metals should be free from enemy control. They are all necessary for the successful development of our industries in peace time, and in war time our very existence will be imperilled by the absence of control. In order to secure this control, clause 4 of the Bill provides that it shall not be lawful to carry on the business of extracting, smelting, dressing, refining or dealing by way of wholesale trade in the non-ferrous metals except under license. But it also provides that any person who is free from enemy taint and who applies to his Local Government in the prescribed manner shall be entitled to a license as of course. Consequently, I think that we may say that there will be no hindrance or restriction of trade whatever except in respect of a company or person who is affected with enemy taint. With the object of discovering whether a business is being carried on by enemies or not, power is given by the 5th clause to require information and inspection of documents.

"Clause 6 deals with the difficulty which arises in the case of a company which has power to issue bearer shares. It is of course obvious that when shares are issued to bearer, the company does not know who is the real owner, and this clause enables any company which has issued shares to bearer to require that the holders of the shares should have their names entered in the register of members.

"Clause 7 with the same object in view gives any Indian company power to require a share-holder or debenture-holder to make a declaration as to the beneficial ownership of shares or debentures standing in his name and as to the nationality of the beneficial owner.

THE INDIAN NON-FERROUS METAL INDUSTRY BILL; THE PROVINCIAL INSOLVENCY (AMENDMENT) BILL.

[4TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.] [Sir George Barnes; Sir George Lowndes.]

"Clause 8 provides that all information obtained under the Act is to be kept secret, except of course in the case of a prosecution.

"Clause 9 deals with penalties.

"The Schedule contains the conditions which alone prevent an applicant from claiming the grant of a license as a matter of right. The conditions look elaborate at first sight, but they amount to no more than this, that the only persons who are not entitled to license as of right are persons affected with enemy taint and companies which have issued share warrants to bearer and have not given notice requiring the holders of the shares to bearer to have their names inscribed in the company's register.

"The proposed extension to India by this Bill of the provisions of the British Act is really based on the necessity of preventing enemy interests, unable to operate in the United Kingdom, from setting up their business in India in respect of the metals available here. As I have already said, the British Government anticipate that legislation on the same lines will be passed in the Dominions."

The motion was put and agreed to.

The Hon'ble Sir George Barnes:—"My Lord, I beg to introduce the Bill, and to move that the Bill, together with the Statement of Objects and Reasons relating thereto, be published in the Gazette of India in English."

The motion was put and agreed to.

THE PROVINCIAL INSOLVENCY (AMENDMENT) BILL.

12-30 P.M.

The Hon'ble Sir George Lowndes:—"My Lord, I beg to move for leave to introduce a Bill to amend the Provincial Insolvency Act, 1907. The Act in question was introduced and passed shortly before the passing of the new Civil Procedure Code of 1908, in order that it might take the place of the very rudimentary provisions for dealing with insolvents outside the presidency-towns which were contained in that Act. As Members of this Council are aware the other insolvency Act we have in India, the Presidency Towns Act, applies only to the presidency-towns and Rangoon. There have been proposals that it should be extended, but the extension in any case will only make it applicable to other large towns of India, such as Karachi, Cawnpore and so forth, and therefore it is clearly necessary for us to have a provincial Act to deal with insolvencies in a more simple way outside the bigger towns. The Act of 1907 was largely experimental at the time it was passed, and my predecessor in office, Sir Erle Richards, in moving the Report of the Select Committee on the Bill quite recognised that it was not altogether a satisfactory measure. I think we may say that the experience of ten years, or eleven years now, has shown that this was not an unwise forecast. During the ten years we have had criticisms of the provisions of the Act, both from the Courts and from the general public, and not very long ago, it was thought desirable to address Local Governments on the subject. The replies we received showed that complaints were frequent, and that there were many defects in the Act which it was obvious ought to be remedied. As a result, last September, we convened in Simla a small informal Committee to deal with the questions which were then before us. We had the assistance of various Hon'ble Members of this Council, including my Hon'ble legal friends Mr. Chanda and Mr. Krishna Sahay; my Hon'ble colleague, Sir William Vincent, attended the Committee and we also had the benefit of Sir Ashutosh Mukherji's great experience. We had two District Judges, if I remember aright, on the Committee, and we had a Sub-judge up from Madras. The matter was carefully considered and very valuable recommendations were made to

THE PROVINCIAL INSOLVENCY (AMENDMENT) BILL.

[Sir George Lowndes.] [4TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.]

Government by the Committee, the outcome of which is the present Bill. The Committee thought that it would be unwise to repeal the existing Act, and that it would be sufficient to amend it, though as Hon'ble Members will see the amendments come to a considerable number, and we of course accepted that view. The present Bill is to some extent complementary to the Usurious Loans Act, which was passed in the last Session of this Council. Hon'ble Members may remember that my Hon'ble colleague, the Home Member, then in dealing with the Usurious Loans Act, pointed out that it would be necessary and indeed only fair alongside of the Usurious Loans Act either to pass a new provincial insolvency Act, or to amend the existing Act, and this Bill is now introduced in fulfilment of the promise which I may say was then made.

"The main defect in the old Act was that it lent itself very largely to the devices of dishonest debtors. As the Usurious Loans Act was introduced for the protection of honest debtors against dishonest creditors, so an amended insolvency Act is necessary for the protection of honest creditors against dishonest debtors. Under the present Act, it is comparatively easy for a dishonest debtor to evade his responsibilities. As many Hon'ble Members will know, it is quite a common thing for a man when cornered, so that he has either to go to jail or pay, to file his petition in insolvency. There is a provision (sec. 55 (4), I think) of the Civil Procedure Code which entitles him on giving notice that he will file his petition to have execution against his person stayed, and we shall undoubtedly have to consider whether that section of the Civil Procedure Code will not have to be amended if this Bill is passed in its present or any other form. But I will pursue for the moment the course of the dishonest debtor; he files his petition, and if he is in jail he automatically gets his release under the existing Act, and he is practically protected from going to jail again. That is sufficient for him; that is all he wants; he does not want to pay his debts; all he wishes is to escape the penalty of jail. It is not necessary for him to apply for his discharge, and until he applies for it, the Court has practically no power over his misdoings. The existing Act, it is true, lays certain disabilities on an undischarged insolvent, but these do not affect the dishonest debtor. He cannot borrow money without disclosing his condition. But, in the first place, he probably does not know that there are any such disabilites at all; if he does he borrows all the same in disregard of the Act, and no body takes the trouble to prosecute him. Then again no stigma whatever apparently attaches to being an undischarged bankrupt under these conditions. Of course in other parts of the world the stigma is great, but apparently among provincial insolvents there is no feeling at all on the subject, and they can go on borrowing for years. This is the state of things that we have tried to remedy by this amending Bill. We propose in the first place to make it compulsory that every petitioning insolvent should apply for his discharge within a time to be prescribed by the Court, which, we hope, will in most cases be a fairly short one. If the insolvent does not apply for his discharge, and it must be remembered that his doing so will enable the Court to deal with any malpractices he may have committed, he will lose the protection of the Court altogether. His adjudication will be annulled, and it is provided that he cannot file another petition on the same facts. That in the first place. In the second place, we propose to abolish the automatic protection which he gets upon adjudication. It is proposed by this Bill to repeal the provision of the existing Act, which provides that immediately on adjudication, the insolvent should be released from jail, and make it necessary for him to apply to the Court for protection, leaving it to the discretion of the Court to grant him protection in any degree it thinks fit. Then, in the third place, we propose to lay upon him as an undischarged insolvent, so long as he remains undischarged, certain civil disabilities, such as incapacity to hold certain offices. This is, if I may say so, fairly based on the principle that a man who cannot manage his own affairs should not be entrusted with the affairs of others. It will be for the Select Committee to consider whether in this respect we have gone far enough.

"The Bill is rather a long one, and owing to its being in the usual form of amending Acts is rather a difficult one to follow, and we have therefore made the Objects and Reasons and the Notes on Clauses rather more complete and full than they would ordinarily be. I do not propose to go through the various amendments in detail, but there are one or two points to which, I think, I ought to refer very shortly. The first is, that the present Act gives no precise power to an insolvency Court to decide questions of law or fact that arise incidentally in the course of insolvency proceedings. With regard to this there have been conflicting decisions in the Allahabad and Calcutta courts, and we think that the point should be definitely settled by the amending Bill. It is not altogether easy to see which is the wisest course to follow. If the power to decide questions of law and fact does exist, a summary decision by a Court of Insolvency may have more far reaching effects than was intended at the time. On the other hand, if the power does not exist, and all the Court can do is to refer the parties to a separate suit, the result is interminable delay during which the wearied creditor may be driven from Court to Court, and eventually may have to come to a compromise with his debtor on disadvantageous terms. We have chosen what we think as at present advised to be the better of the two alternatives, and have provided that the Court shall have power to decide any questions that arise incidentally in the insolvency, but leaving it discretion whether it should do so in a particular case or should refer the parties to a separate suit. Between this Scylla and Charybdis we hope that the Select Committee will be able to steer our bark to safety. I may say that in regard to this point, as in many others, where we have proposed amendments of the Act, we have adopted the corresponding provisions of the Presidency Towns Insolvency Act. That Act was passed just two years after the Provincial one, and seems to have been rather better considered, and in many cases, I may say better drafted. We think that there is no reason why there should be any material difference in minor provisions between the two Acts, and therefore in many cases where we wanted a better model we have gone to the Presidency Towns Act and adopted provisions from it.

THE PROVINCIAL INSOLVENCY (AMENDMENT) BILL.

[4TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.] [Sir George Lowndes.]

"The next point to which I should like to refer very shortly, is the amendment which we propose in section 12, that in every case, unless for reasons to be recorded in writing the Court otherwise directs, on a petition of insolvency being admitted, an interim receiver should be appointed at once, in order that he may be in a position from the very outset, to get hold of the assets of the insolvent. In this connection, I ought also to refer to the question of official receivers. No doubt for the efficient administration of any insolvency, a competent official receiver is necessary, and if we could provide official receivers throughout India for all the mofussil insolvency Courts, we should be very glad to do so. But as Hon'ble Members are aware, official receivers have to look to fees for their remuneration, or at all events Government would have to consider the question of fees in fixing their remuneration, and the fees in most District Courts in insolvency matters would be very small. Therefore, though we recognise that it would be very desirable to have official receivers, if we could, throughout India, the cost would practically make it impossible, and we do not look forward at present to any great extension of the system of appointing official receivers. Where there is an official receiver, he would no doubt normally be appointed interim receiver. We have provided that an interim receiver should have all the powers that are conferrable on a receiver under the Civil Procedure Code. In this respect, again, we have followed the model of the Presidency Towns Act.

"The next point I should like to refer to, is the penal provisions of the Act. Section 43 of the existing Act is lacking in precision, and clearly wants remodelling. Its form has led to many difficulties, and we therefore propose to recast it, again resorting to the model of the Presidency Towns Act, which seems to us to be better. I should like to say in this connection that the ideal state of affairs would undoubtedly be that an Insolvency Act should itself deal only with what I may call the special offences under the Act, such as refusal or neglect to comply with orders of the Court or statutory requirements, and that all graver offences, such as fraud, gross misconduct and the like, should be left to be dealt with under the provisions of the general law. I should like myself to see a Chapter of the Penal Code dealing with all such offences, and in that case we should be able to omit both from our Provincial Insolvency Act and the Presidency Towns Act a good many of the present penal provisions. The Insolvency Court would then only deal with special insolvency offences, and in respect of any graver offences which came to its notice during the inquiry, it would only order prosecution in a criminal Court. That is, I will not say, an Utopian idea, I think it is an idea that we may be able to bring into practice before very long. It has not of course been possible to deal with it in this Bill, as it would have meant amendments not only of this Act, but of the Presidency Towns Act and of the Penal Code, but I look forward to it as a possible piece of legislation in the future.

THE COTTON CLOTH BILL.

[Sir George Lowndes; Sir George Barnes.] [4TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.]

"There is one other point, my Lord, I should like to deal with, and that is the question of summary administration of small insolvent estates. We propose to simplify the procedure further in order that there may be a more expeditious winding up and distribution of the assets. The Committee to which I have already referred recommended that the present limit of Rs. 500 for summary administration should be reduced to Rs. 200, and we have adopted this in the Bill. At the same time, it has been suggested to us that the right policy would rather be the other way, to bring in rather bigger estates, and instead of reducing the limit, to extend it from Rs. 500 to Rs. 2,000. Here, again, we hope that the advice of the Select Committee will assist us. I should state that it is not proposed to proceed with the Bill at present, but merely to publish it and take it up again next Session.

"I regret that I have taken so long over the explanation of this Bill, a very dull matter in these exciting times, but it is one in which I have taken great interest, and I hope we may look forward to its being a useful, and at the same time a non-contentious, piece of legislation."

The motion was put and agreed to.

The Hon'ble Sir George Lowndes:—"My Lord, I beg to introduce the Bill, and to move that the Bill, together with the Statement of Objects and Reasons relating thereto, be published in the Gazette of India in English and in the local official Gazettes in English and in such other languages as the Local Governments think fit."

The motion was put and agreed to.

THE COTTON CLOTH BILL.

12-50 P.M.

The Hon'ble Sir George Barnes:—"My Lord, I beg to move for leave to introduce a Bill to take powers to provide for the cheap supply of cotton cloth to the poorer classes of the community.

"Your Excellency has referred to this Bill in your speech to-day. Its object, as you have told us, is to alleviate, as far as possible, the serious hardship which has been caused to the poorer classes by the great rise in the price of cotton piece-goods. There is no doubt, I regret to say, about the reality of this hardship, especially in Bengal, where the price of the two chief local products, jute and rice, is low in comparison with the increased prices for other products which have in many Provinces eased the position for the actual cultivator. The causes of the rise in the prices of piece-goods lie largely in the increased cost of the raw material, cotton, which has risen considerably all over the world, owing in a great measure to the heavy demands for war equipment, and for the manufacture of actual munitions of war. This rise in other parts of the world has affected the price of raw cotton in this country, as it was bound to do. Imported piece-goods have risen greatly in price, not only in consequence of the rise in price of raw cotton, but also in consequence of the increased cost of manufacture at the present time in Lancashire. Wages and other costs have risen in Lancashire, which, as every one knows, supplies India with a large proportion of her imported piece-goods, and the high freights have increased the cost of raw cotton to Lancashire, while the supplies have at the same time been reduced by the shortage of shipping.

" The Government have for some time past viewed the position with great anxiety, for we knew how sorely the high prices of cotton cloth pressed upon the poor, and produced distress, which in some cases resulted in disturbances of the peace. Early in the present year we came to the conclusion that it was not possible to decide upon any system of control without expert advice from the leading members of the trade, and we further felt that it was right to make every endeavour to carry the trade with us in whatever proposals we might make. Accordingly a mixed Committee of Indian and European gentlemen was appointed by the Government of India to work out a scheme for the regulation of the prices of cotton piece-goods of Indian manufacture. The members of the Committee, apart from the Chairman appointed by the Government of Bombay, were :—

(1) Mr. R. H. Brooke.

(2) Mr. N. B. Saklatwala.

The Committee sat in Bombay at the end of March and the beginning of April last, and arrived at 15 Resolutions, which were published in a Communiqué made to the press a short time ago. The first four of the Resolutions do not concern us to-day, for they deal with the question of undue speculation in raw cotton, and action has already been taken on the recommendations made by the Committee in this respect. The Committee reported that a fair measure of control over the price of cotton cloth was practicable, if a limited number of varieties were standardised. The essential parts of their recommendations are contained in Resolution No. 6, which, I think, I had better read in full —

' In order to estimate the quantity and the varieties of standard cloth that should be manufactured, the Local Administrations should inform the Central Committee at Bombay of the quantity of ordinary saris, dhotis and longcloth required for the poorer and lower middle classes in their area, and should supply samples of the same. The Committee in Bombay will then prepare specifications showing the counts of warp and weft, reed and picks, the weight of the variety and the size to be put on it. The varieties of standard cloth are not to be of higher or finer counts than 20 s warp and 24 s. weft, as a maximum. The obligation of manufacturing such cloth should be distributed by a central authority as equitably as possible among the mills, so that each mill would contribute a share of a standard cloth proportionate to the total number of its looms.'

This is the recommendation which forms the basis of the present Bill, for the Government have decided to act upon the recommendation of the Committee. We are glad to think that the scheme contained in the Bill is not one devised from outside and forced upon the millowners of this country, but one which they have themselves made, and I should like to take this opportunity of acknowledging the public-spirited way in which the leading millowners on the Committee approached the question with the object of doing what they could to help the poorest in this land.

THE COTTON CLOTH BILL.

[Sir George Barnes.] [4TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.]

"After the receipt of the Committee's report, the report received careful and detailed consideration from the Government of India. It soon became clear that any scheme for the control of prices must also involve an efficient system of distribution. The control of prices, though difficult enough, is a simple matter in comparison with the distribution of the controlled article when, as is the case with cotton piece-goods, the commodity in question is manufactured in so many varieties of fineness and of colour and is distributed to so great a variety of places. We had also to consider the control of prices of imported piece-goods, but have been forced to the conclusion that the control of imported piece-goods with a view to reducing their price below the price at which they can be replaced from abroad, might do a great deal more harm than good. Although there are large stocks of imported piece-goods in the country, and although I am sorry to say the prices of these have risen owing to speculative transactions, their price is still below replacement cost. If we fix the price of imported cotton piece-goods at a price lower than that which the importer has at that date to pay to import similar goods, it is plain that by so fixing the price we cut off the supply of imports from abroad, for importation is no longer possible as a commercial transaction. In India, we want at the present time all the piece-goods from abroad which we can get, for even if all the mills in this country work full time and even double shifts, they will be unable to supply the needs of the Indian people. Our policy must at the present time be to encourage imports, and if we fix the price of foreign imports of piece-goods at a figure below the parity price in the country of production, the result must be to entirely stop the stream of imports from that country. For these reasons, we have been compelled to conclude that though we should like to control the price of foreign piece-goods, it is dangerous to take a step which would diminish or stop altogether the stream of imports into this country at a time when we urgently require all the imports we can get.

"An outline of the Bill is stated very shortly in the Statement of Objects and Reasons attached to the Bill. The Bill proposes to give the Government power to appoint one or more Controllers, with whom will be associated Advisory Committees of persons having expert knowledge of the trade. The Controllers will have power to require the mills in India to manufacture certain standard varieties of cloth in common use amongst the poorer classes, and it is proposed to ascertain the amounts and the kinds required of standard cloth at a meeting of the representatives of all the Provinces to be held in Bombay. The standard cloth will be manufactured at controlled prices, which will be so fixed as to allow the mills a reasonable margin of profit, and in order to ensure that the benefit of these prices actually reaches the ultimate purchasers, the sale will be made either through Government shops, or through traders licensed by the Local Government. Where the Local Government rely on ordinary dealers and retailers licensed by them to sell the standard cloth, they will of course have to fix the prices to be charged, and to prohibit the sale of standard cloth by any dealer who is not licensed.

"If we now turn to the Bill itself, clauses 1 and 2 only contain short title and definitions of words in the Bill.

"Clause 3 gives the Governor General in Council power to appoint one or more Controllers.

"Clause 4 deals with the powers of the Controller. He has powers to define the classes of standard cloth, to require its manufacture, and to fix the price for it. In fixing the price the Controller is to have regard to the cost of production and to the allowance of a reasonable profit.

"Clause 5 gives power to appoint Advisory Committees.

THE COTTON CLOTH BILL.

[4TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.] [Sir George Barnes; Sir Fazulbhoy Currimbhoy.]

"Clause 6 provides for the delivery of the standard cloth, and secures the payment of the price for it to the manufacturer.

"Clause 7 deals with the delegation of powers.

"Clause 8 contains penalties for non-compliance with the Act.

"Clauses 9 and 10 give the Local Government power by notification in the local gazette to fix the price or prices at which standard cloth is to be sold at the various localities within the limits of that Local Government, and forbid any persons from selling at any price other than that fixed by the Local Government.

"Clause 11 gives the Local Governments power to grant licenses to traders and others for the sale of standard cloth.

"I may add that we propose at once, in connection with this Bill, to depute an officer to Bombay, and propose that he should shortly call a preliminary Conference of representatives from all the Local Governments, in order to ascertain exactly what sorts of cloth are most required and the quantities, and generally to work out the details of the scheme outlined in the Bill.

"The success of the whole scheme depends almost entirely on the active and willing co-operation of persons concerned in the industry and the public. The former will be taken fully into the counsels of the Controller whom we propose to appoint under the powers contained in this Bill, and provided their whole-hearted assistance is forthcoming—and of this I have every confidence—I feel no doubt that the details of the scheme can be satisfactorily filled in. The responsibility for distribution will rest, as you have seen from the Bill, almost entirely upon provincial efforts, and Local Governments will need the help and co-operation of non-official workers in making the scheme effective."

The Hon'ble Sir Fazulbhoy Currimbhoy:—"My Lord, the object of this Bill to supply cheaper cloth to the poor people is a very laudable one. There is a great hardship no doubt, but the question to my mind is, whether the machinery which is going to be employed of licensed sellers will be sufficient to give cheaper cloth to the poor people in so many thousand villages of this vast country. My doubt is that a licensed seller will make more profit than the mills themselves. Not only that, but it will be very difficult to detect these frauds. I am sure that the Government must have considered this point very carefully, and I shall be obliged if the Hon'ble Mover of the Bill will explain to us whether he is satisfied that the machinery which is going to be employed is a correct one.

1-2 P.M.

"Now I come to my other point. Take it for granted that the machinery will be very satisfactory, then I am sure that nearly 50 per cent of the production of the Indian mills will have to be taken up to supply the needs of the poorer people. The Bill says that the Controller will give reasonable profits, but I want to know what is the reasonable profit which, in fairness to the industry, they will get. Will they get the same profits as other industries in the country get on their capital, and will the profit upon their capital be the standard? The Council is aware that the jute industry in this country is making a huge profit. I know that some of their products have come cheaper to the Government; but, still, jute is so cheap, and having a monopoly in the country, they are able to make very large profits. There are other industries which are also making huge profits because they have got their own raw materials, the prices of which have not gone up and which they can produce at low prices. As we all know the cotton industry had its vicissitudes and it has got its difficulties. Cotton prices have gone up from Rs. 250 to Rs. 1,000, that is nearly five times the normal price. Not only that but the industry has to compete with other countries which take our raw material freely and dump our market with their manufactured goods. Many mills have made very handsome profits, but those profits were not profits made out of manufacture. Generally, many of the mills buy in the early part of the season

THE COTTON CLOTH BILL.

[Sir Fazulbhoy Currimbhoy; Mr. M. A. Jinnah.] [4TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.]

getting the best stuff, and later on, when they sold, the price of cotton had gone up; and in that way they have made large profits. You will see that many of the mills have not even wiped off their debts, and many of them have not even provided ample capital for their depreciation funds which they ought to have done. Under these conditions I do not think that cotton is the only industry which should be penalised. In fairness I think the Government ought to buy cloth at a fair profit, i.e., so much profit on the capital, and they should sell this cloth which they buy from the mills at a cheaper rate to the people and make up their losses by the taxation of other industries equally or else by some other means.

" Then, my Lord, there is a huge amount of stock in the Bombay market of cloth which the speculators and the cloth merchants have bought at cheaper prices from the mills, and they are making much larger profits than the mills. Nothing is provided in the Bill to show whether the Government is going also to take over this stock at a fair margin of profit.

"Then, my Lord, the Bill is vague in many points. It has not defined what proportion of the cloth Government is going to take over, nor what percentage of profit it contemplates to give to the mills. I wish that the Hon'ble Member will enlighten us on these points also."

1-8 P.M. The Hon'ble Mr. M. A. Jinnah:—" My Lord, I cannot say that I am one who represents this industry; but, representing Bombay, and having regard to the fact that the President of the Bombay Millowners' Association, Ahmedabad, has sent me a long telegram stating his objections, I think it is my duty to place certain objections before this Council for the consideration of Hon'ble Members.

" My Lord, the cotton industry is a very important industry in the Bombay Presidency, as the Hon'ble Sir Fazulbhoy Currimbhoy has pointed out, appreciating, as I do and I believe every Member in the Council does, that relief should be given to the poor, and that cheap cloth is a very necessary article for them, yet when we come to examine this Bill, my Lord, we find that it strikes at one particular industry. Why should the cotton industry be struck at at this moment, when no other industry is being touched, because we want to give relief to the poor? There is great force in the argument of the Hon'ble Sir Fazulbhoy that, if the Government desire to give relief to the poor, by all means do so, but not at the expense of one parti cular industry.

"Then, another objection is that the Hon'ble Mover said that, so far as imported cloth is concerned, we cannot deal with it. May I know, my Lord, why you cannot deal with it? Can you not restrict the importer in the same way and say he should not be allowed to sell imported goods beyond 10 per cent profit or 15 per cent profit? Will that prevent the import of cloth from other countries? Certainly not. Why should it? Those are two or three important objections. Apart from the difficulty of the practical working of the scheme which Sir Fazulbhoy has pointed out, I see many practical difficulties, but I am not at present dealing with them because I am not in a position to deal with them at present.

" Then, my Lord, if I may say so, this Bill is a blank cheque in favour of the Government of India, which means practically the Department of Commerce and Industry. Do you associate with you anybody representing this interest, and how do you do it? You have provided a Committee, and what is the use of that Committee? That Committee will do what? Nothing. The Committee's power is this, that unless they unanimously disagree with the Controller, the Controller is not even bound to refer the question to the Governor General in Council. Now supposing you have got four members of the Committee, for example, and three members do not agree with the Controller with regard to any orders that he wants to issue; but if one agrees with him then he need not even refer the point to the Governor General in Council. If one man agrees with him, he can say 'That is alright; I need not refer the matter to the Governor General in Council.'

THE COTTON CLOTH BILL.

[4TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.] [Mr. M. A. Jinnah; Pandit Madan Mohan Malaviya.]

"Again, this Committee which you are going to appoint will only be consulted by the Controller with regard to certain specific matters only and nothing more. Now, may I ask the Hon'ble Mover how he is going to provide for in this Bill that manufacturers will be consulted and their interests guarded. May I ask the Hon'ble Mover how you are going to provide for that, for in this Bill I see no trace of it? I see no provision to that effect at all. Therefore I say, my Lord, that I cannot possibly give my assent to this Bill in the form in which it has been presented to us to-day. And if the Hon'ble Member will allow me, as I do not wish to take up the time of the Council, I will present to him a telegram which I have received from the President of the Mill-owners' Association, Ahmedabad, giving all the details of objections for his consideration."

The Hon'ble Pandit Madan Mohan Malaviya:—"My Lord, I heartily support the motion for leave to introduce the Bill which is before us. The Bill is not being introduced a day too soon. The sufferings which the people have been undergoing on account of the high prices of cloth have been very severe, and I hope it will not be long before the Bill is passed into law. 1-14 P.M.

"But, my Lord, there are certain points which have been raised which deserve consideration. While I support the Bill as a measure calculated to bring relief to the poor—which is the great object before Government and which I am sure will receive the support—in fact, it has received the support of our Millowners also—there are two or three points which have been raised in the debate to-day which deserve consideration.

"One is this. When you are taking steps, and rightly, to control the price of cloth manufactured in the country, should you not at the same time prohibit the export of cotton, both in order to lower its price and thereby make it easier for the mills to produce cheap cloth, and also in order that the cotton may be manufactured in the country itself? If Japan and other countries take away our cotton and send it back to us in the manufactured state, it is important to consider whether the export of our cotton to those countries should not for the time being be prohibited—if, as I understand from my friends who are connected with the cotton industry, the cotton can be manufactured in this country by working overtime? That is one point I wish the Government to consider.

"The second point relates to dealing with imported cloth. I quite appreciate what the Hon'ble Member for Commerce and Industry has said, that he cannot fix the price at which cloth should be manufactured in Lancashire. But is there any objection to the Government buying up that cloth when it is imported into this country at a fair price, giving those who import it a reasonable profit, and then selling it as cloth which will be taken from Indian mills will be sold, at a reasonable price? My object is not to inflict any loss on the manufacturer of cotton cloth in Lancashire. My object is that the loss, which the poorer classes cannot bear, should be borne by the Government. I am aware that cloth imported from Lancashire is largely used by the higher classes, but it is not used by the upper classes only; it is used largely by the middle classes also, and these classes are also hard hit by the high prices prevailing. I therefore ask the Hon'ble Member to say whether it is possible to devise some means by which, without coming into conflict with Manchester manufacturers, we should be able—the Government should be able—to arrange for the purchase of cloth sent into this country, to pay a reasonable profit on it, and to sell it to the people at reasonable prices on the lines which are proposed for dealing with cloth turned out by the mills here.

"Those are two points which I would like the Hon'ble Member to enlighten us upon. I hope I have made it clear that my object is not to raise a conflict between Lancashire and India. My object simply is, avoiding a conflict between Lancashire and India, to see if some relief could not be provided for the users of cloth which is imported in the manner suggested.

THE COTTON CLOTH BILL.

[Pandit Madan Mohan Malaviya; Mr. Surendra Nath Banerjea.] [4TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.]

"The third point that I will touch upon is one which has already been referred to by the Hon'ble Mr. Jinnah. I also have received a telegram from the President of the Ahmedabad Millowners' Association. With reference to it, I will only say this, that if the points I have mentioned are taken into consideration and something is done, there will not be a feeling that the Indian cotton industry alone has been selected for control. Of course the reason for the cotton industry being selected is obvious; but if the steps I have suggested are considered and adopted, there will be no feeling that the industry has been hard hit.

"Lastly, my Lord, the question of the powers of the Advisory Committee which has been referred to by the Hon'ble Mr. Jinnah requires consideration. It is no good giving a thing with one hand and taking it away with another. The provision that only when the unanimous opinion of those members of the Committee who have been consulted by the Controller is adverse to the issue of any order, the Controller shall refer the matter to the Governor General in Council, practically nullifies the advantage of constituting an Advisory Committee. I think that it should be provided that, if the majority of the Committee do not agree with the Controller, he must refer the matter to the Governor General in Council. If that is done, my Lord, the complaint which has been raised on this score will be met, and a great deal of relief will be given to the people who are sorely hit.

"I hope these points will receive consideration."

1-19 P.M. The Hon'ble Mr. Surendra Nath Banerjea:—"My Lord, I desire to associate myself with some of the remarks that have been made by my Hon'ble friend to my left.* Speaking for Bengal, and on behalf of the poorer classes of Bengal who have been sorely hit by the high price of dhoties and saries, I will say this, that legislation has not been undertaken a day too soon. My Lord, there have been in Bengal cases of looting and these poor people, who had been driven to desperation and broken the law in consequence of their needs, are being tried and many of them have been punished, severely punished, I am sorry to say. There have been cases of suicide committed by women. There have been grievous hardships all along the line among the poorer class of our people. We have been holding demonstrations, meetings and conferences in Calcutta and in different parts of the Province in order to stimulate the Government into action. Government is always very slow to move. It has at last moved. But I am afraid there are one or two matters in regard to which action has to be taken but which has been deferred. We have all received this telegram; I have not been able to read it but glancing over the telegram, looking at it here and there I find the word 'profiteering' mentioned, and in Bengal the high prices of dhoties and saries are largely due to the tactics of the speculator. My information is—and I have tried to test and verify it, it has been obtained from the trades people themselves—that the existing stock of dhoties and saries if used at the ordinary rate of consumption would last over two years, and if economically used might last for three years, and this is the most important point, namely, that the whole or at any rate the greater part of this stock was purchased before the war and at pre-war rates; and they are now being sold at five or six times the ordinary rates. Surely, my Lord, this is a matter which can be easily tested. If you go to the wholesale dealers, ascertain from them what the price was when they purchased these things and then go to the retail dealers, I think it would be easy for the Government to inquire into the truth or otherwise of this allegation and take action. But the fact remains that while before the war the dealers or speculators were about a few hundreds in number they are now to be counted by thousands. It is the middlemen who have been mostly instrumental in raising the prices of dhoties and saries, and I should like to know if my Hon'ble friend in charge of the Bill has made any provision for the purpose of dealing with this class of men who are taking advantage of the situation and making money in consequence. I think this is a serious matter and ought to be tackled in the Bill, and the Bill would fail to give satisfaction if this matter were not satisfactorily dealt with.

*The Hon'ble Pandit M. M. Malaviya.

THE COTTON CLOTH BILL.

[4TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.] [Mr. Surendra Nath Banerjea; Mr. Malcolm Hogg.]

"Then, my Lord, with reference to the question of the differentiation between mill-made articles in this country and imported goods, I entirely sympathise with the observations which have fallen from my friend to my left. Is it not possible to obtain from the importers the manufactured price of the articles, freight, insurance and such like things and then settle the price? This ought to be done and it should be done. This differentiation must give rise to irritation. It has caused a feeling of discontent. We had a meeting the other day in the Indian Association rooms of which I was the chairman, and there was a resolution in this connection protesting against this differentiation of treatment between Indian and Lancashire mill-owners. I say public feeling in this matter ought to be taken note of. At any rate we are glad that Government has taken action in this matter, and I hope and trust that the points which have been raised in the course of this debate will be taken note of by my Hon'ble friend, the Member in charge, and adequate action taken in connection therewith."

The Hon'ble Mr. Malcolm Hogg :—"My Lord, I find myself in a position of some little difficulty in regard to this Bill. The whole question of the control of prices of cotton cloth is one which bristles with very great difficulties. The Bill proposes to set up an organisation to ensure the manufacture of certain standard varieties of cloth at fixed prices, and their distribution to the poorer classes of the community. Now, in carrying out the policy of this Bill many very difficult questions will arise, both in connection with the arrangements for the manufacture and for the distribution, and I would emphasise that the difficulties in connection with the distribution will certainly not be less than, in fact, I think they will probably prove greater than, the difficulties in connection with the manufacture. I must admit that I feel considerable doubt as to whether these difficulties can be successfully overcome and the policy satisfactorily carried out. At the same time, I feel that if any attempt to control cotton cloth prices is to be made, the measures which are proposed by this Bill are the only possible measures; the only measures which do not carry with them dangers greater than the advantages they offer. I understand that Government have come to the deliberate conclusion that an attempt to control or partially control the prices of cotton cloth in this country is absolutely necessary for the relief of the poorer classes of the community, and indeed for the preservation of law and order. I do not dispute the correctness of that conclusion, and I therefore do not feel justified in opposing the Bill inasmuch as I am not prepared to offer any better alternative scheme for an immediate partial remedy. I do not think it is necessary at this stage to go into the details of the difficulties that will have to be overcome and the dangers that will have to be avoided. These difficulties and dangers are associated perhaps more with the administration of the Bill than with the Bill itself, and it will therefore probably be more profitable if the body which I represent puts that aspect of the question before the Controller who is to be appointed, though I may possibly say something about these difficulties and dangers at a later stage when the Bill comes again before the Council for consideration. There are one or two points which have been raised in this debate about which I should like to say something. I agree with the Hon'ble Mr. Jinnah that the provisions of clause 5 regarding the relations between the Controller and the Committee are not altogether satisfactory. I do not think that the provision by which the Controller is only to refer a matter to the Government of India if his Committee is unanimously against him would be found satisfactory in practice, and I think that section needs some amendment.

1-24 P.M.

THE COTTON CLOTH BILL.

[Mr. Malcolm Hogg; Sir Dinshaw Wacha.] [4TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.]

"Then several Hon'ble Members have raised the question of the control of imported cloths, and have expressed their inability to understand why this is impracticable. Well, I will try to explain this matter. It is a fact that throughout the war and at present the manufactured prices of Lancashire cloths have always been very much above even the high prices ruling in this country. That is to say, at the present time, just as throughout the war, the price of any cloth in Manchester is far greater even than the price at which it is being sold out here. Well, what will be the effect if Government say to the importer 'we want to know the price which you have paid for the imported cloth which you hold, what it has cost you to bring it out, and we will give you a reasonable profit on it.' I do not think the importer would make any objection to that; he would get his fair profit and would sell the cloth to Government. But could he venture to buy and import more cloth at a very much higher price? Obviously he could not. If the present high prices ruling here are below those in Manchester, how much more will the relatively reasonable prices at which Government would desire to buy these cloths from the importer be below the replacing cost? The only effect of the proposed taking over by Government of stocks of imported cloth must be that it would be impossible for anybody to import any more cloth, and that is a difficulty which, as far as I can see, cannot be got away from. There is just one other point raised by the Hon'ble Pandit Malaviya, and that is, the restriction of exports of cotton. Well, it seems to me that that step would only be necessary and justifiable when it has been proved that the supplies of cotton in India are insufficient for the mills of India. I quite agree, and I think everybody would agree, that the Indian mills should have the first claim on Indian cotton, but I do not think that up to the present—I cannot say what may happen in the coming season—a situation has ever arisen when it can be said that the supplies of cotton are insufficient for the needs of the Indian mills. With regard to the question of working overtime which was also suggested, I do not myself think that it is practicable. There is not a sufficient supply of labour in India to work double shifts, and if you merely try to make the existing labour work longer hours than at present, not only will it be a great strain on the labourers, but the actual result will be that you will get little or no more production, because the men will get so tired that they will do less efficient work. I do not think there is any possibility of any large increase in production.

"There is just one other point I should like to refer to before I sit down. This Bill proposes to attempt a partial or immediate remedy for high prices of cloth. It will, I think, be obvious that the real permanent remedy is to increase the supply, and I would therefore urge on the Government the necessity of not losing any opportunity to assist and encourage the increase of production in India. In this connection I have been told that it is possible to buy second hand looms in England at present, but that the assistance of Government will be needed in order to arrange for their export. I commend this point to the careful consideration of the Hon'ble Member in charge of the Bill. I desire to support the Bill."

1-31 P.M.

The Hon'ble Sir Dinshaw Wacha:—"My Lord, when most members of the Council have spoken, I also wish to say a few words on this very important subject. I appreciate the benevolent object with which this Bill has been brought forward. At the same time, some of my friends have said, and particulary my friend, Mr. Hogg, has rightly said that the Bill bristles with many difficulties, both in reference to distribution and in reference to selling the products of the cotton mills to the poorer classes. Very many complicated points arise, and those who are daily transacting business in cloth, can alone understand how those difficulties, which are of a serious character, can be remedied. Here, of course, I do not represent the mill-owners, though I belong to the cotton industry line. At the present moment I am not speaking about the industry itself, however interested I may be therein. I speak in this Council

THE COTTON CLOTH BILL.

[4TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.] [Sir Dinshaw Wacha; Sir George Barnes.]

as a member of the public, who is anxious to see the poorest masses obtaining cloth at a fairly reasonable price. As such I am sorry to say that I cannot accept this Bill in its present form. What I think about it is this. It is like the cart that is put before the horse. You cannot make cloth without cotton. It should be remembered that it is the price of cotton that generally regulates the prices of cloth. As my Hon'ble friend Sir Fazulbhoy has pointed out, cotton was formerly to be had for Rs. 250 to Rs. 300. It has now gone up to Rs. 1,000 per candy! That means the cost of the production of cloth is necessarily enhanced on that account. Practically, at the present moment the price of cotton has gone up to about Rs. 1,000. That is the price of raw cotton, without loss of waste which further enhances the price. Therefore, the question is this: Will you, without controlling the price of cotton, be able to benefit the poor? I say that the poor cannot be benefited at all, whateverelse you may say. It may be a hardship; it may be, as our friend Mr. Banerjea has pointed out, that these high cloth prices may lead people to looting and rioting; it may lead women to commit suicide. But the measures which you are proposing by this Bill will not help the poor; they will only help to bring about more cases of women committing suicide; to more looting and rioting. I repeat these measures will not help the poor. The whole question turns on this:—whether cotton prices ought not to be first brought down. What is the present position? Is it a fact that cotton prices are what we call 'natural' prices? They are not. Why is this so? Well, the cotton dealers may say, 'Oh, there is a shortage of cotton'. True. The shortage of cotton is not a new thing. There have been shortage of cotton in times of famine in the past. There has been a shortage of cotton now and again time out of number. But even then the prices never mounted beyond Rs. 350 or Rs. 400. Why have then the prices gone so high now? Cotton dealers most of whom are gamblers and speculators, say that they cannot receive a sufficient quantity of the raw material from the seats of production, owing to greatly less facilities of transport service. Hence the increase of price. Well, there may be some truth in that; there may be an artificial scarcity, and necessarily the dealers in cotton raise their prices. That has always happened. But beyond that what is the reason that cotton prices are so high as Rs. 1,000? I cannot understand it. I do think, my Lord, and I speak with some confidence on this subject, that the natural price of cotton, which is now selling in Bombay for Rs. 1,000, ought to be Rs. 500 at the utmost. Who takes the whole of the profit of Rs. 500 or thereabouts? The cotton dealers, the gamblers, the speculators. Do Government control the gamblers? Do they control the speculators in order that cotton may be controlled? Nothing of the kind. It is cotton which now needs to be strictly controlled. But what does the Cotton Committee say? Who are this Cotton Committee? I know there are experts on the Committee, but they have entirely ignored the whole problem of controlling cotton. Why is this so? The public has not been given an opportunity to read their full report. We have read something in the papers about it, but the full report is not before us. ....

The Hon'ble Sir George Barnes:—"It has already been published in the newspapers."

The Hon'ble Sir Dinshaw Wacha:—"I do not think so."

The Hon'ble Sir George Barnes:—"I can assure the Hon'ble Member that the whole report has been published."

The Hon'ble Sir Dinshaw Wacha:—"The whole report is not before us. I say that it is not the whole report. It is only a wishy-washy document.

THE COTTON CLOTH BILL.

[Sir Dinshaw Wacha.] [4TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.]

It is all a one-sided report. It is a report wherein the selfish cotton dealers were permitted to take care of themselves and go scot free, while suggesting control on cloth. If the cotton dealers had any inkling as to how cloth is produced, I am sure they would never have recommended the Bill in the form in which the Hon'ble Member in charge has presented it to the Council. Have the Government examined whether the suggestions of the Committee are correct or ascertained their feasibility? Nothing of the kind. The Government have accepted the ipse dixit of the Committee and shaped their Bill accordingly! I am sorry to say so much. But I do believe that the production of cloth for the poorer classes of the people is not sufficient for their consumption to-day, notwithstanding the fact that the mills have been producing so much more cloth during the last ten years. The cloth coming from Lancashire is more or less for the richer and middle classes. There may be a few dhoties and saries of course, which a few of the better poorer classes may be consuming, but the bulk of the Lancashire goods are for the middle and wealthy. I am of conviction that whatever is produced by the cotton mills for the consumption of the poorest masses and whatever is produced by the hand looms barely suffice to meet their wants. That is the position, and this Bill will simply aggravate that position. Now a large percentage of the cloth now turned out by the mills is on account of the Government. Enormous quantities of khaki cloth and other coarse stuffs are being produced. While khaki cloth is produced by the mills, what may be the residue of coarse cloths for the poorer classes? So long as the production of many mills is reserved by the Government for themselves, the wants of the poor can never be adequately supplied, and the present position will never improve. The middlemen, of course, are benefited in the cotton trade of India. It is the brokers, the gamblers, the speculators, who will benefit at the expense of the mill-owners themselves. That being the position, my Lord, I think that the first thing that the Government ought to do, is to control cotton. Unless cotton which is at the root of this problem is controlled, the object of the Bill will not be achieved.

" As far as the exports of cotton to Japan are concerned, I believe that at the present moment if the exports to that country are wholly or partially prohibited, there will be some reasonable relief. The prices of cotton may automatically go down by a couple of hundred rupees or more. This will be the relief on one side, and on the other side as my friend Mr. Hogg has said, you can give additional relief by importing a larger number of second-hand looms whereby you can produce more cloth for the poor. Then, alone the position will be relieved but not otherwise. I do not say anything on the question of imported cloth, as that is a very difficult question which brings in afresh the issues regarding protection or whatever else you may call it, and I do not like to enlarge on that subject on this occasion.

" There is one other point to which I should like to refer and it is this. What about the exports of Indian manufactured cloth? I do not know whether the Hon'ble Member for Commerce and Industry has considered this question. Something like eighteen crore yards of piece-goods manufactured by the Indian mills is exported abroad of the value of 4 crore rupees. Are you going to stop those—those descriptions of cloth which go to Zanzibar, South and East Africa, Aden and other places? If you do, that will go of course to alleviate somewhat the situation as far as the poor are concerned. The cloth exported to South and East Africa is for the poorer classes of people; it is the same kind of cloth as the poorer classes of Indians use. That is another question which has to be answered.

"I believe, my Lord, that at this moment this Bill must be held to be very imperfect. It has not at all been well considered. It has been very ill-considered and ill-conceived. And although the principal object is that the poor should be relieved of the present exceedingly dear price of cloth, this Bill as now framed will not achieve that object. If the Government, or the Members who considered it, had taken sufficient time to think over many difficulties to be overcome and more time also to consider the feasibility of the recommendations of the Cotton Committee, which I consider was more or less dominated by speculators in cotton, they could have framed a more practical Bill than this impossible one. I am sorry therefore I cannot support it."

THE COTTON CLOTH BILL.

The Hon'ble Rai Sitanath Ray Bahadur: —" My Lord, I am in a position to bear out what has fallen from my Hon'ble friend Mr. Surendra Nath Banerjea that a great deal of hardship has been caused amongst the poorer classes of people throughout the country by the high prices of cotton cloth. It is very true that the poorer classes of the people have been driven to desperation by the high prices of cloth, and the result has been that there have been numerous cases of attempted suicide and numerous cases of haut-looting. I understand that even mosquito curtains have been torn to provide shreds of cloth to cover the shame of the women. In such a state of things, unless measures are taken to give relief to the poorer classes of the people, discontent in the country will increase. Therefore the main object of the Bill has my hearty sympathy. But at the same time, while I say that any measure that may be brought forward to give relief to the poorer classes of people should have the hearty sympathy of all right-thinking men, I do not think that the provisions of the Bill are satisfactory. This is the only industry in which Indians are very largely interested, and it would be invidious to penalise this industry alone in order to give relief to the poorer classes of the people. As has been suggested by an Hon'ble Member that if it is intended to give relief to the poorer classes, it would be better to buy cloth at a fair rate of profit to the mill-owners and supply it to the poorer classes at a very cheap rate, and to make up the deficiency by imposing taxes on industries which are making enormous profits. It is, therefore, in my opinion unfair to penalise the only industry in which Indians are engaged, and to allow other industries to make huge profits. I wish the Bill could be re-cast in a way which would not penalise the mill industry. 1-41 P.M.

" My Lord, I have another suggestion to make, namely that unless the prices of raw cotton can be brought down, it would not be fair to ask the mill-owners to submit to the restrictions demanded of them. What I beg to suggest is, that if the export of raw cotton were prohibited, and if there were enough cotton in the country, then the prices of cotton would automatically go down. It is therefore necessary that some measures should be taken to prohibit the export of cotton.

" With these few words, I beg to say that, though I do not oppose the Bill, I think its provisions are not quite satisfactory."

The Hon'ble Sir George Barnes:— " My Lord, there has been much criticism on the details of the Bill, but to-day we are only considering really the main principles, and I do not propose to reply in full on every detail which has been raised, but I can assure everybody who has raised any questions that the points which have been raised will have very careful consideration. I do not suppose, my Lord, that there is any more difficult thing than to devise a scheme for the control of cotton cloth in this country. I do not think that any scheme could possibly be immune from criticism. This scheme is not immune, but I believe that on the whole it is the best scheme which can be devised. 1-45 P.M.

" There are one or two points which, though I do not intend to go into details now, I should like to refer to. One of the speakers suggested as an alternative scheme, or at all events as a plan which would alleviate the present position, that we should secure the import into India of second-hand looms. I took steps yesterday, because I had seen a suggestion of that kind in the press, to inquire whether any application had been made to the Government of India for any priority certificate for second-hand looms. I found that no application has been made at all, but I can assure any applicant who is able to say that he has found second-hand looms which he can purchase, and which he wishes to import, the Government will give him every support and endeavour to get him the necessary priority certificate.

THE COTTON CLOTH BILL.

[Sir George Barnes.] [4TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.]

"Sir Fazulbhoy asked me, among other things, whether we were satisfied with the machinery proposed for distribution of this cloth. The machinery for distribution must of course be set up in the Provinces and by the Provincial authorities, and we certainly believe that the scheme which we suggest will prove effective, namely, that the various Local Governments should either set up municipal or Government shops, or license traders to sell the standard cloth at a fixed price. Then again he asked me what is meant by the words 'reasonable profit.' The profit which the Committee suggested was 10 per cent above cost. I have got here the dividends paid by the Bombay Cotton Mills, but I do not think that Sir Fazulbhoy will ask me to read those out.

"Another speaker suggested that there were large stocks in this country. Where stocks are heavy and are being held up this Council has already passed an Act giving powers by which the stocks can be commandeered.

"Then I think it was Sir Dinshaw Wacha who suggested that a remedy could be found by prohibiting the export of cotton altogether. I do not think Sir Dinshaw can have gone into the figures. Approximately half of the whole crop of cotton is exported. Our spindles and our looms can only use half the crop; what does he propose should be done with the remainder if export is prohibited?

"My Lord, I beg to move."

The motion was put and agreed to.

The Hon'ble Sir George Barnes:—"My Lord, I beg to introduce the Bill, and to move that the Bill, together with the Statement of Objects and Reasons relating thereto, be published in the Gazette of India in English."

The motion was put and agreed to.

The Council adjourned to Thursday, the 5th September, 1918.

(5 & 6 Geo. V, Ch. 61.)

The Council met at the Council Chamber, Viceregal Lodge, Simla, on Thursday, the 5th September, 1918.

PRESENT :

His Excellency BARON CHELMSFORD, P.C., G.M.S.I., G.M.I.E., G.C.M.G., G.C.B.E., Viceroy and Governor General, presiding and 57 Members, of whom 49 were Additional Members.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

11-4 A.M.

The Hon'ble Mr. V. J. Patel asked :—

1. "Will Government be pleased to state what stage the question regarding the creation of a City Civil Court for the cities of Calcutta and Bombay respectively has reached? Will the opinions of the Local Governments and the High Courts concerned be laid on the table?"

Creation of City Civil Courts for the cities of Calcutta and Bombay.

The Hon'ble Sir William Vincent replied :—

"In 1915, the Government of Bengal asked this Government to obtain the opinion of the Calcutta High Court on this question. The opinion was obtained and was sent to the Government of Bengal in April 1917. The Government of India have not been further addressed in the matter. They are not prepared at present to lay the papers on the table.

No proposals have been received from the Government of Bombay."

The Hon'ble Mr. V. J. Patel asked :—

2. "(a) Is it true that the Government of India intimated to the Government of Bombay in 1915 that section 3 (j) of the Town Planning Act was ultra vires of the powers of the Bombay Legislative Council, and that early opportunity should be taken to amend it?

The Bombay Town Planning Act.

(b) Is it true that the section has not been amended so far?"

The Hon'ble Sir George Lowndes replied :—

"(a) The Government of India in February 1915 drew the attention of the Government of Bombay to the fact that the language of section 3 (j) of the Bombay Town Planning Act, 1915, appeared to be too wide, and suggested the advisability, when opportunity occurred, of remedying the defect.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

[Sir George Lowndes ; Mr. V. J. Patel ; Sir C. Sankaran Nair ; Sir Claude Hill.] [5TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.]

(b) The Government of Bombay have recently submitted for the approval of the Government of India a draft Repealing and Amending Bill by which it is proposed to amend the Act in the direction contemplated."

The Hon'ble Mr. V. J. Patel asked :—

Appointment and nomination of Municipal Commissioners.

3. "(a) Is it a fact that under the law governing the system of Municipal Commissioners which obtains in large cities in the Bombay Presidency and which is commended by the Government of India in their recent Resolution on Local Self-Government, a Municipality is neither empowered to appoint nor to nominate a Municipal Commissioner ?

(b) Do Government recommend such a system for adoption in other Provinces in spite of this fact ?"

The Hon'ble Sir C. Sankaran Nair replied :—

"(a) and (b). The law in Bombay is as described by the Hon'ble Member. The Government of India, in their Resolution of 1915, commended the system of a nominated Commissioner which prevails in Bombay, and in their Resolution of May 1918, they said it is worthy of consideration. They also indicated that his nomination might be by the Board, though his appointment should be approved by Government."

The Hon'ble Mr. V. J. Patel asked :—

Strike among Talathis in Bombay.

4. "(a) Will Government be pleased to state—

(i) How many talathis of the Bombay Presidency have struck work and since when ?

(ii) How many of them are dismissed and how many suspended ?

(iii) How many of them who went on strike have now resumed work ?

(iv) How many new hands have been entertained since the strike ?

(b) Is it true that the demand of these talathis is that the scale of their salaries should be revised from Rs. 12 to 20 to Rs. 20 to 45 per mensem, and that they submitted several representations on the subject to the Bombay Government since April last ?

(c) Will Government be pleased to state whether they propose to interfere and bring about some reasonable arrangement ?"

The Hon'ble Sir Claude Hill replied :—

"(a) & (b) The detailed information asked for should be obtained by a question in the local Council.

(c) The Bombay Government's proposals for a substantial increase in the emoluments of the talathis have recently been sanctioned by His Majesty's Secretary of State."

The Hon'ble Mr. V. J. Patel asked :—

Total number of voters for Municipalities and Local Boards in each Province of India.

5. "What is the total number of voters—

(a) for Municipalities, and

(b) for Local Boards,

in each Province of British India ?"

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

[5TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.] [Sir C. Sankaran Nair; Mr. V. J. Patel; Sir William Vincent; Sir George Barnes.]

The Hon'ble Sir C. Sankaran Nair replied :—

" The information, so far as available, is laid on the table.*"

The Hon'ble Mr. V. J. Patel asked :—

The Governor of Bombay's speech on the Home Rule League

6. " (a) Has the attention of Government been drawn to the speech made by His Excellency the Governor of Bombay as President of the Bombay War Conference ?

(b) Has any correspondence passed between the Bombay Government and the Government of India on the subject since the said speech was made, and, if so, will it be laid on the Council table ? "

The Hon'ble Sir William Vincent replied :—

" (a) and (b) The Government of India have received a full report of the proceedings of the Bombay War Conference, including the speech of His Excellency the Governor; no other correspondence on the subject passed between the Government of India and the Local Government. "

The Hon'ble Mr. V. J. Patel asked :—

Orders prohibiting Messrs. Tilak and Pal from entering Delhi.

7. " Do Government propose to consider the desirability of cancelling at an early date the orders under the Defence of India Act prohibiting Messrs. Tilak and Pal from entering the limits of Delhi ? "

The Hon'ble Sir William Vincent replied :—

" The orders in question were not passed by the Government of India, and they have no intention of interfering in this matter."

The Hon'ble Mr. V. J. Patel asked :—

The Public Services Commission.

8. " Will Government be pleased to lay on the table all the communications addressed by them from time to time to the Local Governments on the recommendations of the Public Services Commission, as also the replies so far received ? "

The Hon'ble Sir William Vincent replied :—

" Government consider that it would be premature to publish correspondence on the subject at the present stage. "

The Hon'ble Mr. V. J. Patel asked :—

Liquor shops in Bombay.

9. " (a) Has the attention of Government been drawn to the resolution passed by the Bombay Legislative Council at its meeting in March last 'that the power to determine the number and location of liquor shops be given to select municipalities' ?

(b) Have the Government of Bombay given effect to the recommendation of the said Resolution ? If not, why not ? "

The Hon'ble Sir George Barnes replied :—

"(a) The answer to the first part of the Hon'ble Member's question is yes.

(b) With regard to the second part, Government are not aware what action has been taken by the Government of Bombay with regard to the Resolution. The matter is one for the Local Government to decide."

* Not included in these Proceedings.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

[Mr. V. J. Patel ; Sir George Barnes ; Sir William Vincent ; Sir Robert Gillan.] [5TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.]

The Hon'ble Mr. V. J. Patel asked :—

" May I put a supplementary question, my Lord ? Will the Government be pleased to make an inquiry and let this Council know whether the Bombay Government has taken any action ? "

The Hon'ble Sir George Barnes replied :—

" There is no objection to making the inquiry suggested."

The Hon'ble Mr. V. J. Patel asked :—

Terms of Members of existing Legislative Councils.

10. " Do Government intend to extend the terms of the present Members of the Legislative Councils in British India, or to allow those terms to expire in the usual course ? "

The Hon'ble Sir William Vincent replied :—

" The present intention of Government is to allow the terms to expire in the usual course."

The Hon'ble Mr. V. J. Patel asked :—

List of Magazines and Journals proscribed by Government.

11. "(a) Will Government be pleased to place on the table a list of magazines and journals proscribed from registered libraries with dates from which such prohibition came into force ?

(b) How many of these journals have since become extinct ? Are Government aware that their stoppage is due more or less to the step taken by Government ? "

The Hon'ble Sir William Vincent replied :—

" Government has no information as to registered libraries. It will be collected, and when complete will be laid on the table. "

The Hon'ble Mr. V. J. Patel asked :—

Separation of Executive and Judicial functions.

12. " Do Government propose to prepare a general scheme for the separation of the Executive and Judicial in British India, or to suggest to the Local Governments to make their own schemes for the purpose, and submit them for the consideration of the Government of India ? "

The Hon'ble Sir William Vincent replied :—

" The Government do not intend to make any examination of this question during the pendency of the war."

The Hon'ble Mr. V. J. Patel asked :—

Vasad-Borsad-Kathana Railway.

13. " (a) Is it a fact that there has been delay in the prosecution of the scheme of the Vasad-Borsad-Kathana Railway ?

(b) If so, will Government be pleased to state fully the reasons for the delay ?

(c) When should the public expect further action by Government in the matter ? "

The Hon'ble Sir Robert Gillan replied :—

" (a) It is a fact that there has been considerable delay in the development of the scheme for a railway between Vasad and Kathana via Borsad.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

[5TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.] [Sir Robert Gillan; Mr. V. J. Patel; Sir William Vincent; Sir C. Sankaran Nair.]

(b) The delay in the preparation of the scheme has been entirely due to a difference of opinion between the Government of Bombay and the Baroda Durbar as to the alignment best suited to serve the area affected. A rival scheme was proposed by the Durbar who have also raised the question of the necessity for protecting the interests of the Anand-Cambay Railway. When the scheme has been finally settled, there will still remain the difficulty of obtaining rails and materials for the construction of the line, a difficulty which must continue to exist until the end of the war.

(c) The question of the extent to which the traffic of the Anand-Cambay Railway will be affected is at present under discussion between the Railway Board and the Bombay, Baroda and Central India Railway Company, while a revised proposal, made by the Baroda Durbar for a modification of the Vasad-Borsad-Kathana Scheme has recently been referred to the Agent of that Company for opinion. It is impossible at present to say when a final decision will be arrived at, but the matter will be further considered on receipt of the Agent's opinion."

The Hon'ble Mr. V. J. Patel asked :—

Salaries of High Court Judges and reduction of salaries of Members of the Provincial and Imperial Legislative Councils.

14. " (a) Are there any proposals before Government for an increase in the salaries of High Court Judges ?

(b) Will Government be pleased to say whether there subsist any reasons for maintaining a difference between the salary of the Chief Justice of Bengal and that of other Chief Justices ?

(c) Do Government propose to consider the desirability of reducing the salary of a Member of the Provincial Executive Council to Rs. 4,000 and that of a member of the Executive Council of the Government of India to Rs. 5,000 per month ?"

The Hon'ble Sir William Vincent replied :—

" (a) and (c). The answer is in the negative.

(b) The Calcutta High Court occupies a unique position, in that it exercises jurisdiction over two provinces. The strength of the Court is greater than that of any other High Court, and it serves a larger population."

The Hon'ble Mr. V. J. Patel asked :—

Nomination of Officials on Municipal and Local Boards.

15. "(a) Is it a fact that Municipalities can always co-opt experts, whether officials or non-officials, on Committees ?

(b) Will Government be pleased to say why the special representation of officials by nomination for the purposes of advice or discussion only and without the right of voting is regarded necessary ?"

The Hon'ble Sir C. Sankaran Nair replied :—

"(a) The provision to which the Hon'ble Member alludes is contained in the Bombay District Municipal Act of 1901 and in certain other Acts.

(b) The Hon'ble Member presumably alludes to paragraph 5 of the Government of India, Department of Education, Resolution No. 41, dated 16th May 1918. That paragraph contemplates the constitution of Boards with at least a three-fourths elected majority, and does not specify as essential official representation upon the Board. The provision regarding the nomination of persons possessed of official experience will secure that the Board itself and not merely its committees should benefit by their advice."

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

[Mr. V. J. Patel; Sir William Vincent; Mr. G. S. Khaparde.] [5TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.]

The Hon'ble Mr. V. J. Patel asked :—

Indian Constitutional Reforms, paragraph 238.

16. "(a) Has the attention of Government been drawn to the following observations of the authors of the Report on Indian Constitutional Reforms in paragraph 238 of the report :

'On the publication of this report we should like to see the lists discussed in the Provincial Councils and considered by the Provincial Governments so that the Committee may have ready at hand considered criticisms upon the applicability of our suggestions to the circumstances of each particular province.'

(b) Have any instructions been issued to Local Governments requiring them to discuss the question on or before any given date and prescribing the procedure for such discussion?

(c) Is the discussion to be held on a formal resolution on the subject on behalf of Government or that of any Additional Member?

(d) In the debate on such Resolution are the official members to be allowed to take part and vote?"

The Hon'ble Sir William Vincent replied :—

"Government has considered the passage in the Report referred to by the Hon'ble Member. The attention of Local Governments has been drawn to this matter and to the desirability of placing the members of the Committee to be appointed in possession of the views of the various Provincial Legislative Councils at as early a stage of their inquiry as possible. The exact procedure to be adopted will be a matter for the Local Governments to decide."

The Hon'ble Mr. V. J. Patel asked :—

Trial by Jury.

17. "Will Government be pleased to state the names of the Districts in British India where the system of trial by Jury obtains, with the following information in respect of each District :—

(a) the year in which and the offences for which the system came to be introduced;

(b) any subsequent modification or modifications in the first notification;

(c) the number of cases tried by Jury since the introduction of the system;

(d) the number of cases in which the Judge agreed with the verdict of the jury;

(e) the number of cases in which reference was made by the Judge to the High Court, and (f) the number in which the High Court agreed with or differed from the Judge?"

The Hon'ble Sir William Vincent replied :—

"A statement giving the information asked for in parts (a) and (b) of the question will be laid on the table in due course. The statistics maintained do not furnish the material for supplying the rest of the information asked for."

The Hon'ble Mr. G. S. Khaparde asked :—

Recovery of sums due to co-operative societies as arrears of land-revenue.

18. "(a) Will Government be pleased to state if they have received proposals from the Central Provinces Government so to amend the Central Provinces Land Revenue Act and the Berar Land Revenue Code as to empower the Revenue

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

[5TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.] [Mr. G. S. Khaparde; Sir Claude Hill; Sir William Vincent.] officers to recover sums due to the co-operative societies there as arrears of land-revenue?

(b) If the answer be in the affirmative, will Government be pleased to place on the table all papers relating to the proposals?

(c) Are the proposals mentioned in (a) above supported by the Local Government and a large body of workers, both official and non-official, connected with the co-operative movement?

(d) What action do Government propose to take with regard to the said proposals?

(e) Is it a fact that the Hon'ble Rao Bahadur Kelkar, a non-official member of the Central Provinces Legislative Council, wished to introduce a Bill carrying out the proposals mentioned in (a) above, and that the permission for him to do so was withheld? If so, will Government be pleased to state the reasons for doing so?

(f) If the Government of India do not propose to take any action, do they propose to advise the Central Provinces Government to permit the said Hon'ble Rao Bahadur Kelkar or any other non-official member to bring in a Bill in the Central Provinces Legislative Council to give effect to the said proposals?"

The Hon'ble Sir Claude Hill replied :—

"(a) The Government of India have been informed demi-officially that the Central Provinces Administration has under consideration proposals which have been formulated by the Registrar, Co-operative Societies, on the lines indicated by the Hon'ble Member, but these proposals have not yet been formally submitted to the Government of India. In the circumstances, parts (b), (c), (d) and (f) of the Hon'ble Member's question are premature, and cannot be answered at present.

(e) The Government of India have no information. This part of the question should be put in the local Council."

The Hon'ble Mr. G. S. Khaparde asked :—

Mr. Barkat Ali, Editor of the Observer, Lahore.

19. "(a) Has the attention of the Government of India been drawn to a notification of the Punjab Government, dated 21st June 1918, directing Mr. Barkat Ali, Editor of the Observer, Lahore, to perform his professional duties, as an Editor in a particular manner, under rule 3 of the Defence of India Rules, 1915?

(b) Will the Government of India be pleased to lay on the table the correspondence, if any, between itself and the Punjab Government, relating to the issue of the said notification?"

The Hon'ble Sir William Vincent replied :—

"(a) The answer is in the affirmative.

(b) No correspondence has passed between the Government of India and the Punjab Government relating to the issue of the notification to which the Hon'ble Member refers."

The Hon'ble Mr. G. S. Khaparde asked :—

Black-listing of newspapers.

20. "(a) Have the Punjab Government initiated the practice of blacklisting newspapers for the purpose of Government subscription, advertisement, etc.?

(b) Has this practice been adopted by any, and, if so, by which other Local Government?

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

[Mr. G. S. Khaparde; Sir William Vincent.] [5TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.]

(c) Does the practice of blacklisting newspapers obtain in any other part of the British Empire?"

The Hon'ble Sir William Vincent replied:—

"(a) and (b) The Governments of Bombay, the United Provinces, and the Punjab, and the Chief Commissioners of the North-West Frontier Provinces and Delhi issue from time to time a list of newspapers to which Government notices and advertisements should not be sent.

(c) The Government of India have no information on the point."

The Hon'ble Mr. G. S. Khaparde asked:—

The Sedition Committee, 1918.

21. "(a) Will Government be pleased to place on the table a list of the witnesses examined by the Sedition Committee, 1918, and the minutes of evidence recorded by the Committee?

(b) Were Mr. B. G. Tilak and Mr. B. C. Pal examined by the Committee? If not, why not?

(c) If the Appendices to the Report of the Committee are not to be published, will Government be pleased to render them available to the Members of this Council?"

The Hon'ble Sir William Vincent replied:—

"(a) Government are not in possession of any list of witnesses examined by the Committee, or of any minutes of evidence that may have been recorded by them; and in view of the policy of intimidation and terrorism pursued by the revolutionaries, to which the Committee draw attention in their report, it is manifestly undesirable to divulge the names of the witnesses or the evidence which they gave.

(b) It does not appear from the report that Messrs. Tilak and Pal were examined, but Government have no definite information on the subject. The taking of evidence was left to the discretion of the Committee under the terms of reference made to it. I will quote the words of the Government of India Resolution of December 10th, 1917:—'The Committee...will be given full access to all documentary evidence in the possession of Government bearing on the existence and extent of revolutionary conspiracies in India and will supplement this with such other evidence as it may consider necessary.'

(c) Government have carefully considered the Hon'ble Member's request, but regret that they are unable to accede to it."

The Hon'ble Mr. G. S. Khaparde asked:—

Passports granted to Home Rule deputations.

22. "Will Government be pleased to lay on the table the correspondence, if any, leading up and relating to the cancellation in April, May and June 1918 of the passports granted to Home Rule deputations going to England?"

The Hon'ble Sir William Vincent replied:—

"Such of the correspondence as was material was made public in the Communiqué which was issued in the matter by the Government of India on the 16th April last, to which the Hon'ble Member is referred."

The Hon'ble Mr. G. S. Khaparde asked:—

Names of papers subjected to pre-censorship.

23. "Will Government be pleased to lay on the table a statement giving the names of the papers, if any, subjected to pre-censorship under rule 3 of Defence of India (Consolidation) Rules, 1915, and the reasons for the action taken?"

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

[5TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.] [Sir William Vincent; Rai Bahadur B. D. Shukul; Sir Claude Hill.]

The Hon'ble Sir William Vincent replied :—

" So far as the Government of India are aware, only three newspapers have been subjected to pre-censorship under the Defence of India Rules, namely, the Hamdard, Zamindar and Observer. In respect of the two first named, the Hon'ble Member is referred to the answer given by the Hon'ble Sir Reginald Craddock in reply to a question asked in this Council by the Hon'ble Mr. Qumrul Huda on the 9th March 1916. The Government of India are not aware of the reasons for the action taken in respect of the Observer."

The Hon'ble Rai Bahadur B. D. Shukul asked :—

Pasture grounds for cattle.

24. "(a) Are Government aware that owing to want of pastures cattle have deteriorated, and milk and ghee in sufficient quantities are not available, and that cultivators are put to considerable inconvenience and loss for want of pure milk, ghee and good bullocks?

(b) If so, will Government make adequate provision for sufficient pasture in every village, and exempt cattle-breeders from the payment of any forest dues in the Government forests ?"

The Hon'ble Sir Claude Hill replied :—

" This subject has been raised more than once in this Council, and if the Hon'ble Member will refer to the answers given on 12th January 1915 by Sir Robert Carlyle to Maharaja Ranajit Sinha and by myself on 20th March 1916 to Rai Ghanasyam Barua Bahadur, he will see how difficult it is to say whether there has been any general deterioration in the quality of Indian cattle or not. He will also see that the question of the provision of additional pasturage is one which must necessarily be left to Local Governments. I may add that, under the Indian Forest Act, the framing of grazing rules for cattle rests with Local Governments."

The Hon'ble Rai Bahadur B. D. Shukul asked :—

Deterioration of the soil in India.

25. "(a) Is it a fact that owing to deterioration of the soil in India due to exhaustion there has been a steady decline in the average outturns of crops ?

(b) Is it a fact that in America, the Department of Agriculture has established a bureau of soils which undertakes to examine and analyse samples of soil to determine the sort of crops for which they are best suited and the methods by which they can be turned to the best advantage, and that every American cultivator can by sending samples of his soil to the Agricultural Department have them examined free of charge and obtain the necessary information as to the proper season and the best method to grow the most suitable crop ? If so, will Government be pleased to consider the desirability of establishing a bureau of soils for similar purposes in India ?"

The Hon'ble Sir Claude Hill replied :—

" (a) No. So far from there being a steady decline in the average outturns of crops, in some provinces, e.g., Madras, the Central Provinces and the Punjab, the average outturn per acre of certain crops has actually increased. Where the average outturn does show a tendency to decline, this is in many cases due, not to soil deterioration or exhaustion, but to the fact that pressure of population has caused an extension of cultivation to inferior lands producing poorer crops.

(b) Yes. Similar work to that done by the American bureau of soils is carried out in India at present by the Agricultural Chemists. Soil surveys have been undertaken in various provinces and sanction has been received to the appointment of a Soil Physicist for Bombay. The question of the appointment of Agricultural Bacteriologists for the investigation of soil problems is under consideration in connection with proposals for the expansion of the Agricultural Departments."

The Hon'ble Maharaja Sir Manindra Chandra Nandi asked:—

Opium Revenue and Trade.

26. "(a) Is it a fact that the opium traffic and the cultivation of poppy in China is being resumed on an extensive scale, particularly in the province of Shensi, in spite of the understanding involved in the Treaty on the subject with the Government of India to the contrary?

(b) Has the drug now being produced and sold in China been pronounced by some experts to be far inferior in quality and more injurious to health than the one which India used to export to that country before the understanding in question?

(c) Will Government be pleased to state the amount of revenue annually sacrificed in consequence of the Treaty with China on the subject?

(d) Did Sir Guy Fleetwood Wilson in introducing the Budget for 1911-12 state that China found it practically impossible to 'enforce a morality which is far too advanced for popular acceptance'?

(e) Do Government intend to reconsider the terms of the said Treaty and consider the question of restoring the Indian traffic in opium with China?"

The Hon'ble Sir William Meyer replied:—

"(a) The Government have seen statements in certain newspapers to the effect that there has been a recrudescence of the opium traffic and of poppy cultivation in China, the Province of Shensi being particularly mentioned, but they have received no official information as to the extent to which this has actually taken place.

(b) The Government have not seen any opinions by experts to the effect that opium produced and sold in China is far inferior in quality and more injurious to health than the opium previously exported thither from India, and they are not in a position to express a definite opinion on the question.

(c) The Shanghai International Opium Commission in 1909 took £2¾ million sterling as approximately representing the revenue derived by India from the export of opium to China; but even when the trade was in full swing the figure varied widely from year to year according to the price obtained for Bengal opium and the quantity available for sale and in the years immediately preceding the stoppage of the trade the knowledge that this was impending gave a special stimulus to prices. No estimate of any value of the sum which could now be secured, if the trade were still open, is consequently feasible.

(d) In his speech introducing the Financial Statement for 1913-14, Sir Guy Fleetwood Wilson said 'But we cannot conceal from ourselves that China has set herself a task which experience proves to be one of the greatest difficulty—the enforcement of a morality possibly too advanced for popular acceptance.' It is probably this remark to which the Hon'ble Member refers.

(e) The agreement in 1911 was made between His Majesty's Government and the Chinese Government. It is not the intention of the Government of India to move His Majesty's Government to re-open with the Chinese Government the question of the terms of the agreement, and they do not consider that they would have the support of public opinion either in India or in England in any attempt to influence the Chinese Government against their wishes to permit a resumption of the Indian opium traffic. It may however console the Hon'ble Member to know that owing to the demand for Indian opium for medical purposes—a recent and profitable development, which is free from the objections that used to surround the China trade—we are at present fully able to find a market for all opium produced in India, and that our opium revenue has grown from £1,600,000 in 1913-14 to about £3,200,000, which is what we expect to get in the current year."

The Hon'ble Maharaja Sir Manindra Chandra Nandi asked:—

27. "(a) Will Government be pleased to state the reasons for the failure of the local consulting Committee of the East Indian Railway established in 1890? The East Indian Railway.

(b) Is it in contemplation to revive this Committee with an altered constitution so as to include representative Europeans and Indians?

(c) If the answer to (b) be in the affirmative, is it in contemplation to include new subjects within the scope of work of this Committee and to allow the general public to have an effective voice in the management and control of the East Indian Railway?"

The Hon'ble Sir Robert Gillan replied:—

"(a) So far as the Railway Board are aware the Local Consulting Committee of the East Indian Railway has proved a success. It has fulfilled the object for which it was constituted, and the Agent of the East Indian Railway is satisfied as to its utility. This fact has led the Railway Board to constitute a similar Consulting Committee for the Eastern Bengal Railway.

(b) and (c) There is no intention at present of reconsidering the constitution of the Committee, and any alterations in present arrangements either in respect to personnel or scope of work performed by the Committee are obviously dependent on the decision in regard to future management of the East Indian Railway which is now under the consideration of the Secretary of State. It may however be mentioned that the Committee already includes both European and Indian representatives."

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur Mian Muhammad Shafi asked:—

28. "(a) Are Government aware that Mr. H. S. Suhrawardy, a British Indian subject, who was a student at Oxford and went to Petrograd to study the Russian language preparatory to occupying the Chair of European Literature in the Aligarh Muslim University, is stranded in Moscow, and that all efforts on the part of his parents and friends in India and of the Muslim University authorities, since April last, to render him assistance have been frustrated owing to the closing of banks in Russia and the interruption of telegraphic communication, etc.? Return of Mr. H. S. Suhrawardy to India from Russia.

(b) Will Government be pleased to state what steps, if any, have been taken to facilitate Mr. Suhrawardy's return to India or to ensure his safety in Russia, and what information, if any, they have regarding Mr. Suhrawardy's conditions and whereabouts?

(c) Will Government be pleased to move the Home authorities to take suitable steps to ensure Mr. Suhrawardy's safety and return to India?"

The Hon'ble Sir Hamilton Grant replied:—

"The Government of India are aware of the circumstances in which Mr. Hasan Shahid Suhrawardy has remained in Russia. In December 1917, the

[Sir Hamilton Grant; Sir Fazulbhoy Currimbhoy; Sir William Meyer.] [5TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.]

Government of India received from the Government of the United Provinces a communication from the Honorary Secretary, Moslem University Association, Aligarh, in which an explanation was given of the circumstances in which Mr. H. S. Suhrawardy was stranded in Moscow, and a request was made that steps might be taken to ensure his return to India via England or some neutral country. On receipt of this communication the Government of India addressed the India Office and requested that inquiries might be made about Mr. Suhrawardy and his return to India facilitated, if possible. A reply was received from the India Office towards the end of last April to the effect that His Majesty's Ambassador at Petrograd had been instructed by His Majesty's Government to facilitate Mr. Suhrawardy's return, that Mr. Suhrawardy was in good health, and that there was no cause for apprehension as to his safety. This information was communicated to the Moslem University Association of Aligarh through the United Provinces Government in May last. Subsequently the Aligarh Moslem University Association again approached the Government of India and requested that a sum of Rs. 2,500 should be transmitted to Mr. Suhrawardy, and that he should be informed at the same time that he was entitled to no further financial help and would have to refund the whole according to the agreement signed by him unless he returned to India at once. This communication was received on the 6th of July last and on the 10th of July the Government of India telegraphed to the Secretary of State asking that the money and message referred to above might be transmitted to Mr. Suhrawardy and that his return to India might be facilitated. So far the Government of India have not heard the result of this telegram."

The Hon'ble Sir Fazulbhoy Currimbhoy asked :—

Gold coins struck at the Mint in Bombay.

29. "Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) the progress made in the gold refinery and mint set up at Bombay, and

(b) the number of gold coins struck at the Mint in Bombay since the war."

The Hon'ble Sir William Meyer replied :—

"(a) The gold mint is in working order and, as recently announced in the press, the coinage of sovereigns commenced on the 16th August. As regards the refinery, most of the apparatus required has arrived from England and the necessary building work will be completed by the end of this month. Allowing for some time for preliminary trials, the refinery is expected to begin operations early in November.

(b) The gold coins struck at Bombay since the war and up to the 24th August last amounted to 2,109,703 gold mohurs and 90,000 sovereigns; £10,001 Egyptian were also struck for the Egyptian Government."

The Hon'ble Sir Fazulbhoy Currimbhoy asked :—

Cost of the English Consular Services.

30. "Will Government be pleased to state what portion, if any, of the cost of the English Consular Services is borne by this country ? "

The Hon'ble Sir Hamilton Grant replied :—

"In accordance with the recommendation of the Welby Commission, Indian revenues bear half the cost of the English Consular Services in Persia.

A contribution is made towards the cost of the Consulate at Tengyueh in China. India also contributes £1,000 a year towards the cost of the Consulate at Chiengmai in Siam and bears half the cost of the repairs to the Consulate."

[5TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.] [Sir Fazulbhoy Currimbhoy; Sir Robert Gillan; Sir George Barnes; Sir William Meyer; Mr. Kamini Kumar Chanda.]

The Hon'ble Sir Fazulbhoy Currimbhoy asked :—

East Indian Railway Company.

31. "Will Government be pleased to lay on the table the papers relating to the forthcoming termination of the contract with the East Indian Railway Company?"

The Hon'ble Sir Robert Gillan replied :—

"The Secretary of State has recently made a further inquiry in this matter. The *correspondence which has arisen out of this inquiry is laid on the table."

The Hon'ble Sir Fazulbhoy Currimbhoy asked :—

Purchase of Tea, Jute and Wheat by Government.

32. "Will the Government be pleased to state the arrangements made by them on behalf of the Government of the United Kingdom for the purchase of :—

(1) Tea.

(2) Jute.

(3) Wheat?"

The Hon'ble Sir George Barnes replied :—

"Details regarding the arrangements made for the purchase of tea and raw jute for His Majesty's Government were notified to the public in† Press Communiqués issued by the Government of India in the Department of Commerce and Industry on the 14th September, 1917, and the 4th December, 1917, which I lay on the table for the Hon'ble Member's convenience.

In the case of wheat, purchases are made by the Wheat Commissioner in India on behalf of the Royal Commission appointed in the United Kingdom."

The Hon'ble Sir Fazulbhoy Currimbhoy asked :—

Government balances with banks.

33. "Will Government be pleased to state the extent of their balances with banks other than the Presidency Banks?"

The Hon'ble Sir William Meyer replied :—

"Government hold no part of their balances with Banks other than the Presidency Banks."

The Hon'ble Sir Fazulbhoy Currimbhoy asked :—

Post-war trade arrangements.

34. "Will Government be pleased to lay on the table any proposals made by the Government of India to the Imperial Government in regard to post-war trade arrangements?"

The Hon'ble Sir George Barnes replied :—

"Questions in connection with trade policy after the war were, I believe, discussed at the recent Imperial War Conference in London, but I regret I am unable to lay on the table any papers on the subject."

The Hon'ble Mr. Kamini Kumar Chanda asked :—

Political prisoners in the Andamans.

35. "(a) Has the attention of Government been drawn to an article headed 'Political prisoners in the Andamans' in the Bengalee of the 16th June, 1918?

described therein as 'political prisoners,' and that Sir Reginald Craddock visited the Island and made an inquiry about five years ago?

(c) Have such prisoners been visited by any high official since then? If so, when and by whom?

(d) Is there any record of any complaints made by any of the prisoners since the inquiry by Sir Reginald Craddock, and was any inquiry made in regard thereto by any high official? If so, will Government be pleased to place on the table the papers, if any?

(e) What facilities are afforded to the prisoners to bring their grievances and complaints, if any, before the higher authorities?

(f) Will Government be pleased to consider the expediency of arranging periodical inspections by non-official visitors?

(g) Will Government be pleased to consider the necessity of making an inquiry into, among other complaints, the allegations made in the Bengalee of the 16th June, 1918, about the treatment of one Asutosh Lahiri, who is described as a graduate. Is it true, as alleged, that he was given the hardest task in the shape of husking and coir-pounding for eight months though he was promised light work after six months, and that on his complaining to the Superintendent and asking for light work he was flogged?"

(h) Is it true as alleged in the Bengalee that certain prisoners were ordered to pluck grass and clear the yard on a Sunday, and on their refusal to work on Sunday, seven men were punished, two with three months' separate confinement and five with bar-fetters and separate confinement and invalid diet?"

The Hon'ble Sir William Vincent replied:—

"(a) Yes. The Government have seen the article referred to.

(b) The answer to the first part of the question is in the affirmative. Sir Reginald Craddock visited the Island in the latter part of 1913.

(c) No Member of Council has visited the Island since then.

(d) The Government of India have on record all complaints formally submitted to them by prisoners of this class in the Andamans since Sir Reginald Craddock visited the Island. There have been only two such and the Government of India in the Home Department dealt with them. Government do not propose to lay the papers on the table.

(e) Petitions addressed to the Government of India are submitted to them in accordance with the petition rules. The general rules leave ample scope for the prisoners to bring their grievances to the notice of the Government of India.

(f) The Government of India do not consider it necessary to arrange for the periodical inspection of prisoners in the Andamans by non-official visitors.

(g) and (h) The Superintendent, Port Blair's letter answering the charges brought against the administration in the issues of the Bengalee, dated the 16th and 20th June, 1918 was published in the Bengalee newspaper of the 27th July, 1918, and the Government of India have nothing further to add to the details given, nor do they consider any inquiry to be necessary."

The Hon'ble Mr. Surendra Nath Banerjea asked:—

Political prisoners in the Andaman Islands.

36. "(a) Has the attention of Government been drawn to two articles which appeared in the Bengalee newspaper of June 16th and June 20th last, dealing with the condition of certain political prisoners in the Andaman Islands?

(b) Is it the case that one Bhai Bhan Singh, an old Sikh prisoner, was abused by the Superintendent for shortness of his daily work, and when no redress was forthcoming on appeal some prisoners struck work?

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

[5TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.] [Mr. Surendra Nath Banerjea.]

(c) Is it the case that they were in consequence punished with bar-fetters, separate confinement and invalid diet for six months ?

(d) Is it true that one Ashutosh Lahiri did very hard work with the husking machine and then at coir-pounding for eight months, the Superintendent giving him to understand that he would be put to light labour after six months ?

(e) Is it true that after having worked for eight months he complained to the Superintendent, who refused to give him light work ?

(f) Is it true that he in consequence refused to do hard work and was awarded 15 stripes, bar-fetters and separate confinement for six months ?

(g) Is Ashutosh Lahiri a graduate of the Calcutta University ?

(h) Is it the case that some of the prisoners were ordered to pluck grass and clear the yard on a Sunday, and it being a Sunday they refused to do the work ?

(i) Is it true that as a consequence seven men were punished, two with three months' separate confinement and five with six months' bar-fetters, separate confinement and invalid diet ?

(j) Is invalid diet a very spare diet which cannot satisfy the hunger of an average man ?

(k) Is the following statement which appeared in the Bengalee of June 20th correct :—

'Bhai Bhan Singh was abused by a European warder, and he paid him 'back in the same coin. He was caged for insolent conduct and was 'punished with six months' bar-fetters, separate confinement and invalid diet. 'Frequently Mr. Barry used to see him in his cell. One day he abused him 'and was abused in return. He gave orders to the convict officers to teach him 'a lesson. At eight in the morning three or four men entered his cell and 'severely beat him. But Mr. Barry again came at ten accompanied by a 'dozen bodyguard of European warders, free Indian warders, jamadars and 'tindals, etc., removed Bhai Bhan Singh to the cage-cell and there he was 'beaten. Bhai Bhan Singh, it is alleged, grew desperate under the increasing 'pressure of the treatment that he received. He was punished again with bar-'fetters till further orders and was to remain in a cage-cell.'

(l) Is it the case that the treatment to which Bhai Bhan Singh was subjected told upon his health and he was removed to hospital ?

(m) Is it true that recently some of the political prisoners were punished with bar-fetters, separate confinement and invalid diets, simply for exchanging mutual greetings, and that they were punished even for reading books ?

(n) Is it the case that a few months ago one Bhai Nadhan Singh was caged and punished with six months' bar-fetters, separate confinement and invalid diet for continuing to read when Mr. Barry came to his block ?

(o) Is it the case that when a man is in separate confinement he is not allowed his bedding in his cell nor can he have his blanket-coat ?

(p) Is it true that the winter lasts for eight months in the Andamans ?

(q) Is it a fact that there have been many cases in which continued separate confinement and hard work have resulted in serious illness ?

(r) Is it true that one Bhai Bhola Singh is dead, two men Bhai Bhan Singh and another are suffering from phthisis, Bhai Nand Singh and Ram Saran have got scrofula and Pandit Jagat Ram has got neurasthenia ?

(s) Do Government propose to make a thorough inquiry into the allegations made in the public prints referred to above, by an officer independent of the administration of the Andamans, and lay the report on the table ?"

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS; THE ENEMY TRADING ORDERS (VALIDATION) BILL; THE HINDU MARRIAGES (VALIDITY) BILL.

[Sir William Vincent; Sir George Barnes; Mr. V. J. Patel.] [5TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.]

The Hon'ble Sir William Vincent replied :—

"The Hon'ble Member is referred to the letter, dated the 13th July, 1918, from the Superintendent, Port Blair, which was published in the Bengalee of the 27th July, and to the answer given to the questions on the same subject by the Hon'ble Mr. K. K. Chanda. As regards part (r) of the questions, he is referred specially to paragraph 11 of the Superintendent's letter, which deals with the health of the convicts, and where it is said that at the present time there is no case of serious illness amongst seditionists in the jail."

THE ENEMY TRADING ORDERS (VALIDATION) BILL.

11-27 A.M. The Hon'ble Sir George Barnes :—"My Lord, I beg to move for leave to intro duce a Bill to terminate doubts which have arisen as to the continuance in force of notifications, orders and rules made or issued under the Enemy Trading Ordinance, 1916.

"This Bill, my Lord, is a small and purely technical Bill. Under the Enemy Trading Ordinance, 1916, which Ordinance was made an Act by this Council, certain Orders and Notifications were made, and rules issued. Then the Enemy Trading Act, 1916, was passed, which repealed the Ordinance. It is doubtful whether the validating clauses in the General Clauses Act, 1897, apply in this case, and consequently it may be possible to argue that the notifications, rules and orders issued under the Ordinance have lost their validity as from the date of the repeal of the Ordinance itself. It is plainly unwise to let any doubts exist on the subject, and the simple object of this Bill is to set all doubts at rest."

The motion was put and agreed to.

The Hon'ble Sir George Barnes :—"My Lord, I beg to introduce the Bill, and to move that the Bill, together with the Statement of Objects and Reasons relating thereto, be published in the Gazette of India in English."

The motion was put and agreed to.

THE HINDU MARRIAGES (VALIDITY) BILL.

11-29 A.M. The Hon'ble Mr. V. J. Patel :—"Your Excellency, I beg to move for leave to introduce a Bill to provide that marriages between Hindus of different castes are valid. Under the existing Hindu Law as interpreted in Courts of Law, parties to a Hindu marriage must be of the same caste, otherwise the marriage is invalid unless it is sanctioned by custom. Therefore suits by either party for restitution of conjugal rights or by the wife for maintenance or inheritance or by the children for inheritance, succession or possession are not maintainable. This interpretation, my Lord, entails serious hardships in individual cases, as I have stated in the Objects and Reasons. I shall only quote two instances in support of my statement. Those two cases were decided by the Bombay High Court. A girl of 16 married a young man of another caste. They lived together for 25 years and had eight children by the marriage. Then it happened that the husband discarded the wife. A Hindu lady as she was, she avoided going to Court for nine years, but old age and starvation seemed at last to have compelled her to seek redress, and she filed a suit for maintenance. The Court held that, as the parties did not belong to the same caste, the marriage was invalid according to Hindu Law. She could not get any maintenance as her husband's dasi or kept mistress, because, as the Court held, she was not one, as that term is explained in law. She could not be maintained as a concubine because the law requires unbroken living together for it, and with the modesty of a Hindu lady she had refrained from going to Court for nine years. No principle of civil contract, representation, estoppel, factum valet, or acquiescence, could help her, and she was left without any remedy whatsoever. That is a case reported in 14, Bombay L. R., page 547, Kashi vs. Jamnadas.

HINDU MARRIAGES (VALIDITY) BILL.

[5TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.] [Mr. V. J. Patel.]

" Another case is reported in 2, Bombay L. R., page 128, Laxmi vs. Kalian Singh. In that case the facts were these. Kalian Singh, a Rajput, married Laxmi, a Brahmin. Laxmi was taken away from her husband's house and was not allowed to stay with him. The husband Kalian Singh therefore brought this suit for restitution of conjugal rights. It was held that, although there was a marriage in fact, there was no marriage in law, as the parties did not belong to the same caste. Kalian Singh was therefore not entitled to the restitution of conjugal rights.

" Similar cases have occurred in all the provinces, but I will not take up the time of this Council by stating the facts of those cases. Apart from these hardships in individual cases, marriage forms the substratum of the whole order of civil life, and upon the contracting of the best possible marriages depends the happiness of home, the strength and self-respect of people and the self-reliance and progress of the nation. All unnecessary obstacles to such marriages must have of course evil effects, and obstacles on the ground that the parties do not belong to the same caste, are detrimental in more ways than one. They seal up the compartments of caste. They maintain the process of continual inbreeding and generate defective, helpless and despondent progeny. The evils of child marriage and forlorn widowhood, of sales, purchases and exchanges and even hires of girls to be temporary wives, are due to them. They perpetuate castes, some so small as containing eight persons, and they are responsible for incestuous marriages, polygamy where there is a superfluity of girls, and homeless immoral life where there is a dearth of girls. These and other evils act and react upon one another, and all evils are strengthened to multiply further evils.

" The necessity for a change in the present law is felt in many quarters. The most orthodox even know how difficult it often becomes to find a suitable match for their daughters and sons within their caste, and how there are so many ill-matched unions resulting in violations of marital duties, miseries and social tragedies, how sisters and brothers compete to catch such a match for their children and quarrels arise between them and they become life-long enemies ; how widowers and men of advanced age either marry little girls or remain unmarried and deviate from the paths of healthy moral life, the influence of which on their children and surroundings they do not think of or care for. Lest a suitable match may be seduced by another, marriages are hurried sometimes regardless of all good feelings and fine human sentiments. Sales, purchases, and exchanges of brides and compulsory dowries are disliked even by many of the orthodox of the caste ; but they are helpless. They cannot create a local or special custom which a Court might recognise. Moreover, there are doubts regarding several castes as to which primary caste they belong to. There are castes which in one province are classed among one primary caste, while the Court in another province has classed them among another primary caste. Many castes having been formed out of mixed marriages, there will always be a dispute and difficulty on this question, and the question will always remain open in cases where one of the parties was an illegitimate child.

" Education, travel, contact in cities with people of other castes and such causes have widened the outlook of the younger generations whose ideas of marriage, home and life generally are broader, and they resent the evils I have above mentioned ; but they are helpless.

HINDU MARRIAGES (VALIDITY) BILL.

[Mr. V. J. Patel ; Maharaja Sir Manindra Chandra Nandi ; Rai Bahadur B. D. Shukul.] [5TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.]

"It may be that large castes are not so much affected by the present law as the small castes; but the number of large castes is small. In provinces like Gujarat from which I come, they are all small castes, and they are much affected by such a law. I say however that even if one province or one caste is affected, the law should not remain as it is.

"I do not mean to assert that as soon as the requisite law is enacted, there will be nothing left to come in the way of suitable marriages. But these other obstacles can be remedied by the people themselves, and the popular opinion as regards these other obstacles is making rapid progress in the right direction. But the law can only be changed by the Legislature.

"The law as it stands is positive. So far as it goes, it goes to the root of the recognised principle of autonomy of castes. Even if a caste resolves,—and I know of at least one caste which has resolved—giving liberty to its members to have marriage relations with other castes, such marriages run the risk of being declared illegal, and the children of such marriages run the risk of being declared bastards incapable of inheritance.

"The law, as it will be after the Bill is passed, if it is passed at all, will be permissive. It will restore the autonomy of caste in this respect. The Bill only seeks to remedy a wrong. It will obviate the necessity of Hindus declaring as required by the Civil Marriage Act that they are not Hindus. The Hindu marriage is a sacrament and it is a rending of the conscience for a Hindu after performing all the ceremonies of the sacrament to go to the Registrar and make a solemn declaration that he is not a Hindu. It will not interfere with any old right or impose any fresh obligation. It is in the interest of justice and morality and of public policy that the law ought to discourage the living together of man and woman as husband and wife without legally sanctioned marriages, and ought to give all facilities and inducements possible to enter into the sacred relations of marriage with all its moral and legal obligations. With these few words, I beg leave to introduce the Bill."

11-39 A.M. The Hon'ble Maharaja Sir Manindra Chandra Nandi :— "Your Excellency, I confess I find myself in an uncomfortable position in being obliged to oppose the introduction of Mr. Patel's Hindu Marriage Validity Bill. It is no pleasant work for anybody to oppose a Bill which certain sections of the people at least think desirable and necessary for the well-being of the body-politic and the progress of the community, but I realise I have no alternative left to me but to enter my humble protest against the principle which underlies the Bill in question. The Bill, I am afraid, if enacted into law, will make for disintegration and is likely to act prejudicially to the best interests of the Hindu society. It may be quite possible that the existing law, with everything it involves, causes serious hardship in individual cases, but I am of opinion that the interests of the community should always be safeguarded and cared for more than the convenience of particular individuals. In this case, I have no doubt, the interests of the community are being sought to be sacrificed to the interest of the individual—a situation which is repugnant to all modern notions of social legislation. I have another very strong reason to oppose the motion of Mr. Patel. I do not think it is quite the right time to bring such a controversial topic for public discussion, as it is bound to raise bitterness and create bad blood, particularly among the more conservative elements of the community. Under the circumstance, my Lord, I hope to be excused for entering my protest against the introduction of this Bill."

11-40 A.M. The Hon'ble Rai Bahadur B. D. Shukul :— "My Lord, I rise to oppose this motion, and I do so because as an orthodox Hindu I strongly feel that the Bill seeks to introduce a radical change in the Hindu law, which will breed disintegration in the Hindu society. I am opposed to the very principle underlying this Bill. It rides rough-shod on the time-honoured matrimonial laws and customs. It countenances a union which will contaminate the whole society. Nothing could be more shocking to the sentiments and feelings of an orthodox Hindu. By encouraging intermarriages between the different castes, it will destroy the sacramental character of Hindu marriages.

HINDU MARRIAGES (VALIDITY) BILL.

[5TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.] [Rai Bahadur B. D. Shukul.]

"The marriage amongst the Hindus is far more based on religious observations, rites and ceremonies than among the members of any other communities. No Hindu marriage is valid without performing the ritual prescribed by the Shastras. According to Hindu law, marriage is not a mere civil contract. It is one of the 'संस्कार' sacraments necessary for complete regeneration. Yagnvalka says:—

'एवमेन=शर्मयातिबी जगन्मसि भुद्भवम.' (Yog. I, 13).

'Thus by the performance of these ceremonies is the taint of seed and womb removed.' The very word 'भार्य्या' meaning 'wife' attaches religious significance to it. Pandit Raghunandan in his work उद्वाहतत्वं (Udvahtatva) which is an authoritative treatise on the subject defines the word भार्य्या and observes ग्रतएव भार्य्या शबदोयु पा हवनीयादि वदलौ किकाङ्ग सङ्के ना लौकिक संस्कारभुक्त स्त्री बचन: i.e., the word wife is like the terms Yupa (sacrificial post) and Ahvaniya (sacrificial fire). It means not any woman taken as a wife, but a wife taken in marriage with the proper occult rites and ceremonies The Hon'ble Mr. Stephens also observed while introducing the Special Marriage Bill that 'in relation to the subject of marriage, the law and Hindu religion are two names for one thing.' Religion, my Lord, is the essence of Hinduism. A really orthodox Hindu would sooner part with his life rather than budge an inch from the path of duty ordained by the Shastras. Religion is as dear to him as his very life. The marriage ceremony is a part and parcel of his religion. It marks the beginning of the second stage of the most onerous part of the Hindu life known as 'गृहस्थाश्रम.' The lawfully married wife of an orthodox Hindu occupies a very respectable position in the household. She is not only there to minister to the comforts of her husband, but she is his inseparable companion in the performance of all the religious duties. It is for this reason that she bears the proud name of a 'Dharm Patni,' i.e. 'sacred wife.' The nuptial knot once knit is held indissoluble. Even death cannot undo it. My Hon'ble friend the mover might attribute such an idea to ignorance, prejudice and superstition, or by whatsoever other names he might be pleased to call it; but the existence of the idea will have to be admitted and it cannot be ignored, It is based upon the sanction and command of the Shastras, and is cherished not by hundreds and thousands of the people, but by millions, who form the bulk of the population. And who are these people, my Lord? They are the masses who at this hour of trial and tribulation are furnishing recruits in thousands, every week, to shed their blood in the defence of the Empire. It is they whose faith in their own religion is unshakable, who regard their Sovereign King as an incarnation of God and death on the battle-field as an honour to themselves and their country. I think it is an ill-conceived measure that seeks to disregard the feelings of these men and especially in a matter like this, when an open challenge is offered to their existing rites and customs. There have been dark days in the history of India to which I need not refer which shall ever remain as a standing reminder of the fact, how a slight spark of even a baseless rumour is sufficient to burst the ignorant mob into a flame and make the whole country ablaze.

"My Lord, the introduction of this measure is hardly in consonance with the principle of non-interference to which the Government is already pledged ever since the Gracious Proclamation of Her late Imperial Majesty Queen Victoria in 1858. The Bill now before the Council is not the first attempt of its kind. Sir Henry Maine introduced a Bill with a similar motive, but the object was defeated and the Governor General's Council held on the 16th January 1872 that:—

'We think that the Bill as drawn by Sir Henry Maine would involve interference with native law which we did not consider justifiable under all the circumstances of the case. It appears to m that the Hindu law and religion on the subject of marriage are one and the same thing, that they must be adopted as a whole or removed as a whole, that if a man objects to an essential part of the Hindu religion, ceases to be a Hindu and must be dealt with according to the laws which relate to persons in such a position.'

"Later on, the Hon'ble Sir Reginald Craddock while replying to the Hon'ble Mr. Basu, when the latter introduced his Special Marriage Amendment Bill, declared 'that the Government could not interfere unless and until two things were proved, namely, first, that such custom constituted an outrage on the fundamental laws of humanity, and second, that an overwhelming majority of the persons professing this faith approached the Government and asked for the Reforms.' With regard to the first, I would ask the Hon'ble mover if he could point out to a single instance since this reply was given, which would amount to an outrage on the fundamental laws of humanity. The two instances mentioned by the Hon'ble mover just now may amount to instances of personal inconvenience and hardship, but they can hardly be said to amount to an outrage on the fundamental laws of humanity. And with regard to the second, Sir Reginald has already given a definite pledge on behalf of Government to the effect 'that it was the plain duty of Government to oppose any further action with reference to the Bill until such time as the overwhelming majority of which I have spoken, in favour of a reform of this kind may be in clear evidence before Government'. I would like my Hon'ble friend the mover to note the words 'clear evidence,' and I am at my wit's end to make out as to what 'clear evidence' he has furnished which should justify a change of attitude on the part of Government with regard to this question. Has any memorial been duly submitted to Government during these six or seven years by the majority of the people who are to be affected by this law? Has there been noticed any indication of such a demand for a change of attitude by the Government on the part of the people through the columns of newspapers? If none of these conditions exist, I would earnestly appeal to my friend not to embarrass the position of the Government at this supreme moment by introducing legislation, which tends to create a wide breach in the chief stronghold of the Hindu society. The Government has to be very cautious especially in all socio-religious matters like this. Their actions are liable to be misunderstood and motives doubted. These are broad facts which no wise Government should ignore. We are all having very anxious times. This is the time when we require the co-operation of the whole nation, and it is neither wise nor statesmanlike to embark upon legislation, which would tend to demolish the very foundation upon which the fabric of the Hindu society is raised. With these words, my lord, I beg to oppose this motion, and hope the Bill will not be allowed to proceed further."

11-50 A.M. The Hon'ble Sir William Vincent:—"My Lord, I think it would be convenient if I interpose at this stage to explain the position of the Government in regard to this Bill. It is precisely the same as their attitude towards a somewhat similar measure, or more correctly a measure on a similar subject, which was brought forward in this Council by the Hon'ble Mr. Basu some years ago. The Government are prepared to accept the motion for leave to introduce, and will be glad to get the Bill circulated in order to obtain public opinion on it.

"They consider that it would be unwise to throw out such a measure without ascertaining Hindu opinion on the subject. We were told just now that Government had received no memorial from the public in support of this Bill and no indication of the public wishes in the matter. That is exactly what the Government seek to obtain by admitting this motion and by circulating the Bill for opinion. But, my Lord, I must not be misunderstood, and the position of Government must be made perfectly clear. While we are prepared to invite public opinion on this measure, we are in no way committed either to support the Bill at a later stage. We reserve an absolute right to support it or oppose it later on. We are not unmindful of the discussions, I may say acrimonious discussions, which some Members of this Council will remember, which arose in regard to Mr. Basu's Bill, and it would be obviously premature for us to tie our hands in any way. We seek at this moment to obtain public opinion on the Bill: but the Government will be largely guided by the opinions of those primarily affected by the measure in dealing with it at a subsequent stage: I appeal, if I may do so, to those of conservative instincts who are opposed to this measure and who think it is a great invasion of Hindu rights to allow their fellow-countrymen and their co-religionists to examine the Bill and give them an opportunity of expressing their views on it: If then, as is maintained, this Bill strikes at the very root principles of Hindu society, surely the objections which they make now will be more than justified by the opinions which are received. I am well aware that the Bill involves a change of the Hindu law, and for that reason the Government are rightly cautious in their attitude towards it. But, as I said before, we think it right that the full opinion of the country should be obtained on the measure, and that it would be unwise of us summarily to reject a measure for which some Members of this Council at any rate have some sympathy."

The Hon'ble Mr. G. S. Khaparde :—"My Lord, I rise to support the introduction of this Bill. I believe the nature of the Hindu law and the Hindu religion appears to be misunderstood in some quarters. The Hindu religion is like the British Empire, a very Imperial matter. The British Empire does not invade other people's countries to take possession of them. So Hinduism does not go about preaching to convert other people to itself. We stand on our own merits. Our excellence attracts our neighbours, and just as in the British Empire neighbouring States like to come and be amalgamated with it, so also Hinduism, standing by itself, on its own excellence, attracts other people to come into its fold. That is how we absorb them. We never convert them, we never conquer them. Just as the British Empire leads no armies to conquer other countries, so we do not send out missionaries to convert other people; our excellence attracts them, and if they choose to come in we are very glad and we give them self-government at once. We make every body who wants to come in into an independent caste of himself and people like him and say to them make your own rules for governing yourselves as you like, only do not disturb the harmony or commit a breach of the peace. That is how Hinduism goes on by absorption, by taking people into its own fold and by letting them have liberty to act as they like. It is this mode of action that has given to Hindu law also what are called mixed castes, that is to say, Brahmins marrying people from the lower castes and lower caste people marrying among castes higher than themselves. There are a large number of books from which I could quote which lay down the rules of inheritance, and this is an old thing, as old as many of our sacred books. So I believe my friend the Hon'ble Mr. Patel in seeking to legalise these marriages is only carrying out a time-honoured policy of Hindu law, namely, to absorb our neighbours and even to forgive people of our own race who have been led out of the fold. If they do not like to observe the old ritual we let them go on; we only say start a new family, but you do it on your own responsibility. Later on, when the Bill comes up again, I will move an amendment to say that people who will contract marriages of this kind will lose all their rights of inheritance in their natural family, just as in England we know that if a son chooses to marry against the wishes of his family the father retains the right of cutting him off with a shilling. If people choose to contract these marriages, then the head of the family can say to them, 'I will not give you any part of my inheritance; you have to start for yourself and your children,' both in the case of the bride as well as in the case of the bridegroom, and that is very fair. It is not so much part of the religion as it is a part of the patria potestas, the power of the head of the family. If the members of the family choose to dispute the traditions, if they like to go out of it and to found a new family, by all means let them do so; only they can take nothing out of the family to enrich themselves. This will shut out property hunters and all the other troubles incidental to marriages of this kind. I believe this proposal is not only not against the Hindu law, but in my humble judgment it really promotes the object of the Hindu law. The Hindu law does not like to drive anybody out of its fold. It is very willing to admit anybody that is willing to come in and gives such a person liberty to do as he likes within his own caste. If other people like to associate with him, by all means let them do so, but if other people do not like to associate with him we cannot force them. That is why, as I said before, we are like the British Empire, standing for liberty, standing for self-government, and giving to everybody full liberty to do as he pleases.

"It has been said that this Bill is inopportune and that we have got larger questions and ought not to deal with this. I humbly submit that this is the proper time. We have a maxim 'He who seeks equity, must do equity.' If we seek for self-government and all these higher powers, I believe we should be prepared to grant them to our own people in a peaceful manner. Both from the point of view of expediency as well as from the point of view of the Hindu law as it really is and Hindu sentiment as it really obtains, I humbly submit that this Bill should be admitted. As has been pointed out by the Hon'ble the Home Member it is only for evoking public opinion and for the purpose of seeing what the criticisms are. When this has been done, if the public feeling is in favour of the Bill, certainly it will be passed. If it is not, I shall be the first person to propose that the people are not ready for it and that it should be dropped for the time being.

"With these remarks, I beg to support the introduction of this Bill."

12 P.M.

The Hon'ble Raja Sir Rampal Singh :—"My Lord, I rise to oppose the grant of leave for the introduction of the Hindu Marriage Bill into the Council. I am no believer in the caste system of Hindu society and it is my firm conviction that as long as Hindus will remain a caste-ridden people, there is very little prospect of their rising in the present day civilization and of their occupying an exalted position amongst the nations of the world. Things have changed from olden times, and the caste system which might have fitted those pre-historic days is no longer suited to the present conditions, and it is bound to die a natural death in the course of time. But side by side with having such beliefs and convictions I must confess, and I feel no remorse in giving expression to that confession, that I am an observer of caste rules as far as possible. There is great disparity between the views I hold in this respect and the line of action I follow. Some of the reformers might call it cowardice, but I call it prudence emanating from a sense of responsibility and obligation to the community itself which has to be reformed and for which such self-sacrifice should not be grudged. It is the masses that have to be led towards the desired goal, and it would serve no good purpose to go far ahead of the society leaving it behind immersed in social evils. However, that does not matter much in the consideration of the question that is before the Council of granting leave to the mover to introduce the Bill that stands in his name to legalise Hindu marriages between different castes. The object is laudable from a reformer's point of view, and the Bill has the support of reason and logic. But it is not always reason and logic that hold sway in such matters over the people. It is more often sentiment that governs the world and I can, without fear of contradiction, say that Hindu sentiment will most assuredly be opposed to the Bill. Is it wise, is it expedient in the present times to give cause to the Hindu public to raise an agitation that the Hindu religion is in danger? Not long ago the Hon'ble Babu Bhupendra Nath Basu introduced a Bill on similar lines, and the fate that attended it is not unknown to this Council. A similar hue and cry would be raised, I am afraid, on this Bill also, and I am strongly of opinion that at the present time no cause should be given for such an agitation. The Hon'ble mover will get ample opportunities for introducing such like Bills, having for their object social reform, in the reformed Councils. I therefore move that leave to introduce the Bill may not be given."

12-2 P.M.

The Hon'ble Rai Sita Nath Ray Bahadur :—"My Lord, I beg to oppose the Hon'ble Mr. Patel's Marriage Bill. I cannot conceive why our friend should have taken any trouble at all after the fate which befell a similar measure proposed by Mr. Bhupendra Nath Basu against which the whole section of the orthodox Hindu community declared itself in unmistakable terms. After that we have a right to expect that more weighty reasons should be given to justify the principles of the Bill before us, which are absolutely repugnant to the feelings of a large section of the Hindu community. There are so many castes among the Hindus and each caste is divided into so many divisions and sub-divisions that it would be hopeless to expect intermarriages amongst the thousand and one castes in which the four principal sections of the Hindu community are divided and sub-divided.

HINDU MARRIAGES VALIDITY BILL.

[5TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.] [Rai Sita Nath Ray Bahadur; Mr. Srinivasa Sastri.]

"According to Mr. Patel's Bill, it would be quite valid and quite legal for a Sudra to marry a Brahmin girl and vice versa. I cannot believe, my Lord, that the Hindu community, as at present constituted, would ever submit to such a measure within any measurable distance of time. I cannot believe that before caste-distinctions are absolutely swept away the Hindu community would tolerate such a measure. I therefore beg to oppose the Bill.

"In conclusion, I have to request the Government that it should not at this stage give any indication of its sympathy with the principles of a Bill which is undoubtedly an invasion of the ancient rights of the Hindu community. I pray that the Government should maintain an attitude of strict neutrality."

12-5 P.M.

The Hon'ble Mr. Srinivasa Sastri:—"My Lord, I rise to signify my consent to the introduction of this Bill. It is somewhat unfortunate that when leave is asked to introduce a Bill Members should go into the principles of the Bill and discuss the grounds upon which the Bill should be supported or opposed. That is a practice not known in other houses. In Parliament, I think, the practice is generally to give leave to Bills being introduced without too nice an examination of fundamental principles. In this Council, however, owing perhaps to the recent ruling of the Government that Bills should be published before introduction, Members are in full possession of the nature of the Bills and it is possible for them, having no dummy Bills to deal with but regular live Bills, to go into the whole question. Anyhow, the matter being before the Council and Members having started a discussion, I think it would be very unfortunate if those Members who are in favour of this Bill and the principle that it involves did not give clear expression to that sentiment.

"It has been said that this Bill introduces no new principle in Hindu society or Hindu religion, but that it seeks only to revive an ancient practice which has fallen into desuetude. This is no doubt partially true; but those who rely on antiquity for the introduction of the present Bill must also see that their case is somewhat weakened when all the Shastras that we know of sanction only anuloma marriages and discountenance pratiloma marriages. That is, the ancient law of the Hindus permitted marriages between men of the higher castes and women of the lower castes, but did not permit marriages between women of the higher castes and men of the lower castes. This Bill in that regard seeks to go further than the ancient principle and is not therefore merely a revival of the ancient practice.

"There is, my Lord, another difficulty also when we rely too much on the ancient practice. Mr. Patel's Bill—in my opinion somewhat unfortunately—seeks to give sanction to the new marriages that he advocates upon the ground of the religious ceremonies that may be performed. Now when we seek the sanction of the ancient religious ceremonies, it is necessary that we take good care that we do not shock the religious sentiments and feelings of the vast mass of people with whom we have to deal. Perhaps it would have been wiser to introduce into the Bill a provision to the effect that the marriage should be of a civil nature. In that case it would be possible for social reformers to ask that various other features of a regular modern type of marriage should also be introduced. For example, when the Legislative Assembly of this country in this century is asked to give its sanction to a new type of marriage, it seems to me to be absolutely necessary to include in it provisions such as that the parties to the marriage should be adults or should not be below a certain age. In the case of the bridegroom I should specify 18 at least, and in the case of the bride at least 15. Then we should further specify—I am only mentioning these things, my Lord, as difficulties that stand in the way of introducing a large Bill of this kind,—we should also specify, for example, that the parties to the marriage should not have husbands or wives alive; and further that the principle of divorce should perhaps be introduced into this new Bill.

HINDU MARRIAGES VALIDITY BILL.

[Mr. Srinivasa Sastri.] [5TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.]

" For all these reasons the Bill that Mr. Patel has introduced, or proposes to introduce, seems too inadequate and the Select Committee to which it might be referred at a later stage would have a great task before it in putting the Bill into proper form.

"I am also aware that the Government of India at present are bound by one of their principles to refrain from identifying themselves too much with reform movements of this kind. I do not altogether approve of their attitude. I think in many respects it is over-cautious. For example the principles which Sir Reginald Craddock on a similar occasion four years ago enunciated in this Council were two. My Hon'ble friend Mr. Shukul has referred to them. One is that the majority of the people affected by the legislation should consent to it. I shall refer to this first. That the majority of the people affected should consent to it is a demand which it is impossible to satisfy in legislation of this kind. Mr. Patel has made it clear that this Bill is only permissive, that it seeks to give relief to certain adventurous members of the community who think that the religious basis of marriage should be widened, that marriages should be permitted within circles which are now prohibited, and it is impossible to satisfy the condition that the majority of the people should give their consent to such a Bill being passed. This is a purely permissive measure and that requirement, I think, it would be very difficult indeed to meet. My Lord, I am somewhat sceptical about the utility of raising discussions of this character at this stage. But it does seem to me that I must mention that these principles have not always been borne in mind by the Government of India itself. There have been occasions, for instance, in the year 1850, when the Caste Disabilities Removal Act was passed, when the other principle to which Sir Reginald Craddock referred was not altogether observed. That other principle is to the effect that it should be shown that the measure proposed is necessary in order to prevent some violation of a fundamental law of humanity. It must prevent some enormity, some cruelty or something of that kind. I am not aware what inhumanity the Caste Disabilities Removal Act attempted to prevent or the other Act of 1872 to which this Council gave sanction. In the year 1872 what is known as the Brahmo Marriage Act was passed. I do not suppose that there was any violation of the fundamental laws of humanity at that time which the Government of India thought it necessary to remedy. It is not always such extreme grievances that a Government should undertake to remedy. Even ordinary measures of social amelioration might be opposed by large numbers of the community, and still a civilised Government would be bound to give relief to those that obviously suffer from disabilities imposed by the majority. Where a minority in an advanced community desire relief at the hands of the Legislature, it seems to me that the Legislature should not refuse it upon such grounds. But I am aware, and I am prepared for the moment to concede the fact, that the Government of India at the present moment is acting in what might be considered a very legitimate spirit of caution. I will not therefore press them too hard. At the same time there is one matter to which I would request the attention of the Hon'ble Mr. Patel himself. I have been trying during the last two or three days to speak to him somewhat intimately on this matter, and ask him to withdraw his present motion in order that the Bill might be considered by the fuller Council which we expect to be inaugurated in the course of the next two or three years. There is something to be said in favour of such a postponement of this measure. No doubt if we were not actually on the eve of these great constitutional changes, I would press the motion on the Council and stand by the side of Mr. Patel and give him all the assistance I can in seeing that this measure passes. But we are on the eve of seeing a larger Council where the Indian element will be more strongly represented, and where a measure of this kind will be listened to with greater attention than perhaps could be commanded in a Council of this kind where there are a large number of persons who are apparently not interested deeply in this matter. We have Europeans, we have Muhammadans, and we have Parsi Members. They have nothing to do with this Bill, for this Bill, unlike Mr. Basu's Bill, is confined to the Hindu community. My Lord, I seek therefore the attention of Mr. Patel respectfully to this passage in the Report on Indian Constitutional Reforms:—

HINDU MARRIAGES VALIDITY BILL.

[5TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.] [Mr. Srinivasa Sastri; Mr. K. V. Rangaswamy Ayyangar.]

'An autocratic administration which does not share the religious ideas of the people obviously finds its sole safe ground in leaving the whole department of traditional social usage severely alone In such matters as child marriage it is possible that through excess of caution proper to the regimé under which it works it may be actually perpetuating stereotyped customs which the better mind of the community might be brought after the necessary period of struggle to modify. A government in which Indians themselves participate, invigorated by a closer touch with a more enlightened popular opinion, may be able with all due caution to effect with the free assent or acquiescence of the Indians themselves what under the present system has to be rigorously set aside.'

"My Lord, that is a consideration which it seems to me Mr. Patel might well bear in mind in pressing his motion. If, yielding to the reason that this passage discloses, Mr. Patel should withdraw his motion at the present stage, I shall be content. But if he presses his motion for leave to introduce the Bill, I am bound, in obedience to my convictions and to the dictates of my conscience, to give him my hearty support."

The Hon'ble Mr. K. V. Rangaswamy Ayyangar:—"My Lord, I am sorry to have to oppose the motion brought forward by my friend, the Hon'ble Mr. Patel. Not that I do not understand that Parliamentary etiquette requires us to allow to be introduced in the Council any Bill, good, bad or indifferent and to be discussed in the Council, and not because sentiments run high that I oppose this motion. But time and again such Bills have been discussed and there awaits no new discussion. Similar attempts of legislation both in the Provincial and in the Imperial Councils have failed till now, and perhaps thinking that this is the mildest of all those that have been brought till now and also under the impression that this would be the best opportunity for carrying out a Bill of this sort, as all parties are attempting at a national union that this has been ushered into the Council. 12-17 P.M.

"The prime consideration in introducing any Bill should be that law should follow custom, and not that law should introduce a new custom to the country especially in matters of inheritance of property. Viewed from this standpoint the Bill utterly fails to commend itself to the Council. The Judges of the Privy Council and High Courts too have laid down that custom is transcendant law. Yet Mr. Patel without creating a custom of intercaste marriage by educative work wants the Legislature to give an impetus to the creation of a custom which is dear to his heart and which he is unable to create by proper educative work. In this country people attach an undue importance to legislative decrees, and he evidently desires to use the Legislature as a second string to his bow of social reform. His constituency, I think, has not given him any mandate to introduce this Bill.

"Among the followers of Vedas and Smritis, who, I suppose, are called Hindus, little distinction is made between social laws and religious tenets, and the restrictions on marriages form the prime factor of the Ordinances of Smritis. It is considered that marriage is a sacrament and people trespassing those Ordinances are not considered Hindus. It is an elementary and well-known rule of Hindu Law that marriage should be within the caste as per Manu, Chapter III, verses 12, 13 and 14, etc., and Yajnavalkya, Chapter IV, verse 57, etc., etc. Though anuloma marriages were allowed, yet they were condemned. In the Gita, the Lord has condemned Varnasamkara in unmeasured

HINDU MARRIAGES VALIDITY BILL.

[Mr. K. V. Rangaswamy Ayyangar; Pandit Madan Mohan Malaviya.] [5TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.]

terms. Mr. Patel says that a man can commit Varnasamkara and yet be a Hindu. He wants a legislative declaration that a Hindu committing a gross offence against the Hindu sacred laws shall be recognised by the British Government as a Hindu. Everywhere it is recognised that the marriage system is the essence of the ideals of each race. To tinker with it by the direct attack of compulsive legislation or by the insidious method of enabling and permissive legislation is an act of treason to the sovereignty of the spirit of the race. Else why not introduce an enabling Bill to render bigamy, marriages for limited periods, and marriages dissoluble at will, etc., valid among Christians.

"Even in materialistic countries they never allow such interference in long established customs and social usages. No marriage system is based solely on principles of abstract reasons. For the matter of that none of the highest things of life are demonstrated by abstract reason. The highest truths of religion are not so demonstrable but they are none the less true. The domain of truth is wider than that of reason.

"Mr. Patel's Bill interferes with a certain custom. It need not necessarily stop with caste, but it may even go on to inter-racial marriages.

"It may be pertinently asked when even a convert to Christianity is now allowed to inherit his parental property, why one should be debarred from inheriting the same only because he takes a wife from a different caste. I should confess that even that kind of inheritance is quite opposed to the Hindu precepts and ordinances, and I wish to contend that only because that kind of inheritance is so allowed by the Government it should not be used as an argument for this, for one wrong will not justify another. So I have to protest against giving leave for the introduction of this Bill.

"Further, one reason why people of my view who protest against such interference in established customs, think that the Reform Scheme is unsatisfactory in that in the Provincial Legislature and in the Imperial there is no protection against the introduction of such Bills, inasmuch as the executive Government can interfere only when those Bills trespass on the Reserved Subjects or trench upon peace, order and good government."

12-24 P.M. The Hon'ble Pandit Madan Mohan Malaviya :—"I regret, my Lord, to have to oppose this motion for leave to introduce this Bill put forward by the Hon'ble Member. It has been said that a motion like this should not be opposed, and that the Bill should be allowed to be introduced as a matter of course as is done elsewhere. Attention has, therefore, to be drawn to the special considerations which make against leave being given for the introduction of this Bill. The Hon'ble the Home Member has expressed the attitude of Government towards the proposed measure. He has told us that that attitude is precisely the same as it was when Sir Reginald Craddock expressed the mind of the Government in 1912, towards a similar measure. Now, my Lord, this Bill raises a question which was raised in the Bill which was introduced by the Hon'ble Mr. Bhupendra Nath Basu. No doubt there is an important difference, in that the Bill now proposed has the object of legalising certain marriages among Hindus only; but this point was fully covered by that Bill, though it sought to effect something more. When that Bill was introduced, it was referred to Local Governments and to the general public for their opinions. Local Governments and the general public expressed their opinions, and there was a tremendous volume of opinion received against the Bill, as was evident from the remarks which the Hon'ble Sir Reginald Craddock made on the motion to refer the Bill to a Select Committee.

Now, my Lord, if a long time had transpired since then, if there had been evidence of a great change in public opinion, I could understand the attitude adopted by the Hon'ble the Home Member to-day. But as has been pointed out by some previous speakers, barely six years have passed since this matter was referred to the Local Governments and to the general public. There is no new circumstance indicated why the question should be agitated again. Of course a hardship is felt by a certain number of people. There is no doubt that they feel it to be a real hardship; but it is the same that was felt when the Bill was taken up by the Hon'ble Mr. Bhupendra Nath Basu. There is nothing put forward to show that there has been any noticeable change in public opinion on the question. Is it right, then, is it wise, will it serve any good purpose, to agitate the public mind over it again, and to ask the Local Governments to reconsider this matter and to express their opinions again about it? If anybody could fairly say, either from among the non-official or from the official Members, that there has been such a change as would justify a fresh reference to the general public and to the Local Governments, I could understand the position taken up by the Hon'ble the Home Member and the mover of the motion before us. But I do not think anybody can say so. That being the case, I submit, my Lord, that this motion comes at a time when there is little justification for it.

HINDU MARRIAGES VALIDITY BILL.

[5TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.] [Pandit Madan Mohan Malaviya; Dr. Tej Bahadur Sapru.]

"I do not wish to go into the merits of the question, except to say that the general sense of the Hindu community will be entirely opposed to this Bill. You may refer the Bill again to the Local Governments and to the public, if you choose to do so; but I do not think that a reference is needed to convince anybody who keeps his eyes and ears open and is in touch with public opinion in this country that the great bulk of the Hindu community will be opposed to this measure. Individuals and groups of individuals who belong to a large community have to put up with hardships and inconvenience so long as the dominant sense in the community is opposed to the views which they entertain or want to promote That is unfortunately the position of those who think that such a measure as the Hon'ble Mr. Patel advocates should be allowed. But the facts being as they are, I submit that it will serve no useful purpose; it will create unnecessary stir among the general Hindu public, and will unnecessarily take up the time of Local Governments and Administrations, if leave to introduce this Bill is given. For these reasons, my Lord, I oppose the motion which is before the Council."

The Hon'ble Dr. Tej Bahadur Sapru:—"My Lord, I rise as a cordial and warm supporter of the measure which has been sought to be introduced to-day by my friend Mr. Patel My Lord, it has been said that Hindu religion is in danger and that Hindu society is in great peril. I do not believe in any such protestations I believe, if we could turn back the records of our predecessors 50 or 60 years ago, when one distinguished predecessor of your Lordship abolished Sati in this country, or another distinguished predecessor of your Lordship passed a measure recognising the validity of the remarriage of widows, I believe we would find a family likeness between the protests made by the orthodox members to-day and the protests made by their predecessors at that time. Meanwhile the world has gone on, and I believe that with the world Hindu society too has considerably changed My Lord, not only has Hindu society considerably changed, but Hindu society has also tolerated many judicial interferences with Hindu law. I challenge any one of my lawyer-friends here, to say that the Hindu law as administered by our Anglo-Indian Judges or even by Hindu Judges to-day is exactly the same as the Shastries in the old days used to interpret it. Changes by Judges have gone on increasing with regard to almost every branch of Hindu law, and it passes my comprehension why Hindu sentiment should feel shocked at a reasonable change in this direction. But, my Lord, those who criticise this measure, I am afraid, entirely misunderstand the scope of the Bill. It is not really an invasion upon orthodoxy. It is really meant for the protection of those who are not prepared to subscribe to all the conditions and tenets of orthodoxy. If orthodoxy is entitled to protection, so are those who do not subscribe to orthodoxy. 12-27 P.M.

"Now, my Lord, Mr. Patel does not want any orthodox men to go out of this room and act up to his injunction in this respect. It is certainly not intended that orthodox men and women should marry out of caste if they think that they are not prepared to do it. But at the same time I join issue with orthodox people if they say that if there is a man who is prepared to go out of caste and to seek a wife out of caste, he has got no right to do so. Undoubtedly the caste has got the right to penalise his conduct ; and I recognise that it may ostracize him. That is the only penalty which society can impose on him, but that man has got a right to go to the Legislature and say ' why not protect me, why put me in that dubious position.'

HINDU MARRIAGES VALIDITY BILL.

[Dr. Tej Bahadur Sapru ; Mr. Surendra Nath Banerjea.] [5TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.]

" What is more important than all this, my Lord, is to my mind the fact that some Hindu States, governed by Hindu Rajas, have taken the lead in this matter. Take for instance the Native State of Indore, or again take, for instance, the Native State of Nepal. In Nepal,—and I say it with confidence because the question arose in a case,—marriages between Brahmins and Kshatriyas, between Hindus of different castes, are perfectly permissible. If that be so in an orthodox Hindu State, I do not see any reason why Hindu sentiment in British India should feel so much outraged by granting liberty to dissenters to follow the bent of their own minds. My Hon'ble friend Mr. Sastri has raised several points which are more or less in the nature of side-issues. I do not propose to go into these questions at the present stage. Probably they will come up before the Select Committee, and the Select Committee will be the proper place for the consideration of those points ; but meanwhile I do feel that the state of the law as it stands at present is extremely unsatisfactory, and when Hindu Judges and also Anglo-Indian Judges have said in the course of their judgments that though the ancient Hindu law permitted such marriages, they are not prepared to follow the ancient Hindu law because the custom during the last few hundred years or more has been to the contrary, I submit it is taking an extraordinary risk for any dissenter to go out of his caste for the purposes of marriage. It is for that reason that I would ask your Lordship to allow this Bill to be introduced, not as an aggression upon orthodoxy, but by way of protection of the dissenters. "

12-34 P.M. The Hon'ble Mr. Surendra Nath Banerjea : - " My Lord, I may say at once that I am in very deep sympathy with the objects of the Bill which has been introduced by my friend, the Hon'ble Mr. Patel, and if we were living in ordinary times, free from the unusual excitement through which we are passing at the present moment, I should certainly vote for this measure. But, my Lord, politics has been described by an eminent author as the science of opportunists, and it does seem to me that the introduction of this Bill is most inopportune at the present moment. We have enough of troubles over the Reform Scheme. The atmosphere is almost electric ; why throw an apple of discord into our midst ? We want a little peace, a little calmness, a little of sobriety and self-restraint for the consideration of the grave issues involved in the Reform Scheme. And now here is another contentious, controversial Bill introduced which will appeal to the deepest of our sentiments, the sentiment of religion. For this reason I think the introduction of this Bill is inopportune. My Hon'ble friend the Home Member has explained to us the attitude of the Government. He says that the Government is prepared to circulate this Bill for opinion. Does he lay the flattering unction to his soul that the circulation of the Bill will not cause agitation ? The Bill will be sent to the various public bodies ; the various newspapers will take it up, they will begin to discuss it and in a most excited manner. It does seem to me that my Hon'ble friend is altogether mistaken if he thinks that that is a most innocuous proceeding. It is not so at all. It will lead to agitation and controversy, it will lead to that excitement we are so anxious to avert at the present moment.

" Now passing from the attitude of the Government, I should like to address a word or two to the Hon'ble introducer of this Bill. I suppose he wants the Bill to be passed ; he does not want merely a bit of excitement in the Indian atmosphere of to-day ; he does not want anything to be added to the unrest through which we are passing at the present moment. Well, if that be his object, if he wants the Bill to be passed, it seems to me the wisest course is to withdraw it at the present moment, to wait for the Reformed Councils, and then allow the matter to be disposed of by them. Truly, this Council is not in a position to adjudicate upon a matter of this kind. Social considerations are considerations which the Government must necessarily fight shy of. The Government is cautious. If I were a member of the Government I should be very cautious in dealing with social problems. That being so a responsible Government would take courage in both hands and deal with social questions. Therefore, for the purposes of the Bill itself and for the high motives with which I am prepared to credit my Hon'ble friend, I beg him to withdraw the Bill, and I associate myself with the entreaty that has been addressed to him by my friend the Hon'ble Mr. Sastri. The Bill is inopportune and it ought to be withdrawn in the interests of the Bill itself and for the success of the great social reform which my Hon'ble friend has so much at heart."

HINDU MARRIAGES VALIDITY BILL.

[5TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.] [Mr Surendra Nath Banerjea; Mr. M. A. Jinnah.]

The Hon'ble Mr. M. A. Jinnah :—"My Lord, it is certainly an irony of fate that my friend Mr. Surendra Nath Banerjea, who has been agitating for the last 40 years and more, should be so much afraid of agitation and unrest. Is the circulation of this Bill going to cause unrest? What will the people understand by it? The Government attitude is perfectly clear. The Home Member, on behalf of the Government says we seek opinions. Why should that cause unrest and anxiety to anybody I fail to understand. Then the next point of Mr. Banerjea was that this Bill will be considered better in the new Councils where the Government will be a responsible Government. Is this Government not a responsible Government now? I see no reason why this Government should not consider this Bill at this moment if there is a case made out for it. Is there no duty or obligation lying on this Government as it is at present constituted? Are we to wait until another or new Council is formed which, in the opinion of Mr. Surendra Nath Banerjea will be a responsible Government? I certainly fail to understand that argument. I can quite understand my friend Mr. Sastri who said that we might wait until the new Council is formed. But may I say to my friend Mr. Sastri that this Bill will take a considerable time in order to ascertain the opinions of the various sections of the community, and is it not desirable that we should at least proceed with the work of receiving and collecting that body of opinion? When that opinion is collected, probably we will, and I for one hope that we will, have the new Councils fully inaugurated and instituted Then let the new Council deal with this Bill if necessary. But I see no reason whatsoever why we should delay even the circulation of the Bill and collection of opinions until the new Councils are formed.

12-38 P.M.

"Personally, my Lord, I would like to go much further than this Bill. I was one of the supporters of Mr. Basu's Bill, and I then emphatically dissented from the attitude that was taken up by Sir Reginald Craddock, the Home Member at that time, who laid down two propositions and said that, unless those two propositions were complied with, the Government could not possibly give their assent to any measure of this character. One was that there should be an overwhelming majority in favour of the Bill, and the other was that if there was something like an outrage upon humanity, then the Government would be obliged to step in and prevent that by legislation. But, my Lord, there is a third proposition, and I ask the Government and those who are responsible for the Government of India to-day to read what Mr. Curtis has said on this subject. Mr. Curtis in his 'Letters to the People of India' has dealt with this question in a manner which will commend itself to anybody who is really interested in this question. I do not want to quote that because I have not got the book here, but I would urge upon every Member of the Government to bear in mind those observations and principles which he has laid down, and I say it is incumbent, it is absolutely obligatory, on the Government to grant that liberty of conscience to individuals. Even on the ground of equity and fairness: Let those who wish to contract marriages unfettered by the shackles of caste or any other shackles do so. It is not obligatory under this Bill that every Brahmin should marry a Sudra, nor is it necessary that every Sudra should marry a Brahmin. This is purely permissive—true. What does this Bill say? It says that if a Brahmin wishes to marry a Sudra, and if a Sudra is willing to marry

HINDU MARRIAGES VALIDITY BILL.

[Mr. M. A. Jinnah; Rao Bahadur B. N. Sarma.] [5TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.]

a Brahmin, let them do so. Why should they be prevented and why should their union be invalid? It is then open to the Brahmin community or the Sudra community, if they object to any member of their caste marrying outside their caste, to outcast him or her if they like. But why should you, because the majority do not approve of it, legalize his marriage with another caste. The argument is that until you get a majority you should not do it. Now I ask the Government—I do not ask those who advocate the principle that until you get a majority you should not do it—but I ask the Government face to face, if you are going to be guided in the matter only when you get a majority, how many years will you have to wait for it? And is the Government going to stand by and allow the majority to oppress the minority? And remember that this minority is the creation more of the Western education for which you yourselves are responsible. Are you going to deny liberty to those whom you have educated? Are you going to deny liberty to those whom you have trained up in Western ideas, and are they to remain the victims of this caste shackle? I am a Mussulman. This is a question which I know concerns the Hindus, but as a Member of this Council I have to record my vote, and I cannot simply sit quiet and record it one way or the other. I am as much interested, my Lord, in coming to the rescue of the Hindu minority suffering to-day because of this law as anybody else would be interested in coming to the rescue of a Mussulman minority if it was suffering. Therefore, I strongly urge upon the Government to allow this Bill to go out to the country and let us collect opinions upon it."

[12-46 P.M.] The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur B. N. Sarma:—"My Lord, I am in hearty agreement with the principles underlying this Bill. It seems to me that the attitude of those who oppose this Bill in toto is somewhat unreasonable. It merely asks for liberty of conscience. There is a section of the educated community—I will not say a large section—which believes in the fundamental spiritual doctrines of Hinduism, but which does not believe in the sacred character of the marriage laws as at present understood by the Hindus. Now the question is, are we to drive them out of the Hindu fold, and are we to compel them to say that they are not Hindus in order that they may contract a legal valid marriage? I think the answer to that question can only be in the negative, and the only course open to us is to accept the principle underlying this Bill. But, my Lord, unless there are radical changes and alterations in the Bill, I fear that it may do more harm than good to Hindu society. It would, I fear, encourage polygamy which must have been one of the objects which the Hindu law-givers had in view in abolishing intercaste marriages. There was this safeguard in Mr. Basu's Bill that those who married under that Bill, as amended, could marry only one person, whereas if the Hindu law is to be modified in the manner suggested, there is just a possibility of Kulinism being rampant in the land. It would be possible for uneducated Brahmins and upper caste Hindus to get brides among all the castes, and there would be difficulties of inheritance and difficulties of social life arising from such a condition of things. And that was, I believe, one of the objects at any rate why the ancient Hindu law-givers prohibited inter-caste unions. It will be necessary therefore, if we permit inter-caste marriages, to make it also incumbent upon a person who marries out of his caste not to marry more than one person. Well, that is a question of detail, though an important detail, which would have to be discussed when the Bill is referred to the Select Committee, and it would be only perhaps on that condition that many of us would be able to vote for the Bill.

"With regard to the question of expediency, I would join the Hon'ble Mr. Sastri in appealing to the Hon'ble Mr. Patel not to press this motion at the present juncture. My reason is this. We have got only one Session before us, and, I believe, it would be absolutely impossible to receive all the opinions during the life-time of this Council. The question would have to be taken up afresh in the new Reformed Councils and I do not wish to burden that body with legislation of such a controversial character in the very first stages of its existence. I would like that the question should be brought up before a full Council of 100 or 150 Members representing all the communities, and that they should have a chance of saying 'aye' or 'no.' But if the Hon'ble Mr. Patel does not see his way to withdraw the Bill at the present stage I must, inasmuch as I believe in the principles underlying it, vote for the Bill."

HINDU MARRIAGES VALIDITY BILL.

[5TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.] [Rao Bahadur B. N. Sarma; Sir George Lowndes; Pandit Madan Mohan Malaviya]

The Hon'ble Sir George Lowndes:—"My Lord, there are one or two things which, I think, ought to be said before this debate is closed. I have no desire to enter into the controversy in any way at all. But it seems to me that the attitude of Government may possibly be a little misunderstood in view of the remarks which fell from my Hon'ble and learned friend opposite. All that Government desires, is that this Bill should go out to the public and that they should have an opportunity of knowing what the views of the public are upon it. That the Government will be guided by the opinions they receive and the views they hear is quite certain. But my Hon'ble Colleague, Sir William Vincent, did not say that the fate of the Bill would depend upon the majority of the opinions received. All that my Hon'ble Colleague said was that Government would be guided by the opinions they received.

12-40 P.M.

"In the second place, my Lord, there is a fact which it appears to me ought to be made clear before Hon'ble Members are asked to vote on this motion. Frequent references have been made to Mr. Basu's Bill which was introduced a few years ago, but no one, so far as I have heard, has pointed out the essential difference between that Bill and this. Mr. Basu's Bill purported to validate or to make possible marriages between Hindus and non-Hindus, whereas, as I understand, Mr. Patel's Bill, it only deals with the question of inter-Hindu marriages. It appears to me that this in itself is a sufficient answer to what fell from my Hon'ble friend Pandit Madan Mohan Malaviya when he asked 'why do you want to raise this question again now'? The answer seems to be that the question is not the same; this is the smaller half of the question which agitated people so much in 1912.

"There is one other point, my Lord, which I think, as a lawyer, I ought to refer to. We have heard so much here from orthodox Members of this Council about disturbance of the foundations of their religion and how the sacrament of marriage—I quite admit that marriage among Hindus is a sacrament—is bound up with the foundations of their religion, and how it will be struck at by this Bill My Lord, the position is a somewhat extraordinary one. In most cases where we are asked to legislate with regard to questions which touch the Hindu religion, (and sometimes the Muhammadan religion), we are told that it is only going back to the old law, that we shall only be restoring the law of the ancient Shastras which has been overridden by the Privy Council or by the Courts in India. That is the common argument. The curious thing is that this is the exact opposite of that position. So far as marriages between a Hindu man of one caste and a Hindu woman of a lower caste are concerned, they were allowed by the Shastras in India during the whole of the best period of Hindu history They were not only legal but they were recognised as such by every great writer on the subject"

The Hon'ble Pandit Madan Mohan Malaviya:—"That is not correct."

The Hon'ble Sir George Lowndes:—"I believe it is quite correct."

The Hon'ble Pandit Madan Mohan Malaviya:—"For 3,000 years it has not been so."

The Hon'ble Sir George Lowndes:—"My Hon'ble friend is very brave, and my Hon'ble friend Mr. Ayyangar was braver still, though I fancy with a very slight knowledge of the subject. He ventured to quote Manu as laying down that such marriages were improper. Now, Manu, as my Hon'ble friend ought to know, is probably a conglomeration of texts belonging to a great number of different periods. I can point out to my Hon'ble friend Mr. Ayyangar and to the Hon'ble Pandit passages in Manu which directly recognise the legality of such marriages and the succession of property under them. It is not certain to what period the later texts belong, but they are clearly not of the same period as the others. Manu, it is true, contains one or two texts—to one of which the Hon'ble Mr. Ayyangar referred—disapproving of such marriages; but Manu is hardly an authority as the work contains texts both ways.

HINDU MARRIAGES VALIDITY BILL.

"But apart from Manu, take the Benares school of writers. I start with the Mitakshara, and the Mitakshara recognises the legality of these marriages. That is somewhere about the 11th century. The doctrine goes on right down to Mitra Misra one of the latest commentators in the beginning of the 17th century who also recognises their validity. Take the Southern India School. We have got exactly the same thing there. From the writers of the 13th century right down to the 17th century, the validity of these mixed marriages is directly recognised. Take even the school of Bengal. Here we have the Dayabaga, which was definitely, very definitely Brahministic, I had almost said a recrudescence of Brahmanism,—the whole foundation of which was the getting away from the secular views of the time, even the Dayabaga recognises the legality of these marriages. Therefore, I think, the Council ought to understand that when we hear talk of the foundations of the Hindu religion, being disturbed, it is not the foundations of the old Hindu religion, but the foundations of modern custom which has supplanted the old religion since the 16th century. And this I submit, is a point of considerable relevance."

12-55 P.M. The Hon'ble Mr. V. J. Patel:—"My Lord, I have only a few words to add to what my Hon'ble friend who has just sat down has remarked. It has been alleged that Hindu religion and Hindu custom are being disturbed; but I would just draw the attention of this Council to a piece of recent legislation on the subject of Hindu inter-caste marriages in the Kolhapur State. I will only read two or three lines from the preamble which runs as follows:—

'Whereas Hindus and Jains are now divided into innumerable castes and parties of different castes cannot marry on account of custom, but such marriages among Hindus and Jains generally were common in ancient times and whereas it is desirable that any Jain or Hindu should be free to marry anyone of either persuasion irrespective of caste, and whereas it is expedient to provide a form of marriage for them and to legalise certain marriages the validity of which is doubtful, it is hereby enacted, etc, etc.'

It has been recognised in this piece of legislation that in ancient times inter-caste marriages were common, and that therefore they will not in any way interfere with old Hindu religion or Hindu custom. Of course dealing with this particular piece of legislation, I may point out that one of the clauses in it is to the effect that the parties after giving 14 days' notice to the Registrar are perfectly entitled to undergo the form of marriage and enter into a legally valid contract. That being so, any two persons of different castes residing in British India might go to the Kolhapur State and stay there for 14 days and marry. What answer have those who have been opposing this measure to-day got to give to this?

"There is one other point, your Excellency, which I should like to make clear. My Hon'ble friend Mr. Sastri and my Hon'ble friend Mr. Sarma, as well as my Hon'ble friend Mr. Banerjea, have asked me to consider whether it is wise to go on with this Bill at this stage, and whether it would not be better to withdraw it now and bring it up again later on. Let me assure them that so far as I am concerned, I am perfectly willing to bring this Bill again when the new Councils come into existence. There is nothing to prevent me from doing so, in case my present attempt fails. But there is absolutely no reason why I should withdraw the Bill now. I propose to take advantage of the present opportunity, and if I be re-elected on the New Council, I shall take the opportunity of making a second attempt then, in the event of my failing now."

The motion was put and agreed to.

HINDU MARRIAGES VALIDITY BILL; REFORMS PROPOSALS.

[5TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.] [Mr. V. J. Patel; Mr. Surendra Nath Banerjea; The President.]

The Hon'ble Mr. V. J. Patel:—"I now introduce the Bill, my Lord, and move that the Bill, together with the Statement of Objects and Reasons relating thereto, be published in the Gazette of India in English, and in the local official Gazettes in English and in such other languages as the Local Governments think fit."

The motion was put and agreed to.

RESOLUTION Re REFORMS PROPOSALS.

The Hon'ble Mr. Surendra Nath Banerjea:—"My Lord, may I respectfully ask your Excellency to adjourn the Council to-day, as my Resolution deals with a very important matter, and it seems to me that it would be most fitting that it should be taken as the first item on to-morrow's list."

His Excellency the President:—"I think that is a reasonable request, which I feel sure the Council will be willing to accept. I therefore propose to adjourn this Council from now to 11 o'clock to-morrow morning. Mr. Banerjea's Resolution will be the first on to-morrow's list."

The Council then adjourned till Friday, the 6th September, 1918.

Demi-official letter No. 188-F.-16, dated Simla, the 4th April 1918. Serial No. 7

From—The HON'BLE SIR ROBERT GILLAN, K C. S. I., President, Railway Board,

To—C P. WALSH, Esq., Secretary to the Government of Bengal, Public Works Department.

Will you please refer to our letter No. 188-F.-16 of 17th June 1916 and the reply of your Government, No. 282-R. of 10th February 1917 on the subject of State and Company management? The broad issue then placed before local Governments was which of these systems had the advantage under Indian conditions, and an endeavour was made in an enclosure to our letter to state the arguments on both sides: amongst other factors it was noted as one of the defects alleged against the present system that the Boards of Indian Companies are located in London. Following up the point a third alternative has been suggested, namely, neither to retain the existing system intact nor to have recourse to State management but to have an Indian company with a Board of Directors in India. The proposed Board, it is suggested, would include, as the Home Boards do at present, a Government Director with a power of veto. This plan seems to have certain advantages. Your Government appeared on the whole to be in favour of State management, but the alternative of management by a company domiciled in India was not specifically placed before them It is possible that many who have pressed for State management would be satisfied by a change which while retaining Company management brought the Directorate into closer touch with Indian conditions. We should be glad to be favoured with the views of your Government first as to the general merits of this suggested alternative and secondly as to the practicability of constituting a satisfactory Board of Directors in India. The doubt which has been suggested is whether under Indian conditions, and particularly in view of the fluctuations in the personnel of the commercial community, a strong enough Board could be constituted in India. The particular case which is now to be settled, and with reference to which these questions have to be considered, is that of the East Indian Railway Company, and in this case there would be the commercial community (both European and Indian) of Calcutta and Cawnpore on which to draw for a Directorate. This case is now actually under the consideration of the Secretary of State. To save time therefore I am writing unofficially; and I hope you will be able to let us have a reply before the end of May.

Demi-official letter No. 188-F.-16, dated Simla, the 4th April 1918 Serial No.

From—The HON'BLE SIR ROBERT GILLAN, K. C S.I, President, Railway Board,

To—The HON'BLE MR S. P. O'DONNELL, I. C. S, Chief Secretary to Government, United Provinces, Allahabad.

Will you please refer to our letter No. 188-F.-16 of 27th June 1916 and the reply of your Government of the 7th February 1917 on the subject of State and Company management? The broad issue then placed before local Governments was which of these systems had the advantage under Indian conditions and an endeavour was made in an enclosure to our letter to state the arguments on both sides; amongst other factors it was noted as one of the defects alleged against the present system that the Boards of Indian Companies are located in London. Following up this point a third alternative has been suggested, namely neither to retain the existing system intact nor to have recourse to State management but to have an Indian Company with a Board of Directors in India. The proposed Board, it is suggested, would include, as the Home Boards do at present, a Government Director with a power of veto. This plan seems to have certain advantages. Sir Harcourt Butler as Lieutenant-Governor of Burma expressed his opinion as in favour of Company management but even those who favour this system on general grounds have to admit that there are serious drawbacks in arrangements which as at present place so much of the control in England. On the other hand it appears probable that much of the agitation in favour of State management arises out of the fact that the direction of the companies is out of touch with Indian conditions and would be satisfied to a considerable extent by the management of the railway by an Indian instead of an English company, especially if, as is suggested, some Indian directors were included on the Board. The doubt which has been suggested is whether under Indian conditions, and particularly in view of the fluctuations in the personnel of the commercial community, a strong enough Board could be constituted in India. The particular case which is now to be settled is that of the East Indian Railway Company, and in this case there would consequently be the commercial community of Cawnpore and Calcutta on which to draw for a Directorate. Your Government is one of those particularly interested in the management of this system, and we should be much obliged if we could have an expression of its views on the new alternative I have stated. The matter is now actually under the consideration of the Secretary of State. To save time therefore I am writing un-officially, and I hope you will be able to let us have a reply before the end of May.

To—R. J. KENT, Esq., Assoc. M. Inst. C. E., Joint Secretary, Government of Bombay, Public Works Department, Bombay.

Please refer to our letter No. 188-F. of 27th June 1916 and your reply dated 5th April 1917 on the subject of State and Company management. As an alternative on the one hand to State management and on the other to the continuance of the present system the suggestion that at any rate the Boards of Directors of Indian Railway Companies should be located in India has attracted considerable attention and we have been making enquiries about it. On the merits of this suggestion the opinion of your Government is clearly expressed in paragraph 5 (b) of your letter. A doubt, however, has been expressed whether under Indian conditions, and in view particularly of the fluctuating character of a large portion of the commercial community, it would be possible to form a Board of sufficient strength and permanence ; it will be necessary to deal specifically with this point and I am to invite the opinion of your Government on it. As the question of policy in connection with the renewal of the East Indian Railway contract is already under the consideration of the Secretary of State the matter is urgent. To save time I am writing therefore unofficially. I am to express the hope that you will be able to let us have a reply by the end of May.

With reference to your demi-official letter No. 188-F-16 of 4th April 1918, asking for the views of this Government on a third alternative to State or Company management of railways in India, I should be glad to know whether you desire that this Government should ascertain the views of public bodies in Calcutta, who are interested in the question, before expressing their own views. I venture to make this enquiry as the subject of your letter is at present in demiofficial form and I am in doubt whether you desire that the alternative proposal should be made public at the present stage to the extent which would be necessary in ascertaining the views of public bodies.

I am sorry for the delay in replying to your letter No. 526-R., on the State and Company question. We have addressed enquiries on the suggestion of having an Indian Company to the Bengal Chamber and National Chamber, and I think in the circumstances it will be sufficient if your Government let us know their own views without consulting public bodies.

Will you kindly refer to your demi-official No. 188-F.-16, of 4th April on the subject of Railway managements.

Sir Harcourt Butler has given careful consideration to the proposal mentioned in your letter, namely that instead of either the existing system or purely State management, a railway should be administered by an Indian Company with a Board of Directors in India. The proposed Board would include a Government Director with a power of veto. I am to say that His Honour is in entire sympathy with this scheme. A similar suggestion was made in paragraphs 5 and 6 of this Government's letter No 67-R.-673 of the 7th February 1917. Sir Harcourt Butler agrees with Sir James Meston's view that the main justification for the location of the Boards of Indian railway companies in London was that the entire capital had to be raised there. The situation in this respect is changing. His Honour is also of the opinion that Boards composed of men engaged in business in India are likely to be in much closer touch with actual requirements than Boards in London with directors, who have retired from active business in India. The Lieutenant-Governor also agrees with you in thinking that it is desirable that some Indian directors should be included on the Boards.

2. With regard to the particular case of the East Indian Railway Company Sir Harcourt Butler has no doubt that a strong and efficient board can be recruited from among the commercial community of Cawnpore and Calcutta.

With reference to your demi-official No. 188-F.-16 of 13th April 1918, on the subject of the location of the Boards of Directors of Indian Railway Companies in India, I am directed to say that, in the opinion of this Government both for the reasons stated in your letter and also owing to the fact in this country there is at present no available class of independent gentlemen having property or influence on any particular railway system, or of residents with wide railway experience such as one usually finds on railway Boards in England, it would be extremely difficult if not impossible to form Boards of sufficient strength and permanence in this country.

I am to reiterate, however, that His Excellency the Governor and the majority of his colleagues are strongly opposed to Board of Directors of Indian Railways being domiciled in England, and are in favour of all the main Railway lines in India being brought under State management.

Will you please refer to the correspondence ending with your demi-official No. 188-F.-16 of 30th April 1918 on the subject of a third alternative to State or Company management of Railways in India ?

2. I am to say in reply that the statement in your letter of 4th April 1918 that the Bengal Government "appeared on the whole to be in favour of State management" hardly represents with sufficient precision what was stated in the official reply of this Government No. 282-R., dated 9th February 1917. It is rather that the Government of Bengal are in favour of the co-existence of the two systems of State management and Company management. At the same time His Excellency in Council realises that the existence of Home Boards of the more important Company managed lines does constitute a serious difficulty in railway administration in this country ; in as much as these Boards are conservative, slow and inaccessible. As regards the alternative suggested in your letter, I am to say that this Government would have no objection to the constitution of any purely local Board, provided that it really takes the place of the Home Board, and is not simply the delegate of the latter. They are not blind however, to the probability that this arrangement might be resented by the large number of the sterling shareholders of leading trunk lines, who are usually resident in the United Kingdom. It is also believed that notwithstanding the fluctuations in the personnel of the commercial community in India it would be possible to form such local Boards in this country.

3. In regard to the applicability of local Boards for light and feeder Railways floated on rupee capital the Government of Bengal are of opinion that where these are at present managed by Home Boards, the Companies should certainly be encouraged or induced to substitute responsible Boards of Directors resident in India.

I am directed to refer again to the question of State and Company management of Indian railways which was raised in the Railway Board's letter No. 118-F.-16 of 27th June 1916. In your reply of the 8th November 1916 your Chamber expressed the view that both systems had their advantages as well as their disadvantages and that it is desirable to give a further trial to the present arrangement under which some lines are managed by companies and some by the State. At the same time thay pointed out that as matters stand at present, since the Boards of Directors of various important systems are located thousands of miles away in England, difficulties of a very serious nature exist in the way of these Boards exercising the degree of control which is necessary for efficient management. The same objection was taken to the present system by several other authorities and to meet it the suggestion has been made that instead of retaining the existing system intact, or on the other hand of having recourse to State management, the best arrangement would be to have an Indian Company with a Board of Directors in India. The proposed Board, it is suggested, would include, as the Home Boards do at present, a Government Director with a power of veto ; for the rest of the Board there would be the commercial community, both European and Indian, in Calcutta and Cawnpore, on which to draw. A doubt, however, has been suggested whether under Indian conditions, and particularly in view of the fluctuations in the personnel of the commercial community, a strong enough Board could be constituted in India in the event of the control of the East Indian Railway being transferred to an Indian Company. I am to enquire the opinion of your Chamber on the question whether it would be possible, in the event of the control of the East Indian Railway being transferred to an Indian Company, to constitute a Board of sufficient strength and permanence in India. I am also to invite the careful examination by your Chamber of the relative merits of a Board in London and a Board in India having regard to the advantages and disadvantages of either system.

I am to ask you to be good enough to let me have the considered opinion of your Chamber on the questions raised in this letter before the end of May.

I am directed to refer again to the question of State and Company management of Indian railways which was raised in the Railway Board's letter No. 188-F.-16 of 27th June 1916. In your reply of 18th October 1916, your Chamber expressed their view as being strongly in favour of the continuance of the present system, namely management by a Company situate in London. The broad issue then placed before your Chamber was whether a system of State or Company management has the advantage under Indian conditions, and an endeavour was made in an enclosure to our letter to state the arguments on both sides. A third alternative has been suggested to the Government of India, namely, neither to retain the existing system intact nor to have recourse to State management, but to have an Indian Company with a Board of Directors in India. The proposed Board, it is suggested, would include, as the Home Boards do at present, a Government Director with power of veto; for the rest of the Board there would be the commercial community, both European and Indian, in Calcutta and Cawnpore, on which to draw. I am directed to refer again to the question of State and Company management of Indian Railways, which was raised in the Railway Board's letter No. 188-F.-16 of 27th June 1916. In your reply of 1st December 1916, your Chamber expressed themselves as being strongly in favour of State management. They will no doubt in this connection compare both the relative merits of Boards in London with Boards in India, and of an Indian Company having its Board in India with a system of State management. A doubt, however, has been suggested whether under Indian conditions, and particularly in view of the fluctuations in the personnel of the commercial community, a Board of sufficient strength and permanence could be constituted in India; and the point is one that should not be overlooked in dealing with the proposal.

I am directed to refer again to the question of State and Company management of Indian railways which was raised in the Railway Board's letter No. 188-F.-16 of 27th June 1916. In your reply of 16th August 1916 your Chamber while realising that there are probable advantages in the simultaneous existence of both systems of management, favoured on the management by Companies in preference to management by the State. They supported also the location of Companies' Boards in London. At the same time they were apparently conscious of certain defects in this arrangement since they made various suggestions to ensure the London Boards being in closer touch with the management of their lines and with Indian conditions. By various other authorities who were consulted at the same time it was represented that the location of the Companies' Boards in London is a serious defect in the present system, and a definite suggestion has accordingly been made that instead of retaining the present system intact, or on the other hand of having recourse to State management, the better plan would be to have an Indian Company with a Board of Directors in India. The proposed Board, it is suggested, would include, as the Home Boards do at present, a Government Director with a power of veto; for the rest of the Board there would be the commercial community, both European and Indian, served by the particular system in question, on which to draw. Your Chamber unhesitatingly recommended a renewal of the contract with the East Indian Railway which is shortly to expire, but at the same time expressed their opinion that it would be in every way advantageous if the Boards of Company-managed railways could eventually be established in India and not in London. This solution of the problem has also been suggested to the Government of India from other quarters, but a doubt has been suggested whether under Indian conditions, and particularly in view of the fluctuations in the personnel of the commercial community, a strong enough Board could be constituted in India. I have to acknowledge the receipt of your letter No. 188-F.-16, dated the 5th instant. In reply, I am desired by my Committee to say that they do not approve of the proposed third alternative, viz., the Management by Companies with a Board in India. The proposed alternative will not meet the objections raised in paragraph 3 of my Committee's letter dated the 1st December 1916.

Dated Cawnpore, the 18th May 1918. Serial No. $\frac{4}{18}$.

From—The Secretary, Upper India Chamber of Commerce,

To—The Secretary, Railway Board.

I am directed to refer to your No. 188-F.-16, dated the 5th April, on the subject of the renewal of the contract with the East Indian Railway.

My Committee note that others have also advanced the suggestion put forward by the Chamber in my letter of the 23rd August 1916, to the effect that when renewing the contract of the East Indian Railway it would be advantageous if the Boards of Company-managed Railways could be established in India. It is observed however that a doubt is entertained as to whether, under Indian conditions, a strong enough Board could be constituted in India.

My Committee do not share this doubt. They have examined the relative merits of a Board in London and a Board in India, and the only advantage that occurs to them of the Railway having had a London Board is that it formerly facilitated finance. This advantage can no longer be claimed. With the changed conditions brought about by the war, any financial advantage attaching to an English Board has largely disappeared and the position is, if anything, reversed.

During the coming reconstruction period English capital will be fully occupied with English requirements, and there should be abundant capital available in India for application to Indian purposes. The transfer of the Board to India presupposes the creation of an Indian Company and the conversion of the capital to rupee capital. The financial condition of India is now such as to promise success in this conversion. Money is readily forthcoming for any sound business proposition, and in recent years the Indian investing public has shown a marked partiality for railway investments. The recent war loan proved that India was capable of thinking and giving in bigger figures. A few years ago, 3 crores was about the limit of India's annual contribution to Government loans, whereas last year this was increased fifteenfold. Doubtless there was a patriotic incentive to this effort, but it proved that the money was available.

My Committee consider that there will be no difficulty in constituting a Board of sufficient strength in India.

This Board would obviously be a mixed one, of Indians and Europeans. The Presidency Banks and the many large and prosperous joint stock undertakings afford abundant proof that highly efficient Boards can be constituted in India.

For the advantages of an Indian Board much may be said. It would be composed of men on the spot and in touch with constantly changing conditions, men who move about on the Railways and are cognizant, at first hand, of defects, and able immediately to remedy them to the advantage of the public. A Home Board on the other hand must in great measure be limited in their knowledge to what is disclosed in official reports, a system which, with the best of intentions, must be unsatisfactory.

The history of Indian undertakings goes to show that companies managed on the spot compare most favourably with the rapidly decreasing number of Indian companies managed at home.

In the case of the East Indian Railway an Indian Board will be of particular value when, after the war, the question of developments will have to be taken in hand.

It would be closely in touch with the financial, industrial and commercial interests of the country and the association of Europeans and Indians in the control of an important railway would have a good effect politically.

No. 456-101, dated Bombay, the 20th May 1918.

From—The Secretary, Chamber of Commerce, Bombay,

To—The Secretary, Railway Board.

I am directed to acknowledge receipt of your letter No. 188-F.-16, dated the 4th ultimo, regarding the question of State and Company management of Indian Railways and inviting the opinion of this Chamber on the points raised therein.

2. In reply I am to state that this matter has again received very careful consideration, especially from the point of view of the location of the Boards of Directors, and that the opinion of the majority of my Committee is in favour of the establishment of these Boards in India for the following reasons:—

(a) That the London Board system is out of date and the Directors are out of touch with the constantly changing conditions in this country and with the needs of the Railway staff.

(b) Under the present system it appears to be almost impossible to avoid the serious delays caused by references to London; Agent's powers of sanction being limited.

(c) Boards of Directors if located in India would have a closer knowledge of the need for improvements to meet the requirements of traffic and would, it is submitted, be in a better position to foster and develop the trade of the country than the London Boards. The obstructive attitude of some of the latter has militated against the development of this country by means of feeder lines.

(d) The transfer of the headquarters of the Railway Companies from England to India would doubtless involve eventually the partial transfer of Capital into Indian hands and the view of the majority of my Committee is that it is eminently desirable to increase the financial stake held by the Indian in his own country and also that the field for investment in Indian Railway Securities should be extended. The demands of the London money market after the war will probably be such as to compel India to rely more on her own resources, or, in other words, Indian Railways, if more capital be required, will probably be compelled to borrow in India on a rupee basis rather than in London on a sterling basis. If this be so it seems to the majority of my Committee to remove one of the principal arguments in favour of the location of the Boards in London. Following the argument that English capital is more likely to invest in Indian Railways if the Boards be located in England, Indian capital should and probably will be more attracted by the location of the Boards in this country.

(e) Such of the functions of the present London Boards as could not be performed directly by Boards located in India could, it is submitted, be adequately performed by Agents or Committees in London. It is contended, for example, that such Agents or Committees in London could do all that is necessary in the London financial market and in the purchase of stores, locomotives, etc. They could also arrange references to the Consulting Engineers on the subject of bridges and so forth and lastly they could approach the Secretary of State when necessary. With regard to the latter point the majority of my Committee are not convinced that the direct access of the London Boards to the Secretary of State has been an unmixed blessing as it must tend to weaken the authority and undermine the position of the Railway Board in India. Moreover it is believed that future developments will be in the direction of freeing the Government of India more and more from the detailed control of the Secretary of State, and if this be so any advantages which may be claimed for direct communication between the Board and the Secretary of State will tend to disappear. The foregoing appear to be the special functions of the existing Boards which local Boards could not directly perform.

3. As regards the latter part of your letter under reply, in which it is stated that there is some doubt as to whether under Indian conditions and particularly in view of the fluctuations in the personnel of the commerial community, a Board of sufficient strength and permanence could be constituted, it is admitted that difficulties do exist, but the view of the majority of my Committee is that these are not insuperable. It is true that at present, particularly in this city, a limited number of gentlemen hold a very large number of directorships ; such gentlemen from the very multiplicity of their offices would be unable to give to the affairs of a large railway the time and attention which a seat on its Board would require. At the same time the majority of my Committee are of opinion that there are not a few competent business men who for one reason or another do not ordinarily accept directorships or accept very few, but who would be willing to accept a seat on a Company such as a railway. In order to secure the most suitable Directors it would be necessary to remunerate them on a scale similar to that obtaining in England and the Directors might then be subject to certain restrictions and limitations as to the number and nature of other Directorships which they might hold. If this were done, it is thought that competent Boards could be secured.

4. My Committee are not unanimous on the subject matter of this correspondence and, as has been pointed out, the foregoing represents the views of the majority. They feel, however, that the opinion of the minority on the Committee of this Chamber should also be put forward for consideration and the views of the latter, favouring the location of the Boards in London, are as follows :—

(a) The delays complained of when references are made to the London Boards could be minimized by the boards being required to delegate larger powers to their Agents in India. Investigation would show that the London Boards are not wholly responsible for the delays and in considering the Railway Board's position it should not be overlooked that its operations have been largely controlled by the money placed at its disposal in the yearly Budget.

(b) As regards feeder lines. If a Company refuses to give the necessary guarantee or rebate to these lines it is always open to Government to do so. The minority would here add that the intervention of the London Boards has often been of value and has prevented the construction of lines of little use. It is felt that the remedy, if one be needed, is not to bring the Boards to India, but for the Railway Board to put a clause in the contract, requiring Railways to whom lines are leased, to undertake the working of such feeder lines as they may decide are to be built, on such terms as Government may lay down.

(c) The objection that the London Boards are out of touch with India probably arises because those interested have found that railway facilities have not kept pace with the traffic. This, it is submitted, is not due to want of knowledge but to want of funds, the responsibility for which rests on the Government of India and not on the London Boards. The latter have usually on their directorate gentlemen who have recently served in India and who are quite in touch with the requirements of this country and the practice of sending a Director periodically to India (and this the minority emphasize as essential), enables the Home Boards to keep in touch with the changing conditions. If, moreover, the London Boards are not considered sufficiently strong at present the minority of my Committee submit that there will be no difficulty in securing in England, Directors with special knowledge of Railway administration and that, if necessary, it might be insisted upon that a large proportion of the Directors of the London Boards should hold this special qualification.

(d) A point in favour of the Boards being retained in London is the fact that the final arbiter of the Railway policy in India is the Secretary of State for India The Boards by their location in London are in close touch with him, through his representatives, who attend the Board's meetings. With the location of the Boards in India, this advantage will be gone and the trade will be deprived of a very useful protection.

(e) The proposed alternative to the London Boards is a Board in India composed of Europeans and Indians. The great drawback of such a Board would be (1) lack of essential knowledge of Railway working, (2) a comparatively limited number of men from whom such a Board could be selected and (3) frequent changes in the personnel, especially as regards Europeans, which must militate against efficiency. The Board would have to be selected from men who are mostly fully employed and who would have very little time to give to the working of the Railway. These conditions would make it extremely difficult to obtain a really efficient Board.

(f) The minority of my Committee does not agree that the English financial market must necessarily in the future be considered closed to India and that therefore one of the advantages of having the Boards in London will disappear. No one can definitely say that this will be so and the minority therefore submit it will be unwise to do away with a channel which has admittedly been of great value in the past unless great compensations in other directions are forthcoming from the change.

(g) The purchase of stores, etc., in England is by no means the least of the functions of the London Boards, and the co-operation of Boards with their Consulting Engineer situated in the same city, is of the greatest advantage in arriving at decisions such as are necessary in designing bridges, locomotives, etc. Such collaborations are of great value and enable railways to keep in touch with the latest practice in other parts of the world. If the Board of Directors were in India, it would be still necessary for them to have Agents in London. Railway Companies in the Argentine are controlled by Boards situated in London, exactly as is the case in India. Those railways have not been restricted in finance in the same degree as have the Indian Railways and they are accepted as some of the most go-ahead Railways in the world. If the system has answered well in that country, where conditions are very similar to those in India, it is difficult to conceive why it should be a failure in this country. The minority of my Committee therefore venture to suggest that it would be best to retain the present organization and remove the objections by protecting clauses in new contracts.

No. 161, dated Calcutta, the 13th June 1918. Serial No. 9.

From—The Honorary Secretary, Bengal National Chamber of Commerce,

To—The Secretary, Railway Board.

I am directed by the Committee of the Bengal National Chamber of Commerce to acknowledge the receipt of your letter No. 188-F.-16, dated the 4th-5th April last, referring again to the question of State Company management of Railways in India. As a solution of the difficulties pointed out in our letter dated the 8th November 1916, arising out of the Boards of Management of several Railways in India being placed at a long distance in London, it has been suggested that the best arrangement would be to have an Indian Company with Board of Directors in India, constituted on the lines of the Home Board having a Government Director with the power of veto and members consisting of the representatives of the Commercial Communities both European and Indian in Calcutta and Cawnpore. A doubt is entertained, in view of the fluctuation in the personnel of the European Commercial Community, whether a sufficiently strong Board could be constituted in India, in the event of the control of the East Indian Railway being transferred to an Indian Company and the views of the Chamber are invited on this particular point as also on the relative merits of a Board in London and a Board in India having regard to the advantages and disadvantages of either system.

The question is beset with difficulties. The Committee have given their best consideration to the subject and desire to submit the following observations:—

For the purpose of efficient management of an important Railway, the Board of management should have amongst its members experienced administrators and financiers, businessmen and Railway experts of proved merit. In the matter of raising loans for Railways the Government will find it difficult to obtain that amount of help from the Directors in the proposed Board in India as they are getting now from the present London Board. The Committee, while they recognise the advantage of developing Railways in India with Indian capital, have doubts as to the present financial capacity of the country to undertake the task. They do not believe that there is any large unutilised wealth lying hoarded anywhere in the country and that Government will be able to raise loans in India sufficient for the proper development of Railways in the country at 3½ per cent or at such moderate rates of interest for a long time to come Under the circumstances the restriction of connection with the London money marketby the transfer of the Board of Control of Railways from London to India has its risks.

There is a paucity of Railway experts in the country. Experts for the Board, if it be formed in India, will have to be recruited from abroad. Such a course will involve additional expenditure.

Another argument in favour of the London Board is that it acts as an agency for purchasing Railway stores and equipment in the cheapest market. In the event of an Indian Board being formed an agency will have to be retained in London for the purchase of Railway materials which also will involve extra expenditure.

Finally the fluctuations in the personnel of the European commercial community will now and then raise difficulties in the way of maintaining the strength of an Indian Board up to a high level of efficiency.

On the other hand an Indian Board of management has its peculiar advantages. The formation of an Indian Board with representatives of Indian and European commercial communities will ensure in time a steady flow of Indian capital for Railway undertakings and may help to create a situation favourable for eventually obtaining the capital necessary for Railway development in the country. It will ensure proper representation of Indians in the higher administrative staffs of Railways and thereby make provision for a proper number of Railway experts being always available in the country for the successful administration of Railways at a less cost with indigenous agency. The Board being on the spot will be able to dispose of more expeditiously various cases of difficulties which frequently arise in the working of the Railway. The members of the Board, being mostly business men, representing both the Indian and European Commercial interests and having personal knowledge of local requirements and conditions, will be in a better position to conduct the administration and give directions as to the lines on which the Railways should be developed with a view to utilise the natural and industrial resources of the country.

The Committee think it will not be out of place here to quote from Mr. Bell's "Railway Policy in India" (page 32) a passage which is very relevant in this connection. He was not without hope that, "native capital would be induced to enter this field, and that he should regard such a movement as an important factor in the practical education of the people............... If ever the natives of this country are to be schooled in the first requirements of Self-Government, it is desirable that they should be encouraged to act for themselves in such matters, rather than they should rely always upon that coercive philanthropy which insists upon doing every thing for them."

In the event of Government deciding not to disturb the present arrangement the Committee would suggest the formation of Local Subordinate Boards with representatives of Indian and European Commercial Communities or constitution of Local Committees, like that of the East Indian Railway, which is now merely a consulting and advisory body, vested with power for controlling establishment, transportation of goods, passenger, traffic, rates, etc. Such a system is calculated to effect an improvement upon the present arrangement and make the Railway administration in various ways more popular and subservient to the interests of the country.

Serial No. 5.

No. 1446, dated 3rd July 1918.

From—The Secretary, Bengal Chamber of Commerce,

To—The Secretary, Railway Board.

I am directed to acknowledge the receipt of your letter No. 188-F.-16, dated 4th-5th April 1918, on the subject of the management of the Indian railways.

2. You refer to the previous correspondence on the question of the advantages of state as opposed to company management, and you indicate that a third alternative has now been suggested to the Government of India, namely, that they should neither retain the existing system intact nor have recourse to state management, but that they should form an Indian Company with a board of directors in this country. And you go on to invite the Chamber to discuss the relative merits of a Board in London, and a board in India; and to state whether, in the event of the control of the East Indian Railway being transferred to an Indian company, it would be possible to constitute in this country a board of directors of sufficient strength and permanence.

3. The existing contract between the Secretary of State and the East Indian Railway will come to an end next year, and the question of whether it should be renewed, and if it is renewed, upon what terms and conditions, is closely associated with the present discussion. The Bengal Chamber of Commerce is very keenly interested in everything that affects the welfare of the East Indian Railway, and the views which I express in this letter should be understood as having reference primarily to that undertaking. When examining the question of the relative advantages and disadvantages of state, as compared with company management the Committee of the Chamber said—in my letter of the 18th October 1916 to your address—that they favoured the continued existence of the home boards, and they outlined the reasons upon which they based that conclusion. They have now examined the alternative proposal, to which you have drawn their attention, and they have given due weight to the arguments which can be advanced in support of it. These have not, however, convinced them that their previous conclusion was wrong, and they still hold that the railway companies ought to remain English companies under the management of boards of directors in the United Kingdom.

4. In explanation of this conclusion it is desirable, the Committee feel, for them to set out shortly the several arguments both for, and against, the new proposal. One argument which may be reasonably brought forward in its favour is that many large and important undertakings are already efficiently managed as Indian companies. The Presidency Banks may be cited as an example; and it has also to be remembered that the principal Indian ports are controlled by bodies analogous to boards of directors. Moreover, as the industrial development of India proceeds, it may be assumed that the number of large undertakings managed by local directors will greatly increase. Another point in support of the proposal is that the directors of the Indian companies would be more intimately acquainted with the every-day needs and requirements of the railways, and their constituents, than boards located in London can possibly be. They would have a better knowledge of current problems; they would be more up-to-date; and they would be in much closer touch with local conditions. Furthermore, the presence of Indians among them would no doubt do much towards removing the railways from the danger, in which they are now placed of becoming the subject of unwise political agitation.

5. Then again it may be argued, and the argument is not without force, that the war has so altered the position in the matter of finance that the principal reason for the existence of the home boards has more or less disappeared. And if finance is in the future to be found in this country it might be a good thing to have boards of directors here to represent the interest of the shareholders. But in this connection it must not be forgotten that the railways are to all intents and purposes Government-owned. This fact is known to all Indian investors; and Indian boards would not therefore have quite the same importance to Indian investors as the London boards have to home investors. It has been also urged that the Indian boards, being on the spot, would be able to deal with the current business more expeditiously than the London boards can do, as no time would be wasted in communicating with them. This might be a substantial advantage, although the Committee believe it to be the general experience of the company-managed lines that the gap which exists between the agent and the board does not lead to delays of any consequence.

6. The Committee of the Chamber admit, as you will have seen from what I have written, that there is something to be said for the new proposal. But the disadvantages which would attach to such a system appear to them greatly to outweigh the possible advantages. The most serious difficulty would be in connection with the personnel of the Indian boards. There are in the United Kingdom many retired commercial men and railway officers with wide experience of Indian railway working and conditions, and with the leisure necessary to enable them to take office as directors of railway companies. It may be urged of course that these men are in many cases too old; that they belong to the past, and are behind the times; and that their control is altogether too conservative. Against this, however, it must be remembered that those of them who have had railway experience in India have the technical knowledge which some at least of the directors of a great railway company ought to possess. Directors with commercial experience might be found in India; but the Committee of the Chamber fail to see from where it would be possible to provide the required number of trained railway men. And, even as regards the commercial element, it would not be easy for the heads of large firms—from whom the commercial directors would naturally be recruited—to give the necessary time to their duties. For these duties, if they are to be efficiently performed, would make a considerable demand upon the time and attention of the directors. The boards in London usually consist of a chairman, and five or six members, of whom one is generally styled either deputy chairman, or managing director, and who is a fairly busy man, attending office on most of the days of the week. On all the railways at present either the chairman or the managing director, generally the latter, is a retired railway man, and in some cases both have had railway experience.

7. Another difficulty, which would arise in connection with the personnel of Indian boards, would be the changes that would be constantly taking place. This trouble is already experienced in all Indian concerns that are managed by boards of directors, or bodies corresponding to such. It is a serious obstacle in the way of efficiency, and it would be certain to be reflected in the general administration of so large a concern as an Indian railway. Then again one of the important duties of the home boards is the engagement of superior staff, both officer and subordinate. So far as regards Europeans there is no field in India upon which to draw, and there seems to be no doubt that for many years a large, though possibly a diminishing, proportion of the superior staff must be European. An Indian board would be in difficulties in this matter, and they would have no alternative, presumably, but to place themselves in the hands of the India Office, by whom such men are engaged for the state railways. To this extent, therefore, the control of the undertaking would pass from the board.

8. The question of the consulting engineers, to whom are referred all matters of engineering design, whether of rolling stock, plant, or material, would also have to be considered. There are no engineers in India who could take the place of the home firms who are now employed; and the Indian board would have to refer to the consulting engineers to the India Office. It is true that this firm are also the consulting engineers to several of the Indian railway companies including the East Indian Railway. But there would be a great deal of practical difficulty in the case of a company which would then be forced to change its consulting engineers. Again, indents for all stores and materials, which have to be imported from the United Kingdom, would require to be dealt with by the India Office, as is now the case with the state railways.

9. Another point in favour of the boards being retained in London—and in the opinion of the Committee it is a point of great importance—is that the final decision on railway policy rests with the Secretary of State for India. By their location in London the boards are in close touch with the India Office, and were they to be located in India this great advantage would be gone.

10. The Committee have now set out the arguments, as they understand them, both for and against the proposal for the establishment of boards of directors in India; and, as I have indicated, they have come to the conclusion that the advantages of the existing system greatly outweigh any advantages that might attach to the proposed system. It follows that they answer unmistakably in the negative the enquiry whether, in the event of the control of the East Indian Railway being transferred to an Indian company, it would be possible to constitute a board of sufficient strength and permanence in India.

11. Although the Committee take this view they do not mean to suggest that they would not like to see greater control exercised in this country over the administration of the East Indian Railway. For they feel that the general public, and in particular the commercial community, may legitimately expect to have a voice in the control of a great railway. The function of a board of directors is to manage a concern in the interests of the shareholders, but in the case of a public utility, such as a railway the views of the public are also entitled to consideration. As regards the East Indian line this claim was really admitted as far back as 1890 when the then Chairman, the late General Sir Richard Strachey, established the local Consulting Committee. This body has not, it must be confessed, altogether realised the anticipations of those by whom it was constituted; and the reason for this is not difficult to understand. For the Committee—the members of which are drawn from the commercial community—is merely an advisory body, called together from time to time by the Agent of the line, for the discussion of any matter in respect of which he may require the advice of business men. It has no defined functions, no particular status, and no fixed duties or responsibilities. It consequently exercises but little influence, and it is certainly not a satisfactory link between the management of the railway and the public.

12. There seems, however, to the Chamber to be no reason why this Committee—now that the future control of the East Indian Railway is under discussion—should not become an integral part of the administration. It might be given a definite position and status, and to it might be assigned certain powers, duties, and responsibilities. It might be made definitely representative of the commercial community, and through them the general public, by empowering certain bodies, such as the Chambers of Commerce, to appoint its members. These members would then have constituencies to whose interests they would be required to look, and by whom they could be removed if necessary. They would be of course both European and Indian, and there would seem to the Chamber to be many matters in respect of which they might render useful service, both to the railway and to their constituencies. It is difficult to make anything approaching to a comprehensive list of the matters with which such a body might be empowered to deal. But there must, for example, be many questions coming under the heading of establishment and allowances to the staff of the line which might be dealt with by the Committee. And the important matter of the appointment of locally recruited men might also, it would seem, be handed over to them. The appointment of the home recruited staff would be of course left in the hands of the London board, and by them also the selection of the chief officers and heads of departments would naturally continue to be made. But the staff recruited in India whether Indian or European, might be selected by the Committee, in consultation of course with the agent and the other principal officers of the line. The difficult question of rates is one which might also come before the Committee. The actual fixing of rates is a matter for traffic experts. But there would seem to be no reason why the Committee should not be empowered to consider complaints, and applications for concessions having for their object the encouragement of local industries and trade. Changes in rates might likewise be discussed if necessary. The matter of the purchase of local stores, which is bound to be of increasing importance in the future, might also be left to the Committee. And, similarly, they might be authorised to deal with questions relating to sidings, powers in respect of which are now exercised by the agent. Then there must also be numerous matters connected with the welfare of the line, such as the provision of railway schools, and the improvement of the technical education of the staff, sanitation, etc., which might usefully occupy the attention of the Committee.

13. In this letter it is only possible for the Chamber to indicate, thus briefly and imperfectly, how the Consulting Committee might be changed into a body which would be enabled, by its constitution, to take a real and an effective part in the management of the railway. Such a Committee would not control the general policy of administration, nor would it seek to usurp the legitimate powers and duties of the board of directors, or of the agent. But it would be the means of bringing the public, both European and Indian, into closer touch with the management, for with its assistance grievances might be ventilated, and remedial measures applied. And, as it would be required to perform useful and serious work, and to exercise real powers, it would be likely to attract the services of capable and public-spirited men who, while anxious to give all possible assistance, could not be expected to undertake the onerous duties which must necessarily fall to the board of directors of so great an undertaking as the East Indian Railway.

14. The question of finance has been mentioned in an earlier paragraph. It is generally anticipated that one of the results of the war will be to make the raising of capital, in the London market, for Indian railways a matter of great difficulty. If this anticipation prove to be correct the required capital will have to be raised in India, and the Committee of the Chamber have no doubt that this possibility will be considered in connection with the question of the renewal of the East Indian Railway Company's contract. They are inclined to the view that rupee capital entitled to a share in the profits might be issued, and they think such capital might be made attractive on terms somewhat similar to the branch line terms offered by the Government of India for the capital of branch lines. Indian railway traffic is developing, and it does not seem to be unlikely that East Indian Railway share or stock capital might be made attractive in this way.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

PROCEEDINGS OF THE INDIAN LEGISLATIVE COUNCIL ASSEMBLED UNDER THE PROVISIONS OF THE GOVERNMENT OF INDIA ACT, 1915.
(5 & 6 Geo. V, Ch. 61.)

THE Council met at the Council Chamber, Viceregal Lodge, Simla, on Friday, the 6th September, 1918.

PRESENT :

His Excellency BARON CHELMSFORD, P.C., G.M.S.I., G.M.I.E., G.C.M.G., G.C.B.E., Viceroy and Governor General, presiding, and 57 Members 49 of whom were Additional Members.

RESOLUTION ON REFORM PROPOSALS.

11-4 A.M.

The Hon'ble Mr. Surendra Nath Banerjea :—"My Lord, I have the honour to move the following Resolution :—

'This Council, while thanking His Excellency the Viceroy and the Secretary of State for India for the Reform proposals, and recognising them as a genuine effort and a definite advance towards the progressive realization of responsible government in India, recommends to the Governor General in Council that a Committee consisting of all the non-official Members of this Council be appointed to consider the Reforms Report and make recommendations to the Government of India.'

"My Lord, my Resolution divides itself into two parts. The first is in the nature of a preamble or preface ; the second is the operative part of the Resolution. The Resolution thanks your Excellency and the Right Hon'ble the Secretary of State for the Reform proposals. It then proceeds to state the reason for this expression of gratitude, and finally recommends the formation of a Committee to submit proposals for the consideration of the Government of India. The Committee is to consist entirely of non-official Members of this Council, and, my Lord, here perhaps a word of explanation is necessary. My Hon'ble friends on the official benches must not assume that by not including them in this Committee, I desire to cast any reflection upon them or show any want of confidence in their judgment with regard to these proposals.

RESOLUTION ON REFORM PROPOSALS.

[Mr. Surendra Nath Banerjea.] [6TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.]

"I am animated by far different motives The Report which is the subject-matter of this discussion has been presented to the Cabinet by the highest authorities connected with the government of India. It has behind it the support of the authority of your Excellency and of the Right Hon'ble the Secretary of State for India, and your respective Councils. In one sense it is the product of the highest official wisdom, guided by sympathy with Indian aspirations and a keen solicitude to uplift India to a status of equality with the self-governing Dominions of the Crown But, my Lord, after all it is an official report. The officials have had their say. The Right Hon'ble the Secretary of State has invited public criticism. We are of the public, the representatives of the public in this Council, and we feel that in this matter of supreme importance, vitally affecting the interests of our people, we should be permitted to stand on our own legs, to form our own conclusions, unaided by official advice and unfettered by official guidance. My Lord, I trust my Hon'ble friends on the official side will accept this explanation in the spirit in which it is tendered, and absolve me from all blame and from all desire to treat them otherwise than with the respect and consideration to which they are entitled.

" My Lord, the first part of the Resolution has an intimate bearing on the conclusions which the Committee may arrive at. Their conclusions will be largely determined by their attitude, their standpoint, their whole outlook with regard to the Reform proposals. If they reject them outright, refuse to look at them as unacceptable or undiscussable, their recommendations will partake of a certain character. If, on the other hand, they accept my Resolution their recommendations will follow a different line. Speaking for myself, I will say this, that I regard the Reform proposals as a distinct advance upon the existing state of things, nay more, as a definite stage towards the progressive realization of responsible government. My Lord, in the whole history of British relations with India, there never has been a more gracious message than that of the 20th of August, 1917, and the country has welcomed it as such, nor a more statesmanlike document than the one which is now under consideration. My Lord, if I am permitted to anticipate the verdict of history, I will venture to assert that when the dust and the heat of the present controversy has been allayed, and things are seen in their true perspective, a grateful posterity will accord to your Excellency and the Right Hon'ble the Secretary of State a high and honoured place among the truest benefactors of the Indian people. My Lord, our fathers regarded the Queen's Proclamation as their Magna Charta. The message of the 25th August 1911 was even a greater charter, and this one is the greatest of them all ; and our English friends deeply interested in the political advancement of the people of India, including Commander Wedgewood than whom there is not a more stalwart champion of Indian Home Rule, have invited us to accept it as such My Lord, I do not wish to conceal from myself or from this Council,—I have never concealed the fact from the public in my other capacities—that the scheme needs improvement, modification, and expansion. It seems to me that the authors of the scheme themselves are cognisant of this fact, for Mr. Montagu has openly invited public criticism, and has openly declared that he would be delighted if a better scheme could be substituted in place of the one he has suggested. My Lord, the fact of my making a recommendation for the appointment of a Committee implies that in my opinion the scheme is one that should be considered, criticised, amended, expanded. But let me not be misunderstood. I take my stand upon what your Excellency was pleased to observe the other day as the basic pledge. We want to build upon it ; we want to modify and expand the scheme in conformity with its essence and spirit, so that it may satisfy our legitimate aspirations and carry out the gracious intentions of the message itself.

" My Lord, the Report devotes a considerable amount of space to what indeed constitutes the vital feature of the whole scheme, namely, the reform and expansion of the legislative and executive machinery of the Government. The authors of the Report concentrate their attention upon the Provinces. They make them the starting point of their deliberations, and the merit of the Report is to be largely judged by their recommendations under this head; and I will repeat what I have already observed before, namely, that here, in the domain of provincial reform, we have a distinct advance, a great advance, upon the existing state of things, and a definite stage towards the progressive realization of responsible government. Before I sit down, my Lord, I hope to be able to prove this proposition to demonstration. Let us look at the matter a little more closely. The Report recommends that every Province, major or minor, big or small, is to have a Governor and a Council, with two Members, one of whom is to be an Indian. What does this mean? It means that one-man rule disappears from India. It means something more. It means the association of the Indian element in the work of the highest Executive Council in every Province.

RESOLUTION ON REFORM PROPOSALS.

[6TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.] [Mr. Surendra Nath Banerjea.]

"Then the Report recommends the complete separation of Provincial and Imperial finance. My Lord, this is a reform for which we have been pleading since 1890. The late Mr. Justice Ranade, an honoured name in the annals of Indian progress, was the first to recommend it as a member of the Finance Committee. He was supported by Sir Charlos Elliot, the President of the Committee, by Justice Cunningham and by the late Sir William Hunter, and we are now within a measurable distance of the fruition of this reform.

"My Lord, coming to the Legislative Councils, there is to be a substantial element of elected Members in that Council. I ask what does that mean? It means that the representatives of the people will have a decisive voice in the making of those laws which affect what are called the Transferred Subjects, and a considerable measure of influence, larger than at present, in determining those laws which affect the Reserved Subjects. That is an advance upon the existing state of things.

"Now, my Lord, let us pass on to the Executive Government. What do we find there? The Executive Government under the terms of the Report will consist of a Governor, and an Executive Council consisting of two Members, one of whom is to be always an Indian, and a popular ministry. In view of the subjects to be transferred, I take it that in the major Provinces there will be at least two popular Ministers, and in the minor Provinces there will be at least one. Now counting up the figures, what do we find? We find this that, on the Executive Government of the major Provinces, out of five members, three will be Indians. On the Executive Government of the minor Provinces out of four members two will be Indians. Therefore, I am justified in holding that the Indian element on the Executive Government of the Provinces will be adequately represented; in some cases their position will be one of preponderance.

"Now, my Lord, let us pass on to the Budget. The control of the Budget is the crux of the whole situation. What do we find there? The Budget is to be prepared by the Executive Government as a whole on which there is to be an adequate element of Indians. The Budget thus prepared will be laid before the Legislative Council, and the Legislative Council will be at liberty to pass Resolutions upon the Budget, upon any item of the Budget,—and mind you, the Resolutions of the Legislative Council will be binding upon the Government absolutely so far as the Transferred Subjects are concerned, and also as regards the Reserved Subjects, save and except when a certificate is given by the Governor in respect of any item in the Reserved Subjects declaring that the vote is not to be accepted in the interests of public safety and tranquillity or in the discharge of his responsibilities in regard to the Reserved Subjects. This, however, is a power which will be used only on emergent occasions. It is not a power which will be put into requisition every day. Therefore, my Lord, I am right in holding that so far as the Budget is concerned, the representatives of the people will have a substantial voice in the framing and the disposal of the Budget and a decisive voice in the disposal of the Transferred Subjects.

RESOLUTION ON REFORM PROPOSALS.

[Mr. Surendra Nath Banerjea.] [6TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.]

"Now, my Lord, I come to what indeed represents a fundamental and far-reaching change in the constitution of the Government of the Provinces, namely, the division into Transferred and Reserved Subjects. Certain subjects which are called transferred will be made over to popular ministers to be appointed by the Governor, presumably on the ground that they command a majority in the House. What these Transferred Subjects should be will be determined by a committee that will hereafter be appointed. We are not left altogether in the dark about this matter. The Transferred Subjects are to include Sanitation, Education, Local Self-Government, Co-operative Credit Societies, Agriculture and so forth. Now I desire to invite the attention of my Hon'ble Indian friends, non-official friends, to the nature and character of some of the subjects that are to be transferred to popular ministers. My Lord, among the Transferred Subjects are those which in my opinion, and I think in the judgment of all impartial men, are nation-building subjects. Let us take one or two of them. Take for instance, Education. The control of primary and technical education is to be made over to popular ministers. What does that imply? It means this, that the popular ministers or the representatives of the educated classes will be brought into actual living contact with the illiterate masses of their country-men, shaping, guiding and moulding their minds and aspirations, leading them onward and upward to the up-building of a true national life. My Lord, it is quite clear that the illustrious framers of the Report who made this recommendation were anxious that an Indian nation should spring up, which is to be the basis of responsible government. It seems to me that this is a striking testimony in favour of the acceptance of this part of the Report.

"Then, my Lord, there are to be Standing Committees attached to departments or groups of departments; these Committees to consist of Members to be elected by the Legislative Council. Their capacity would be advisory, but they would be trained in executive and legislative work. Lastly, Members may be appointed to positions analogous to those of Parliamentary Under Secretaries. All this is an indication of the genuine desire on the part of the framers of the Report to prepare a training ground for the future ministers of a responsible government.

"My Lord, I think I have demonstrated that there is a considerable advance in the Legislative Councils in the Executive Government of the country, in the matter of the Budget, a considerable advance in all these respects. an advance giving a substantial measure of power to popular representatives, and therefore I think the first part of my proposition is proved, namely, that your Excellency and the Right Honourable the Secretary of State are entitled to our grateful thanks. But something more yet remains. My contention is that you have responsible government, the first stage of responsible government under these proposals. My submission is that you have responsible government, or at any rate the beginnings of responsible government at the first stage; you have an increased measure of it in the intermediate stage, and you have a complete measure of it after ten years when full autonomy is conceded. Let me proceed to the demonstration of this proposition. My Lord, the responsible ministers are to hold their offices during the lifetime of the Legislative Assembly, that is to say for a period of three years. They will be eligible for re-appointment in the event of their being re-elected by their constituencies. Therefore it comes to this, that their continuance in office as Ministers after their first term of office depends upon the vote and the suffrage of their electorates. Therefore, from the very first it will be their duty, it will be their interest to try to please their electors and to obtain from them a re-election on the second occasion. It seems to me therefore that the accountability of these Ministers to their electorates begins from the very start; but more than that: their responsibility to the Legislature is enforced in a more direct way. The supplies, relating to the Transferred branches will be voted by the Legislative Council. In the case of an unpopular Minister, the Legislative Council may refuse to grant him the supplies. Suppose the Member in charge of Sanitation wants Rs. 50 lakhs for Sanitary purposes, and the Legislative Council, he being unpopular, declines to give him more than 2 lakhs, the Minister is handicapped, he cannot go on with his work,

RESOLUTION ON REFORM PROPOSALS.

[6TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.] [Mr. Surendra Nath Banerjea.]

the Governor will give him a quiet piece of advice to resign and therefore resign he must. Thus, even in the first stage, I say there is responsibility to the electorate in a modified form and in a larger measure to the Legislative Council. And after five years what happens? The salaries of the popular ministers will be placed on the estimates and voted upon every year, and after ten years there will be complete responsibility. Therefore I claim that my second proposition is also proved, namely, that you have responsibility, or the beginnings of responsibility at the first stage, a greater measure of responsibility at the intermediate stage, and a complete measure of responsibility at the final stage.

"My Lord, I am sorry I am not able to speak in the same terms of approval of the recommendations which have been made by your Excellency and the Secretary of State as regards the Government of India. Here I may be respectfully permitted to strike a note of dissent. Your Excellency was pleased to observe the other day that you had proceeded as far as it was possible for you to go, consistently with the principles laid down in the message of the 20th August 1917. I respectfully venture to differ from your Excellency in this matter. The message of the 20th August says—I am not quoting the exact words, but in substance the message says—that self-government within the Empire is the end and aim of British rule in India, and that it is to be attained by and through progressive stages of realisation. My Lord there are no signs of any progressive stage of realisation in the proposals regarding the Government of India. There are no popular ministers, no Transferred Subjects, no popular control over any definite section of the Budget. I freely admit that the constitution of the Legislative Council is to be liberalised; two-thirds of the members are to be elected; but, my Lord, it is handicapped by the creation of a second chamber, which I fear will cause delay, friction and even retrogression. My Lord, a second chamber has not been much of a success in France or in the United States, and even in its own native soil it is, I am afraid, a sickly plant. Lord Morley said not many years ago that this institution in England needed to be ended or amended. I do hope and trust therefore that this part of the proposals will be modified before final adoption by Parliament.

"My Lord, there are other recommendations in the Report, in advance of the existing state of things, recommendations bearing on local self-government, on the question of the admission of Indians into the commissioned ranks of the Army, on our industrial development, and the Indianisation of the services. I do not wish to trouble the Council with any observations under these heads. One word I wish to say about local self-government. The Report recommends complete popular control over the local bodies as far as possible. My Lord, if this is given effect to, it will help to carry out the great principle which Lord Ripon laid down in his great despatch of May 1882, namely, that these institutions should serve as the instruments of popular and political education. They will also develop, foster and strengthen the electorates so necessary for the ultimate success of responsible government.

"One word more, my Lord, and I am done. Taking the Report as a whole, I think it must be conceded that it affords a striking illustration of change in the angle of vision on the part of our rulers, and I venture to assert that it ought to be accompanied by a similar transformation in our attitude in regard to the government of this country. If an advance, a substantial advance, towards peace, conciliation and popular contentment is made by our rulers, I submit that the clearest considerations of common sense and patriotism demand that it should be followed by a similar movement on our side. Adaptability, my Lord, is the law of life, individual and collective. Adaptability is life, the lack of it is death. Adaptability has been the saving principle of our race throughout its long and chequered history, and we should in pursuance of that eternal law and time-honoured principle adapt ourselves to our newborn conditions. And, my Lord, if I am permitted to interpose a personal remark, I will say this that opposition to Government has been the watchword of my public life now extending over a period of 45 years. I claim this, no matter whether it is a merit or demerit. I claim this that no living Indian politician has been more strenuous, more persistent, in his resistance to the policy and the measures of the Government than I have been. But, my Lord, a change—a welcome change—has come over the spirit of the dreams of our rulers, and they have now stretched out to us the hand of fellowship and friendship, and I invite my countrymen to grasp it with alacrity and enthusiasm, and in co-operation with British statesmanship to march forward to the accomplishment of those high destinies which, under the providence of God, are reserved for our people.

"My Lord, we live in a psychological moment in the history of our country. We are at the parting of the ways. The future is committed to our care and keeping. We can make it or we can mar it. I appeal to my countrymen to make it by the exhibition of those qualities of courage, prudence, sobriety and self-restraint, coupled with patriotic devotion, which constitute the crowning attributes of national life. I make this appeal and trust that it will not fall upon heedless ears.

"With these words, my Lord, I beg to move my Resolution."

11-31 A.M. The Hon'ble Sir Gangadhar Chitnavis:—"My Lord, I beg to support the Resolution. I believe it will be pertinent to the matter under discussion if in this connection I refer to the Memorandum signed by some of us in the Central Provinces. In that Memorandum we expressed our opinions on some aspects of the present Reform Scheme. We stated therein that however much some of our countrymen may like the Congress-League scheme, yet we are strongly of opinion that it would not do for us to reject any scheme that did not exactly fit in with that scheme so long as it happens to be in full consonance with its underlying principle, that principle being, as we understand it to be, self-government by progressive stages, but at the earliest possible date compatible with orderly progress and good government. We distinctly stated therein that it behoved us to accept the present scheme as it was sure satisfactorily to lead us nearer to that goal. There are no such things as minimums and maximums in practical politics. Politics is essentially made up of compromises, and so long as a compromise does not involve the surrender of any cardinal principle, it ought to furnish the only sole sure and safe means of meeting differences and difficulties inevitably arising out of conflicting and clashing claims and interests. Viewed from this standpoint, we therefore are of opinion that the scheme now before us, though it may be capable of changes and improvements in certain particulars, is a notable advance on the present system of government, and also promises to be the nearest, though it may be somewhat gradual and cautious, approach to the ultimate form promised in the Announcement of August 1917. Modern self-government is a most complex and complicated science, and has to be carefully studied and practised, and it will be by the judicious exercise of the processes mentioned in the Report that we will be enabled to march on to successive stages, and the greater our success the more rapid will be the rate of progress towards the goal. We are all glad to find that the country is generally adopting this view. Thanks to the efforts of some friends in and out of Council, the attitude adopted both by the Congress and the League appears to be one of co-operation and not of rejection. The Report, which is universally praised for its sympathy and friendliness to the aspirations of the people, is evidently published and circulated for criticism and opinion, and in accordance with that dictum certain suggestions have been made and will be made from various quarters. It will be for Government carefully to consider how far, without injuring the various interests of the country, they can adopt and accept the suggestions that will be made. But it is a matter for satisfaction that a policy of co-operation and response seems to be the guiding principle of the opinions that have been generally expressed. We all hope that this spirit of co-operation that has been now engendered and a further consideration of the proposals both on behalf of the Government and people will make it possible to introduce such changes of course within limits ennunciated in your Excellency's speech, as may harmonise different conceptions of thought and facilitate the progressive realisation of self-government and free national development of the country, so as to prevent deadlocks in administration, ensure peace and safety and avoid the evils which we find are not dissociated even with the administrations of the most advanced countries of the world. I hope the Joint Committee now proposed will bring about this desired result, and I therefore beg to support this Resolution."

The Hon'ble Sir Fazulbhoy Currimbhoy:—"My Lord, I rise to give my hearty support to the Resolution. 11-35 A.M.

"On your Excellency's initiative, the Secretary of State for India came to visit us and the Reform proposals are the result of that visit. The Reform proposals are a distinct advance on the present form of administration. I do not wish to go into the details of the proposals, as a Committee is going to be appointed and they will consider these proposals in detail and submit their report. But we must acknowledge that your Excellency and the Secretary of State for India have devoted much anxious thought to the question, and have sincerely attempted to solve the difficult problem of Indian administration. Whatever the final shape the Reform proposals may take, your Excellency's and the Right Hon'ble Mr. Montagu's names will ever remain memorable and will go down to history as among the friends and benefactors of India.

"With these remarks, I beg to support the proposal."

The Hon'ble Raja Sir Rampal Singh:—"My Lord, I rise to make a few observations on the Resolution that has been moved by the Hon'ble Mr. Banerjea. I fully endorse the view expressed in the Resolution that in the Reform Scheme a genuine effort has been made for the progressive realisation of responsible government in India, and that it is a definite advance towards that goal. The Report itself is a momentous State document that shall occupy a most prominent place in the history of this country. The deep insight into Indian conditions which it displays, the true and genuine sympathy with the Indian people which it evinces, and the honest efforts that have been made to suggest substantial improvements on the present constitution, are all well worthy of our sincere and grateful appreciation. It cannot be denied that the problem of constitutional reform which the authors had to grapple was full of difficulties and complexities, and the tact with which they have handled it in a statesmanlike manner deserves all praise. In order to form a just estimate of the proposals, we must take into account certain facts which have a close bearing on them and which cannot be ignored. India is going to have a real Constitutional Government introduced in the country unknown to it for all practical purposes, for centuries in its administration. It would serve no useful purpose to shut our eyes to the existing conditions of the country and the multifarious interests involved that have to be safeguarded. What wonder is there if caution amounting to nervousness as some persons call it is the key-note of the scheme. I think caution in the first stage of experiment is necessary for the very success of the proposals themselves, and I have no reason to demur on that account. Then, again, we have to see if the scheme is a substantial advance on the present state of things, and are the proposals calculated not only to give a potent voice to the representatives of the people in the administration of the country in the experimental stage, but also to help us in the future in the realisation of Responsible Government in India to which England is now pledged? It may be that the proposals do not go far enough and that they have been too much hedged in undesirable restrictions and reservations. But the fact cannot be denied that they are in the right direction and have been conceived and promulgated in a liberal and sympathetic spirit with that object in view. But leaving aside all these considerations, can we ignore the declaration of policy which the Right Hon'ble the Secretary of State made on the 20th August last year? I think too much stress cannot be laid on a careful scrutiny of the precise terms of that declaration. It is the basic principle beyond which the authors could not go, and it is to their credit that they have given it a liberal interpretation and have carried out their mission in its connection in the same spirit. Needless to remind the Council that the announcement of the policy embodied in the said declaration was hailed with feelings 11-36 A.M.

[Raja Sir Rampal Singh ; Raja of Kanika.] [6TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.]

of satisfaction in this country. Now our demands should be confined within the four corners of that declaration. It would be taxing the patience of the Council too much to go into the recommendations in detail, and to show their merits and demerits, for most assuredly there are shortcomings which require modifications. But briefly I may touch upon them. The suggestion for the creation of Privy Council and the Council of State in the Government of India is in the right direction. I cannot conceal from the Council my own feeling that a House similar to the House of Lords on improved and reformed basis would have been preferable to the State Council. The constitution of the Legislative Assembly having a majority of elected Members is a distinct and substantial improvement on the present constitution of Council and is all that could be desired. I only wish that the authors could have seen their way to provide for the appointment of ministers and the transfer of certain subjects to their portfolios in the Government of India also as they have done in the case of Provincial Governments. It is a matter of satisfaction that the authors have done their best to improve the constitution of Provincial Governments and to provide rightly in a limited manner for the transfer of responsibility over the representatives of the people. The introduction of responsible government in India is in its initial stage, and so it is necessary that in order to get a training some definite subjects should only be transferred in the beginning, and after we have gained an experience other departments may also be entrusted to our charge. In the Provincial fiscal arrangements I regret to find that no definite provision has been made for the expenditure on the Transferred Subjects, and I am afraid the would-be ministers shall have to face and bear the odium of devising means and ways for fresh taxation when the allotment made by the Executive Provincial Government would not suffice for the expenditure on the subjects in their charge. This is not fair and requires substantial modification. The most serious shortcoming I could find in the Report is that, while the authors have recognised in paragraph 147 the position, status and stake which landholding classes have in the country, they have failed altogether to provide for their adequate and effective voice in the new regimé that is to be ushered in. But we can derive satisfaction from the proposal that these matters of detail would be dealt with by the Committee to be appointed in that behalf. I therefore wholeheartedly support the Resolution of the Hon'ble Mr. Banerjea."

11-48 A.M. The Hon'ble Raja of Kanika:—"My Lord, I rise to support the Resolution so ably moved by my friend to my right. The Report on Constitutional Reforms, drafted by your Lordship and the Right Hon'ble Mr. Montagu, marks, my Lord, the most momentous event in the political relations of India and England. The Report, apart from the fact of its being a most liberal education by itself, lays down the first steps upon which the India of the future is going to be built. The announcement made in Parliament on the 20th August 1917 by His Majesty's Secretary of State for India with the fullest approval and support of the Home Government laid down definitely the ultimate goal of British Rule in India, and the principles which led to the announcement were the only logical and inevitable outcome of Britain's mission in India The Constitutional Reforms initiated in 1909 only gave us the power and increased facilities to deliberate without any responsibility at all. Now, however, for the first time, Indians will work under and feel the weight of responsibility along with the privilege of power, and the scheme as framed works the first stage towards the progressive realisation of responsible government in India.

" It is perfectly true, my Lord, the scheme fails to satisfy the expectations of many people. To some people, it does not go far enough. According to them, the position of the people of India under the scheme is very far from the position of the sovereign citizens of the West or of the British Colonies, who make or unmake their own governments. Such a complete development of responsible government in India must take some time. But all the same we are thankful, my Lord, that at last, after long years of weary waiting, we have turned the corner and though the goal is a long — a very long way off yet, — still the goal is in view and, what is more, we know now that we shall be daily marching towards that end. So that, after all, my Lord, the attainment of complete responsible government in India is no longer a question of policy—that has been laid down in the clearest terms—but it is solely a question of time. May it come soon will be the earnest wish of us all. That it may come soon will be the earnest endeavours of each and all of us both inside and outside this Council.

RESOLUTION ON REFORM PROPOSALS.

[6TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.] [Raja of Kanika; Mir Asad Ali, Khan Bahadur; Rai Sita Nath Ray Bahadur.]

"The scheme, my Lord, no doubt requires modifications and revisions in particular cases. Without entering into details at present, which will be more fully considered by the Committee, we all agree that the Government of India should be liberalised.

"But, as a representative of the landlords, I feel it my duty to point out that the scheme reveals a very inadequate appreciation of the important position of the landlords in India.

"My Lord, I have very great pleasure in supporting the Resolution."

The Hon'ble Mir Asad Ali, Khan Bahadur:—"My Lord, I had the honour to welcome the proposed Reforms and to express my views on them on the 26th of July last. The Madras Presidency Moslem League, of which I have the honour to be the President, while welcoming the Reform proposals and tendering their thanks to your Excellency, suggests some modifications and improvements therein. These have already been published in the dailies of Madras. 11-46 A.M.

"As a representative of the Moslems of the Madras Presidency, I tender my grateful thanks to your Excellency and to the Right Hon'ble the Secretary of State for the Reform proposals. I acknowledge them to be on the whole a considerable advance over the present position. The scheme will constitute a real step towards responsible and progressive government when it is modified and improved in the light of the criticisms of responsible leaders and public bodies, as well as of the recommendations of the Committee of non-official Members of this Council which it is proposed to appoint. I am, therefore, glad to give my hearty support to the Resolution which is before the Council, though I would at the same time beg to be allowed to express the feeling of my co-religionists, who are disappointed with the scheme as regards the inadequacy of representation of their community. I hope that when these proposals take their final shape, the Mussalmans will get adequate representation in all bodies—Local, Provincial and Imperial."

The Hon'ble Rai Sita Nath Ray Bahadur:—"May it please your Excellency, I cannot let slip this opportunity without expressing my very heartfelt gratitude to your Lordship and to the Right Hon'ble the Secretary of State for India for the most sympathetic spirit in which your Excellency and the Secretary of State approached the consideration of the several questions relating to Constitutional Reforms in India for which all classes of people have long since been so eagerly looking forward. 11-4A.M.

"The Reform proposals before us are undoubtedly the outcome of patient inquiries and thorough discussion, and the results obtained, as far as the Provincial Governments are concerned, are highly satisfactory, and I feel no hesitation in saying that the several Reform proposals have been conceived in a generous spirit and in a spirit of true sympathy with the aspirations of the people, for which I venture to say your name will go down to history as one of the noblest benefactors of the country. Though some of the Reform proposals may not be altogether satisfactory to some of my countrymen, I say that, taken as a whole, they are enough to satisfy the hopes and aspirations of a very large section of the people of this country. As I observed in a different place and in a different capacity that as in business so in politics there must be apprenticeship. You cannot aspire to be the head of a firm unless you have fitted yourself by successive stages and by long period of apprenticeship to assume the responsibility of controlling the firm. So in politics you cannot however, otherwise fitted by education, have the full responsibility of carrying on the administration unless you prepare yourself by training and by successive stages to assume the full responsibility of self-government. It would however be going too far to say that the several schemes of reforms relating to the Provincial Governments are full and complete and that they are altogether infallible and not at all susceptible of further development and improvements. Such defects that are there may well be left to the consideration of the Committee proposed by the Resolution before the Council.

RESOLUTION ON REFORM PROPOSALS.

[Rai Sita Nath Ray Bahadur ; Rai Bahadur B. D. Shukul.] [6TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.]

"The Reform proposals before us have conceded many things and conferred upon us the responsibility of carrying on the administration of some departments of the Government, and if we succeed in managing them well, the Report says that the British Government would be fully prepared to invest us with greater powers and responsibilities enabling us ultimately to attain the full measure of self-government in India as an integral part of the British Empire.

"Regrets no doubt have been felt in some quarters that the proposals relating to the Government of India are not quite as liberal as those bearing on the Provincial Governments, but I feel confident that a thorough revision of these in the Committee proposed would help us to submit recommendations, which the Government might see fit to accept, and thus satisfy, as far as possible, the legitimate aspirations of the people.

"This is surely not the proper time for entering into a discussion of the minute details of the Reform Schemes, but I cannot abstain altogether from bringing to the notice of your Excellency one or two matters of special importance. It is no exaggeration to say that the zemindars and merchants represent very important interests and have the largest stake in the country, and their loyalty and devotion are unquestioned. It is well known that the zemindars pay to the Government Exchequer about one-fourth of the whole income of the Government of India. In Bengal and Bihar, the great body of landholders form a very important and influential class whose services have been repeatedly recognised and, as such, are entitled to an electorate of their own. If special electorates are considered necessary (as it justly should be) for the representation of planting and mining interests, for the Chambers of Commerce and possibly also for the Universities, I do not see any reason why separate electorates should not be provided for the great body of Indian merchants, both in the Provincial Councils and in the Imperial Council. I hope this matter will receive special attention of the Committee to be formed.

"With these few words, I beg to support the Resolution."

11-54 A.M. The Hon'ble Rai Bahadur B. D. Shukul:—"My Lord, I welcome the Resolution so eloquently moved by my friend the Hon'ble Mr. Banerjea inasmuch as if accepted it will give the elected non-official Members of the Council an opportunity to consider, in a body, the whole Reform Scheme and place their considered opinion about it at the disposal of your Lordship the Secretary of State for India and the British Parliament, the final Tribunal, by whom the future destinies of the Indian Empire will be decided. It is but, in the fitness of things, that the 'Reasoned criticism' of the Reform Scheme, by a dignified and responsible body like this, should be made available to the Government and the country before any final decision is arrived at. The very dignity of the joint report on the Indian Constitutional Reforms, an outcome of many a month's labour and thoughtful deliberation on your part which has already been gratefully acknowledged and hailed by the whole country as a historic and unique document, as well as the supreme importance of the issues at stake, demand that such an opportunity should be given. Whatever be the verdict of the country in the matter of details, there undoubtedly is unanimity on one point, namely, the spirit of genuine sympathy displayed by your Lordship and the Secretary of State, with the legitimate aspirations of the people. It is for the first time in the annals of British Rule in India that the desire for self-determination on the part of the people has been recognized by the authorities as legitimate. The memorable announcement of the 20th August 1917 has been taken as a basis of the impending reforms and the people naturally expect that the great and noble ideal set forth therein should be realised. The goal of responsible government being once assured to us, there should be no waverin and no faltering.

"My Lord, so far as the scheme embodied in the Report is concerned, I admit that it is a step in advance in some directions. Decidedly it is an improvement upon the existing state of affairs, but I wish this step, the very first step taken, were more courageous, more forward, and more substantial. The gracious acknowledgment of India's loyalty by His Majesty, our beloved King-Emperor, has gone straight to our hearts. The repeated declarations that paramount regard for the words pledged and the guarantees given is the common heritage of England and India are full of virtuous import, and it was expected that a bolder and more liberal scheme of reforms would be forthcoming than the one before the country. There is no doubt, as has already been expressed by the Hon'ble mover, that several measures of reforms which the people urged for years have been conceded for which we have every reason to be thankful, but at the same time undue limitations have been imposed which not only mar the good spirit in which the whole scheme has been conceived, but are sure to hamper, if not stay, the progress of the very reforms, which your Excellency is so keen to see successful. Such limitations, my Lord, must be done away with in order to make the scheme successful and quite satisfactory. This is the general feeling of the country, my Lord, and I think I shall be failing in my duty if I do not place the same before you to-day not in a spirit of any carping criticism, but in that of a friendly co-operation, which your Lordship has so kindly invited. While a genuine effort has been made to introduce the principle of progressive realisation by gradual stages in the administrative machinery of the Provincial Government, it is passing strange that the same salutary principle has been departed from in the case of the Government of India. While it is recognized in the very Report itself that 'it is impossible that the duties which fall to the Government of India should be administered autocratically' no ostensible effort seems to have been made to weaken that unrestricted power so far as the Government of India is concerned or to liberalize it in a manner so as to bring it into line with the form of government proposed for the administration of Provinces, a change which would have been far more in keeping with the real spirit of the epoch-making announcement of the 20th of August than what has been proposed at present. Unless and until that is done, I am afraid, my Lord, it will not be possible for the tender plant of responsible self-government established in Provinces to thrive vigorously under the stunting influences of the Government of India not sufficiently liberalized. It will be thus obvious to your Lordship that the scheme needs substantial modification, particularly so far as the Government of India is concerned, in order that India should be placed in a position to realize the goal of responsible government by gradual stages within a fixed and not indefinitely long period. Apart from this the important questions of fiscal autonomy and Indian armies still remain in abeyance. Unless India is given fiscal autonomy and unless India possesses armies of her own manned by Indian sepoys and Indian officers, and unless by these means it is made self-contained, self-defending, and self-reliant, how can it be hoped that she will be able to retain her position honourably as a self-governing unit of the British Empire to which we are all so proud to belong.

"My Lord, I quite recognize that the present scheme is not the final word on the subject of reforms. It is only a temporary device, a tentative measure, and I am not unmindful of the fact that your Lordship and the Secretary of State are fully alive to its defects as pointed out in paragraph 354 of the Report and reiterated in your Lordship's day before yesterday's speech, but my Lord, we must not forget that this is a scheme which has never been given a trial in any other part of the world and which as has been stated in the Report 'is charged with potentialities of friction' and what wonder, if there is a general anxiety felt all over the country that this 'friction' might bring about the wreck of the whole scheme which would be unfortunate.

"My Lord, I think the time has come when a policy of mutual trust and confidence should without hesitation be adopted. The gigantic war of liberty which has caused such mighty upheaval in the greater part of the world has also very naturally had its effect in India. Along with England and her Allies India has been pouring its men and money into the gigantic war which it regards as a war against oppression and a war in the defence of the cause of liberty, and it would be a great disappointment if the right to self-government and self-determination were conceded to it in a halting manner. I am not an advocate of any catastrophic changes ; nor do I insist upon having full responsible government conceded to India all at once. By all means give us responsible government by stages, but let not the stages be long, weary and indefinite. Let the Government and the people know exactly as to within what period the final goal is to be attained. We are asked to 'show ourselves capable of statesmanship and self-restraint.' Well, my Lord, as regards the first, have not Indians already given ample proofs of their high qualities of statesmanship? Have they not filled with honour to themselves and to their country the high posts to which they have been appointed in British India and the Native States, and is it not really disappointing that they should still be thought unworthy of discharging their responsibilities properly and efficiently in the domain of the Government of India. And as regards the second, namely, the qualifications of self-restraint, my Lord, just consider for a moment if 'self-restraint' has not got a limit to it. The Report has placed the noble ideal before us as stated in paragraph 324 that henceforth the aim of the Government would 'no longer be to govern a subject race by means of the services but to make the Indian people self-governing.' We have already been under the established rule of the present form of government for so many years, and what do we find? The factors of general poverty and ignorance are still dominating to an extent that your Lordship should have found yourself constrained to withhold from us those liberal measures of reforms which are already enjoyed by our other fellow subjects of the British Empire. Is this not in itself the strongest condemnation of the present regimé, and as for its love of reform, I need only refer to those measures of reforms pertaining to one section only, namely, local self-government, enunciated by that Viceroy of hallowed memory, Lord Ripon, 35 years back, with regard to which an admission is made in paragraph 13 of the introductory chapter of the Report that 'in a space of over 30 years the progress in developing a genuine local self-government has been inadequate.' If such has been the fate of a small measure of reform and if its development has not been sufficiently rapid in these last 30 years, how can the people be blamed if they are impatient and if they ask for a definite guarantee that the pace of progress of these reforms of greater magnitude, will not be indefinitely delayed and that they will be carried out within a definite period of time.

RESOLUTION ON REFORM PROPOSALS.

[Rai Bahadur B. D. Shukul.] [6TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.]

"My Lord, it is assumed that the British officers employed in India are more interested and can be more successful in protecting the interest of the people than the people themselves or their leaders, and therefore so long as the people are not sufficiently equipped to protect their own interests, the control must remain in the official hands. This is an assumption to which one cannot help taking strong exception. Are not the leaders of the people who live and move amongst them, speak the same language and are of the same mood and ways of thought, better fitted to understand as to what is best suited for their own people? Could any one deny this? Does not the past history of the present Government corroborate this? Is it not a fact that it has been a long-standing complaint of the ryots that their grievances have not been speedily and properly redressed, and that sufficient attention has not been paid to alleviating their moral and material conditions? And who brought their grievances to the notice of the Government from time to time? Certainly their own spokesmen, but to what avail, we all know and it was destined for your Lordship and the Right Hon'ble the Secretary of State to recognize the fact that 'mass education, sanitation, peasant indebtedness, technical education are long-standing questions which it was beyond the power of official government to handle without the co-operation of the people.' After this would it be fair to say, I respectfully ask, my Lord, that the officials and not the leaders of the people are the proper persons to protect the interests of the people? To my mind the real remedy would lie not in the retention of control in the hands of the official government, but in forming electorates in a manner so as to secure an adequate representation of the landholding classes on the expanded Councils of the Empire. If this fact is recognized the scheme, I am sure, will be capable of such improvement as will meet the wishes of both the Government and the people. Your Lordship has only to take up an attitude which was adopted by Lord Durham in the case of Canada and all the misunderstanding will be over. He observed—'If the colonists make bad laws and select improper persons to conduct their affairs they will generally be the only, always the greatest, sufferers and like the people of other countries, they must bear the ills what they bring in themselves until they chose to apply proper remedy.' If this held good in the case of Canada, why should it not hold good in the case of India? It could not be said, my Lord, that conditions in India are much more backward than those of Canada when responsible government was established there. Too much importance has been attached in the Report to religious dissensions and general ignorance prevailing in India. Well, is it not a fact that when Lord Durham recommended responsible government for Canada, he had to complain of 'no means of instructions having been provided in that country for the people.' And does not the history of Canada with its unhappy record of incessant quarrels between the French and the English bear ample testimony to the undaunted spirit displayed by Lord Durham, for which he never had so much as to repent. I earnestly appeal to your Lordship to adopt a similar attitude with regard to this country, and I am sure you will not have to repent either. Rather, your name and that of the Right Hon'ble the Secretary of State will be handed down to posterity as one to whom for ever will belong the honour of making India a self-governing unit of the British Empire. The Hon'ble mover's suggestion, if adopted, will enable the Committee to suggest such modifications as will not only minimise friction, but would even accelerate the pace of progress in the matter of reforms and enable India to reach the destined goal within a definite period of time, and I am sure the Government of India will receive their criticism in the spirit in which they will be made, and display the breadth of mind, the farsighted statesmanship and the boldness of spirit, which the occasion demands. Let the Government trust the people, and trust only begets trust. Indians place their claims upon the principles of justice and liberty and the right of self-determination. I confess, my Lord, that we were rather disappointed day before yesterday when we were told by your Lordship that all that could be given was given, and that we must go so far and no further. Yet I have not lost all hope. I still believe that your Lordship will yet continue to keep an open mind and, if backed up by you, I am sure British statesmenship will rise equal to the occasion and concede to India a more liberal and substantial measure of reforms which will not only be found conducive to her best interests, but will greatly enhance the prestige of the British Empire in the eyes of the civilised world. It is my earnest desire that the reforms now introduced should harbinger an era of peace and good-will and not that of agitation or unrest, and that there should prevail a feeling of mutual esteem and equal citizenship among all the fellow-subjects of His Majesty's Empire and, above all, that the same sense of comradeship, which exists amongst them to-day, while they are heroically laying down their lives in the battle-fields of France and Mesopotamia for the cause of honour, justice, and all that civilization stands for, should survive and prevail among them when the horrors of war have passed away and peace dawns upon the whole Empire."

RESOLUTION ON REFORM PROPOSALS.

[6TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.] [Rai Bahadur B. D. Shukul ; Sardar Sundar Singh Majithia.]

The Hon'ble Sardar Sundar Singh Majithia :—" My Lord, the announcement of 20th August, 1917 marks a red letter day in the history of India, as it clearly and definitely sets forth that 'the policy of His Majesty's Government is the increasing association of Indians in every branch of the administration and the gradual development of self-governing institutions with a view to the progressive realisation of responsible government in India as an integral part of the British Empire.' After the Proclamation of Her Majesty

RESOLUTION ON REFORM PROPOSALS.

[Sardar Sundar Singh Majithia.] [6TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.]

Queen Victoria, Empress of India, of blessed memory, when after the Mutiny of 1857 India passed from the hands of the East India Company to that of the Crown, and which is considered as the Magna Charta of India, this announcement is an epoch-making one which a civilized Government has issued, defining the progressive steps which they are prepared to take to reach the goal, they have set before themselves, in the administration of this country. India has been under the rule of dynasties of different nations, and it is one of the greatest achievements of a great nation that under its civilizing influence and benevolent rule Indians are awakening to their sense of responsibilities as citizens of a great Empire. Who could have imagined or contemplated that under the regimé of our past rulers and on the occasion of a gigantic struggle, the like of which the world has ever seen, a free discussion of a benevolent measure could be tolerated. Such a thing under autocratic rule was an unheard of thing, and is only possible under the ægis of Pax Britannica. Furthermore, thanks to this great Empire, we are passing through a critical period of this war safely. Thank God that anxious days are over and the pall of dark clouds has been sufficiently lifted from over the grim spectacle of the bloody battle-fields in the different theatres of the war, and as an effect of recent victories of the Allied armies the silver gleam of an honourable and an everlasting peace is looming in the horizon, but here in India, except for some very slight temporary inconveniences, we are passing our days in the ordinary pursuits of life, quite undisturbed and oblivious of what is happening yonder. This peace and tranquillity is a boon for which we ought to be grateful to the vast resources of the Empire which can accomplish all this.

"In pursuance of the policy set forth in the famous announcement the Right Hon'ble the Secretary of State visited India and received, along with your Excellency, representations, both written and through deputations, from the different interests of the country. Your Excellency and the Right Hon'ble Mr. Edwin Montagu went into the mass of evidence placed before them with great patience and labour, and the Reforms Report—a document of very great importance to the country—is a living testimony of the sympathetic handling of the problems that were presented to any two responsible officers of the Crown. The honesty of purpose and the zeal to carry out, in right earnest, the spirit of the announcement, is apparent from every page of this State document. The country has been invited to criticise the proposals and the different bodies, who have any stake in the country have given the matter their best thought and have suggested improvements in the scheme. The various views and opinions that have been submitted, I have no doubt, will receive full consideration at the hands of the Government of India and the Home Government in due course, and India will be put on the road leading to the goal of responsible government as an integral part of the great British Empire. But in the terms of the announcement of August 20th, the 'progress in this policy can only be achieved by successive stages.' We have recently had before our eyes the result of hasty climbing of the ladder of responsible self government in Russia—a power which once was a real menace to India and about which we in our younger days used to hear so much. Where is that great and once greatly feared first-class power to-day? Its politicians—idealists in their way—have by their ill-considered and hasty actions brought about their own ruin, and the great Russian Empire has been reduced to an ignominious position. Russia presents to us an object lesson which we Indians should always keep before our eyes. It is therefore no use our becoming impatient idealists and pressing for responsibilities which our shoulders are not yet strong enough to bear. Our old ways of administration, and I may say of civilization, have to be moulded anew in the mould of Western civilization, and we have to adapt ourselves to the circumstances by acquiring a thorough knowledge of the ways of the Western methods of government from Great Britain, the greatest democracy in the world. It is therefore in the fitness of things that 'the British Government and the Government of India, on whom the responsibility lies for the welfare and advancement of the Indian people, must be the judges of the time and measure of each advance.' We must lay the foundations of the future government of India as an integral part of the great Empire on sure and sound basis and not on shifting sands. The scheme has been well conceived and well thought out and though, like all creations of the human brain, it could not be expected to be flawless and perfect in every detail, and being a tentative measure for the transitory stages, may not be free from defects, but it must be conceded that it is a genuine effort and is a definite step in advance upon the present conditions towards progressive realization of responsible government in India, and our thanks are due to the two distinguished authors of the Reform proposals for the sympathetic way in which the problem has been handled. It should therefore be the earnest endeavour of every well-wisher of the country to give the scheme his best thoughts and help the authorities to improve it and free it from any conceivable defects that it may happen to have.

RESOLUTION ON REFORM PROPOSALS.

[6TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.] [Sardar Sundar Singh Majithia.]

"My Lord, on behalf of my community, I have to acknowledge with grateful thanks the concession by the Government of separate communal representation to the Sikhs on 'the system already adopted in the case of Muhammadans.' The Sikh community is grateful for this kind recognition of their claims, as I believe that it is on these definite and fixed communal representations that the harmonious and contented working of the Government depends, and the unity of the Empire firmly rests. No doubt the ideal of welding together the different component parts of the Indian communities into one Indian Nation, that the distinguished authors of the Report have in view, is a noble one and is one which must be achieved in the end when different communal interests must give place to national interests, and all component parts of the Indian Nation are assured of their recognised and respective shares in the administration of the country; but that is an ideal stage which under present conditions is not attainable in the near future. So it is not right that minorities be allowed to be swamped out of existence by strong majorities. It is therefore right that the rights of the minorities should be recognised and maintained by Government. Even the well-known compact of the Moslem League and the Congress people rests on the recognition of the claims of the Muhammadan community being given a definite and an adequate share of representation, not on numerical basis, but on the importance of the community as a great minority, and they have been allowed representation in excess of their numerical strength. Those who can read between the lines will have noticed the letter of the Hon'ble Raja Sahib of Mahmudabad which some time back appeared in the press setting down in very clear terms that any endeavour to go behind the Moslem League and Congress compact arrived at at the Lucknow Congress, either on the part of the Government or on the part of any one else, as regards the separate representation of the Muhammadan community, will not be acceptable to Muhammadans. For Muhammadans communal representation is a settled fact and Government cannot even go behind these 'adequate safeguards until they are released from this pledge.'

"It is therefore a matter of sincere gratification to us that Government has been pleased to extend this recognition in our case. It is earnestly hoped that when the preliminary Committees are formed to investigate the franchise, constituencies and the list of Reserved and Transferred Subjects, they would receive clear and definite instructions from Government for adequate provision being made for the safeguarding of the Sikh interests when the question is finally determined by them. The community hopes that they will be represented on these Committees, as a good deal depends on the manner in which these Committees conduct their proceedings.

"In face of the recommendations contained in the Resolution of the Hon'ble Mr. Surendra Nath Banerjea, I think it will be premature for me to discuss in detail the scheme at present, as the Resolution of my Hon'ble friend proposes and provides that a Committee of all the non-official Members of this Council be appointed to consider the Reforms Report and to make recommendations to the Government of India. In case the Resolution were accepted by the Government, it will give Hon'ble Members ample opportunity to ventilate their views in a practical manner when they consider the scheme in the Committee. So I will only content myself with welcoming the Reforms Scheme which, with a few modifications, has a great future before it. It is an honest endeavour to carry Indians forward on the road leading to the goal of responsible government in India. In offering my hearty support to the motion of my Hon'ble friend, I trust and hope that his Resolution will merit the acceptance of the Government of India that it deserves."

12-21 P.M. The Hon'ble Maharaja Sir Manindra Chandra Nandi:— "My Lord, I have had the pleasure and unique privilege of heading the list of the 19 Members of your Council who approached your Excellency about two years ago with a memorandum on the Reforms which we desired at that moment in the constitution of the various Governments and Legislatures in the country. We had then no idea of pressing upon your Excellency's attention any scheme of responsible government, as we then thought that nothing more could be expected for the moment than some improvements in the existing machineries of the Government. We had then no idea that, within so short a time, it would be possible for us to have any beginnings of responsible government in this country. The Declaration of August 20th, 1917, however, carried us much further than the position we pressed for in the famous and historic memorandum to which I have just referred. This declaration is a unique charter of our rights and freedom, and has been made the basis by your Lordship and His Majesty's Secretary of State for India of very far-reaching proposals It is not difficult to pick holes in the scheme or to find fault with the various proposals which form its constituent parts. I will not take up the time of this Council by recapitulating what these proposals are, but I will only mention the fact that, for the first time after a long spell of centuries, we are going to have a very large measure of self-government, not only in our local affairs, but also in the more ambitious and responsible administration and government of the Provinces. As very fully explained by my Hon'ble friend the mover of this Resolution, we have been promised by the scheme a very large measure of responsible government in the domains of legislation, administration and finance, and in the course of a very short period we shall be allowed opportunities of establishing constitutional conventions which will lead us automatically to a Parliamentary system of government. No amount of captious criticism can do away with the fact that the proposals formulated in your Lordship's report on Constitutional Reform do constitute an effective machinery for the establishment of responsible government in India. They mark a definite and substantial advance on our road to complete self-government. With practically complete control over all the existing machineries of local self-government, with a very large measure of popular control introduced into the Provincial administrations, with some power of the purse in all the Local Governments to begin with, with the racial bar removed from all the public services and the Army, and last, though not the least, with increased influence in the 'workshops' of Delhi and Simla, we shall be well started on the high way of responsible government. The proposals fully and sincerely give effect to the spirit of the Declaration of August, 1917, and mark a definite and substantial advance on that road. I, therefore, feel it a great pleasure to accord my wholehearted support to the Resolution of my Hon'ble friend, Mr. Surendra Nath Banerjea."

12-25 P.M. The Hon'ble Mr. Malcolm Hogg:— "My Lord, I rise to oppose this Resolution, because I cannot see that any useful purpose will be served by the appointment of the proposed Committee. The Resolution proposes that a Committee should be appointed, consisting of all the non-official Members of this Council, to consider the Reforms Report and to make recommendations upon it. I am really at a loss to understand what object the Hon'ble mover had in view in making this proposal, because, in my opinion, the result of the appointment of this Committee would be either futile or actually mischievous, and I will endeavour to explain why I hold this opinion.

RESOLUTION ON REFORM PROPOSALS.

[6TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.] [Mr. Malcolm Hogg.]

Many of the Hon'ble Members of this Council have already expressed their opinions upon the Reforms Report in considerable detail and with great emphasis. In their speeches and writings, a wide diversity of view has appeared, but the opinions expressed have fallen I think, into two main schools of thought. There is one school of thought which regards the Reform proposals as entirely disappointing and inadequate, which was at first disposed to have nothing to do with them and to reject them altogether, but which latterly, more I think from considerations of policy and tactics than from any change of view, has rather shifted its ground and is now apparently disposed to patronise the reforms provided they are altered out of all recognition and mutilated into an imitation of the Congress-League scheme. There is a second school of thought which recognises the Reform proposals as generally acceptable, but desires them to go further and in fact asks for more. Now, it appears to me, that these two schools of thought are radically and in principle different, and I cannot see how they can arrive at any common conclusion except by either the entire sacrifice by one side or the other of its convictions or the partial sacrifice of their convictions by both sides. Now, what does this mean ? It means that the result of the deliberations of the proposed Committee can be only one of two things. If both parties stick to their convictions, the Committee will have to present a set of recommendations representing the views of the larger faction together with either a minority set of recommendations, or else a comet's tail of dissenting minutes. Such a result, I think, would prove the appointment of the Committee to have been unnecessary and its labours futile. The alternative is that by a sacrifice by both sides of a part of their convictions a sort of anæmic compromise will be arrived at which will satisfy neither side and represent the real views of nobody. This result I should regard as actually mischievous, because it would be misleading, and because I cannot believe that any good comes out of the sacrifice of convictions for no better purpose than the pursuit of a fictitious and spurious unanimity. I cannot understand why there should be, as there appears to be in some quarters, such a keen desire to pretend that all think alike when all manifestly do not think alike. Healthy differences of opinion do no harm to any one, and they are in fact a normal feature of political life in every country. It would indeed be a very surprising thing if, on a subject of such complexity and such importance as the Reforms Report, all the non-official Members of this Council were to think exactly alike. It would argue a sad lack on their part of the power of individual thought and independent opinion and judgment. On these general grounds, therefore, I oppose the Resolution.

" But I may perhaps be permitted to explain briefly why it is also objectionable to me personally.

"I do not propose to-day to enter in any detail into my views on or criticisms of the Reforms Report for three reasons.

"Firstly, such an expression of views seems to me to be scarcely relevant to the Resolution which is before the Council.

"Secondly, the body which I have the honour to represent upon this Council is at present engaged upon studying and formulating its views on and criticisms of the Reforms Report and has not yet completed its task. I have therefore no mandate to speak for them on this subject to-day, and anything I might say would only represent my personal opinion.

" My third reason is that the Reforms Report is a lengthy document and a document of the very greatest importance. It would be obviously impossible within the limits of a speech in this Council, to deal adequately with our views and our criticisms upon it ; and if I endeavoured to compress my remarks within such a limit I should inevitably fail to do justice to the case which I should desire to present. I therefore prefer to leave the full expression of the views of my constituency until the completion of their written report, which will, I hope, be submitted to Government and published within a few weeks.

" But this much I must say to make my position clear. I have referred to two main schools of thought which have manifested themselves in the discussions which have already taken place upon the Report. I belong to yet a third school of thought. While not desiring in any way to take up an attitude of hostility towards the Reforms Report, I am of opinion that in certain important respects the proposals made go too far and move too fast, and I have little doubt that those whom I represent will press for modifications in that direction. Holding as I do these opinions, what possible object could be served by my sitting upon a Committee with the other non-official Members of this Council, many of whom belong to one or other of the two schools of thought to which I first referred, and endeavouring to arrive with them at common conclusions and common recommendations? It would, I submit, be the veriest waste of time to do so. I maintain, therefore, my Lord, that the proposal made in this Resolution for the appointment of a Committee would be at the best futile and at the worst demoralising. I submit that a far more normal and a far more useful course would be for Hon'ble Members to submit their views and criticisms to Government, either severally or by groups composed of men who really do think alike and who are not merely joined together in a forced and uncomfortable union, the only bond of which would be a common worship of the false idol of sham unanimity. But if this Resolution should be passed and if Government should decide to act upon it, I would respectfully request that my name may be omitted from the Committee."

12-34 P.M.

The Hon'ble Mr. G. S. Khaparde :—"I rise, my Lord to support this Resolution in the main operative part of it though I disagree with what my Hon'ble friend described as the preliminary part of it. All discussion in this Council has very rightly begun with the declaration of the 20th August 1917. I do not propose to read out that declaration, but I propose to point out what appears to me to be rather an important thing not yet brought out, and that is, that the first paragraph gives, I believe, the views of the Government in England, the British Government as a whole, and states what the policy has been and what ultimately it is desired to be. The next paragraph begins with the words 'I would add,' and those three words lead me to believe that over and above the declaration which has been made by the British Government the Right Hon'ble the Secretary of State for India was giving expression therein to certain views of his own. And then there is the last paragraph which says that 'publicity will be given in all directions' and so on. It may be taken to be of the same character as either the second paragraph or the first paragraph: it does not matter which. So that I take it that the first paragraph is the declaration of the British Government, of the Imperial Government as a whole. The next paragraph, on the other hand, is the opinion of the Right Hon'ble the Secretary of State for India. That opinion is certainly entitled to great respect, and as coming from the highest officer of State, it is entitled to all the respect that we can pay to it. But I submit it does not stand on the same level as the first declaration, the first being that of the whole Cabinet and the whole Government of England while the next is a declaration made by a very great person for whom I have the greatest respect possible, but still it is not on the same level as the first. As to the third declaration about publicity, etc. that can be taken whichever way you like. Whether it is taken as on the same level with the first or the second paragraph does not matter. But taking these things in their order, this leads me to my next point, which is that to the first part, that is to say (a) the declaration of the whole Cabinet, our utmost respect is due and it is not permissible—at least I believe it—for anyone to go beyond it or to criticise it. We have got to take it as it stands. It is like the aphorisms with which we are familiar in the Shastras. There is to be no reasoning about that matter. The next authority, that is to say (b) the declaration of the Secretary of State is very high indeed, but has to be interpreted as we interpret our Purans and our Smrities and all those things in which it is permissible to add something or explain away something, or do as the lawyers do with regard to all laws, namely, interpret and expound them for the benefit of the jury.

"Now in carrying out this policy we perfectly recognise the immense labour that has been bestowed on the Report. We recognise it fully and perfectly appreciate also, as has already been expressed in the main Resolution of the Congress held lately in Bombay, we appreciate and very deeply appreciate the great adroitness shown and the trouble taken, as far as possible, to bring our Indian aspirations within the proposals for reform. These we recognise and we admit, and for that and to that extent we feel very grateful; but we also recognise two more things, and those two things are:—one, that the task was tremendous, great, very immense. It is like legislating, or laying down, the constitution for a whole Continent, as India has been described in the proposals, with all its variety and number of peoples. Obviously the task was one of great difficulty; and unfortunately it had to be done within a certain time-limit. Certainly the declaration does not give any time-limit, but the work had to be done the best way it could. These two things, however, namely, the difficulty of the task and the time-limit, have acted, re-acted and led to a certain amount of trouble, leaving room for us to make suggestions; because they made it unavoidable that some portions of the task should be left over. I believe that the highest human beings—or at least two of them—were employed on this work for a long time, and it is only a testimony to the poverty of human nature that something is still left for others to do. But there it is and we have got to face it.

RESOLUTION ON REFORM PROPOSALS.

[6TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.] [Mr. G. S. Khaparde.]

"Now to that extent your Excellency, I propose not be discuss the whole scheme, not to mention the proposals in detail, but merely to refer to a few points which strike me as really of great importance.

"The first portion of the Report assumes that there are no constituencies in India worth mentioning; that constituencies have to be created, then they are to be educated, and made fit to operate and act. Now these suggestions are very good and I recognise their merit. But I humbly submit that there are constituencies in India, and my learned and Hon'ble friends here, who have been working on this Council for five years, have not been doing it on their own account, but representing certain constituencies and certain interests who sent them. There are these District Boards, there are these Municipalities, there are the Universities, there are the Chambers of Commerce and there are a number of other bodies, all of them representing, I submit, very intelligent classes of people and there are other constituencies. I agree that they may have to be enlarged, but to say that there are no constituencies and that the constituencies are to be created appears to me to begin a little too early, in fact to begin at a point where there is no historical evidence for it at all.

"My next point is that though we are diverse and though we are something like different nations and all that, still each unit of us has got a history of its own and very great history too. Hindus have got a great and ancient civilisation to speak about, certain tendencies which they have inherited Our Muhammadan friends have got their tenets and their traditions, their empires, their methods of thought; they have got a history of their own and an imperial history too. They came to India and ruled for over seven hundred years; they tried to get into the sentiments of the people whom they ruled and they tried to make their rule popular and it did become popular to the extent that Hindus fought to maintain the power of Muhammadan kings. So there is a tradition there. Then there are the Parsis who have got also a long tradition; they belong largely to the trades and to this day they are the most able and the most forward in industrial enterprises, as also in political thought, because our Dadabhai Naoroji was the greatest patriot and the greatest man, and I humbly submit the best man too. There are the Christians and they have got a great history behind them about which I need not speak. Even the Jews have got a history of their own. So notwithstanding all this diversity, I submit each unit has got a civilisation, is a civilised being and has got tendencies of its own, which if we can properly utilise would certainly make for the best government going. Now, it is said, how about these races, how about the people that are said to be not politically-minded, people said to be ignorant and so on? Well, I have an argument of my own. In embryology which is a new science and a very important one, it is said that every fœtus represents the history of the evolution that it has gone through from the time the human being existed as mere moss, then became an aquatic and then a vertebrate and so on. Those that have examined the fœtus, who have looked at it and seen it say that he represents æons of ages in a few seconds and at the end of nine months when it ripens crores of æons of ages that have gone before. So also with history. Take what period you like, you find that in it are preserved specimens of nearly every stage of civilisation even to this day. When you come from England and get somewhere about Socotra island the sailors tell you that cannibals live there, and coming from England with its high civilisation to these islands which are in between you meet cannibals and people like rustics and so forth. History always preserves all the specimens, and so does embryology. In India, these traces are preserved; we have got our hill-tribes who are not politically-minded; we have got all sorts of people; but we have also got a very intelligent class of people who think politically, read politically, go to other countries, see the best of it there and naturally desire to introduce the best that they have seen elsewhere into India. I saw this representative government in England, and it was the greatest ambition of my life to try and introduce it into India because it has got to come here and we want to get it. However, as I said this is only an argument against diversity of races and a large number of people not being politically minded and so on. In judging of the human frame it will be seen that the brain is a very small portion of the whole human body. The rest of the human body is much bigger, the limbs, etc., but is it not really the most important part? Similarly, if you take this political body of India there may be various races and there may be large numbers of people, but the thinking head and the brain of the body is also important. Taking the human frame again you do not provide conditions which will artificially develop and lengthen your limbs and make your arms longer than they are. You have got to work for the progress of the whole thing as a whole. Similarly, I humbly submit that in India there is a big majority though it may be called a minority according to the modern phraseology or rather the phraseology borrowed from statistics there are so many crores out of which so many thousands and so many lakhs who are literate and therefore they are intelligent. My submission is that literacy is not the same thing as education. In India, there are not many literate people, but there are a very large number of people that are really educated and very good people too, and in villages where I have wandered I have seen many people who can neither read nor write; but you talk with them and discuss matters with them and you find that they give you very intelligent answers. This superstition about literacy being the highest form of education or the whole of education is of comparatively modern origin, and I do not think it is quite correct either. I do not know that Charlemagne was ever able to sign his name; I doubt it very much and I doubt if Sivaji had any literary attainments. I do not think so, but that is another matter; we do not discuss these matters about literacy. My point is that literacy is not the same thing as education. A man may be very illiterate and yet may be highly cultivated, as he is in India, by listening to Purans and sermons and going about mixing with people and deriving opinions and correcting them. As I found, literacy does not mean that an illiterate person does not know anything.

RESOLUTION ON REFORM PROPOSALS.

[Mr. G. S. Khaparde.] [6TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.]

"In the Reform proposals it has been said that there are these large masses of people and who is going to take care of them? It is silently assumed that the educated people do not care for them, and that they cannot be represented by the educated people. It is silently assumed that the officers that come here to serve will take care of them; they are the masters and the great people who will look after the masses. I do not want to dispute that assumption about the officers, but I really wish to dispute the assertion that we who are born of them and brought up among them and have our sympathies with them, that we shall not take care of the masses. I take exception to that portion of the assumption, your Excellency. I take exception also to a further assumption, and that will be my last one. I am told that in America they are moving houses bodily; they make tremendous houses; I do not know about the mechanism, I have never been there, but the houses are put on wheels and they are drawn. If this is true, it only illustrates my point. The Government of a large Continent like India is a great thing, is a big load. It has to be drawn by a number of teams, not by one horse or by one team. If it is said that you drive only one team and the rest of them stand still, no progress will be ever made......"

RESOLUTION ON REFORM PROPOSALS.

[6TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.] [Mr. G. S. Khaparde; The President; Mr. Kamini Kumar Chanda.]

His Excellency the President:—"Order! Order! The Hon'ble Member has reached the limit of his time. Will you bring your remarks to a conclusion?"

The Hon'ble Mr. G.S. Khaparde:—"Most certainly, your Excellency. I only wanted to make a point of this, that I think that progress would have to be all round, and therefore as much in the Government of India as in the government of the Provinces. I do not subscribe to the view that the Provinces ought to begin first, and after they have advanced something could be attempted afterwards in the Government of India. I said all this to show that I disagree with the Hon'ble mover with regard to that one sentence, namely, 'definite advance towards the progressive realisation of responsible government in India.' I wish those words had not been there, and then my support would have been wholehearted and there would have been no need for this preliminary speech of mine. But I thought it my duty to point it out. Except that, I like the idea of appointing a Committee as suggested by my Hon'ble friend Mr. Surendra Nath Banerjea. I think such a Committee will do immense good. We have all spoken our views, we have attended Congresses and other meetings. We have our views which may differ from the views of others. But even if we differ, the differences will be well considered and the joint opinions will be placed at a later stage before your Excellency, which will give your Excellency excellent material from which to choose. You may of course reject some of the proposals, and I believe you will no doubt reject some. But all that has to be said will be put in a short compass and placed before your Excellency. It will be excellent material for your Excellency to place before the Cabinet. So this Committee will serve a very useful purpose of focussing all the opinions which can be submitted very respectfully and with due deference for being considered by the powers that be. So I support the operative part of the Resolution and submit that the Committee should be appointed."

12-51 P.M.

The Hon'ble Mr. Kamini Kumar Chanda:—"My Lord, with all respect to my Hon'ble friend Mr. Hogg, I think it is in the fitness of things that the non-official Members of this Council should be called upon to report on this historic document, the Report on Constitutional Reforms which is a monument of industry, and I am in agreement with the operative part of the Resolution which the Hon'ble mover has placed before the Council in asking for a Committee. My Lord, it is common ground, and even the Hon'ble Mr. Hogg admits that, I think, it is common ground that very important modifications will have to be introduced in the scheme, and the best way, I think, would be to appoint a Committee in accordance with well-known Constitutional procedure to examine this document. In addition to this, my Lord, there is a special reason why the non-official Members of this Council should meet in a body and examine this document. It will be in the recollection of this Council that two years ago, in September 1916, 19 Members of this Council signed a memorandum on Constitutional Reforms and submitted it to your Excellency. That memorandum has been described by Lord Islington as the most authoritative Indian demand. It has since been accepted as the basis of the scheme which was adopted by the Indian National Congress and the Moslem League in Lucknow in December 1916. That was re-affirmed by those two bodies in Calcutta last December, and the Resolution before both the Congresses was moved by the Hon'ble mover of this Resolution, the Hon'ble Mr. Surendra Nath Banerjea, where he described it to be the 'irreducible minimum of our demand.'

RESOLUTION ON REFORM PROPOSALS.

[Mr. Kamini Kumar Chanda.] [6TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.]

"My Lord, this scheme was further placed before your Excellency and the Right Hon'ble the Secretary of State last November in Delhi by a joint deputation of the Indian National Congress and the Moslem League, which was also headed by the Hon'ble Mr. Surendra Nath Banerjea. The Hon'ble Sir Dinshaw Wacha was not present then, but he, together with the other Indian leaders of Bombay, presented a similar document to your Excellency and to Mr. Montagu, in which this was embodied as the irreducible demand. It is thus pre-eminently the considered scheme of educated Indians.

"My Lord, I think it is very desirable that a Committee should be appointed. This scheme has certainly its defects. It is not, and it cannot be, perfect. It is vulnerable, but all the same, My Lord, it is the Indian demand the Indian scheme, and I quote from the memorandum which was submitted to your Excellency and the Right Hon'ble the Secretary of State by the Hon'ble Mr. Surendra Nath Banerjea when he headed the joint deputation, when quoting the historical declaration of the Prime Minister 'that the wishes of the inhabitants must be the supreme consideration in the re-settlement', which formula is to be applied equally in the tropical countries; it is stated :—

'It ought to be definitely recognised that the people of India being the party principally affected, are entitled to have an effective voice in the decision of the question which is of such supreme moment to them.'

"Therefore, I think, my Lord, it is very desirable that a Committee of this Council consisting of the leading authors of the memorandum of the 19 Members, the Hon'ble Sir Dinshaw Wacha, the Hon'ble Mr. Sastri, the Hon'ble Dr. Sapru and others should be appointed to see how far their irreducible minimum has been met in the proposals, and how far the principle of self-determination has been conceded. The Hon'ble Mr. Surendra Nath Banerjea had not signed this document, because at that time he was not a Member of this Council, but of course he has ratified the memorandum.

"My Lord, I agree with the Hon'ble Mr. Hogg that, regard being had to the operative part of this Resolution, the criticisms on the Report at this stage are not relevant. When you are going to refer the whole matter to a Committee, I think you will be pre-judging the whole issue if you were to express an opinion on any part of the scheme, and I wish therefore that the Hon'ble mover deleted the middle part of the Resolution, namely, that it marks a distinct and definite advance towards the progressive realisation of responsible government.

"My Lord, there is another special reason why this should be done. Your Excellen y told us day before yesterday that not mere destructive criticism is wanted, but constructive schemes should be submitted. This obviously cannot be done here, within the time limit, and I think it is therefore as unnecessary as undesirable to pick up portions of the scheme to point out that the proposals are a distinct advance. The Hon'ble Mr. Banerjea has referred to certain features of the scheme which certainly mark a distinct advance in the political conditions of India and might be taken to constitute preparation for a step towards responsible government. But, on the other hand, it may be as easy to select other parts of the scheme which go the other way but this would not be profitable. Nobody can deny, my Lord, that there are features in the scheme which mark a distinct advance in the political conditions of India. As my Hon'ble friend Mr. Khaparde has said, the special Session of the Indian National Congress and the Moslem League which met in Bombay last week have recognised this. But all the same, as my Hon'ble friend Rai Bahadur Shukul said, these proposals, although they are generous, have not evoked any real enthusiasm in the country. Why is that so? My Lord, we are a people who are easily satisfied. Even a kind word spoken to us strikes a gratefully responsive chord in our hearts. How is it then that these proposals which are really some of them generous concessions in some matters have not captured the imagination of the people. My Lord, there are several reasons for this. In the first place, your Excellency was pleased to observe in your speech the day before yesterday 'If there are those who have built up hopes on the words of others, it is of them they must make complaint and not of me'. My Lord, may I with all respect, in all humility, point out that the words of the announcement of the 20th August filled us with great hopes. Your Excellency and Mr. Montagu say in paragraph 7 of the Report 'that the announcement marks the beginning of a new policy.' Now there are three items in this declaration. First of all, it declares that there will be an increasing association of Indians in every branch of the administration, secondly, it says that there should be a gradual development of self-governing institutions, and thirdly, that there will be progressive realisation of responsible government in India. Now, my Lord, obviously the first two items, namely, the association of Indians in the higher branches of the services and development of self-governing institutions are not new policies. Both of them are old. The first dates back as far as 1833, and the second was started at the time of Lord Mayo in 1870, and a great impetus given to it in Lord Ripon's famous Resolution on Local Self-Government. So these are not the features of the new policy; but the new policy consists in the declaration that responsible government shall be the goal of British responsibility in India, and we are given reforms, but we cannot consider that the proposals give us real responsible government in India......"

RESOLUTION ON REFORM PROPOSALS.

[6TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.] [Mr. Kamini Kumar Chanda; Sir George Lowndes.]

The Hon'ble Sir George Lowndes: -" My Lord, I rise to a point of order. I ask your Lordship to rule that the Hon'ble Member must speak a little slower. Many of us are most anxious to hear what he says and it is really quite impossible to do so."

The Hon'ble Mr. Kamini Kumar Chanda:—" I am very sorry; I will try to speak slower. My Lord, your Lordship was pleased to observe yesterday that the terms of the reference to your Excellency and Mr. Montagu were confined to the four corners of the announcement. My Hon'ble friend Mr. Khaparde has anticipated me about one of the grounds, I venture to submit, in this connection. I do not know whether the interpretation which the Hon'ble Mr Khaparde suggested is the correct one, namely, that the latter part of the statement is an obiter dictum on the part of Mr. Montagu. But however that might be, I think, my Lord, that there is nothing in the announcement of August 20th to support the second 'formula' which is mentioned in the Report in paragraph 189, that 'the provinces are the domain in which the earlier steps towards the progressive realisation of responsible government should be taken.' I submit, my Lord, taking the announcement as the basis, that we had a right to claim that your Lordship would be pleased to consider whether any element of responsible government ought not to have been introduced in the Government of India. My Lord, any scheme that does not provide for that will certainly fail to evoke any interest in the country. All real power is centred in the Central Government, and unless the people are represented in the Government, I do not think the scheme will at all satisfy the public. My Lord, in the words of the Report, 'pending the development of responsible government in the provinces, the Government of India must remain wholly responsible to Parliament, and saving such responsibility, its authority in essential matters must remain indisputable.' In other words in all matters which it judges to be essential for the discharge of its duties in the maintenance of peace, order and good government, it must, save for its responsibility to Parliament, retain this indisputable power. My Lord, responsibility for good government, which is stated to include sound financial administration, is a dangerously vague expression, and, I submit, there is hardly anything which might not possibly be brought under it. In Colonial Governments the government which is responsible for peace, order and good government is not the Executive only but the Legislature. I submit, my Lord, here too the same thing ought to be done, and the Legislative Council should also be made responsible for peace, order and good government. My Lord, it is realised that, as is stated in Chapters VI and XI of the Report, there are certain matters which probably in the opinion of the authors stood in the way of the granting of the same system of responsible government in the Government of India. It was here feared perhaps that if the Legislature were given control over these matters they might use their powers to the prejudice of interests and communities that ought to be protected. My Lord, surely that could have been provided against. The Bengal Provincial Conference has tried to suggest a solution of the difficulty and if the Committee sits I shall place their proposals before the Committee. The problem can be solved in many other ways. These and other matters of detailed criticism I reserve for the Committee. The Resolution only asks for a Committee and it would not be relevant to go into details on these matters which would be dealt with by the Committee.

"I wish to associate myself with that part of the Resolution which thanks your Excellency and the Secretary of State for the earnestness and the care with which you have made these proposals."

1-5 P.M. The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur Mian Muhammad Shafi :— "My Lord, the Resolution, moved with his customary eloquence, by the Hon'ble Mr. Banerjea, consists of an acknowledgment, a proposition and a proposal. In the first part of his Resolution my Hon'ble friend asks us to express, in the form of a vote of thanks, our acknowledgment to your Excellency and to the Right Hon'ble the Secretary of State for the devoted labour and the sympathetic spirit with which the scheme of reforms presented to His Majesty's Government has been prepared, and I take it from the speeches of the Hon'ble Members who have preceded me that there is absolutely no difference of opinion in this Council so far as this part of my Hon'ble friend's Resolution is concerned.

"In the second part, my Hon'ble friend puts forward in this Council, on behalf of the scheme of Constitutional Reforms, a claim, the claim that it marks a distinct advance, and to quote his words, 'a definite advance towards the progressive realisation of responsible government in India.' With reference to this portion of the Resolution, although on the whole almost every speaker has recognised that the scheme is an advance, there seems to be some difference of opinion as to whether it is a definite advance or not.

"In the third part of his Resolution my Hon'ble friend proposes the formation of a Committee of this Council for the purpose of considering the scheme and making recommendations to the Government of India. So far as I have been able to judge, there is complete unanimity so far as the Indian Members of the Council are concerned in respect even of this portion of the Hon'ble Mr. Banerjea's Resolution. Only one discordant note has been struck in this connection by the Hon'ble Mr. Hogg, and I am exceedingly sorry that this should have been so. The Hon'ble Mr. Hogg questions the utility of the appoinment of such a Committee, and is of opinion that it will serve no purpose. Now, as all Hon'ble Members are aware, this Council, particularly the non-official portion of it, may be said to be an epitome of the entire non-official population of this country. We have in this Council representatives of the great non-official European community, of the landholding interests and of the Sikh community, of the Muhammadan and of the Hindu communities. It seems to me that in the calm atmosphere of a Committee consisting of the chosen representatives of all classes the various debatable points in this scheme will be discussed in a far more useful and effective manner than they can possibly be discussed in a public meeting or a conference. And I for one am absolutely confident that the deliberations of this Committee will bring about results in the highest degree beneficial to the interests of the country. But there is one more point of view which I venture to place before Hon'ble Members in answer to what was said by the Hon'ble Mr. Hogg. We are all of us, I am perfectly sure, sincere well-wishers of progress in this country, and are anxious for the advent of the day when the British and the Indian elements in our Legislatures and in our public life generally will act in mutual co-operation for the advancement of the country as a whole. To me it appears that this Committee will mark the beginning of a new era, a new era in which representatives of the non-official European community and the various representatives of all sections of the Indian community will put their heads together and will, as I trust, succeed in evolving a compromise as between themselves which will be acceptable to all alike. It seems to me that as a beginning of such mutual co-operation and mutual good-will, the appointment of this Committee will have served a highly beneficial purpose so far as the future of India is concerned.

RESOLUTION ON REFORM PROPOSALS.

[6TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.] [Khan Bahadur Mian Muhammad Shafi.]

"My Lord, as regards the second part of my Hon'ble friend's Resolution, complaint has been made by the Hon'ble Mr. Shukul that the scheme formulated by your Excellency and the Secretary of State does not definitely lay down the period within which full responsible government is to be granted to our country. Now, I for one am of opinion that under the complex conditions prevailing in India and in a transitional stage such as the one which we are passing through, it is impossible for any statesman, no matter how great his experience, to lay down definitely and once for all that responsible government in India shall be reached within a certain definite period. But if my Hon'ble friend had studied the Report carefully, he would have found that there are in this Report indications which clearly enable us to pronounce a judgment upon this question, and, for one, fill me with confident hope as to the early realisation of the ultimate goal declared to be the policy of the Government of India as well as of His Majesty's Government, that is to say, full responsible government for India. Now, a reference to paragraphs 260 and 261 of this Report will make it perfectly clear to Hon'ble Members that, as regards future development as laid down in paragraph 260, five years after the first meeting of the Reformed Councils the Government of India themselves will consider the question of the expansion of 'Transferred Subjects' and of the curtailment of 'Reserved Subjects,' and under paragraph 261 a Commission will sit ten years after the enforcement of this scheme with the objects mentioned in that paragraph. I wish to read two passages from this paragraph and to invite the attention of my friend the Hon'ble Mr. Shukul in particular to those passages. This is what is said in an earlier portion of paragraph 261 ;—

'We would provide, therefore, that ten years after the first meeting of the new Councils established under the Statute a Commission should be appointed to review the position.'

How to review the position is indicated in a subsequent passage in the same paragraph as follows :—

'The Commissioners' mandate should be to consider whether by the end of the term of the legislature then in existence it would be possible to establish complete responsible government in any province or provinces, or how far it would be possible to approximate to it in others.'

"It will thus be seen that there is a clear indication in this passage that, should the Reformed Councils, Legislative as well as Executive, discharge the responsible duties which will be entrusted to them in the manner in which the authors of this scheme expect they will do—and there is, I trust, good ground for the hope expressed by the authors of this scheme—, then only ten years thereafter it will be open to the new Commissions which will sit for inquiry into this matter, provided they are satisfied that the responsibilities already entrusted have been properly discharged, to give complete self-government to the provinces in which such results will have been brought about ; and if there are provinces in which, owing to the failure of the representatives of the people themselves they have not proved worthy of the grant of responsible government, and the Commission should arrive at that conclusion, who will be to blame for such a result ? We ourselves, not the Government. So that the declaration made in this paragraph makes it perfectly clear that the acceleration of the time when full responsible government shall be granted to our people will lie in the hands of our representatives. Should there be any delay, should there be any inordinate delay, the responsibility for it will rest not on the heads of the Government but on the heads of the representatives of our own people in the Reformed Legislative and Executive Councils.

"My Lord, exception has been taken by my friend the Hon'ble Mr. Chanda to the Hon'ble Mr. Banerjea having brought out in his speech some of the most prominent features of the new scheme of reforms formulated by your Excellency and the Right Hon'ble the Secretary of State. He thought that this was not the stage at which that course ought to have been taken. I venture respectfully to dissent. When the mover of a Resolution lays down a proposition to the effect that any scheme marks a definite advance towards the ultimate goal of self-government, he has obviously got to substantiate that proposition. How else is he to substantiate that proposition, except by pointing out that such and such changes will be brought into existence by that scheme and comparing those changes with the existing state of things, and thus to point out that the scheme represents a distinct advance. My Lord, there was one flaw in the method adopted by my venerable friend which, with your Lordship's permission, I wish to clear up. He merely invited the attention of the Council to some of the prominent features in the new scheme, but he did not make a comparative analysis of the existing state of things with the position as it will be when the new scheme of reforms has been brought into operation. I am not going to enter into the details of this part of the discussion—the Hon'ble the Secretary of the Council need not be afraid of that. But what I wish to point out is this, my Lord, that in the sphere of local self-government, in the sphere of the provincial governments, in the sphere of the Government of India, and in the measure of the control which is at present exercised over provincial and Indian affairs by the Secretary of State, remembering what Lord Morley has said in his 'Recollections' with reference to the functions and powers of the Secretary of State, I say that in respect of all these spheres, when we come to examine the existing state of things and compare the results of the new scheme, it seems to me that the only inevitable conclusion to be drawn from such a comparison is this, that the scheme does mark a definite advance in the direction of responsible government.

"My Lord, with the greatest pleasure I most cordially support the Resolution which my Hon'ble and venerable friend has laid before the Council."

1-20 P.M. The Hon'ble Mr. Abdur Rahim:—"My Lord, I have much pleasure in supporting the first part of the Resolution, namely, to thank your Excellency and the Secretary of State for India for the Reform proposals and to recognise them as an advance towards the progressive development of responsible government. There is not the least doubt, my Lord, that the Reforms Scheme is an advance towards the goal that Indians are trying to reach to. But I will be wanting in my duty if I hesitate to say that the community which I have the honour to represent on this Council are not fully satisfied with the way in which the proposals are laid down in the Report. I may say, however, that the Muhammadans are not disappointed, as they are assured that their interests will not be overlooked at the time when the details come to be discussed.

"As regards the second part of the Resolution, namely, to appoint a Committee, I respectfully beg to submit that I agree with my Hon'ble friend, Mr. Hogg, in saying that the proposed Committee should not be appointed. To me, my Lord, any expression of opinion by the non-official Members of this Council at the present stage is premature. We should not give our views in our individual capacity, but only as the representatives of our constituencies. These constituencies are represented by the various political organisations which have been invited to submit their views. Therefore it would be unfair if we commit ourselves before knowing what the people whom we represent here have to say on a subject of such importance. With these remarks, I offer my sincere and heart iest support to the first part of the Resolution."

RESOLUTION ON REFORM PROPOSALS.

[6TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.] [Mr. Ironside.]

The Hon'ble Mr. Ironside :—" My Lord, I desire to take this early opportunity to acknowledge and express my hearty appreciation of the language which was used in the eloquent speech of my Hon'ble friend the mover of this Resolution. The proposal embodied in the Resolution is one which I regret I feel myself unable to support for reasons which I do not propose to expound at length : their cogency will be plain and manifest in few words. 1-21 P.M.

"The European Mercantile community, and with that, I think, I may class the whole of the non-official European community, occupies in regard to this matter a position different —in fact, we think very different—from that of any of the Indian communities here represented. In the Report on Indian Reforms it finds itself practically ignored, and I am bound to take this the first opportunity of offering my respectful protest against the treatment accorded to us by the distinguished authors of that Report. We cannot admit that the settlement is purely one between the European official and the Indian non-official. This community, which has in the past been responsible for so much, is at present so inextricably bound up with and will in the future, I hope and feel sure, take its full and due share in, the economic development and welfare of the country and the people, that as the British official element becomes eliminated it must take its share in the government—an increasing share in the government and become more and more responsible for the maintenance of purely British I say that in no hostile spirit—purely British ideals in the country. Not by reason of numbers, but by reason of the immensity of its interests which critically and vitally affect hundreds of thousands of Indians, the European community as a whole must, we feel, be secured from harm in the early stages of this scheme. I do not use these words, my Lord, in any hostile or so-called racial spirit ; for me the racial portion of this discussion has no interest. I have worked for years alongside Indian business-men, and all I can say is that I am satisfied with them, and, as far as I know, they have been satisfied with me. We have had no quarrel and we shall have none. But business-men are not politicians. At any rate we speedily learn at the expense of our pockets the need for caution. Some people think and believe that business-men—and particularly European business-men in India—only live to make profits Well, I appeal to my Indian business friends, who I am sure will admit the fallacy of that opinion, and moreover agree with the need for caution in all things.

"The Reforms Scheme is of necessity a shell of suggestions. The real substance has yet to be filled, and it will I hold tax the ingenuity and brains of every man in this Council and many more outside to fill it with material of such quality and in such manner that the mass of the people may not suffer thereafter by mistakes hurriedly made now. Few if anyone of us can hope to live to see the full result of our handiwork. So I say in all sincerity, in all friendliness, let us build the foundation sure and true before we think of the superstructure, and before we dream of designing the upper stories. Here again, let me not be misunderstood. I am prepared to accept much that is in the scheme ; but if everything is to be effectively and efficiently changed and reconstituted in the short period outlined, it gives me reason for grave misgiving. It cannot work like clockwork.

'The best laid plans of mice and men as the old Scotch poet has said. I confess that I consider you are almost expecting the impossible. You will have to work at the speed of your slowest unit. Is there any need for such abnormal haste ? No one is going to live one day less or longer whatever happens.
Run oft agley'

" I am a man responsible for earning my own and many other people's living, and to do so all my time is fully occupied. The leaders of my community are in similar situation. The consideration of a report of this nature is no work for the last hours of a long day's work in the plains. I should like to know how many people have read the Report page by page, paragraph by paragraph, digested it and dissected it carefully and thoughtfully. I venture to say very very few. It will have to be digested gradually by the people who are to pay the piper and who should know what the tune is to which they will be asked to dance. The peace of mind my Hon'ble friend so eloquently alluded to in his speech of yesterday I hope to find for the purposes of this Report in these beautiful and peaceful surroundings. I am without a mandate from the community and the interests I represent; they are placed and they have been placed exactly like myself, unable to give the time and thought such as is necessary for its proper consideration. I am, therefore, not competent, I hold, to join in any discussion, to be of any real value, and at any rate to make recommendations to Government at this stage; but because I here and my community do not consider that we have had enough time to consider the proposals with exactitude must not be taken as an unwillingness or hostility to co-operate to make the scheme a successful and lasting benefit to the country and people of all creeds. But, my Lord, let us not forget the people who have no voice to-day, and by all means do not forget the people who will come after us and who will be our real judges."

RESOLUTION ON REFORM PROPOSALS.

[Mr. Ironside; Pandit Madan Mohan Malaviya.] [6TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.]

1-31 P.M.

The Hon'ble Pandit Madan Mohan Malaviya:—"My Lord, I join with my friends in expressing our acknowledgments for the advance which the proposals which your Lordship and the Right Hon'ble Mr. Montagu put forward mark. There is no question that they do mark a large and liberal advance on the existing arrangements. At the same time I feel bound to say that I do not share with my friend the mover of the Resolution before us the optimism which he assumed in describing the effect of these proposals. So far as the proposals go they mark a distinct advance; but our complaint is that they do not mark a sufficient advance, that they do not go far enough to meet the requirements of the country. In your speech the day before yesterday your Excellency was pleased to say that the August announcement constituted the terms of your reference. We have all looked at the matter in that light; but with all the respect due to your Excellency and to your Hon'ble colleague, who laboured with you with so much distinguished ability and elaborate care to frame the proposals, we feel that the interpretation which you put upon the terms of reference, was unduly restricted, and that it should have been much wider. The language of the announcement required that substantial steps should be taken in the direction of the progressive realisation of responsible government in India. That certainly, my Lord, according to the views which many of us humble men take, meant the introduction of responsible government in the Government of India also, and not merely in the Provincial Governments.

"Your Lordship will have noted, and every Member of this Council will have noted, that there is a widespread unanimity in regard to the proposals relating to the Provinces. You will also have noted that there is also widespread unanimity among Indian publicists, among men who have devoted a lifetime to the cause of Indian Constitutional Reform—and who cannot feel with Mr. Ironside that if the Reforms which they consider to be necessary are not carried out that fact will have no effect upon the length of their days, for the matter is of deep interest to them—it affects the lives and happiness of their countrymen and must therefore affect their own lives—I say that there is a remarkable unanimity of opinion that liberalisation should be introduced into the Government of India also, that is to say that the lines which your Lordship and your Hon'ble colleague have recommended for the Provinces, by a division of Transferred and Reserved Subjects should be introduced into the Government of India. My Lord, I do not want at this hour of the day to take up time by pointing out what an array of argument, based upon hard facts stands behind this suggestion. I will leave it for some other occasion. We acknowledge that you have recommended a distinct line of advance in the Provinces. We feel thankful for the amount of care and patience which you have bestowed upon the proposals, but, my Lord, as your Lordship and Mr. Montagu anticipated, you did expect criticism, and we feel it our duty to place such criticism before the Government in order that the proposals might be helped forward. In dealing with this question of the Government of India, I would just invite attention to one matter. In paragraph 350 of your Report you and your Hon'ble colleague have said :—

RESOLUTION ON REFORM PROPOSALS.

[6TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.] [Pandit Madan Mohan Malaviya.]

'At the same time change obviously cannot be confined to the provinces. In proportion as they become more responsible the control which the Government of India exercise over them must diminish. But it is not merely a question of the extent of the control; the nature and manner of its exercise must in course of time be modified. We cannot think that States on the way to responsible government, which have imbibed a large element of responsibility into their constitutions, can be controlled by a purely autocratic power. So also with the duties extending over the whole of India which will be discharged by the Government of India as its special concern. It is impossible that while other duties which differ from them mainly in being local in scope or subject to provincial differentiation are being administered by responsible governments, those which fall to the Government of India should be administered autocratically.'

"Of course the Report says that change should come in gradually, but that is exactly where we respectfully join issue; we feel that for the very reasons stated by you, and because the interests which the Government of India will control will be so vast and so important, that there an element of responsibility should be introduced at this stage into the Government of India simultaneously with its introduction in the Provincial administrations. And I want just to put very respectfully one more matter for your consideration and that is with reference to the extent and effect of this suggestion. My Lord, none of us desires to walk with this great haste with which my Hon'ble friend Mr. Ironside seems to think that we do want to; nor does any of us desire any catastrophic change. We do no think we are unalive to the effects of catastrophic changes; we feel honestly, I am sure your Lordship will agree, as honetly as those who differ from us, that the pace that is needed in the highest interests of India and the Empire should be much quicker, much more rapid, much more substantial, than what your Lordship and Mr. Montagu have in your wisdom thought it fit to recommend. My Lord, it has been said that we ought to take a lesson from the fate of Russia. Now we all remember that when the revolution took place in Russia English statesmen clapped their hands and cheered it tothe echo. They thought and said that it was the biggest event to the credit of the war. My Lord, I ask that those who brought about that revolution should be judged fairly. It was not anything intrinsically wrong in their arrangements, it was not anything wrong in their calculations and programme, but it was the evil machination of a very ambitious and unscrupulous foe that has brought Russia to its present pass. Let it be said to their credit that those who deserved our sympathy at the outbreak of the revolution were not denied fair treatment when discussing the conditions to which they were exposed. I fear, my Lord, there are not many countries and many people who could have successfully withstood, resisted, or escaped from the evil influence which Germany has brought to bear upon Russia for her own nefarious ends. Let therefore the change in Russia not be condemned too much on that account. But, my Lord, we here are not seeking anything approaching a change of that character. All that we are seeking is that, subject to the Government of His Majesty the King Emperor which is so well established in this land, subject to all the beneficial laws which have been passed during the last 150 years, and subject to all the existing arrangements which ensure peace, order and good government, we Indian subjects of His Majesty should have a determining voice in directing the affairs of this country which our English fellow-subjects have had so long. This power has been the monopoly of our English fellow-subjects so long. We now want to share it with them, not as opponents, not as rivals, but as fellow-subjects who are interested, deeply interested, in the welfare of our country and the administration of our country's affairs. There is no reason, my Lord, I submit, for any apprehension that anything like the fate which has overtaken Russia will befall India if the full measure of our demand is conceded. We shall continue to have the co-operation of our English fellow-subjects in the work that lies before us. Whatever changes are introduced will be shouldered and carried out by Britishers and Indians acting together. I submit, therefore, that there is no analogy between India and Russia, and that the fate of Russia should not in any way damp our enthusiasm for reforms which we think are essential in the interests of this country. There is one other point which I might mention. As a contrast to the case of Russia, we should look at the cases of Canada and Australia. They are much more to the point. Canada and Australia have fared well, fared, as everybody knows, admirably well, under the system of responsible government that was conceded to them by England. And I say it on the basis of incontestable fact that India is in every way better prepared to-day to bear the burden of responsible government than Canada was when responsible government was given to her. My Lord, there are two facts more which I should like the Council to consider in this connection. We have been asking for a responsible share in the government of India for a long time past, certainly for thirty-three years. The war has now brought about a tremendous change in the situation. Englishmen and Indians have shed their blood together on the battle-fields of France, Flanders and Mesopotamia in order to vindicate the principles of justice and liberty and the self-determination of nations. There is a determination in the minds of Englishmen to see that Belgians and other small nationalities in Europe should receive the full benefit of those principles before peace shall be restored. It is for that noble object that England has been fighting. England has not lost any of her own possessions; professedly she is fighting for other nations and races. Is it not reasonable, my Lord, then, to expect that the same sympathy which is shown by Englishmen to Belgians and other nationalities in Europe shall be extended to Indians also? Let the facts of the situation be calmly and dispassionately examined. If on an examination of the facts we are found to be wrong, if the facts do not support our claim, we are willing to go out of Court. But we want you to give us an opportunity; let there be a discussion in Committee, whether it should be the Committee suggested by the Hon'ble mover or any other, I do not mind, but let there be a Committee, and then we Indians shall be content.

RESOLUTION ON REFORM PROPOSALS.

[Pandit Madan Mohan Malaviya.] [6TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.]

"My Lord, it is not a new principle we are asking to be adopted in dealing with us and our country. Some people have said that the principle of self-determination has only recently been enunciated by President Wilson, and that we are taking improper advantage of it. That is not so. The principle we rely on is an ancient principle. It was clearly enunciated and recognised in England nearly seven hundred years ago, when the Victory of Lewes in 1264 had placed Earl Simon at the head of the State there.

'Now England breathes in the hope of liberty,' sang a poet of the time, says Green; 'the English were dispised like dogs, but now they have lifted up their head and their foes are vanquished.' The song announced with almost legal precision the theory of the patriots. 'He who would be in truth a King, he is a 'free king' indeed if he rightly rule himself and his realm. All things are lawful to him for the government of his Kingdom, but nothing for its destruction. It is one thing to rule according to a king's duty, another to destroy a Kingdom by resisting the law.'

"My Lord, the principle of despotic government, the principle that might is right, was here condemned, and the principle of popular representative government was here advocated in terms which have never been excelled. The poet patriot sang :—

> 'Let the community of the realm advise, and let it be known what the generality, to whom their own laws are best known, think on the matter. They who are ruled by the laws know those law best, they who make daily trial of them are best acquainted with them; and since it is their wn affairs which are at stake, they will take more care and will act with an eye to their own peace. It concerns the community to see what sort of men ought justly to be chosen for the weal of the realm.'

"Now, my Lord, we want that this ancient, this time-honoured principle, should be applied to the administration of India, after we Indians, the inheritors of ancient civilisations, have been for 150 years under

RESOLUTION ON REFORM PROPOSALS.

[6TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.] [Pandit Madan Mohan Malaviya.]

British rule, after we have had the advantages of English education for half a century and more, after we have so long had the advantage of living under the unifying laws and institutions which have been established by England in this country, after we have had the advantage of seeing this principle beneficently at work in the institutions established by England in other parts of the British Empire. This is all our humble prayer. I quite understand, my Lord, differences there must arise on a matter like that. But I ask all English fellow-subjects, all British fellow-subjects, to consider our prayer with sympathy, and if they cannot agree with us, let them at any rate try to appreciate our position. Let them realise that the question of introducing responsible government into the administration of India is not a question of mere sentiment; that upon it hangs the progress and prosperity of our people, the future of our country, our status in the British Empire, and the rest of the civilised world. Our desire is that we should achieve national progress in all directions under the ægis of the British Crown as other members of the British Empire have achieved, and we desire that it should be made possible for us to do so. It is as a step towards this end, my Lord, that we desire that the element of responsibility which has been introduced in the Provincial administration should be introduced in the Government of India also.

"I do not want to take up any more time of the Council. I am absolutely indifferent as to whether the substantive part, as it has been called, of the Resolution before us is or is not accepted. If it is accepted, I do not object to it. If it is not accepted, I do not object to it either. What the Government required to know was the sentiments of the people as a whole towards the proposals of Constitutional Reform. The Special Indian National Congress and the All-India Moslem League have held their sittings in Bombay, and both these bodies have pronounced their views, regarding them. Happily they have both come to an unanimous conclusion, and they will no doubt place it formally before the Government. They have both clearly recognised the value of the recommendations which have been made. They have also pointed out wherein those recommendations fail. They have also made recommendations for changes and additions. And they have hoped, and I hope they have not hoped in vain, that their recommendations will be considered, and that the final scheme which will be adopted will see an element of real responsibility introduced into the Government of India in order that there should be peace, contentment and ordered progress in the land, power and prosperity to India, and greater power to the British Empire."

The Council then adjourned till Saturday, the 7th September, 1918.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

PROCEEDINGS OF THE INDIAN LEGISLATIVE COUNCIL ASSEMBLED UNDER THE PROVISIONS OF THE GOVERNMENT OF INDIA ACT, 1915 (5 & 6 Geo. V, Ch. 61).

THE Council met at the Council Chamber, Viceregal Lodge, Simla, on Saturday, the 7th September, 1918.

PRESENT:

His Excellency BARON CHELMSFORD, P.C., G.M.S.I., G.M.I.E., G.C.M.G., G.C.B.E., Viceroy and Governor General, presiding, and 51 Members, of whom were 45 Additional Members.

RESOLUTION ON REFORM PROPOSALS—(contd.).

11 A.M.

The Hon'ble Mr. V. J. Patel: – "May it please your Excellency, I regret I am unable to support this Resolution in the form in which it appears on the agenda. Speaking for myself, I say I have not the slightest objection to the appointment of a Committee consisting of all the non-official Members to consider the Reforms Report, though I must say I do not anticipate much good out of the deliberations of that Committee. But with regard to that part of the Resolution in which the Hon'ble mover puts in a claim that the Constitutional Reforms contained in the Report constitute a definite advance towards the realisation of responsible government in India, I join issue with him. And my reasons are these. It is only very recently, last week, that the two national organisations of this country, I mean the Indian National Congress and the Muslim League, met in Bombay, held joint deliberations, and came to certain unanimous conclusions in regard to the Reform proposals. In the resolutions that they passed at their sittings, they in no unequivocal terms held that the Reforms, though they constitute an advance—not a definite advance—as the Hon'ble mover has stated in the Resolution, an advance on the present conditions in some directions—not an advance towards the progressive realisation of responsible government as is stated in the Resolution. That is the verdict of the National Congress and the Muslim League. They go further and say that the Reforms taken as a whole are disappointing and unsatisfactory. In the face of this verdict of the Indian people, Hindus and Mussalmans, Parsis and Christians, I fail to understand how, standing here as the representative of the people, I can conscientiously assent to a proposition which says in effect, or rather in express terms, that the Reforms constitute a definite advance towards the progressive realisation of responsible government. Your Excellency, the main object, as I understand, of the Resolution is the appointment of a Committee, and I submit it is for that Committee who will sit to deliberate upon the Reform proposals to say whether the Reforms as a whole constitute a definite advance towards the progressive realisation of responsible government. If we are going to appoint a Committee, it is no use for this Council first to pronounce a verdict that the Reforms constitute a definite advance towards the progressive realisation of responsible government, and then ask that Committee to make recommendations. It may be that the Committee to be appointed might so frame its recommendations that no one who reads them would be justified in saying that the Reforms constitute a definite advance. It may be that the Committee might agree that the Reforms do constitute a definite advance, but I certainly think that to ask the Committee to consider the Reform proposals and express their opinions thereon after the pronouncement of this Council that the Reform proposals constitute a definite advance, is to begin at the wrong end. Your Excellency, it is said that much will depend on the two Committees that the authors of the Report have suggested, one regarding the Transferred and the Reserved Subjects, and the other regarding the franchise, constituencies and the rest of it. It may be that those Committees might recommend that all subjects in the Provinces, except one or two, namely, law, justice and police, may be handed over to the Legislature. It may be that the Committee might recommend that only a few, and a very few subjects, shall be transferred to the Legislature. It may be, your Excellency, that that Committee might recommend that the Muhammadans in particular Provinces shall not have a separate electorate, or it may be that they might agree with the recommendations of the Muslim League and the Indian National Congress and say that the agreement arrived at in Lucknow shall be observed, and the Muhammadans shall have their separate representation as agreed to. So, I say, before this Council pronounces a verdict on the question whether the Reforms as a whole constitute a definite advance towards the progressive realisation of responsible government or not, I would ask the Hon'ble Members of this Council earnestly to wait and see what those Committees recommend. I would ask the Hon'ble mover also to consider whether it is wise at this stage to commit this Council to any particular view. Speaking for myself, your Excellency, I am entirely at one with the resolutions of the Indian National Congress and the Indian Muslim League, and I know that there are several Hon'ble Members in this Council who share the same view. Yesterday we heard our friends Mr. Khaparde, Mr. Chanda, Mr. Shukul and Pundit Madan Mohan Malaviya: all these gentlemen share the view which the Congress and the League have expressed, and whatever differences of opinion there may be among the Congress leaders, I would most respectfully ask the Hon'ble Members not to hurry, but to wait at least till the decisions of the two Committees to be appointed are published.

"It may be contended that if that is my view, how was it that the Indian National Congress and the Moslem League did not wait, and how was it that they expressed so clearly and so explicitly that the Reforms are unsatisfactory and disappointing? My Lord, as to that, my reply to your Excellency is that the Congress and the Moslem League thought that there were several essentials which the country expected would be granted by the Reforms, but as those essentials did not find place in the recommendations they, on a consideration of the whole Report, came to the conclusion that the Reforms were on the whole disappointing and unsatisfactory. The first and foremost of these essentials, your Excellency, is fiscal autonomy, fiscal freedom. I say, and I say with all the force that I can command, that no Reforms are worth having unless they are accompanied by fiscal autonomy. Your Excellency, the Constitutional Reforms, even if they had gone much further than they have done, are to my mind not worth much. The authors of the Report have recognised the necessity and the urgency of powers in the Indian Legislature to regulate the Indian tariff, but at the same time, when it comes to a question of recommendations, they leave the whole question to be settled by the Imperial Conference which is to meet after the war. Speaking for myself I say that I regard the denial of fiscal autonomy to India as the very denial of responsible government itself.

"Secondly, the country certainly expected, and with due deference I say they expected from the very terms of the announcement of the 20th of August 1917, that the introduction of responsible government would take place simultaneously both in the Provinces and in the Government of India. Unfortunately, however, we find that, so far as the Government of India is concerned,

RESOLUTION ON REFORM PROPOSALS.

[7TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.] [Mr. V. J. Patel; The President; Mr. Srinivasa Sastri.]

the Report not only says that the power of the Government of India will remain indisputable, but the authors also fail to include among the functions of the Commission to be appointed twelve years hence the question of transferring the powers from the Government of India to the Indian Legislature.

"The third point, your Excellency, to which I should like to invite the attention of this Council is the question of the time-limit for the introduction of responsible government in their country. I have read the Report more than once, and I have no hesitation in saying..........

His Excellency the President:—"Order, order. The Hon'ble Member has been speaking beyond the time limit allowed. He must bring his remarks to a close."

The Hon'ble Mr. V. J. Patel:—"In concluding my observations, your Excellency, I should like to submit that it would be much better if the two parts of the Resolution are put to vote separately. There are Hon'ble Members in this Council who feel that the Reforms as a whole are not a distinct advance. There are others, on the other hand, who feel that the Reforms constitute a definite advance. In these circumstances, it would be much better if the two parts of the Resolution are put separately to the Council, and if your Excellency permits me, I would propose an amendment that the words beginning with 'and' in the second line and ending with the word 'India' in the third line be dropped. I formally propose, therefore, that the words........

His Excellency the President:—"The Hon'ble Member is not in order in moving an amendment because he has not given notice."

The Hon'ble Mr. V. J. Patel:—"I said with your Excellency's permission."

His Excellency the President:—"Well, it has not my permission at the present moment."

The Hon'ble Mr. Srinivasa Sastri:—"My Lord, my Hon'ble friend Mr. Patel has recognised, I am glad to think, the distinction between the Resolution we are considering and the main Resolution passed by the Indian National Congress and the Moslem League. As one who participated in the meetings in Bombay last week Mr. Patel is rightly unable to associate himself with the subject-matter of this Resolution. I hope this will be remembered clearly by the country in general. The Hon'ble Mr. Banerjea, who is responsible for the terms of this Resolution, and some others who act with him in this matter, believed—and events have proved our belief to be fully justified—that the National Congress and the Moslem League would adopt such Resolutions. We are, therefore, perfectly free and unembarrassed unlike the Hon'ble Mr. Patel, and we can discuss the present Resolution on its merits; and if we think it meets the needs of the case we can give our unqualified adherence to it. This is precisely why, my Lord, some of us thought it necessary to keep away from this Session of the National Congress and the Moslem League. I hope the Hon'ble Mr. Patel and those who are associated with him will not hereafter talk of the possibility of an agreement and blame us for not accepting their invitation and coming into the organization which they have conducted so as to lead to the Resolutions from which he is unable to separate himself now. 11-17 A.M.

"Then, with regard to the Committee of non-officials to consider these Reforms, he says this Committee will be bound by the terms of the first part of the Resolution. I think the Hon'ble Mr. Banerjea made it clear that that Committee should be so bound. It is our intention that the Committee of non-officials to be appointed should not go beyond the terms of this Resolution, that they should not, for instance, attack the announcement of August 1917 and proceed to tear up by the roots the very basis on which the Reforms Report is based. It is necessary that the Committee should have a direction from this Council. Does the Hon'ble Mr. Patel recognise the supreme character of this occasion? After 30 or 35 years of constant agitation a great programme of Reform is laid before the country on the highest authority. The Members of the Government of India, the Members of the

RESOLUTION ON REFORM PROPOSALS.

[Mr Srinivasa Sastri.] [7TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.]

Council of the Secretary of State, the members of the delegation that came out with the Secretary of State have all signified their assent to the general tenor and policy of the Reforms. This Imperial Council, dealing with national affairs, meets for the first time to consider this subject. Would it not be a futile procedure, would it not be almost puerile for this Council to appoint a Committee without anything like a general direction as to the lines on which the report of the Committee should be laid? Have we not read the Resolution on the Reforms Report? Is it reasonable to expect that we should consign the entire consideration of the Report to a Committee of ourselves? I think it is perfectly right, it is the only proper course for us to give a general direction, and ask that the Committee to be appointed should observe that direction in any specific recommendations that it makes.

"With regard to the three points that my Hon'ble friend brought up as disabling him from associating himself with this Resolution, I will speak only with reference to the last one—the time-limit. Now the time-limit, I must grant, has an attraction for those of us in India who have watched Indian affairs and the slow way in which they develop from progress to progress. We know that there is too much delay in the proceedings of the Imperial Government, as far as they affect the claims of India. The question of time-limit therefore is one of great attraction to us. I wish it were possible to pin down the authorities to a definite time-table. But we have also got to recognise that in this matter the final voice rests with the Imperial Parliament of Great Britain and Ireland. I doubt very much whether the Imperial Parliament could be brought to assign a time-table programme of legislation to the question of reforms. Will they say that on such and such a day such and such a step shall be taken? I fear it is practically impossible to expect that a time-table piece of legislation will be undertaken by Parliament. But still I must say that I recognise that the distinguished authors of the Report with which we are dealing have gone as far as they possibly can to get Parliament to consent to something very near a time-table legislation. They have recommended that the future steps in the progress of our constitution should depend on the reports made by commissions to be appointed by Parliament itself. Now these commissions are to be appointed at stated intervals. It is not to be expected in the ordinary course of human nature that, when after an interval of twelve years a commission is appointed, it will not result in the making of a definite stage of advance. Every time this commission meets, it is bound to make recommendations in the direction of advance, and I do not think that we should be so impatient as to say that before the 3rd or 4th twelve-yearly commission reports, all constitutional advance in India should have been completed. It is, I take it, perfectly possible for the 2nd twelve-yearly commission or the 3rd twelve-yearly commission, at the longest, to report that the fabric of responsible government might be completed throughout India. It is perfectly possible, I say; but there are ups and downs in Constitutional progress; there are vicissitudes attendant on national movements, and it is impossible now to demand that within 25 or 30 years the whole thing should be done by an Act of Parliament to be enacted in the course of the next year. I am one of those who would rest content with this position, that the twelve-yearly commissions should determine the pace at which we should proceed and set down definitely the precise lines on which we should advance. I hope that that arrangement will so work out as to meet all that the Hon'ble Mr. Patel and others desire.

"Having dealt with the Hon'ble Mr. Patel at this length, I must proceed to discuss two points raised by the Hon'ble Mr. Khaparde yesterday. The first position he took up was rather a legal point. In my opinion, he was rather overnice when he dealt with the terms of the August declaration and divided it into two clear halves, the first half having the authority of the Imperial Cabinet, and the second resting on the purely personal or individual authority of the Secretary of State for India. Now as a plain layman not knowing the subtleties of law, I must say it took my breath away as I heard him speak. I doubt whether he was really in earnest or, as he very often is, merely indulging in a joke.........

RESOLUTION ON REFORM PROPOSALS.

[7TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.] [Mr. G. S. Khaparde; Mr. Srinivasa Sastri.]

The Hon'ble Mr. G. S. Khaparde:—"No; I was in earnest."

The Hon'ble Mr. Srinivasa Sastri:—"My Hon'ble friend says he was in earnest. Then I must say he seems ignorant of the way in which Secretaries usually write. He must have read many proceedings of the Government of India. In the Government of India, Secretaries are the officers who draft and who sign letters. They often say 'I am to ask, etc.' Does it mean that the Secretary in his own individual authority puts a question to the party concerned, or that he does so on behalf of his Government? The personal pronoun occurs very often, for instance in answers given from the opposite benches. Does it mean that the Members of the Executive Council do not answer for the Government of India but for their own individual selves? But it may be said a Secretary writing as the representative of the Government uses the expression 'I am to add.' In this document, however, the Secretary of State employs the expression 'I would add.' I do not know whether that ought to make any difference as to the way we should interpret it. Sticklers for constitutional propriety though we be, we may allow such an august personage as Mr. Montagu some latitude in the use of such simple things as the auxiliary verbs of the English language. The words 'I would add' then, I take it, mean 'I am to add.' It is not the individual opinion of the Secretary of State that he wishes to palm off under the authority of the Imperial Cabinet. Really speaking, if we were to accept the Hon'ble Mr. Khaparde's argument, we should be attributing to the Secretary of State for India a subterfuge, in that he was smuggling into an important State document which the people of India regard as a great Charter a personal opinion of his own unsanctioned and unapproved by the Imperial Cabinet in whose name he was speaking.

"The next thing to which my Hon'ble friend referred yesterday was the question of electorates. Now, I must say that when I read the Reforms Report in the first instance, it did seem to be that the Report laid too much insistence on the necessity of preparing and training these electorates as a step preliminary to the introduction of responsible government. It seemed to me that though it might be scientific from a constitutional analyst's point of view, it was entirely unhistorical; for whether in England or elsewhere the proper training and the full preparation of electorates has gone on side by side with, and in some cases painfully behind, constitutional development.

"In India, however, we are asked to follow a somewhat different course. But apart from that, a man who criticises the proposal must not proceed on the assumption that there are at the present moment in India fully developed electorates which can be made to sustain such a vast edifice as reponsible government for the benefit of the people and by the people. My Hon'ble friend argued 'there are the District Boards, there are the Municipalities, there are Chambers of Commerce, there are Universities of learning in India.' To be sure these are there. But does my Hon'ble friend remember that responsible government rests everywhere in the world on primary, popular, large, direct electorates, and that such do not exist so far as the Government of India is concerned. The Report lays very special emphasis on that aspect. It is the creation of such electorates that the Report deals with, and when we remember that, it is idle to say in reply to it that we already have the Universities. The Universities cannot sustain a system of responsible government. The people at large must be able to hold the members of the Legislative Council and the ministers who govern the country responsible for their conduct. The primary electorates must be placed in direct contact with those that make laws, and those who under their authority administer the laws so made. The preparation of such electorates is, as the Report lays down, sure to be a process of slow and deliberate growth, and it is no real answer to say that we already have some electorates in being in India.

"My Lord, after dealing with these debating points, I must now go on to deal with the main question............"

RESOLUTION ON REFORM PROPOSALS.

[The President; Mr. Srinivasa Sastri; Mr. K. V. Rangaswamy Ayyangar.] [7TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.]

His Excellency the President:—"I am afraid your time-limit is coming to a close."

The Hon'ble Mr. Srinivasa Sastri:—"Then I will make only one observation. I am in entire agreement with the Hon'ble Mr. Surendra Nath Banerjea's speech. His speech yesterday elicited just and spontaneous applause from the Council, and I fully share in the sentiments that dictated that applause. I must, however, say one thing, that I dissociate myself from that part of the Hon'ble Member's speech in which he seemed to deprecate the institution of a Council of State. It appears to me, my Lord, that radical opinion in England might tolerate the abolition of the second house, but every other shade of political opinion and the practice of every other federal State in the British Empire justifies the creation of a second house. The Council of State as at present foreshadowed may not be such a second house as we desiderate. It will have to be stripped of some of the extraordinary powers now attaching to it; its composition will have to be somewhat changed; but a second house, I think, there ought to be, and since the Council of State is intended to be a half-way house to the creation of the final upper chamber in the constitution of the Indian Empire, I am bound at this stage respectfully to dissociate myself from the deprecatory opinion to which the Hon'ble Mr. Banerjea gave expression in his speech yesterday."

11-34 A.M. The Hon'ble Mr. K. V. Rangaswamy Ayyangar:—"My Lord, I have not expressed any opinion till now about the Reforms Scheme, nor did I associate myself intimately either with the Congress or with the two extreme minorities, and so I can express my opinions without any fetter. It is not possible to make any useful observations on the Resolution before this Hon'ble Council without giving the greatest possible weight to the clear presentment of the position and policy of the Government in regard to the Reform Scheme made by your Excellency on the opening day of this Session. On the one hand, the Hon'ble mover wants us to go into Committee and make recommendations on the various proposals contained in the Report. On the other hand, my Lord, your Excellency has in definite and unmistakable terms told us the inutility of recommendations and criticisms that fall outside the line up to which the Reform proposals go. The object of the Resolution in this Council is to ask the Government to do a thing which the Government can alone do, or to refrain from doing a thing which the Government cannot otherwise be prevented from doing. This Resolution does not ask the Government to do anything which the Government alone can do. There is nothing that prevents non-official Members from making their own recommendations if they choose to do so. The 19 Hon'ble Members did not move a resolution in this Council to appoint them to make recommendations by way of reform. I see no reason why such an attempt as the one before us should be treated as different from the action of the 19 Members memorandum. On the one hand, the sanction for moving the Resolution and the vote of the Council while they certainly will add prestige and dignity to the whole move, are legally or anywise unnecessary to carry out the prayer. On the other hand, a hostile vote by the majority cannot prevent the Hon'ble non-official Members or as many of them as are willing from co-operating and making recommendations. Any Resolution carried in this Council cannot compel non-official Members to act in the way the Resolution asks for, and this has been evidenced by two of my colleagues declining to be constituted in the Committee in the prayer portion of the Resolution as to what should be the course if several or a majority of them declined to act. Considered from this point of view, therefore, I have no hesitation in owning that the Resolution is of an extraordinary character and impracticable. It seems to me therefore that the best use that can be made of the opportunity so sagaciously furnished by the Hon'ble Mr. Surendra Nath Banerjea is to convey to your Excellency in Council our humble but sincere view of these proposals. While, on the one hand, there does not seem to be any probability of radical modifications being made in the scheme as the intentions of the authorities stand at present, there is, on the other hand, the unconcealable fact that the country as a whole has considered and expressed its deliberate convictions that the scheme calls for radical modifications without which it could not in the honest opinion of the Indian public constitute any step in advance. Whilst these labours have no doubt been prompted by a genuine desire to further the interests of this country, my Lord, there is no doubt that so far as the scheme itself is concerned, it has come upon the whole country as a disappointment. The reason is simple and lies on the very surface if only we make no mistake in mutually understanding the point of view of the authors of the scheme and that of the people.

RESOLUTION ON REFORM PROPOSALS.

[7TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.] [Mr. K. V. Rangaswamy Ayyangar.]

"The point of view of the authors is no doubt that they stand on the announcement of August 20th, and the point of veiw of the people is what led to the announcement of August 20th. I take it that the announcement of August 20th is the answer to our petitions or call them demands. Our demands are formulated only to remedy the grievances of the different classes and interests. Men of brains and letters have had no opportunity for the display of it and for doing research work.

"As a matter of fact there is no general value for men of this pursuit except that they can serve in the Government which provides for a very small percentage and for which a special University training is required and for which course alone there is market value. It is to be admitted that the duty of the Government is to provide scope for the intelligentia of the land. I need not mention the causes that led to the decay and extinction of the warrior classes which fortunately is resuscitated on account of the exigencies of the war, and I see under the sympathetic handling of His Excellency the Commander-in-Chief a liberal policy is being adopted. I need not mention how commercial men and industrial classes have been handled, and need not recapitulate the deplorable policy of the Government that has been adopted in the matter of Indian industries by giving a protection against them till now. The duty of the Government is to protect our interests or at least not to adopt a protective policy to our rival interests. There may be at least an open competition and no partiality or prejudice adopted. Then the great classes of labourers even when they offer willingly for service have not got a field to do so, and the duty of the Government here also is to find a market-value and a scope for labour. Their appalling poverty exhibits itself in periodical famines, not to speak of their daily sufferings. All these considerations made us agitate for a responsible government. Not only this ; vast interests like those of the raiyatwari landholders and those of the great zemindari houses many of whom are languishing for want of opportunities and responsibility adequate with their wealth, called for a measure of liberal treatment which they eminently deserve. For one thing, my Lord, if at the present day a third of the territories of India had not been under Native sovereignty, but if most of these Indian princes have been mere zemindars without administrative power, would it have been a case of triumph to the British cause now either in military or civil emergencies, we have had to face since the outbreak of the war ? This has been well acknowledged by your Excellency of the magnificent services rendered by the ruling nobles. Similarly, if some of these zemindari houses should be invested with administrative functions, would not then the wealth and influence they possess be harnessed to the wider interests of the country, and might not they have taken their place as responsible administrators of their own tracts ? I am only throwing out these ideas as ways and means of easing the burden, financial and administrative, of the Indian Government and of creating openings for the fine spirit of service which distinguishes many of the scions of the noble houses of India. Then we have the grievances of the smaller Zamindars and the encroachment of the Government in their water rights, and of the riayatwari landholder whose property is said to be not his own and who is liable to periodical settlements, and enhancements. It is to remedy such grievances that we wanted reforms. Again, the levying of the cesses on the agricultural classes alone, and the unbridled levy of the land tax made us ask for a popular control of the Government and it was to remedy all these and satisfy us that the announcement of August 20th was made, and if that announcement should restrict the scope of the Reforms we wanted, though it may not be out of court to question the same, we should say what we wanted is not this but something else. The Reform Scheme may be based on any announcement, but it should be primarily on the principle that the Government is for the people. So far as recognising in English educated men capacity and good-will towards Government or in other words providing employments for the educated loyalists and in so far as the scheme perfects the local self-government scheme that was inaugurated by Lord Ripon whose name is gratefully remembered and so far as giving a popular control in the matter of education, sanitation, etc., our thanks are due to the Government, and the names of the illustrious authors of this Report will for a long time to come be sounded and resounded with gratefulness throughout the shores and valleys of this vast Continent. But it may not claim to be a step in self-government or responsible government inasmuch as no hand of the people can set right the grievances I have set forth. It may be that the hands are tied by the announcement of August 20th, but what we ask is, whether the scheme satisfies us or not. My humble opinion is that it does not.

RESOLUTION ON REFORM PROPOSALS.

[Mr. K. V. Rangaswamy Ayyangar; the President.] [7TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.]

"The people had expected, if not a substantial measure of reform on the lines of the demands of the Congress and the Muslim League, a scheme that would have liberalised the existing legislative machinery, endowed it with greater and more effective powers of administrative control, securing it the right to safeguard our fiscal interests as those of an absolutely autonomous self-governing country. Such, however, has not been the case. The authors of the Report in the first place rejected without seeking to modify the scheme of the two great political bodies of the country, and in the second place, they gave no thought whatsoever to the evolutionary development of the existing constitution, which has been the cause of a rapid political development, but took upon themselves the task of discharging a new mission, namely, that of commencing to train the people for responsible government The native rulers who conduct the praiseworthy Government are quite fit to govern themselves. Without test or contest we should not be condemned. And in the tentative scheme put forward by them we find in many respects we lose more than we gain.

"As regards the scheme proper what Indians cannot but ask for and obtain, is an effective foot-hold in the Central Government of India itself and complete provincial autonomy in provincial affairs as may be consistent with the maintenance of the authority of the Government both in Imperial and in Provincial matters...............

His Excellency the President:—"I regret the Hon'ble Member is approaching his time-limit. Will he bring his remarks to a conclusion?"

The Hon'ble Mr. Rangaswamy Ayyangar:—"It is one thing, my Lord, both for purposes of veto and for purposes of affirmative legislation for the Executive Government to retain whatever power they want to retain, for without such provision Government must come to a standstill. But let this power be retained avowedly and as a matter of executive responsibility by the executive Government of India only and not in its name and on its behalf by or through new institutions which are adjuncts to the executive wearing the appearance of a semi-popular assembly. If substantial powers had been given for the popular assembly, retaining whatever powers had to be retained for affirmative legislation for the executive Government itself, the people of India would have recognised the justice of such an arrangement and would have been overcome with a sense of gratitude.

"As regards the Provinces, for the first time in the history of India it brings into existence a diarchical system of government fraught with new conflicts and oppositions though here is a distinct advance on the existing system. Here also had the executive retained what it wanted as a matter of executive necessity and established complete provincial autonomy, there would have been a chorus of gratitude from end to end. But, my Lord, it is in vain we look for any of these. Nor is the proposed scheme calculated to relieve the economic distress of India which has been the real and underlying object of all our demands for political reforms all these years. The popular control vouchsafed in this scheme in no way improves the economic condition of the great Indian communities such as the Zemindars, the ryots, the tenants, the smaller landholders, the Indian commercial men, the labourers and the industrial classes. Again, it does not secure the primary rights of British citizenship......

The Hon'ble Sir William Vincent:—" My Lord, I rise to a point of order. I really cannot hear the Hon'ble Member when he reads so fast."

His Excellency the President:—" I must ask the Hon'ble Member to take his seat."

The Hon'ble Mr. M. A. Jinnah:—" My Lord, I regret very much that my friend Mr. Sastri should have struck an unpleasant note as to the difference between him and Mr. Patel. I think this is not the place where we can defend, justify or impeach the position of the seceders from the Congress. The question before us is the Resolution. My Lord, in the first place, I have no hesitation in saying that we appreciate that there has been an earnest attempt on the part of your Excellency and Mr. Montagu, the Secretary of State for India, to inaugurate a system of responsible government in this country....

11-40 A.M.

His Excellency the President: —" I am sure the Council are very anxious to hear the Hon'ble Member; perhaps he will speak up a little louder."

The Hon'ble Mr. M. A. Jinnah:—" I am sorry, my Lord. I will repeat what I said, that I have no hesitation in saying that we appreciate the earnest attempt on the part of your Excellency and the Secretary of State, Mr. Montagu, to inaugurate a system of responsible government in this country. Secondly, I think, my Lord, that it did not require the eloquence of my friend Mr. Banerjea, nor the abilities of Mr. Sastri to impress upon this Council, or upon anybody outside this Council who has taken the trouble to read the Report carefully, to come to the conclusion that there is a distinct advance on the present system of the constitution of the Government; but that is not the question. We recognise that there is an advance, but that is not the question. Nobody disputes that responsible government is to be established in India by successive stages, or, in other words, progressive realisation of responsible government. That undoubtedly implies instalments and stages, but, my Lord, as your Lordship said in your speech only a few days ago, what was promised in that announcement was 'a substantial step.' If I may quote it, my Lord, this is how your Lordship put it:—

'What I wish to emphasize is this. 'Substantial steps' were promised. In my own heart I am confident that 'substantial steps' are provided in our proposals. We have not kept back something like hucksterers in the market, something which we would be prepared to give as a result of pressure. Everything has been placed on the table for all men to see.'

"Now, my Lord, with the utmost deference, with the utmost respect for your Excellency's opinion, I beg to submit that 'a substantial step' has not been given in these proposals, and I shall illustrate what I mean at once. In the Provincial Governments, my Lord, undoubtedly there is an advance, but what do we find? We find this, that whether we really get a substantial step in the Provinces or whether we do not will depend entirely on the Committee which will decide the Transferred and the Reserved Subjects, and eventually whether those recommendations will be accepted or not. Now I say, my Lord, without going into details, because I have limited time, of 15 minutes under the rules, that there are Provinces in India to-day which are quite competent to manage the entire Provincial Government. But without going into reasons, what we say is this, that, as you are trying an experiment, and since you say, that we are going through transitional stages, we are prepared, while not agreeing with the reasons given in the Report, but as a matter of compromise, that in some Provinces all subjects should be transferred at once except the police and justice; and they are quite competent, I make bold to say, to manage them.

" Then again with regard to the Provinces, there is a feature in the proposals, which to my mind is a most objectionable feature, and that, my Lord, you will find in clause 43 of the Report. Even assuming, my Lord, that the proposals were accepted and that substantial departments or subjects were transferred under clause 43, such enormous powers are given to the Governor that, in my opinion, it will be injurious and prejudicial to the objects in view. Now see what the Governor can do under clause 43 ?.........

RESOLUTION ON REFORM PROPOSALS.

[Mr. M. A. Jinnah; Sir George Lowndes; The President.] [7TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.]

The Hon'ble Sir George Lowndes :—" My Lord, I think th Hon'ble Member is wrong; clause 43 of the Report deals with Baluchistan and the North-West Frontier Provinces."

His Excellency the President : —" I think the Hon'ble Member is referring to clause 43 in the Summary. I think it would be more convenient if he referred to the Report because we laid particular stress on the fact that the Summary was not to be regarded as in any way authoritative. It is the Report which is the authoritative statement."

The Hon'ble Mr. M. A. Jinnah :—" My Lord, my point is one that does not require any reference to the paragraphs; it is this that any Member of the Executive Council is to have the right to challenge the whole or any part of a Bill on its introduction, or any amendment when moved, when he thinks it trenches on the reserved field of legislation. The Governor is to have the choice then either of allowing the Bill to proceed in the Legislative Council, or of certifying the Bill, clause, or amendment. If he certifies the Bill, clause, or amendment, the Governor may either decline to allow it to be discussed, or suggest to the Legislative Council an amended Bill or clause, and so on. Therefore, my Lord, any Member of the Executive Council can get up and say that a particular Bill or clause in that Bill impinges or entrenches on a Reserved Subject, and the Governor in his full discretion can decline to have the Bill discussed, or allow any clause of it to be discussed either. That to my mind is a most objectionable feature so far as the Provincial Governments are concerned and should not be allowed.

" Then, my Lord, going further into details, I do not accept the proposition that, in order to achieve progressive realisation of responsible government, you must confine the advance such as is foreshadowed to the Provinces. Where do you find that in the announcement of the 20th August ? Why must you confine it to the Provinces, and why should the Government of India be left untouched ? And yet this is how the formula is laid down by the authors of the Report. My Lord, with very great respect I must say again that I see no justification in the announcement to say that the Provinces should form the units, and that for the present we must confine ourselves to the progressive realisation of responsible government in the Provinces. The position of the Government of India under the proposals will be as defined in formula 3 of the Report, I will read it.

'The Government of India must remain wholly responsible to Parliament and saving such responsibility, its authority, in essential matters, must remain indisputable pending experience of the effect of the changes now to be introduced in the Provinces. In the meantime the Indian Legislative Council should be enlarged and made more representative and its opportunities of influencing Government increased.'

Therefore, so far as the Government of India is concerned, you leave the Government of India in this position. That we the elected Members in the Government of India shall have nothing else but ' opportunities of influencing the Government.' Now, my Lord, we have been influencing the Government since 1892 ; we have been influencing the Government since 1909 (the Minto Morley Reforms), and you are leaving us in practically the same position and at the same stage as we have been in ever since 1892. What difference is there ? Of course I shall be told that we have an elected majority ; I shall be told that, so far as a private Member's Bill is concerned, we can carry it through the Assembly, and take it to the State Council, and in case of differences of opinion between the Chambers, it will be settled by means of 'Joint Session.'

RESOLUTION ON REFORM PROPOSALS.

[7TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.] [Mr. M. A. Jinnah.]

Here, again, the Governor General in Council will have the power to certify and that means that the certificate will prevail against the will of the representatives Now, my Lord, this is the very thing you deprecate in your Report, namely, that which you call the bane of the Minto-Morley Reforms. And what is that bane ? It is that you leave the elected Members in the position of irresponsible critics. How are you changing that position by this scheme of yours ? They will remain irresponsible critics under this constitution, because by the certificate of the Governor General in Council you can do as you please. You can carry any measure that you desire, notwithstanding the unanimous opposition of the Assembly or the elected Members in the Council of State. Is that so, or is that not so ? If that is so, do we not remain in the same position of irresponsible critics ? You will find under your scheme that a Government Bill can be run through on a certificate. You will also find that on a certificate even a private Member's Bill can be thrown out or altered as the Government wish. But over and above that you have got the veto as far as a private Member's Bill is concerned.

"Now, my Lord, may I know why the Government of India is to remain so sacred and not to be touched ? Is there no department in the Government of India which could be brought under the control of the vote of the Legislature, and why not ? Why, I ask, should there not be simultaneous advance ? I am prepared, my Lord, to concede this proposition for the present that the Government of India are certainly responsible for the peace, order and the safety of the country. I am prepared to concede this also, that they should keep under their own control those departments which are essential for the carrying out of the primary functions of the Government. But, my Lord, is there no department in the Government of India which ought to be brought under the control of the vote of the Legislature ? My Lord, in the first instance, my submission is that, barring the Reserved Subjects, in which I include the peace, tranquillity and safety of the country, other departments should be left to the vote of the Legislature. I am prepared to accept and I do accept the bicameral system which is laid down in the Report, and I hope that the day may come, as the distinguished authors of the Report themselves say, when it will become the real revising chamber. I have no doubt, my Lord, that "responsible government" in this country is bound to come, it must come. It is only a question of time. At present the difference between you and us is a question of speed; there is no other question. We say that your proposals do not go far enough. You want to proceed slowly ; we want to go faster. But I say, my Lord, whenever that day does come it can only be a federation of India, and in a country so vast, with such a population as we have, I firmly believe that it will be necessary to have a revising chamber. Now what will happen, my Lord, if my suggestions are accepted. Shortly put, in the case of the Reserved Subjects you will have complete administrative control, and with regard to affirmative legislation, you can run through any measure, whereas Transferred Subjects will come under the vote of the Legislature. Remember you have the Council of State, if there is a difference of opinion between the two Houses, you have at once 'Joint Session.' My Lord, I have carefully worked out the figures and have taken a little trouble to think over the problem. What will be the position ? Will the position be so rash, so irresponsible, if you leave certain departments to the vote of the Legislature ? Certainly not, because to begin with you have out of the 100 Members in the Assembly 67 elected and you have 21 elected in the State Council. In the Joint Sessions there will be a majority of 26 elected Members, and without meaning any offence to anybody, even among the elected Members sometimes, my Lord, there are differences of opinion ; and out of those 26 I deduct 14, some of them representing special interests; the European members I do not count. Therefore, in the Joint Sessions you will have a majority really of 12 elected Members. If those 12 Members, my Lord, cannot be won over by the Government of India with regard to the departments which do not touch the primary functions of the Government, namely, peace, tranquillity and safety of the country and Reserved Subjects such as Army, Navy, Foreign policy and ruling princes, and if the vote decides against the Government in matters other than Reserved Subjects then I say, my Lord, that it should be so, and the Bill of the Legislature should prevail over the executive in those matters at least......

His Excellency the President :—" The Hon'ble Member has exceeded his time-limit."

The Hon'ble Mr. M. A. Jinnah :—"My Lord, I have nothing more to say except this, that for the sake of the glorious day which will form the brightest chapter in the history of Great Britain and of India, namely, the day when the responsible government is established in this country, might you not view the question at present in a generous and large spirit, and might we not hope that, notwithstanding your expression of opinion, you will still be prepared to consider the suggestions and modifications that we propose which will give satisfaction to the people and make the experiment a real success."

12-4 P.M. The Hon'ble Dr. Tej Bahdur Sapru :—" My Lord, I rise to support the Resolution which was moved yesterday in such eloquent terms by my distinguished friend and colleague, the Hon'ble Mr. Surendra Nath Banerjea. My Lord, we all listened to his great speech with admiration, and on an ordinary occasion I should have contented myself by simply saying that I associated myself whole-heartedly with those sentiments to which he gave utterance. But I think the occasion requires that even a humble and insignificant worker in the public cause like myself should venture to put forward his views on this momentous issue which is before the Council and before the country.

" My Lord, what is it that Mr. Banerjea wanted us to do when he moved this Resolution? In the first part of the Resolution the Hon'ble Mr. Banerjea invited this Council to thank your Excellency and the Secretary of State for India for the Reforms proposals. In the second part he invited the Council to recognise those proposals as a genuine effort and a definite advance towards the progressive realisation of responsible government in India, and in the third part he recommended the appointment of a Committee consisting of all the non-official Members of this Council to consider the Reforms Report and make recommendations to the Government of India. Now, my Lord, in these days when in some quarters it is considered a sign of weakness or a mark of declining faith in the strength of our cause to thank the Viceroy or the Secretary of State, I hope I may be permitted to express in unqualified terms my thanks to your Excellency and the Secretary of State, for I recognise that you have rendered signal service to the country by recommending the proposals which are before us. My Lord, it has been very seldom in my life that I have found myself in a position to thank the authorities I therefore readily avail myself of the opportunity of thanking your Excellency and the Secretary of State for the proposals which you have put forward in this Report.

"Now, my Lord, coming to the second part of the Resolution which asks us to recognise that your proposals are a genuine effort and constitute a definite advance towards the progressive realisation of responsible government in India, I cannot shut my eyes to the fact that even in this Council during the last two days there have been voices of dissent. My Hon'ble friend Mr. Patel has frankly told us this morning that there has been considerable dissatisfaction and disappointment with the Reforms proposals. I believe more or less the same sentiments were uttered yesterday by my Hon'ble friend Mr. Khaparde. My Hon'ble friend Mr. Jinnah has said that, while he recognises that the present proposals constitute an advance upon the present system of government, he joins issue with those who say that they constitute a definite advance towards the progressive realisation of responsible government in India......

The Hon'ble Mr. M. A. Jinnah :—"No, I did not say that. I said they are not as substantial steps as were promised."

The Hon'ble Dr. Tej Bahadur Sapru :—"I stand corrected, and I shall now say that they do not in his opinion constitute substantial steps towards the progressive realisation of responsible government in India. Now, my Lord, with the utmost possible deference to my Hon'ble colleague I heartily dissociate myself from that view. I do maintain and I have no hesitation in saying it frankly, that in my humble judgment they are a genuine effort and they do constitute a definite advance towards responsible government in India.

"My Lord, my Hon'ble friend Mr. Khaparde indulged in the self-imposed task of interpreting the announcement of the 20th August, 1917 yesterday. I have no doubt that upon the interpretation of that announcement will depend the attitude of each one of us. I have also tried in my own humble way to interpret that announcement; but I have resisted the temptation of following the method of interpretation of that famous Sergeant-at-law whom Dickens has immortalised in one of his novels. My Lord, if the document has got to be interpreted, as it must be interpreted by every one of us, let it be interpreted entirely as a whole, one part of it with the other, and not in bits or in separate pieces. My Lord, according to my humble interpretation, that announcement, which I take to be the test and touchstone of the proposals before us, means two things. In the first place, there is a definite pledge given by the British Government, not by Mr. Montagu in his personal capacity, that the goal and aim of British policy in India in the future is to be responsible government. In the next place, that announcement tells us that that goal is to be reached, by successive stages, and at the same time it assures us that the first step which will be taken towards the realisation of that goal will be a substantial step. Therefore the question which arises before us is, as the Hon'ble Mr. Jinnah very properly put it, whether the step which is proposed to be taken by the Government in England with reference to India is a substantial step or not.

"Now, that question, I submit, can best be answered if we bear in mind the leading features of the Reforms Scheme. If I was to summarise the leading features of the Reforms Scheme, I would put them in this way. So far as local self-government is concerned, we are to get complete power. So far as provincial self-government is concerned, we are to get partial power; and so far as the Government of India is concerned, our sphere of influence is to be enlarged.

"Now, my Lord, so far as the provisions relating to local self-government are concerned, I do not know whether I am right in interpreting my friend the Hon'ble Mr. Patel as saying that even those provisions have caused disappointment and dissatisfaction in the country. Well, I will leave them on one side and I will go to the provisions regarding provincial government. What do you find there? So far as the legislative machinery is concerned, it is going to be overhauled completely. We are to have in our Provincial Councils a considerably enlarged number of members with a substantial elected majority, the representation being based, I hope, on a wide basis. Along with that we have the important fact that there are to be Standing Committees which will give us or many of us an insight into the actual working of the various departments of the Government. Then, my Lord, along with that there are certain departments which it is proposed to transfer to the popular Government, and which will be under the control of Ministers who will be selected not from outside the Council but from among the elected members of the Council.

"Now, my Lord, it has been asked in certain quarters 'All this may be perfectly true, but where do you find responsibility? There is no element of responsibility to be found there.' My Lord, with the utmost possible deference to critics of that kind, I will say that that is not the right point of view. There is an element of responsibility provided there. Although the Ministers will not be directly responsible to the Legislative Assembly, yet they will owe responsibility to the electorate, and even the Legislative Assembly may visit its displeasure upon them either by refusing supplies or by moving a Resolution when it wants to express its dissatisfaction with their conduct. So that there is an element of responsibility to be found there.

RESOLUTION ON REFORM PROPOSALS.

[Dr. Tej Bahadur Sapru.] [7TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.]

" My Lord, I am not oblivious of certain defects and imperfections in the scheme. I do not wish to minimise them, and I do not think it is the intention of the distinguished authors or of the Government to overlook them. If, however, this scheme is not infallible, that is no ground for our saying that we are dissatisfied with it as a whole. For instance, if I was candid I would say that I am not satisfied with the provisions regarding the Grand Committee; nor am I satisfied with the provisions regarding the adjustment of the finances between the transferred Government and the reserved Government. That seems to me to be the weakest part of the whole scheme. But I do not propose to go into these matters of detail at the present moment. Perhaps the proper time for me to raise these questions will be when the Committee which it is proposed to appoint meets to consider the various details of the scheme.

" Now, my Lord, coming to the Government of India, what do you find. Instead of a small Council like the present, elected not directly but indirectly out of a very limited area, you are going to have a Council of 100 Members, of whom 67 will be elected. My Lord, if this is not a substantial majority, I fail to see what it can be, though speaking for myself I should like the majority to be greater, and an element of responsibility introduced therein as in the Provinces.

" But, my Lord, it has been said ' Oh, yes. What you give with one hand you take away with the other, because you provide for the appointment of a Council of State.' My Lord, so far as the Council of State is concerned, my sentiments are precisely the same as those of my Hon'ble friend Mr. Sastri. A study of the constitution of the various Colonies and Dominions has convinced me that it is a general feature of the colonial system of government, and I cannot forget that the very first article of the constitution of the National Congress is that we want a steady change in the administration of the government by bringing it into line with the colonial system of self-government. If that be so, why should we object to the establishment of a Council of State? My Lord, comparing the constitution of the Council of State which you propose with the constitution of the Senate in Canada, I am compelled to admit that the constitution of the proposed Council is certainly more liberal than that of the Senate in Canada. But I should not be understood to say that I am satisfied with all the provisions regarding the Council of State to be found in the Report. I should certainly like the elective element to be larger. I should certainly like to have a clearer definition of the powers of the Council of State, and I should certainly like its sphere to be narrowed. But, my Lord, while I do maintain these views I am not prepared to condemn the proposal with regard to the Council of State.

" My Lord, leaving aside the Government of India, I shall just refer to one or two points and then conclude my speech. Objection has been taken to the many checks and counter-checks that have been provided in the constitution. My Lord, I am not afraid of these checks and counter-checks, because whatever constitution you study you will find the same sorts of checks and counter-checks; it is not the checks and the counter-checks that matter, it is the spirit in which the whole constitution is worked which matters. My Hon'ble friend Mr. Patel in the course of his speech referred to certain honoured names, and said that men like Pandit Madan Mohan Malaviya and others had expressed their dissatisfaction and disappointment with certain features of the scheme. They are honoured names in our national life, and I respect them, but at the same time, my Lord, I cannot shut my eyes to the fact that there are other equally honoured names among us who have given their whole-hearted approval of this scheme. I cannot forget, my Lord, that this scheme has received the approval of such a stout champion of the popular cause as the Hon'ble Sir Sankaran Nair. Office may have imposed certain restraints on him, but it has not cooled the ardour of his younger days in the advancement of the national cause. Nor do I forget that it has received the support of a distinguished colleague of ours who only last year was in this chamber, I refer to the Hon'ble Mr. Bhupendra Nath Basu. Nor can I shut my eyes to the fact that it has received the support of one whom I look upon as one of the makers of modern educated India, I mean our distinguished friend, Mr. Surendra Nath Banerjea. Nor can I forget the fact that it has received the support of such a stout-hearted champion as Sir Dinshaw Wacha. If these gentlemen are not patriots but traitors to the cause, I am willing, my Lord, to stand in the same dock with them."

The Hon'ble Khan Zulfikar Ali Khan :—"My Lord, I rise to give my hearty support to the Resolution which was moved yesterday, in this Council by my Hon'ble friend Mr. Surendra Nath Banerjea with such force of eloquence and convincing argument. I also wish to associate myself with the remarks which he made concerning the distinguished authors of the Report who have certainly produced a work breathing a spirit of far-seeing statesmanship. Now, my Lord, after hearing the speeches in this Council, it seems to me that it is no longer a question as to whether the Reforms Scheme is good or bad. The question of questions is this, whether the scheme outlined satisfies the aspirations of the people. Opinion on this point is divided, as it always is on such momentous questions But there is no denying the fact that the vast majority of the people accept it as meeting the aspirations of the people. I wish to associate myself cordially with those who accept the scheme as a substantial advance in the direction of the realisation of self-governing institutions in this country. After reading the Report it may appear to some people that the reforms are hedged round with too many safeguards. It may be so, but when we keep in view the conditions which prevail in India and which no statesman can ever overlook, we must admit that no responsible statesman or government can ever afford to indulge in a policy of adventure, especially when the happiness of millions is concerned. The late Mr. Gladstone once said that the principle of Toryism was distrust of the people qualified by fear, and that the principle of liberalism was trust of the people qualified by prudence. Now, my Lord, I do not think there is any sensible man in the whole of India who denies that the present scheme is not conceived in a spirit of liberal statesmanship. If that is admitted, then it follows that a responsible statesman must also exercise prudence, and if the scheme is hedged round with so many safeguards, it is no wonder according to the dictum of that great statesman that responsible statesmen should always do that. It has been said by so many speakers in this Council that the Report fails to provide a time-limit within which responsible government would be given to India. Now, my Lord, it is very difficult to provide a time-limit for an experiment of the nature which is going to be tried in this country. The Report says that after ten years there will be another Commission appointed to look into the working of the scheme and if it is found that satisfaction has been given and that administration has not suffered on account of the many interests involved in this country, then another step will be taken, certainly in advance of the one which is now being taken. Studying the history of India and the political conditions in this country, I can safely say that the British policy in India has always been characterised by giving liberal institutions to this country. It is for us to give strength to that policy of the British Government. We have to show by our work, co-ordination and sympathy that we are able to mould the destinies of our own people. It must be kept in view that success has to be achieved, and no Government, however liberal. can confer it on anybody.

12-24 P.M.

"The Hon'ble Mr. Patel in his speech said that the Congress and the Moslem League meetings held in Bombay passed certain Resolutions and expressed dissatisfaction with the Report. Now, my Lord, we cannot forget that assembly of those wise men constituted the ultra radicals of this country, and a vast majority of the moderates were not at all represented, and they kept scrupulously aloof from the Congress and the Moslem League. Can it therefore be said that those people who passed those resolutions in Bombay represent the opinion of the country?

"My Lord, history affords very few instances of voluntary surrender of power, especially by a Government which is so strong and which is guided by instincts of justice and fair-play, in a country like India. When we see that spirit on the part of the Government to surrender its own power, is it wise for us, or is it even expedient to spurn the hand which is offered to us in friendship and comradeship? I cannot imagine that any responsible man who wishes well to his country and is a real patriot can ever imagine that he can gain or the country can gain anything by refusing to accept the friendship offered. Under these circumstances and guided by the spirit, I heartily support the Resolution moved by my Hon'ble friend."

RESOLUTION ON REFORM PROPOSALS.

[Khan Zulfikar Ali Khan; Rao Bahadur B. N. Sarma.] [7TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.]

12-34 P.M. The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur B. N. Sarma:—"May it please your Excellency. It is to be deeply regretted that the differences and the controversy raging outside this Council Chamber should have been introduced here and with some warmth. I do not mean to pursue the controversy, nor is this the place to take up the challenge that was thrown by the previous speaker as to the representative character of the Moslem League and the National Congress recently held in Bombay. But at the same time, my Lord, it must be said that the Hon'ble Mr. Patel was a little too unduly pessimistic and orthodox in his interpretation of the Congress Resolutions and the Congress League Scheme. Nothing that I have heard in the Congress, either in the Subjects Committee or outside it, or here, has induced me personally to change any of the views that I have expressed in a memorandum which I published some little time ago. It may be that for corporate action we surrender some of our views so long as that surrender is not dangerous, and it cannot be said that we cannot express our views in this assembly independently of any resolution that may have been passed either in the Congress or elsewhere. And I am only sorry that Mr. Sastri should have ventured upon his defence with regard to the Congress, for I fail to see whether there is much difference between him and the Resolutions passed at the Congress with regard to the Government of India, if we are to judge from the speeches he delivered some little time before the Congress held its sittings in Bombay.

"But to pass from the subject. I said that I adhere to the statements made in my memorandum and in so doing I adhere to the remarks made by me therein pertinent to the first part of the Resolution. Few persons, my Lord, will grudge the praise justly due to your Excellency and to Mr. Montagu for the deep and earnest attention which has been bestowed by you upon a difficult and intricate problem, for your deep and sympathetic insight into the difficulties of a struggling people, and for the lofty, noble and generous sentiments expressed in lucid, clear and eloquent terms throughout the pages of that historic document. We are grateful to you, my Lord, for initiating the first stages of responsible government by making proposals which would transfer Parliamentary control within a limited sphere to the people of India.

"I shall now pass on to the substantive portion of the Resolution before I deal with the second part of the preamble. I cannot help regretting that the European non-official Members of this assembly should have taken up the attitude they did yesterday. The Hon'ble Mr. Ironside saidthat your Excellency and Mr. Montagu and your advisers ignored or have not paid due attention to British interests. There is little justification for such a charge. If by taking a statesmanlike view of things, and in trying to perpetuate the union of India with the rest of the British Empire, you have made proposals which might temporarily weaken, though I do not believe they would, the prestige, and the monopoly and the vested interests of a small section of the people, surely no objection can be taken to such a course. The greatest service possible has been rendered by your Lordship and Mr. Montagu in trying to cement the union between the various sections of the Empire. But has the charge made any basis or any justification in the actual facts of the case? What are true British interests? If the promotion of the permanent union of Great Britain and India be true British interest, then the only way is along the lines which you have proposed. And even taking a more narrow view, I must humbly submit that no portion of British interests, vested

RESOLUTION ON REFORM PROPOSALS.

[7TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.] [Rao Bahadur B. N. Sarma.]

British interests, have been sacrificed in any shape or manner whatsoever. Now so much has been said both in this Council and outside about British interests, that it is necessary to analyse the position a little; what do we find? About 174 million pounds have been invested by the British public in India in the Sterling Loan, and 48 million pounds in the Rupee Debt. That debt under your constitution has been made a first charge on the revenue. The Railways on which this money has been largely spent are to be under the direct control of the Government of India. Is there, then, any sacrifice of British interests? May I also state, my Lord, that India has contributed freely £100 millions; and has lent £76 millions to the British Exchequer, and it is proposed that another £45 millions should be added. The balance cannot therefore be against India in this respect.

"Let me proceed a little further into those interests which are said to have been sacrificed? We find that in the direction, supervision and clerical work in various factories and industries there were in 1911 only 10,000 Europeans and Anglo-Indians employed, but under the new constitution with a prosperous and contented India, I feel sure that 100,000 will find employment on an even more lucrative basis than at present. Then what is the total European capital employed here, out of a total of only Rs. 85 crores the paid up capital of joint stock companies? Take the tea, jute, coal, gold and banking industries (excluding the exchange banks) and it does not work out at more than Rs. 25 crores even assuming that almost the whole paid up capital is European. No legislation can be passed affecting them without the Governor's and Governor General's consent, and the higher administration will remain chiefly European. To say therefore that the British interests are very large or have been sacrificed is not an accurate statement. Then the Hon'ble Mr. Hogg, for whom we have the highest respect, has chosen to take what I cannot help thinking is a wrong view. He said that the attempt to constitute a Committee would be either futile or mischievous. The Resolutions, if practically unanimous and opposed to the views of the Anglo-Indian community might be futile because the Government would be prone to pay little attention to them, but I cannot see how they can be mischievous. Perhaps they would be, if acted upon by the Government. I would give greater credit to the Hon'ble Mr. Hogg and the Hon'ble Mr. Ironside than they are disposed to give themselves for their ability, for their knowledge, and for their eloquence in inducing the other members of the Committee to take their view of the matter if that view be based essentially upon reason, good sense and unselfishness. I have tried to work in many Committees and feel no doubt that these two Hon'ble Members, if they only change their mind and join the Committee would be able to influence many of us if they only take the right line.

"Then, my Lord, to come to the second part of the preamble of the Resolution. While admitting that we should be grateful for what has been done, are the people satisfied that the proposals would meet the real situation? I readily grant that your Lordship has to take into account the prejudice, ignorance and interests of vast masses of men both in India and in Great Britain, and nothing that I or any of us may say in this Council, or outside of it should be taken as evincing an unfriendly attitude, or as calculated to weaken your hands or the hands of Mr. Montagu, because we recognise in you two friends and we believe that you will do all you can for us. But let us say in all frankness that the proposals do not go far enough to meet the real situation of the Empire or of India. I fail to see why, the army being under your control, the financing of the army being under your control, the maintenance of law and order being under your control, it is impossible for you to part with a little portion of the power in respect of the commercial and industrial subjects with which you have to deal in the various departments of the Government of India. It is absolutely impossible for us to reconcile ourselves to those proposals, either as based on reason, sound common sense or as being consistent with the future prosperity of this country.

RESOLUTION ON REFORM PROPOSALS.

[Rao Bahadur B. N. Sarma ; Sir Dinshaw Wacha.] [7TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.]

"Then, my Lord, a good deal of what has been said with regard to the Provincial Governments would depend upon the interpretation of paragraph 212. You have said:—

> 'It (the Government of India) should be enabled under this power to intervene in any province for the protection and enforcement of the interests for which it is responsible; to legislate on any provincial matter in respect of which uniformity of legislation is desirable either for the whole of India or for any two or more provinces; and to pass legislation which may be adopted either simpliciter or with modifications by any province which may wish to make use of it.'

This provides the overriding power of the Government of India in matters of legislation. If by this is meant that the Government of India is to have the overriding power of legislation by means of the certificated procedure, even with regard to Transferred Subjects, then I may humbly submit that the powers granted under the proposals are merely illusory. But I put a different interpretation on those words, and think that these proposals were made with regard to the Reserved Subjects either in the Government of India or in the Provinces, and putting that interpretation upon that passage in paragraph 212, it cannot be denied that the proposals mark a distinct advance upon the existing condition of things. It will however be a trifle premature to be unduly eulogistic in this matter until we know what the two Committees will say. It may be that they will whittle down the proposals to almost nothing, and we may have to express grave dissatisfaction, but there is no necessity for anticipating it. We have to take the proposals in the Report as they are, and if carried out in a loyal spirit they do represent a distinct advance on the present constitution. But it is another question whether it is a substantial advance. Substantial it is not, if the test be whether it will meet the existing situation or enable the people to work out their destiny. I most respectfully submit that the Congress was right to that extent in its criticism. But if it is regarded as the only thing which could be done by you having regard to the prejudices and interests concerned, then we must confess that it is a distinct advance. I hope that your Lordship and Mr. Montagu will see your way still to modify your proposals with regard to the Government of India, to give some power there, so that the Reform proposals may be received throughout the country with deep satisfaction, and that we may embark upon a career of usefulness to India as well as to the Empire content with the prospect of becoming a fully self-governing people before long."

12-48 P.M. The Hon'ble Sir Dinshaw Wacha:—"My Lord, the Resolution proposed by my valued and esteemed friend, Mr. Surendra Nath Banerjea, seemed to me to be so innocuous in simplicity and candour that I determined yesterday when he moved it that I should not have to utter a single word on the subject; but considering the number of speakers who have spoken on the subject, and having been advised that, perhaps, my silence might be misconstrued on this occasion, I embrace this opportunity to speak a few words, and those words will be very few indeed. I may say, in the first place, then, that certainly and emphatically the Reforms Scheme is a substantial advance towards progressive self-government. My Lord, I have been a student of the politics of the world, including India, for the last 50 years, and so far as the politics of India are concerned, I say this, that we have emerged from the darkness of 1861, when the Legislative Councils were first instituted in the Presidencies, to something like twilight in 1892, when they were expanded; and from that twilight to something like dawn, I may say, 1909, when the Morley-Minto Reforms were introduced, to the break of day at this present stage. These are the four stages of Indian politics, and those who have studied Indian politics in the way I have done cannot but come to this conclusion that the progress has been steady though slow in the direction of rudimentary self-government. From the beginning there has been progress and no mistake. It has been slow. It may be said to have been as slow as the tortoise. I admit it. Then again that progress has been accompanied by many mistakes. I will admit that too.

RESOLUTION ON REFORM PROPOSALS.

[7TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.] [Sir Dinshaw Wacha.]

But I do say this that for the last 50 years the policy of the British Government in India has been to go from good to better and thence to best. I have not the least doubt in my own mind that the best will surely be reached in the fulness of time I am quite sure that, when all the passion and prejudice of the hour have disappeared, and when the whole subject of the scheme of reform is taken into consideration, candidly, calmly and dispassionately, the country at large will receive it with the greatest gratitude In fact, I may say that, so far as our leading organs of public opinion on both sides are concerned, there is only one sentiment about it, namely, that the distinguished authors have done their best and that they have exercised a wise statesmanship in its preparation. It is in my opinion unique. I say unique deliberately, and for this reason : that never in the history of Constitutions all over the world has a Reform Scheme of the character we are now discussing been known. It almost wholly differs from all the existing Constitutions in the world. It is a new one in all respects. India itself has been so unique in many respects, in politics, in sociology, and in other ways that the statesmen who have so sagaciously framed it had no compass and no chart to guide them They took into their impartial consideration the opinions of all the different recognised individuals and bodies in the country, opinions of all shades, of the highest and the lowest, of the officials and of the non-officials—and verily the opinions so collected made up quite a mountain in itself—and recorded their conclusion that if they were to go forward with a scheme of self-government suited to the existing conditions of the country, this scheme, as now put forward, was the most feasible for the transitional period. And I do repeat, my Lord, that when serenity is restored in this country, as I think it will be six or twelve months hence, that is, when Parliament has passed this scheme more or less in its present shape, possibly with some modifications which are necessary—and I of course admit they are necessary, (and I have said as much in my own memorandum) —and when all is said and done, it will be acknowledged with gratitude, with cordial gratitude, with everlasting gratitude, that the two exalted officers of the Indian State who have framed this scheme have deserved well of the country.

" The Hon'ble Mr. Jinnah observed that the only objection he found to the Scheme was that it did not go far enough. Others, sharing his opinion, have said the same thing that they want a speedier realisation of responsible self-government than, of course, what the Government themselves have deemed expedient for the transitional period. Now, my Lord, in politics, there are views and views. Some want to go forward too fast, some want to go too slow. I always prefer that in politics, particularly in India, we should hasten slowly. 'Hasten slowly' is my motto ; but I will not give my own motto. I appeal to my Hon'ble friends Mr. Jinnah and others to remember the two lines of Tennyson which say that while the hills are always there going too slow, you may require the whip and while going too fast you may require the brake. India is a country where the brake is necessary, and, I think, if the Government proceed in this matter with caution and prudence they would be wise. The brake is necessary at this transitional stage.

" Having said so much, my Lord, I will conclude my remarks once more by saying that the Reform Scheme is conceived in the best spirit of liberty, and that future historians at least will regard it as a monumental piece of constitutional legislation. Constitutions are not made in a day. Constitutions grow. Even in old England the constitution has grown. You, gentlemen, opposite the inheritors of that constitution, must know that that constitution has progressed during the last six hundred years and more. India, compared to England, as far as constitutional government on Western model is concerned, is a babe, a political babe, and many of the political babes are still lisping in what may be called baby politics. Therefore, I say, this is a piece of monumental legislation full of beneficent potentialities, which future historians will regard as one of the brightest pages in the annals of Indian liberty.

" With these words, I cordially support the Resolution."

RESOLUTION ON REFORM PROPOSALS.

[Sir William Vincent.] [7TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.]

12-55 P.M. The Hon'ble Sir William Vincent:—"My Lord, I should like in the first place to congratulate the Council and the Hon'ble mover on the tone which has pervaded the whole of this discussion. There has been no suggestion throughout the debate that the Report is not the result of unbiassed and earnest endeavour to solve a very difficult problem. Such suggestions have, however, been made outside this Council. There is no suggestion that the scheme ought to be rejected or that it cannot even be discussed. Such suggestions have also been made outside this Council. There has also been an absence of acrimony, an absence of attacks upon Government, attacks upon the authors of the Report, attacks upon those responsible for supporting it, of attempts to impute dishonest motives to men who have spent their lives in the indefatigable pursuit of political progress.

"My Lord, these attacks are the despair of all of us, who earnestly do seek the advance of this country. May we hope that the same tone of moderation which has pervaded the discussion in this Council will in future be maintained outside it.

"I do not propose to detain the Council at any great length with an examination of the detailed proposals in the Report. It would be premature to do so as we have submitted those proposals to the opinion of the country. We have also invited official opinion on them, and here I should like to pause to say that the Hon'ble mover was in error in supposing that the officials have had a chance of expressing their views on these proposals. I understood him to say that the officials have had their say, and that it is now time that the non-officials had theirs. My Lord, the officials in this country have not yet had their say on these proposals; they are now having it; they are examining the Report and the opinions of Local Governments are awaited.

"There are one or two general points relating to the proposal to which I must advert; but before I do so, I should like to answer the arguments put forward by the Hon'ble Mr. Hogg and the Hon'ble Mr. Ironside yesterday. I understood these Hon'ble Members to express disapproval of this Resolution for the following reasons. They anticipated that no useful result could be obtained from a Committee as the Members of that Committee clearly would hold divergent views. They further said—at any rate I think the Hon'ble Mr. Hogg said—that he was not authorised by his constituency to express any views on the scheme and the Hon'ble Mr. Ironside added that he had had no time to examine the question and made the further and much more serious allegation that the European commercial interests had been ignored in the Report.

"Well, my Lord, as to the Committee serving a useful purpose, I wish to place before the Council the position of Government. We had promised full opportunities for the discussion of this Report. We were then asked by a leading and influential member of this Council to afford non-official Members of the Council that opportunity. The Resolution is not a Government one. We did not suggest it. But the motion having been supported by a large number of Members of the Council, would it have been reasonable for the Government to refuse to afford that opportunity in the face of their declared policy? I submit that there can be but one answer to such a question.

"My Lord, we cannot force and do not desire to force any man to attend this Committee if he does not wish to do so. At the same time I may say that it will in the opinion of Government be a matter for great regret if the representatives of European commercial interests in this country are unable to attend and put their views and their difficulties before their Indian colleagues. I think, my Lord, that much good might result from such friendly discussion. We were told yesterday by the Hon'ble Mr. Ironside that the European commercial community appreciated the fact that in the future they would have to co-operate very largely with Indians in public affairs. I understood him also to say that he had had no great difficulty in such co-operation in the past. In these circumstances, my Lord, surely it is a matter for great regret that the first opportunity which is offered to the members of the European commercial community to co-operate with their Indian colleagues should not be

RESOLUTION ON REFORM PROPOSALS.

[7TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.] [Sir William Vincent ; Mr. Ironside.]

" The Hon'ble Mr. Ironside then said that he had had no time to examine the Report owing to the preoccupations of his business. Well, my Lord, the time for examination of the Report has necessarily been somewhat short, because if the scheme is to be successful, time is of the essence. But if the Report itself has been published for two months only, surely the question of the political development of this country and future administrative changes has been in the minds of everyone for many many months. The whole question has indeed been before the public since August the 20th of last year. As to the allegation that European commercial interests are ignored in the Report..............."

The Hon'ble Mr. Ironside : -" I said, practically ignored."

The Hon'ble Sir William Vincent : —" My Lord, when I served as a Judge, I was always told that the word 'practically' concealed a fraud. Either interests are ignored or they are not ignored. However, let us take the modified expression, as the Hon'ble Member prefers it. I say (and an examination of the Report will bear me out in this) that the benefits conferred by the British community in the development of the commerce and industry of this country, the magnitude of their interests, the need for securing adequate representation of those interests, and the necessity for retaining power in the hands of the Executive Government for their preservation are apparent throughout the Report. It is neither the intention of the authors nor of the Government of India in any way to sacrifice, depreciate or ignore those great interests.

" My Lord, there are two general lines of attack on the Report. The first is that the announcement of the 20th August is not sacrosanct. We heard, if I may say so, a variant of this in the Hon'ble Mr. Khaparde's suggestion yesterday. That variant has been so thoroughly demolished by the Hon'ble Mr. Sastri that it is scarcely worth my while dealing with it at all. But the general allegation that the announcement itself is not binding, is of a more serious character; and as I look upon Mr. Khaparde's attack as a subtle method of endeavouring to make out that it is not binding I ought perhaps to explain the position in regard to it. My Lord, it took the Hon'ble Member a year to think of this ingenious suggestion. The Secretary of State was out here; and no suggestion of this kind was made. The announcement was made on the 20th August 1917; yet it is not until September 1918 that this ingenious interpretation emanated from the subtle brain of the Hon'ble Member. As to the value of the announcement the position of the Moderate community, or an important section of the community, is very clearly laid down in a manifesto which I will read to the Council. I think it is by my Hon'ble colleague Sir Dinshaw Wacha.

> "That announcement is binding not only on the Secretary of State and on the Viceroy, but also on all other subjects of His Majesty, Indian as well as British.'

" My Lord, these are the views of at least one important section of the community. Speaking for the Government I may say our position is that we are all servants of the King, and on us the announcement—and not only the announcement but the limitations which it places on us—are strictly binding. If we fail in any way to give effect to the undertakings which are contained in it, we are guilty of disloyalty. Similarly, if we disregard the limitations that are placed on us, we are equally guilty of a breach of trust. My Lord, I have little more to say on the announcement except that it was hailed with acclamation all over this country. Is it consistent with loyalty or honesty now to turn and attack that very announcement which the country hailed with such enthusiasm a year ago?

" My Lord, the second line of attack is that this Report has not fulfilled the promise made in the announcement, that it does not propose any real advance, that too much is left to the Committees and so on. The answer to the last point is very simple though much is left and necessarily left to the Committees the broad principles on which the advance is to be carried out are expressly laid down in the Report itself. Speaking for myself, I maintain that it does constitute a very real and substantial advance towards responsible government. There are details in the Scheme on which I daresay officials as well as non-officials have divergent views. But the general principles not only represent a great advance, but, my Lord, they offer in my opinion, the most hopeful chance of success in the direction of political progress. I believe myself also that much may be done by the united effort of the Government and non-officials in this country, not only to secure the speedy enactment of the measures which are necessary to give effect to these proposals, but also to achieve successful results in carrying them into effect later. I have heard it said that the services, and particularly the service to which I have the honour to belong, will not co-operate loyally in giving effect to these proposals. My Lord, I should like to assure this Council that any such conduct would be contrary to the traditions of the service, and to the spirit which has actuated it for many years. I confidently believe that the service to which I belong and all other services will loyally and whole-heartedly endeavour to make these proposals a success and will co-operate gladly and willingly with their Indian colleagues in carrying them out.

RESOLUTION ON REFORM PROPOSALS.

[Sir William Vincent.] [7TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.]

"I have said what may be done by united effort. On the other hand, my Lord, I believe that any refusal to accept the basic principles which have been laid down in the announcement and in the Report, any attempt to belittle the realisation of those principles in the manner proposed will not only create dis, union among non-officials and officials, as well as amongst non-official themselves but also weaken the support that this country may afford to those responsible in the United Kingdom for carrying those measures into effect, strengthen the hands of our opponents and seriously jeopardise the whole course of political progress in this country for many years to come. There are those, not in this Council I hope, who think that something may be done by way of bargaining.

"Your Lordship has very carefully explained that the Report was not framed with any such idea. It is an idea which is not only entirely unworthy of any responsible Member of this Council, but is also fraught, in my judgment, with very grave danger. If there are any who honestly in their heart of hearts realise that these proposals are a great and adequate political advance, that they constitute a real step towards the end which they have in view, and yet hesitate to support them in the idea that something more may be obtained by making extravagant demands which they do not expect to be accepted, then I would earnestly ask them to renounce that idea as unworthy and certain to prejudice our chances of success in the United Kingdom, where the people are not familiar with this practice of bargaining and are certain to misunderstand it. There are others, my Lord, I believe, who think that in some way they may secure further concessions through the efforts of the American Government at the peace conference. I would ask of them to dismiss that from their minds. The public feeling aroused in the United Kingdom when Sir Subramania Iyer's letter to President Wilson was published is, I think, a useful lesson on that subject. My Lord, I wish now to place some important considerations that have weighed with the Government in accepting the general principles of the scheme, and I do this in the hope that Honourable Members remembering their responsibility and that of Government may bear them in mind and realise our position in this matter. We have on the one hand an ignorant population, and an electorate the capacity of which is entirely unknown. We have also unfortunately definite evidence of acute racial and religious feeling and of great bitterness at times between class and class. There is a large body of conservative opinion both in this country and in the United Kingdom which regards the whole idea of these political changes with apprehension at least; and we know that English public opinion as a whole is averse to any of these constitutional changes, particularly such changes as might possibly endanger the constitution of the British Empire. We know that the English nation believes and rightly believes that it is a trustee for the welfare of India. Wek now also that there are many who think that the real opinion in this country has been obscured owing to the lack of political education among the masses, their inarticulateness, their want of organisation. We know too that there is great and real anxiety about the safeguarding of British interests, the welfare of the services, the efficiency of the army and the maintenance of the position of India as an integral part of this Empire. Rightly or wrongly, too, there are many who fear that the interests of the masses, the backward communities and the welfare of the minorities will be endangered by any sudden transfer of power and that this would merely mean the substitution of an oligarchy for a bureaucracy. My Lord, it may be said that these fears are groundless. I am not here to justify them, but the fact remains that they undoubtedly exist, and they have in many cases, I fear, been intensified by wild utterances by extremists in the press and elsewhere. Now, these are the facts which I want the non-official Members of this Council to weigh and ponder in their future deliberations. In such circumstances with these difficulties before them, would it not be wise of them to consider these proposals from the point of view of Government, to realise the magnitude of the interests involved and the moral obligation of the Government not only to the country but also to the Empire as a whole, to make allowances for the fears and opinions of others, and to examine the Reform proposals in the same spirit by which the authors of the Report were guided? No one can accuse either your Excellency or Mr. Montagu of want of sympathy with the ideals to which many in this country aspire, and yet you, after a careful examination of the whole subject, patient, long laborious toil, considering every aspect, and the responsibilities which attached to them and to the Government, have clearly propounded the limits up to which you are prepared to go and this is a fact which the Council should remember. Further, I maintain myself that the interests of political progress in this country also indicate the necessity for caution and for a moderate and reasoned expression of opinion. I honestly believe that the changes proposed in this Report represent the maximum to which public opinion in the United Kingdom will possibly go........."

RESOLUTION ON REFORM PROPOSALS.

[7TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.] [Sir William Vincent; Mr. Srinivasa Sastri.]

The Hon'ble Mr. Srinivasa Sastri: "Is that the opinion of the Hon'ble Member personally or of the Government?"

The Hon'ble Sir William Vincent: "I am speaking for myself. I have no authority to speak for Government on this point. My further belief is that extravagant demands on the part of Members of this Council may simply lead to rejection of the proposals which have now been put forward. My Lord, if the responsibilities of the Government are great in this matter, the responsibilities of the Members of the Council though of a different character, are perhaps little less. Their considered opinion must carry very great weight; and it would, in my opinion, be lamentable if in their desire to obtain more than is now proposed they should cast away the substance, in grasping at the shadow and jeopardise that which is now offered. My Lord, I venture to remind the Council of the old fable of the Sybilline Books.

"I now turn to another aspect of the matter. One of the most important points, mentioned by Muhammadan members of the Council relates to the question of communal representation. I refer in particular to the speech of the Hon'ble Mr. Asad Ali and the Hon'ble Mr. Abdur Rahim, who addressed the Council on that point. It has been suggested that the Report in some way neglects the interests of Muhammadans. My Lord, I do not read the Report in that way, and I am quite sure that it was not the intention of the authors that such an interpretation should be placed upon it. There are theoretical objections undoubtedly to communal representation. I suppose that every student of this subject will recognise them. On the other hand, we have to face existing facts and conditions and to remember the solemn undertakings of at least two Viceroys and one Secretary of State. I am quite sure that it was not the intention of the authors, and it is not the intention of the Government of India in any way to depart from these undertakings, and the Muhammadans of this Council may rest assured that as the Government has in the past always kept faith with them, so too will it in the future and that as in the past every effort will be made to meet all reasonable demands.

" As to the representation of landlords to which I think Mr. Shukul referred, that is a question which is specifically referred, with the question of communal and special electorates, to the franchise committee for examination. But I must demur to the suggestion of the Hon'ble Member that the landlords' representatives ought to be put into the Council as guardians of the ryots. That I understand was the position which the Hon'ble Member took up. My Lord, of necessity the interests of landlord and tenant frequently must clash and it would be unreasonable to trust the interests of ryots to members of a community whose interests are certainly not identical with theirs.

" My own personal experience in this country has been that whenever measures are proposed for the protection of the ryot, it has always been the landlords who have opposed them. I may instance the Bengal Tenancy Act as a striking example of this...............

The Hon'ble Sir Gangadhar Chitnavis :—" Not everywhere The case is different in the Central Provinces."

The Hon'ble Sir William Vincent :—" In the province from which I come at least this is the case. I am speaking of my own experience only. Indeed I believe that since the Reformed Councils have been introduced, no general measure for the effective protection of the tenant against the landlord except on one occasion has been passed in that province. So much, my Lord, for making the landlords the sole guardians of the tenants as the Hon'ble Member suggests.

" My Lord, I must now pass on quickly to a question of great importance, the proposed changes in the Government of India. It has been said that the Government of India is left as autocratic as ever, and that the Members of this Council will be left in the same position of irresponsibility. I hope I am citing the words correctly, as at present..... ...."

The Hon'ble Mr. M. A. Jinnah :—" Irresponsible critics."

The Hon'ble Sir William Vincent : —" Very well. That attitude does perhaps correctly describe my Hon'ble friend's attitude.......... ....."

The Hon'ble Mr. M. A. Jinnah :—" In this Council, yes."

The Hon'ble Sir William Vincent :—" My Lord, the facts were accurately summed up in your Excellency's speech and it really comes to this, that while the necessity for retaining the indisputable authority of the Government of India in essential matters is retained the position of that Government, vis-a-vis, the representatives of the electorate will be largely changed. I have always accepted the position that the authority of the Government of India must be maintained unimpaired as one of the fundamental principles of the Reforms, and it was in this belief that I signed the Despatch with which that document was despatched to the India Office.

" I should like here to draw the attention of the Council to what Sir Narayan Chandavarkar says on this subject, as it seems to me to support the views which I hold. He said :—

> ' We must not lose sight of the cardinal principle accepted by all statesmen who have had to do with constitution-making and preparing the way for full realisation of responsible government, that a strong central Government is an essential part of such Government for the stability and security of the Empire.'

" But, my Lord, to say the Report makes no change in the position of the popular representatives towards the Government of India is to shut one's eyes to obvious facts. The influence of Parliament in this country will be directly enhanced by placing the salary of the Secretary of State on the Civil Estimates, and by the appointment of a Select Committee of the House of Commons to which, I think, your Excellency referred. The non-official majority in the

RESOLUTION ON REFORM PROPOSALS.

[7TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.] [Sir William Vincent ; The President ; Mr. Surendra Nath Banerjea.]

Legislative Council will be largely increased and it cannot but exercise a very great influence on the Government. Indeed, under the new system it may well be said that the Government of India will be subject to pressure from two sides, from the democratic influences of Parliament and from the Council on this side. The Additional Indian Member will furnish a further opportunity for the representation of Indian views. Further, the appointment of Standing Committees of the Council is an important step. As to legislation there will be a non-official majority in the Assembly, and it is idle to say that the Council of State will be used constantly for overriding the authority of the elected members of the Assembly in an unreasonable manner, for any such abuse of power will bring its own punishment.

" There is another aspect of this matter also, my Lord, to which I should like to draw the attention of Council. The decentralization which is proposed in the Report obviously involves a large increase in the power of the Provincial Governments and a diminution in the power of the Government of India. Now if you deprive the Government of India of a great deal of its authority and transfer that power to the Local Governments, and at the same time give largely increased powers of control to the popular representatives, you are pro tanto giving the popular representatives great authority over matters which are at present controlled by the Government of India..............

His Excellency the President:—" The Hon'ble Member has exceeded his time."

The Hon'ble Sir William Vincent:—" Would you like me to stop, my Lord ?"

His Excellency the President:—" Yes, you may finish quickly."

The Hon'ble Sir William Vincent:—" Very well, my Lord. I will just finish this point. I believe that any intention at the present juncture to transfer to an untried administration great matters of Imperial as well as Provincial importance on which the welfare of the Army, the security of this country and the position of India in the Empire depend, I say that any attempt to transfer those powers to popular representatives whose capacity is unknown would cause great anxiety in this country, and would in all probability evoke great opposition in the United Kingdom. I should like also to say that the proposals of your Excellency go further than the proposals made by the late Mr. Gokhale in this respect two years ago. Mr. Gokhale was no political opportunist, my Lord, and in making his proposal he had regard not only to the requirements of the country, but to the political capacity of his fellow countrymen. Speaking for myself also I may say that I hope that so long as the British Army guards this country from external aggression and internal commotion, so long will the maintenance of authority in the Executive Government in matters essential and in regard to Imperial interests be preserved, though this power will have to be and will be exercised with reasonable care and only when the necessity of the case demands.

" My Lord, I understand that Mr. Patel wishes to divide the Resolution into two parts. In view of the remarks of Pandit Malaviya that it was immaterial to him whether the first part of the Resolution is accepted or not, and the entirely different views taken by the Hon'ble Mr. Patel to-day, I hope your Excellency will meet Mr. Patel in his request and allow the Resolution to be divided. We shall then see whether in the opinion of this Council the first portion is in fact as immaterial as the Hon'ble Pandit alleges."

1-30 P.M.

The Hon'ble Mr. Surendra Nath Banerjea:—" My Lord, it is now half-past one and we have been sitting here for nearly two and a half hours. I am sure it is not necessary for me to make a long speech in reply.

RESOLUTION ON REFORM PROPOSALS.

[Mr. Surendra Nath Banerjea ; Mr. Jinnah.] [7TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.]

" But, my Lord, I feel that I ought to congratulate the Council upon the tone, the temper and the spirit of moderation which has characterised our debate this morning and yesterday.

" Notwithstanding the excitement which prevails outside and in which some of us share, not a harsh word has been allowed to mar the serenity of our discussions. I hope and trust that the temper which has been displayed by the Members of the Imperial Legislative Council will affect the temper of our people outside and introduce the leaven of moderation and self-restraint into the public discussions that are taking place in connection with the Reform proposals. My Lord, it must be highly gratifying to your Excellency and to Mr. Montagu to have noticed that there is practically absolute unanimity of opinion in favour of the view that the Reform proposals mark a distinct advance upon the existing state of things, and not only that, but there is an overwhelming consensus of opinion in this Council that they represent a definite stage towards the progressive realisation of responsible government.

" My Lord, the Hon'ble Mr. Jinnah, in a speech to the tone and temper of which I have no exception to take, observed that no eloquent speeches were needed, and he mentioned my speech and that of my Hon'ble friend Mr. Sastri, to convince this Council or the outside public, of this fact. I think I quote his words......

The Hon'ble Mr. M. A. Jinnah :—" May I rise to a point of order. I said this, either the Members in this Council, or any body who has taken the trouble to read the Report."

The Hon'ble Mr. Surendra Nath Banerjea :—" Or anybody outside this Council, I have got down the words and unless the Hon'ble Member withdraws, I stick to those words. I am permitted to hold then that Mr. Jinnah made the observation that no eloquent speeches were needed to convince the outside public that these Reform proposals mark a distinct advance upon the existing state of things. I think eloquent speeches were needed for the purpose. If the recollection of my friend will carry him back to the early days of July, soon after the promulgation of the Reform Scheme, he may be able perhaps to remember that many distinguished persons in the Madras Presidency including Mrs. Besant, Mr. Vijiaraghavachariar and Sir Subramania Iyer declared in their speeches and writings that the Reform proposals were unacceptable, undiscussable, unworthy of the traditions of the British Government. And this note was sounded, repeated, re-echoed in conferences, in public meetings of the party which held these opinions. Let my Hon'ble friend read the proceedings of the Madras Provincial Conference which even Mrs. Besant was unable to control. Let him read the proceedings of the Bengal Provincial Conference in which the excitement ran so high as almost to lead to a pugilistic encounter. Let him read the proceedings of the Akola Conference, and he will find that there was a party.—I use the word ' was ' deliberately because that party has now changed its front—there was a party that held that these proposals were unacceptable, disappointing, unsatisfactory—the vocabulary of the English language was put into requisition for the purpose of condemning the scheme. I am not going to name anybody or any party. I say there was a party ; let any one whom the cap fits take it up. There was a party and that party condemned the scheme, and used the words I have mentioned. They said the scheme was unacceptable, inadequate, disappointing, and unless substantially and materially modified would not in any way satisfy the legitimate aspirations of the people of India. Therefore eloquent speeches were needed and I take credit to myself and others who have been acting with me that it was these eloquent speeches and the firm attitude of those who welcome this scheme that brought about this change of front. That change of front has not yet been complete. They are moving in the right direction, but it takes long for a party to confess its own mistakes. Repentance will come in due time, but it is a question not of days or hours, but of weeks, months, and it may be a whole year. but I feel confident that the note which has been sounded to-day in this Council representing the scheme as marking a distinct and definite stage towards the progressive realisation of responsible government will be taken up by the country, echoed, re-echoed until it becomes the settled conviction of the saner portion of the great Indian community. My Lord, Mr. Patel introduced Congress politics into our deliberations. I never uttered a single word about the Congress-League scheme, and if I have to refer to his observations and to reply to them, the responsibility lies upon him and not upon me. I am bound to say that many of those who built up the Congress and suffered for the Congress, were conspicuous by their absence from this special session of the Congress. I was one of them. To me it was a great wrench, for my Lord, I have been present at every meeting of the Congress, save one since 1886. I have sacrified ease, comfort, pecuniary considerations for the sake of the Congress. That institution has been cemented with my lifeblood and bears testimony to my life work. To me therefore it was a great wrench, to have been absent from the Congress but after all the Congress is a means to an end. It is an organisation for the attainment of self-government within the Empire. Self-government is the end ; the Congress is the means, and if those who now govern the Congress tried to wreck the scheme, as I thought they would, I felt it was our clear duty to abstain from the Congress in order to save the scheme. We felt that it was not right and proper that our names should be used as having supported resolutions which were calculated to wreck the scheme. We thought it proper that it should not appear before the British public that it was the united voice of India that disapproved and condemned the scheme. And therefore we absented ourselves from the Congress in order to save the scheme and the interests of self-government. I hope my Hon'ble friend will be satisfied with this explanation............

RESOLUTION ON REFORM PROPOSALS.

[7TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.] [Mr. Surendra Nath Banerjea ; Mr. V. J. Patel ; The President.]

The Hon'ble Mr. V. J. Patel : —" And now are you going to join ?"

His Excellency the President :—" Order ! Order ! If the Hon'ble Member wishes to interrupt, he must stand up."

The Hon'ble Mr. Surendra Nath Banerjea :—" But, my Lord, as the question has been put may I reply ? If a rational view prevails, there is no reason why we should not all unite on a common platform in the interests of the Motherland. But let us pass on.

" My Lord, I deeply deplore the attitude of some of my European friends who have declined to join the Committee. I hope and trust that they will reconsider their decision. I think both the Hon'ble Mr. Hogg and the Hon'ble Mr. Ironside said that they had not received any mandate from their constituencies, but the question of mandate does not now arise at all. Join the Committee, see what the proposals are, and then you might consult your constituencies as to whether you should support them or not. Why not join the Committee ? That does not depend on the mandate of any constituency. After all the mandates of constituencies are instructions, they are not positive injunctions imposed upon the person elected, imposed upon his conscience and judgment. I do hope and pray therefore that they will reconsider their decision and give us the benefit of their advice in regard to the grave matters which will come under our discussion.

" My Lord, one word more and I am done. I once again desire to associate myself with the observations which have fallen from many of my friends regarding an expansion of the Reform proposals in connection with the Government of India. The authority of the Central Government must be preserved ; I quite agree.

RESOLUTION ON REFORM PROPOSALS.

[Mr. Surendra Nath Banerjea ; Sir George Lowndes ; The President.] [7TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.]

"That was the observation of my friend Sir Narayan Chandravarkar. But is it not possible to maintain such control and at the same time to introduce the first beginnings of responsible government into the machinery of the Government of India ?,............

The Hon'ble Sir George Lowndes :—" They are there already."

The Hon'ble Mr. Surendra Nath Banerjea :—" I do not see it; I am obtuse enough not to perceive that there is anything of the kind in the proposals regarding the Government of India, and I feel that my friends who have spoken to-day are similarly situated. Despite all that has been said, despite a careful perusal of the proposals, we are practically unanimous in the opinion that nothing like even the beginnings of a progressive realisation of responsible government are to be found in the proposals affecting the Government of India. That is our view. We may be right or we may be wrong, but, my Lord, the united voice of the educated community counts for something, and I appeal to your Excellency to bear in mind the opinion that we entertain with regard to this matter and see whether it is not possible even now to introduce modifications in regard to the Government of India which may have the effect of satisfying educated public opinion and adding to the liberalisation of that Government. That is my appeal to your Excellency, and I trust it will be an appeal to which your Excellency will extend an indulgent and sympathetic hearing.

" With these observations I desire to place my Resolution before the Council, and I hope that it will be unanimously carried."

His Excellency the President :—" I propose under the Rules to divide this Resolution into two parts. The first Resolution on which the Council will have to vote is : 'This Council thanks His Excellency the Viceroy and the Secretary of State for India for the Reforms Proposals and recognises them as a genuine effort and a definite advance towards the progressive realisation of responsible government in India.'

The second part then will follow : 'This Council recommends to the Governor General in Council that a Committee consisting of all the non-official Members of this Council be appointed to consider the Reforms Report and make recommendations to the Government of India.'

His Excellency the President then put the first part of the Resolution and the Council divided as follows.

Rainfall summary for the seven days ending at 8 hrs. on Thursday, the 12th September 1918, based on the Indian Daily Weather Reports of the period.

1. The depression from the Bay mentioned in last week's report moved slowly into Bihar where it disappeared. It gave nearly general rain in northeast India and some heavy falls were reported from Bihar. Patna had 13 inches in two days. The Bombay monsoon gave very little rain outside the area affected by the depression, and the rainfall of the week was accordingly much below the average in all parts of the country except Burma, northeast India, and the east of the United Provinces and of Central India.

2. Burma.—Nearly general rain fell in Lower Burma every day except the 11th, and in Upper Burma on the 10th.

Northeast India, including Orissa.—Rainfall was nearly general in Assam on the 5th, 6th, 10th and 11th, in Bengal on the 6th, 10th and 11th, and in Bihar and Orissa on the 5th and 6th.

The United Provinces, Central India and the Central Provinces.—Rain fell at nearly every station in the United Provinces East and the Central Provinces East on the 5th. Local falls occurred in other parts of the division.

Northwest India.—A few falls of rain were reported from the Punjab, Kashmir, the North-West Frontier Province, southeast Rajputana and Kathiawar.

The Peninsula.—There was nearly general rain in the Konkan on the 8th, in Hyderabad and the Madras Deccan on the 11th, and on the north Madras coast on the 10th.

Season and Crop Prospects for the week ending Saturday, 7th September 1918.

Burma.—During the week the rain was general throughout the Province. The fall was heavy on the Tenasserim Coast and light to moderate elsewhere. Transplanting of winter rice is nearing completion in Lower Burma and in irrigated tracts of Upper Burma. Harvesting of late sessamum and cultivation of miscellaneous dry crops is proceeding in Upper Burma. Standing crops are generally good. Cattle are healthy. The price of unhusked rice has risen further and is now considerably above normal. The market for white rice is strong at Rs. 330 per hundred baskets for specials.

Assam.—The weather during the week was seasonable. Manufacture of tea, harvesting of autumn rice and jute and transplantation of winter rice continue. Some damage to winter rice by floods is reported from Goalpara. Prospects of crops are fair. Cattle disease is reported from six districts. The price of common rice is rising seasonably.

Bengal.—During the week moderate rain fell throughout the Province. Damage to standing crops by floods continues to be reported from many places of Eastern Bengal. Flood waetr is, however, gradually subsiding. Transplanting of winter paddy is nearing completion. Weeding has commenced. Harvesting of paddy and jute is well advanced. The prospects of standing crops except in flood affected areas are fair. The price of common rice has risen by about 2·5 per cent.

Bihar and Orissa.—During the week rain was general in the Province, the fall being heavy in parts of the Patna, Tirhut and Orissa divisions and mostly light to moderate in the rest of the Province. Transplantation of paddy is going on but more rain is still wanted for the purpose in parts of two districts in Orissa. Harvesting of jute continues. Standing crops are doing well. The price of common rice has risen in eleven districts, and remained stationary in the remaining districts as compared with that of the preceding week. Cattle disease is reported from eleven districts. Condition of standing crops in the Feudatory States of Orissa is good. More rain is, however, wanted in some states for transplantation of paddy.

United Provinces.—During the week good rain was again received throughout the Provinces except in parts of the western submontane and Upper and Central Doab districts. Preparation of land for spring crops, sowing of late autumn crops, harvesting and irrigation of autumn crops and transplantation of late rice continue. Standing crops are, on the whole, doing well and prospects are generally favourable. Agricultural stock is in good condition but slight cattle disease is still reported from some districts. Fodder, water and market supplies are adequate. Prices are generally stationary with a tendency to rise in the west and east of the Provinces.

Punjab.—Light rain has fallen in parts of all the reporting districts and was useful. More rain is urgently needed. Sowing of millets, maize and fodder continue and are below normal to normal. Standing crops are average to good on irrigated areas and below average to average on unirrigated areas. Picking of cotton, ploughing for spring crops and sowings of Toria have commenced. In a few districts the yield of cotton is expected to be average. Cattle are generally healthy and water is sufficient but fodder is scarce in parts of a few districts. Prices have risen slightly and range between warning and scarcity rates or are above scarcity rates. Price of wheat :—Lahore and Rawalpindi 7¼, Ambala 7, Ferozepore and Lyallpur 7¾ seers per rupee.

North-West Frontier Province.—During the week light rain has fallen in the Province but more rain is still urgently required in Dera Ismail Khan. Sowings of autumn crops are proceeding normally in Peshawar and Bannu and have been completed in Dera Ismail Khan. Harvesting prospects are average on irrigated and below average on unirrigated areas. Cotton is being picked in Peshawar with outturn average. Prices of Wheat :—Peshawar 8 seers 4 chataks and Dera Ismail Khan 9 seers 1 chatak per rupee.

Jammu.—During the week the rain was almost general. Prices are stationary.

Kashmir.—The week was generally cloudy and mild. Standing crops are in fair condition. Cattle are generally healthy. Prices are high.

Rajputana.—During the week light showers were received and the weather was cloudy. Standing crops and cattle are in fair condition. Fodder is generally sufficient. Prices are rising.

Central India.—The rainfall during the week was general and sufficient except in Jaora, Sitamau, Piploda and Sailana of Malwa. Autumn crops are being sown. Land for spring crops is being prepared in the Southern States. Standing crops are in fair condition except in Jaora. Agricultural stock is in fair to good condition. Cattle disease is prevailing in Nagode. Fodder is less scarce in Gwalior and is sufficient elsewhere except in Rutlam and Jaora. Prices are high.

Central Provinces.—The weather has been cloudy and rainy. Light to moderate showers of rain were received except in the districts of Berar. Sowings of til, kodo and kutki are still proceeding in several districts. Transplantation and thinning of rice are approaching completion. Weeding and preparation of land for sowing spring crops continue. Harvesting of minor crops has begun in places. Prospects of autumn crops are now favourable but more rain is required in Nimar, Betul, Chanda and Berar. Agricultural stock is in good condition. Cattle disease is reported in parts of five districts. Fodder is very dear in Akola. Relief works of various kinds are in progress in Sironcha Tahsil. Variations in prices generally indicate an upward tendency.

Feudatory States :—There was ample rain in the States. Standing crops are in good condition.

Bombay.—Good rain fell during the week in parts of Savantvadi, Ratnagiri, Kathiawar, Palanpur and Baroda and slight elsewhere. More rain is needed almost in all districts. Standing crops have been damaged by rats in Karachi, are withering in parts of Karachi, Larkana, the Deccan, Kathiawar, Kolhapur and the Karnatak and are fair to good elsewhere. Sowing of autumn crops continues in parts of Thar and Parkar, Gujarat, Palanpur, Rewa Kantha and Baroda. Sowing of spring crops has been retarded in the Karnatak. Transplantation is progressing in parts of Karachi, Larkana and the Konkan. Fodder supply is deficient in several districts but pasture has been improved by the recent rains. Agricultural stock is generally sufficient but cattle are deteriorating in parts of Hyderabad, Thar, Parkar, Belgaum and Kaira. Irrigation is deficient in parts of Sind, Kaira, Surat, Poona and Dharwar. Prices of food grains have risen slightly in parts of Gujarat and the Karnatak generally and are steady elsewhere.

Hyderabad.—Report not received.

Mysore.—The week was slightly wet. Ploughing and sowing operations have been retarded and standing crops are withering for want of rain. Cattle are generally healthy. Prices are rising.

Coorg.—Except for light showers the weather remained dry during the week. Transplanting of rice has been completed in parts. Cattle disease prevails in some villages. Water and fodder are sufficient. The public health is fair. Prices of food grains are high.

Madras.—The rainfall during the week was heavy in South Kanara, good in Ganjam, Vizagapatam, and Malabar, fair in the Vizagapatam littoral Godavari, Kistna and the Cochin Hills, and light or nil elsewhere. Standing crops are in fair to good condition generally but more rain is wanted immediately. Harvesting of paddy, sugarcane and dry crops is proceeding with outturn fair to normal generally but poor in two and in parts of seven other districts. Sowings of paddy and dry crops are proceeding but have been retarded generally for want of rain. The condition of cattle is generally good. Water is insufficient except in two districts. Pasture is sufficient except in five districts and parts of ten others. Fodder is sufficient except in one district and parts of nine others. Prices have risen generally.

Bills introduced in the Indian Legislative Council, Reports of Select Committees, presented to the Council, and Bills published under Rule 23

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

The following Bill was introduced in the Indian Legislative Council on the 4th September 1918 :—

No. 10 OF 1918.

A Bill to provide for the immediate effect for a limited period of Bills introduced into the Indian Legislative Council which impose or vary certain taxation.

WHEREAS it is expedient to provide for the immediate effect for a limited period of Bills introduced into the Indian Legislative Council which impose or vary certain taxation; It is hereby enacted as follows :—

Short title.

1. This Act may be called the Provisional Collection of Taxes Act, 191 .

Government taxation Bills to have limited statutory effect.

2. When a Bill is introduced into the Indian Legislative Council by a Member of the Executive Council of the Governor General, and such Bill provides for the imposition or variation of any tax in the nature of customs or excise duties, and there is inserted therein a declaration that it is expedient in the public interest that the Bill should have temporary effect under the provisions of this Act, the Bill shall, for the period limited by this section and subject to the provisions of this Act, have effect from the date of its introduction as if it were an Act of the Governor General in Council:

Provided that the Bill shall cease to have such effect if it is rejected by the said Council, or is not passed into law within thirty days from the date of introduction:

Provided further that, if the Bill is passed into law by the said Council in a modified form, the Bill shall be deemed to have effect under this Act as so modified.

Repayment of money paid where Bill ceases to have statutory effect.

3. (1) Where under this Act a Bill to which this Act applies ceases to have effect thereunder, any money paid in pursuance of the Bill shall be repaid or made good, and any deduction made in pursuance of the Bill shall be deemed to be an unauthorised deduction.

(2) Where the tax as imposed by the Bill is modified by the Act passed by the Indian Legislative Council, any money which has been paid in pursuance of the Bill which would not have been payable under the new conditions affecting the tax shall be repaid or made good; and any deduction made in pursuance of the Bill shall, so far as it would not have been authorised under the new conditions affecting the tax, be deemed to be an unauthorised deduction.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

Provision can at present be made in a financial Bill that the duties or rates of duty imposed by it shall come into force from the date of introduction of the Bill. Such provision, however, gives no power to collect the taxes imposed by the Bill until it is actually passed into law. Apart from the administrative inconvenience which results under this arrangement, there is obviously a considerable risk of loss of revenue owing to the difficulty which may arise in recovering, with retrospective effect, the correct duty on goods which have been passed through the customs or removed from bond in the interval. Powers are therefore required to make it possible to collect provisionally certain classes of taxes immediately on the introduction of the Bill under which they are imposed. These powers will be more necessary in the future than in the past in view of the recent alterations in the procedure for discussing the Annual Financial Statement, the result of which will be to lengthen the period ordinarily elapsing between the introduction and the final passing of a financial Bill.

2. In providing for these powers the present Bill, which is based on the British Provisional Collection of Taxes Act, 1913, (3 Geo. V, Cap. 3), lays down certain safeguards and limitations. Firstly, only taxes in the nature of customs or excise duties come within the scope of the Bill, since it is only with regard to them that difficulties of the kind just mentioned are likely to occur. Secondly, the powers will only be exercisable if in the Bill imposing the new duties or rates of duty a declaration is specifically inserted that it is expedient in the public interest that the Bill should have temporary effect from the date of its introduction as if it were an Act of the Governor General in Council. Thirdly, it is provided that the temporary effect of a Bill imposing the duties or rates of duty shall cease if the Bill is rejected or is not passed into law within thirty days from the date of its introduction, and that, if it is passed into law in a modified form, it shall be deemed to have temporary effect only as so modified. And fourthly, provision is made for the repayment, if the Bill imposing the new duties or rates of duty is rejected or is not passed into law within thirty days from the date of introduction, of sums paid under the Bill during the period in which temporary effect has been given to it; and, if the Bill is modified before passing into law, for the refund of any sums paid which would not have been collected under the Bill so modified.

3. The provisions of the Bill apply only to financial Bills introduced by a Member of the Executive Council of the Governor General.

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

The following Bill was introduced in the Indian Legislative Council on the 4th September 1918:—

No. 11 OF 1918.

A Bill to provide that silver held on behalf of the Secretary of State for India in Council or the Governor General in Council may, if so held in the United States of America or in course of transmission therefrom, be deemed to be part of the reserve referred to in section 19 of the Indian Paper Currency Act, 1910.

WHEREAS it is expedient, owing to the present war, to provide that silver held on behalf of the Secretary of State for India in Council or the Governor General in Council may, if so held in the United States of America or in course of transmission therefrom, be deemed to be part of the reserve referred to in section 19 of the Indian Paper Currency Act, 1910; It is hereby enacted as follows:— II of 1910.

Short title and duration.

1. (1) This Act may be called the Indian Paper Currency Act, 191 .

(2) It shall remain in force during the continuance of the present war, and for a period of six months thereafter.

Definition.

2. In this Act—

"Silver" means silver coin or silver bullion.

Power to direct that silver held in the United States of America or in transmission therefrom may be deemed to be part of the Paper Currency Reserve.

3. Notwithstanding anything contained in the Indian Paper Currency Act, 1910, the Governor General in Council may, by order in writing, direct— II of 1910.

(a) that silver held in the United States of America on behalf of the Secretary of State for India in Council or the Governor General in Council, shall be deemed to be part of the reserve referred to in section 19 of the said Act; or (b) that silver in course of transmission from the United States of America, which is, at the commencement of such transmission or at any period thereafter, held on behalf of the Secretary of State for India in Council or the Governor General in Council for transmission to India shall, during the period it is so held, be deemed to be a part of the reserve referred to in section 19 of the said Act.

Repeal of Ordinance I of 1918.

4. The Indian Paper Currency Ordinance, 1918, is hereby repealed.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

The Indian Paper Currency Act, 1910, provides for the holding, as part of the Paper Currency Reserve, of silver or gold coin or bullion in transit to and from India in certain circumstances. The Act does not, however, cover the case of silver held in the United States and in transit therefrom to India. At the present time, the bulk of the Government of India's purchases of silver are being made in the United States, and it is desirable that they should have power to treat such silver as a portion of the Paper Currency Reserve after its acquisition by or on their behalf in the United States, and during the period of its transit to India. An Ordinance was accordingly promulgated on the 15th April providing that silver so held may be deemed to be part of the Paper Currency Reserve. The present Bill provides for the continuance of the provisions of that Ordinance for the period of the war, and for six months thereafter.

1. (1) This Act may be called the Gold Coinage Act, 191 .

Short title and duration.

(2) It shall remain in force during the continuance of the present war, and for a period of six months thereafter.

(b) has been defaced,

(2) A person cutting or breaking coin under the provisions of sub-section (1) shall return the pieces to the person tendering the coin who shall bear the loss caused by such cutting or breaking :

III of 1906.

8. The provisions of section 20 of the Indian Coinage Act, 1906, shall apply in the case of gold mohurs as if that section referred to gold coin and gold bullion, and any person authorised under that section may exercise in respect of gold mohurs the powers conferred thereby.

Bar of suits.

11. The Gold Coinage Ordinance, 1918, is hereby repealed.

Repeal of Ordinance II of 1918.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

Power was taken by an Ordinance promulgated on the 14th June 1918 for the coinage and issue of a gold mohur or 15-rupee gold piece at the Indian mints. Though arrangements for the coinage of sovereigns in India were in train, these had not at that time been completed, and it had meantime become necessary to provide for the early conversion into coin of a portion of the large stock of gold bullion and foreign coin held by the Government of India in their Paper Currency Reserve. The further coinage of gold mohurs has for the present been discontinued on the commencement of the coinage of sovereigns in the newly-constituted branch of the Royal Mint at Bombay, but it is possible that it may again during the course of the war be found to be expedient to resume the coinage of mohurs. In any case, even if further coinage of mohurs is not undertaken, it is necessary to continue the legal tender character of the coins which have been and will be issued. As, therefore, the above mentioned Ordinance will cease to have effect in December next, it is proposed by the present Bill to continue its provisions for the period of the war, and for six months thereafter.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS

The object of the Bill is to prevent the subjects of States at present at war with His Majesty from obtaining control during the period of the war and for five years thereafter over any business connected with certain non-ferrous metals and metallic ores.

To secure this object all persons engaging in these industries must be licensed Persons who satisfy the Local Government that they are not hostile foreigners, or that the interests which they represent are not under hostile control, will be entitled to a license The Bill extends to British India the principles of the law on the subject introduced in the United Kingdom as the Non-Ferrous Metal Industry Act, 1918.

Clause 3 prescribes the metals and ores to which the law will at present apply.

Clause 4 prohibits the dealing in such metals except under a license, and prescribes the conditions under which such licenses may be granted.

Clause 5 gives power to call for information from, and to inspect the documents of, a licensee or an applicant for a license to ascertain the nature of the business or constitution of the company or firm, with a view to determining whether it is or is not controlled by a subject of the present enemy States

Clause 6 provides power for an Indian company to give notice requiring holders of share warrants to bearer to surrender the share warrants for cancellation and to have their names registered. The necessity of thus empowering companies arises from the fact that companies which have issued such share warrants are not entitled to a license.

Under clause 7 an Indian company may give notice requiring a shareholder or debenture-holder to make a declaration as to the beneficial ownership of the shares and debentures showing in his name.

Clause 9 provides the penalties for offences against the Act, and clause 10 provides that cognizance shall not be taken of any offence under the Act except under the orders of the Local Government.

The conditions which prevent an applicant from claiming the grant of a license as a matter of right are explained in the Schedule.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

The object of this Bill is to amend the Provincial Insolvency Act, 1907 (III of 1907), which contains the law of Insolvency in force in British India outside the Presidency-towns and the town of Rangoon. The Act came into force on the 1st January, 1908, and since then with the exception of a few unimportant amendments made in 1914, it has not been amended. Ten years' experience of the practical working of the Act has brought to light many defects which have from time to time provoked criticism from most of the Local Governments and not a few of the Judges who have had to administer its provisions. Numerous suggestions for the amendment of the Act on various points have also been received from time to time from the commercial communities and members of the legal profession.

2. The chief indictment of the Act is that it lends itself to the protection of fraudulent debtors, that it subjects an undischarged insolvent to little or no practical inconvenience, and that its provisions for the punishment of fraudulent insolvents are not effective in practice.

3. One of the principal defects in the existing law arises from the fact that the conduct of the debtor in many cases never comes under the scrutiny of the Court. The stage at which the misconduct of the debtor should come before the Court, and at which most of the provisions affecting a fraudulent insolvent would operate, is when he applies for his discharge. But there is nothing in the Act which requires him to apply for his discharge, and in practice such applications are rare. To remedy this unsatisfactory state of the law, it is proposed to include in the Act provisions which will compel an insolvent to apply to the Court within a prescribed period for his discharge or to lose the protection afforded by the insolvency proceedings. The Court will have power to extend the prescribed period and, when the adjudication order is annulled owing to the failure of the insolvent to apply in time for his discharge, a fresh petition on the same facts will be barred. These proposed changes are effected by the proviso to proposed new section 5C in clause 4 of the Bill, new sub-section (1A) (ii) in clause 10, the amendments in clause 11 (1), (3) and (4), and the amendments in clause 20.

4. It is now settled law that under the Act, as it stands, it is not open to the Court to reject the petition of a debtor on the ground that the application is an abuse of the law. While admitting that the object of an insolvency law is to deal with all insolvents, whether honest or not, and that no applicant who is in fact insolvent should be liable to have his petition dismissed in limine, it seems reasonable that the Court should have discretion as to the amount of protection to be afforded to a petitioning debtor in each individual case, the debtor being required to show that he is in fact unable to pay his debts, and that he has not concealed his property. These changes in the existing law are effected by the amendment in clauses 9 and 10 (2) and by clause 12, which inserts a new section 16A as to protection orders on the lines of section 25 of the Presidency Towns Insolvency Act, 1909.

5. A further defect in the Act is the absence of provisions sufficiently defining the power of Courts to decide questions of law and fact arising in insolvency proceedings. In certain cases, e.g., those mentioned in sections 18 (3), 36 and 37, the Court is empowered to pass orders, and section 47 defines the general powers of the Court in regard to proceedings under the Act, but nowhere is a general power conferred on the Court to deal with and decide important questions of law and fact (e.g., a question of title to property) which may arise in the insolvency proceedings. This question has recently been the subject of conflicting decisions in the Allahabad and the Calcutta High Courts. In Nilmoni Chowdhri v. Durga Charan Chowdhri (22 C. W. N., 704), the Calcutta High Court dissenting from the Allahabad High Court held that the Insolvency Court has no such power, and that a question of title to property should be tried in a separate suit. It is obviously desirable that this conflict between the two High Courts should be terminated, and having regard to the prevalence of benami transactions in India and the importance of arming Courts with adequate powers for the speedy realisation of assets in the interests of creditors, the Government of India are of opinion that the Court should be given full power to decide all questions raised in insolvency proceedings. Clause 3 of the Bill accordingly enacts a provision on the lines of section 7 of the Presidency Towns Insolvency Act.

6. Proceedings instituted against fraudulent insolvents are frequently infructuous. This is largely due to the lack of precision in the Act as to the procedure to be adopted by the Court which desires to take action. The wording of sub-section (2) of section 43 is unduly vague, regard being had to the fact that it constitutes a criminal offence, and experience has shown that it frequently creates difficulties. It is proposed that the penal provisions of existing section 43 should be amended on the lines of section 103 of the Presidency Towns Insolvency Act, and that the procedure to be followed on a charge should be defined on the lines of section 104 of that Act. It is proposed to embody these provisions in the two separate sections 43-A and 43-B inserted by clause 19 of the Bill, which also inserts a new section 43-C containing provisions similar to those of section 105 of the Presidency Towns Insolvency Act. It seems desirable to make it clear that a dishonest insolvent who has been guilty of an offence under the Act can be proceeded against even after he has obtained his discharge, or after a composition submitted by him has been accepted.

7. The summary administration of petty insolvencies is now largely governed by rules made by the High Courts under section 51 (2) (c) of the Act, but it seems desirable that the Act itself should contain more detailed provisions than at present, and that further simplification of procedure should be effected. It is proposed therefore that, in addition to any further modifications to be made by rules, section 48 should contain certain definite provisions, and it is thought that, if these changes are made, it would be well to confine summary administration to cases where the assets do not exceed Rs. 200 instead of the existing limit of Rs. 500, and to reserve a discretion to the Court to direct the ordinary procedure to be followed in cases where it thinks such a course desirable.

8. These amendments will, it is hoped, go far to check the abuses rendered possible by the defects in the existing law.

9. Opportunity has been taken to effect certain minor amendments in the Act, and an explanation of the reasons for the changes proposed will be found in the Notes on Clauses.

SIMLA;

Notes on Clauses.

Clause 2.—The expression "available act of insolvency" is not used anywhere else in the Act, and a definition therefore seems unnecessary. No such definition is to be found in the Presidency Towns Insolvency Act. The amendment in the definition of "property" makes it clear that trust property is not to be dealt with under the Act as property of the insolvent. It is proposed to include a definition of the expression "transfer of property" on the lines of the definition in section 2 of the Presidency Towns Act.

Clause 4 is principally a drafting amendment. The opportunity has been taken to split up section 6 into five separate sections with a view to re-arrange its different parts in their logical order. New section 6A merely reproduces existing section 6 (6). New section 6 B deals with the conditions on which a creditor may petition and reproduces existing section 6 (4) and (5). New section 6C deals with the debtor's petition and reproduces existing section 6 (3) with the addition of a proviso which is a corollary to the amendments in clauses 11 and 20 of the Bill regarding the annulment of an order of adjudication.

New section 6D reproduces existing section 6(2) with the addition of a proviso which is designed to cure a defect. Section 6(2) lays down where an insolvency petition is to be presented, but does not contain any saving in the event of the petition being presented in the wrong Court. The point was raised in Madho Pershad v. Watson (18 C. W. N., 1050), where the insolvent successfully presented an appeal on the ground that the petition had been presented in the wrong Court. The proposed proviso is intended to stop this loophole in the existing law.

New section 6E merely reproduces existing section 6 (1).

Clause 5 amends section 10 to make it clear that the object of continuing proceedings on the death of the debtor is for the purpose only of realising and distributing his property.

Clause 6.—This amendment appears to be necessary in view of the proviso to section 6 C in clause 4 and section 1A (ii) in clause 10.

Clause 7.—Section 13 (2) gives power to appoint an interim receiver at any time between the admission of the petition and the order of adjudication, but the Act is silent as to the powers of an interim receiver. It is considered desirable that an interim receiver should normally be appointed when the petition is admitted, and should be armed with such of the powers conferable on a receiver under the Code of Civil Procedure as the Court may direct (cf. section 16 of the Presidency Towns Insolvency Act). It is thought, however, that these provisions would come more appropriately into section 12 of the Act.

Clause 8 is consequential to the amendment in clause 7.

Clause 11.—The first amendment is consequential to the first amendment in clause 14.

The amendment of section 16 (2) is consequential to clause 12, which inserts a new section as to protection order.

The other amendments in this clause are explained in paragraphs 3 and 4 of the Statement of Objects and Reasons.

Clause 13.—The first amendment is one of drafting, and the second is designed to obviate the necessity of sending notices to creditors who have not yet proved their debts and thus to shorten the proceedings.

Clause 14.—Both section 16 (1) and section 27 contemplate the possibility of a composition or scheme before adjudication. The Presidency Towns Insolvency Act in section 28, on the other hand, only contemplates a composition after adjudication. Under the English law a composition can be made (1) after the receiving order and prior to adjudication, (2) after adjudication. But under the Indian law there is no receiving order procedure at all, and the order of adjudication is made on the hearing of the petition. It is very doubtful whether under the Provincial Insolvency Act the Court would have before it the necessary facts to justify it, in dealing with compositions or schemes prior to adjudication. It is therefore proposed to follow in this respect the procedure under the Presidency Towns Insolvency Act and allow compositions and schemes only after adjudication. This is effected by the first two amendments.

The third amendment in this clause is a drafting one—cf. sub-section (7) of section 27.

Clause 15.—As it stands, section 34 would not prevent the whole of the debtor's property from being sold for the benefit of an individual creditor after the filing of the petition and before the order of adjudication is made. The amendment prevents this and brings the section into line with section 53 of the Presidency Towns Insolvency Act.

Clause 16.—This amendment is consequential to the proposed definition of "transfer of property" in section 2.

Clause 17 makes it clear that the transactions referred to in section 38 are bonâ fide transactions. There appears to be no doubt that this is the intention.

Clause 18.—Apparently the duties imposed on the debtor by sub-section (1) of section 43 arise as soon as the Court has made an order under section 12 (1). It seems desirable to make this clear. It is difficult to see how the debtor can be under any obligation to assist in the distribution of his property, unless he is adjudged an insolvent. It is proposed therefore to amend the concluding part of sub-section (1), and to relegate to a separate sub-section the provisions which impose on the debtor the duty of aiding in the distribution of his property. Clause 18 effects these changes.

Clause 21.—The effect of existing section 45 is to release a discharged insolvent from liability under an order of maintenance made under section 488 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1898, and in this respect the section is in conflict with section 45 of the Presidency Towns Insolvency Act. It is proposed to bring it into accord with the latter Act.

Clause 22.—In view of the power which the proposed new section 3A would confer on Courts exercising insolvency jurisdiction, it is proposed to provide specifically that decisions in the exercise of this power shall be appealable.

Clause 24.—Under the Indian law no statutory disabilities attach to the position of an undischarged insolvent. It is doubtful whether public opinion in this country is at present inclined to attach much disgrace to a person in this position, but it appears desirable that the sense of the community should be stimulated by providing certain statutory disqualifications in addition to those already imposed, e.g., by the Regulations relating to members of the Legislative Council. A parallel provision is to be found in section 32 of the Bankruptcy Act, 1883 (46 & 47 Vict., c. 52).

Clause 25.—These amendments are introduced with a view to curtail the excessive number of notices which are at present required to be published in the Gazette.

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

The following Bill was introduced in the Indian Legislative Council on the 4th September 1918 :—

No. 15 OF 1918.

A Bill to take powers to provide for the cheap supply of cotton cloth to the poorer classes of the community.

WHEREAS it is expedient to take powers for the purpose of encouraging or maintaining the supply, at reasonable rates, to the poorer classes of the community, of cotton cloth manufactured in this country ; It is hereby enacted as follows :—

Short title.

1. This Act may be called the Cotton Cloth Act, 191 .

Definitions.

2. In this Act, unless there is anything repugnant in the subject or context,—

(a) "Controller" means a Controller appointed under this Act.

(b) "Cotton cloth" means cotton cloth manufactured in this country.

(c) "Standard cloth" means any kind of cotton cloth which a Controller may from time to time declare to be standard cloth.

Power to appoint Controllers.

3. The Governor General in Council may, by notification in the official gazette, appoint one or more persons as he may think fit to be Controllers for the purposes of this Act, and shall specify in any such notification the area in which any Controller so appointed shall exercise his powers.

Powers of the Controller.

4. (1) Whenever it appears to a Controller that such a course is necessary or expedient for the purpose of encouraging or maintaining the supply at reasonable rates to the poorer classes of the community of standard cloth, he may (subject to this Act and the rules made thereunder and to the control of the Governor General in Council) make general or special orders regulating or giving directions within the area in which he is empowered, with respect to the manufacture, transport, distribution and sale or purchase of or other dealings in cotton cloth.

(2) Without prejudice to the generality of the foregoing power, orders may be made by a Controller—

(a) declaring and defining the classes of standard cloth ;

(b) requiring any person, who ordinarily manufactures cotton cloth, to manufacture standard cloth in such quantity, of such quality and by such date as the Controller may direct ;

(c) fixing the prices to be paid to the manufacturer for standard cloth or for any particular class of standard cloth, and providing for the payment thereof on delivery :

Provided that in fixing prices the Controller shall have regard to the cost of production and to the allowance of a reasonable profit, without necessarily taking into consideration the market price, and that the Controller may fix different prices in the case of different localities or for different manufacturers in the same locality ;

(d) making such provision as to entry or inspection of any place and as to returns, production of account books or other trade documents, presentation of bills or otherwise as appears to the Controller to be necessary or expedient for the purposes of his duties.

Appointment of Advisory Committees.

5. Where a Controller is appointed in exercise of the power conferred by section 3, the Governor General in Council shall appoint a Committee consisting of such number of persons having knowledge of the cotton or cotton cloth trade as he thinks fit to assist the Controller with their advice in the performance of his duties. Before a Controller issues any order declaring and defining the classes of standard cloth or fixing the prices to be paid to the manufacturer, he shall consult such members of the Committee as may be readily accessible, and he may consult the Committee on any other matter connected with his duties :

Provided that if the unanimous opinion of those members of the Committee who have been consulted by the Controller is adverse to the issue of any order, the Controller shall, if he does not accept the Committee's advice, refer the matter for the decision of the Governor General in Council.

Manufacture and delivery of standard cloth.

6. Where, by an order made in the exercise of powers conferred by section 4, the Controller has directed a manufacturer to manufacture standard cloth and has fixed the price therefor, the manufacturer shall deliver the same at such time and place and in such manner as the Controller may specify from time to time, and the Controller shall pay or cause to be paid to the manufacturer the said price, together with the freight, if any, actually paid by the manufacturer.

Delegation of powers.

7. Subject to the control of the Governor General in Council a Controller may from time to time by order in writing delegate all or any of his powers subject to such conditions and restrictions as may be prescribed therein.

Penalty for disobedience of orders under section 4.

8. If any person acts in contravention of, or, without reasonable cause, fails to comply with the provisions of any order made under section 4, such person shall be punishable with imprisonment which may extend to six months, or with fine or with both.

Power to fix prices of standard cloth.

9. (1) The Local Government shall, by notification in the local official gazette, fix the price at which alone standard cloth or any class of standard cloth shall be sold to the public.

(2) Any such order shall be published in such manner as the Local Government may direct, and orders may be made fixing different prices for different localities or for different methods of sale.

10. (1) No person shall sell or keep, offer or expose for sale to the public standard cloth otherwise than at such price as may be fixed by the Local Government and in accordance with the terms and conditions of a license issued in this behalf.

Limitation of sale of standard cloth.

(2) If any person contravenes the provisions of sub-section (1), he shall be punishable with imprisonment which may extend to three months, or with fine or with both.

11. A license for the sale of standard cloth shall be granted by such authority, in such form and subject to such conditions as the Local Government may prescribe by rules made under this Act.

Grant of licenses for sale of standard cloth.

Rule-making power.

12. (1) The Governor General in Council may make rules—

(a) prescribing the powers and duties of the Controller,

(b) prescribing the manner in which the Controller's orders shall be published or served as the case may be, and

(c) generally giving effect to the provisions of this Act.

(2) The Local Government shall make rules prescribing the authority by which, the form in which and the conditions under which, any license or class of licenses for the sale of standard cloth shall be granted.

(3) Rules made under this Act shall be published in the Gazette of India or the local official gazette, as the case may be, and on such publication shall have effect as if enacted in this Act.

13. No suit, prosecution or other legal proceeding shall lie against any person for anything which is in good faith done or intended to be done under this Act.

Protection for acts done under the Act.

14. All powers given by this Act shall be in addition to and not in derogation of any other powers conferred by or under any enactment, and all such powers may be exercised in the same manner and by the same authority as if this Act had not been made.

Powers of Act to be cumulative.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

Owing to the great rise in the price of cotton piece-goods caused by the war, considerable distress has been caused to the poorer classes. It is accordingly proposed to take power to appoint one or more Controllers, with whom will be associated Advisory Committees of persons having expert knowledge of the trade. The Controllers will have authority to require the mills in India to manufacture certain standard varieties of cloth which are in common use amongst the poorer classes. The standard cloth will be manufactured at controlled prices, which will be so fixed as to allow the mills a reasonable margin of profit; and, in order to ensure that the benefit of these prices reaches the general public, the sale of the cloth will be effected under licenses granted and at prices fixed by the Local Governments.

The following Bill was introduced in the Indian Legislative Council on the 5th September 1918 :—

No. 16 OF 1918.

A Bill to terminate doubts which have arisen as to the continuance in force of notifications, orders and rules made or issued under the Enemy Trading Ordinance, 1916.

WHEREAS doubts have arisen as to the continuance in force of notifications, orders and rules made or issued under the Enemy Trading Ordinance, 1916, after the repeal of the said Ordinance by the Enemy Trading Act, 1916, and it is expedient to terminate such doubts; It is hereby enacted as follows:— (V of 1916. X of 1916.)

Short title.

1. This Act may be called the Enemy Trading Orders (Validation) Act, 191 .

Orders made under the Enemy Trading Ordinance to be deemed to be, and always to have been, in force.

2. Every notification, order or rule which was made or issued under any provision of the Enemy Trading Ordinance, 1916, and which was in force immediately prior to the repeal of the said Ordinance, shall be deemed to have continued in force notwithstanding such repeal, and to have been made or issued under the Enemy Trading Act, 1916. (V of 1216. X of 1916.)

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

The Enemy Trading (Winding-up) Order, 1916 was issued in exercise of powers conferred by the Enemy Trading Ordinance (V of 1916). The Ordinance was subsequently repealed by the Enemy Trading Act, 1916 (X of 1916), and doubt has consequently been cast on the validity of the Enemy Trading (Winding-up) Order. Although reasons could be adduced for holding that the Order is still valid, it is considered expedient that any doubt in regard to the matter should be removed. The Bill accordingly declares that notifications, orders or rules issued under the Ordinance shall be deemed to have continued in force notwithstanding its repeal, and to have been made or issued under the Enemy Trading Act, 1916.

The following Bill was introduced in the Indian Legislative Council on the 5th September 1918 :—

No. 17 OF 1918.

A Bill to provide that marriages between Hindus of different castes are valid.

WHEREAS it is expedient to provide that marriages between Hindus of different castes are valid; It is hereby enacted as follows:—

Short title and extent.

1. (1) This Act may be called the Hindu Marriages Validity Act, 191 .

(2) It extends to the whole of British India.

Marriages between Hindus of different castes not to be invalid

2. No marriage among Hindus shall be invalid by reason that the parties thereto do not belong to the same caste, any custom or any interpretation of Hindu law to the contrary notwithstanding.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

Under the Hindu law as interpreted, marriages between Hindus of different castes are held illegal. This interpretation, besides being open to question, has caused serious hardship in individual cases and is calculated to retard the progress of the community. The Bill, therefore, seeks to provide that such marriages shall not be invalid.

Rainfall summary for the seven days ending at 8 hrs. on Thursday, the 5th September 1918, based on the Indian Daily Weather Reports of the period.

1. The depression from Bihar referred to in last week's report passed away into Baluchistan after giving heavy rain in south Rajputana and north Gujarat, and light rain in lower Sind. An area of low pressure lay over the north of the Bay through the week until the 4th when it passed into lower Bengal. Fairly general rain fell in the United Provinces and the Central Provinces, and a disturbance from the west gave several falls of rain in Kashmir, the North-West Frontier Province and the Punjab. Rainfall was again scanty in the Peninsula.

2. Burma.—Rainfall was nearly general in Lower Burma every day except the 3rd September, and in Upper Burma on the 29th and 30th August.

Northeast India, including Orissa.—Nearly general rain fell in Assam on the 1st and 2nd September, in Bengal on the 30th August and the 4th September, and in Bihar and Orissa on the 31st August.

The United Provinces, Central India and the Central Provinces.—There was nearly general rain in the United Provinces East on the 30th August and the 1st, 2nd and 3rd September, in Central India on the 3rd September, and in the Central Provinces excluding the northeastern districts on the 4th September.

Northwest India.—Rain fell at nearly every station on the 3rd September in Kashmir, and on the 30th and 31st August in Gujarat. Local falls of rain were reported from the Punjab, the North-West Frontier Province, northeast Baluchistan, lower Sind and Rajputana.

The Peninsula.—Nearly every station had rain on the west coast on the 30th and 31st August and 1st September, in Hyderabad North on the 1st September, and on the north Madras coast on the 31st August. There were a few local falls of rain in other parts of the Peninsula.

DEPARTMENT OF REVENUE AND AGRICULTURE.

Season and Crop Prospects for the week ending Saturday, 31st August 1918.

Burma.—Good rain fell throughout the Province. Cultivation of the winter rice crop is proceeding satisfactorily in Lower Burma and in irrigated tracts and wet zone districts of Upper Burma Agricultural operations for the cultivation of miscellaneous crops are progressing in Upper Burma. Reaping of early sesamum continues Standing crops are generally in good condition in Lower Burma Recent rains have improved agricultural prospects in the dry zone of Upper Burma. Cattle are healthy. The price of unhusked rice has risen further and is now above normal. The market for white rice is firm at Rs. 290 per hundred baskets for specials.

Assam.—The weather during the week was seasonable and favourable. Manufacture of tea, harvesting of autumn rice and jute and transplantation of winter rice continue. Prospects of crops are fair to good. Cattle disease is reported from seven districts. The price of common rice is rising seasonably

Bengal.—During the week heavy rain fell over the greater part of the Province, causing considerable flooding in Eastern Bengal. Both winter paddy and autumn crops have been submerged to some extent. Transplantation of winter paddy is nearing completion. Weeding continues. Cutting, steeping and washing of jute are in progress. The average price of common rice for the province has risen by about 6·4 per cent.

Bihar and Orissa.—The rainfall during the week was general over the Province, the fall being heavy in parts of Bihar and Chota Nagpur and light in Orissa. Transplantation of paddy is going on More rain is still wanted for the purpose in parts of two districts in Orissa Harvesting of jute continues. Standing crops are doing well. The price of common rice has risen in seven districts, fallen in five and remained stationary in the remaining districts as compared with that of the preceding week. Cattle disease is reported from thirteen districts. The condition of standing crops in the Feudatory States of Orissa is good. More rain is, however, wanted in some states for the transplantation of paddy.

United Provinces.—Good and general rain was again received throughout the Provinces except in parts of the Upper Doab and the central and eastern submontane tracts. Preparation of land for spring crops, sowing of late autumn crops, harvesting of autumn crops and transplantation of late rice continue. Standing crops are, on the whole, doing well and prospects are generally favourable everywhere. Agricultural stock is in good condition but slight cattle disease is still reported from some districts. Fodder, water and supplies are ample. Prices are generally stationary with a tendency to fall in the north-west and to rise in the south-east of the Provinces.

Punjab.—Fairly heavy rain has fallen in parts of a few of the reporting districts and light to moderate rain nearly everywhere else. The rain has benefited the standing crops and helped sowings of maize, millets, pulses and other autumn crops which still continue in some areas. In many districts however the fall is short of the normal. The condition of standing irrigated crops is average to good and of unirrigated below average to average. Cattle are generally healthy and water is sufficient. Shortage of fodder is, however, reported from parts of a few districts. Prices are generally stationary but have fallen slightly in some districts. They range generally between warning and scarcity rates. Price of wheat:—Rawalpindi 7½, Ambala 7¾, Ferozepore, Lahore and Lyallpur 8 seers per rupee.

North-West Frontier Province.—Good rain has fallen in the Province but more rain is still required urgently in Dera Ismail Khan Sowings of autumn crops are proceeding normally. Harvesting prospects are average on irrigated and below average on unirrigated areas. Cotton is being picked in Peshawar with outturn average. Prices are falling. Wheat is selling in Peshawar at 8¾ seers and in Dera Ismail Khan at 9$\frac{1}{16}$ seers per rupee.

Jammu.—The rainfall during the week was general. Prices are stationary.

Kashmir.—The week was generally cloudy and mild. Standing crops are in fair condition. Cattle are generally healthy. Prices are high Rajputana.—The rainfall during the week was general The weather is wet. Standing crops are in fair condition Sowing of autumn crops is proceeding. Cattle are in fair condition. Fodder is generally sufficient. Prices are stationary.

Central India.—The rainfall during the week was general and sufficient. Autumn crops are being sown and weeded. Land for spring crops is being prepared in Indore, Bhopal and the Southern States. Standing crops are in fair condition. The condition of agricultural stock is fair to good except in Gwalior where it is indifferent. Scarcity of fodder prevails in Gwalior. Prices are high.

Central Provinces.—The weather continued cloudy and occasionally rainy during the week. Nimar, Wardha and the Berar districts received no rain but Saugor, Damoh, Jubbulpore, Narsinghpur, Hoshangabad, Drug and Raipur had heavy rain, ranging between 5 and 8 inches and in the remaining districts good showers were received Sowings of til, kodo and kutki still continue in Mandla, Narsinghpur, Hoshangabad and the Vindhyan districts. Transplantation and thinning of rice and weeding and ploughing of fields for the sowing of spring crops are in progress. Standing crops are in flourishing condition and prospects are at present all that could be desired though more rain is needed in Nimar, Betul, Chanda and the Berar districts. In some districts early millets are being harvested and cotton is flowering in the southern tracts of the Provinces Cattle are faring well but cattle disease prevails in a sporadic form in parts of three districts. Fodder is scarce or dear in Akola and Buldana. Local distress continues in Sironcha, where 1,600 persons are on relief works of various kinds Prices of food grains remained stationary or fluctuated slightly exhibiting an upward tendency.

Feudatory States:—Light to heavy rain fell in the States. Crops are doing well and prospects are favourable

Bombay.—Good rain fell during the week in parts of Thar and Parkar, Kathiawar, North Gujarat, Palanpur, Mahi Kantha, Baroda, Savantvadi and Kolhapur, moderate in the Konkan and slight elsewhere. More rain is needed almost in all districts except in the Konkan. Sowing has been retarded in parts of Poona, Satara, Belgaum and continues in parts of Gujarat, West Khandesh, Dharwar, Palanpur, Baroda and Savantvadi. Transplantation continues in parts of Karachi, Larkana and the Konkan and has been retarted in parts of Poona, Surat and Satara. Standing crops have been damaged by rats in Karachi and by winds in Thar and Parkar, are withering in parts of Karachi, Larkana, Nasik, Ahmednagar and the Karnatak and are fair to good elsewhere. The situation has improved slightly in Gujarat and in the Gujarat Native States. The fodder supply is deficient in parts of Sind, Gujarat, the Deccan, Kathiawar and Baroda Irrigation is deficient in parts of Nawabshah, Kaira, Surat. Poona and Dharwar. Agricultural stock is generally sufficient but cattle are in bad condition in parts of Hyderabad, Thar and Parkar, three districts of Gujarat and the Deccan. Prices of food grains have risen slightly in parts of the Deccan and are generally steady elsewhere

Hyderabad.—The rainfall during the week was poor. The average fall was 37 cents. Autumn crops are withering for want of rain in parts of six districts and are fair to good elsewhere. Early rice is being sown and the crop is in fair to good condition. Lands for spring crops are being prepared. Cattle are generally healthy. Prices of grains are high. Juar is selling at 3¼ seers per rupee in Gulbarga and Bidar.

Mysore.—The week was slightly wet. Ploughing and sowing operations have been retarded and standing crops are withering for want of rain. Cattle are generally healthy. Prices are rising.

Coorg.—Light rain fell during the week. Transplantation of rice continues. Cattle disease prevails in some villages. Water and fodder are sufficient. The public health is fair. Prices of food grains are high.

Madras.—The rainfall during the week was heavy in Malabar and Cochin, good in the Circars, Madras, Pudukkottai, South Kanara, Travancore and the Hills, nil in Banganapalle and Anantapur and light to fair elsewhere. Standing crops are in fair to good condition generally but require more rain in most districts. Harvesting of paddy, sugarcane and dry crops is proceeding with outturn fair to normal in fourteen districts and bad or poor to fair or poor to normal elsewhere. Sowings of paddy and dry crops are proceeding but have been retarded for want of rain in South Arcot, Coimbatore and the Deccan except Cuddapah. The condition of cattle is generally good. Water is generally insufficient. Pasture is sufficient except in Nellore, Coimbatore, Tinnevelly and the Deccan. Fodder is sufficient except in Bellary and parts of six other districts. Prices of paddy, Ragi and Cholam, have risen generally and those of Kambu are showing a tendency to rise.

Proceedings of the Indian Legislative Council.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

PROCEEDINGS OF THE INDIAN LEGISLATIVE COUNCIL ASSEMBLED UNDER THE PROVISIONS OF THE GOVERNMENT OF INDIA ACT, 1915.
(5 & 6 Geo. V, Ch. 61.)

THE Council met at the Council Chamber, Viceregal Lodge, Simla, on Monday, the 9th September, 1918.

PRESENT:

His Excellency BARON CHELMSFORD, P.C., G.M.S.I., G.M.I.E., G.C.M.G., G.C.B.E., Viceroy and Governor General, presiding, and 55 Members of whom 47 were Additional Members.

OATH OF OFFICE.

The following Additional Member made the prescribed oath or affirmation of allegiance to the Crown :—

The Hon'ble Mr. Robert Erskine Holland, C.I.E. — 11 A.M.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS. — 11-1 A.M.

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur B. N. Sarma asked :—

Coinage of gold mohurs.

1. "(a) Will Government be pleased to state the reasons which led to the recent coinage in India of gold mohurs in preference to sovereigns ?

(b) If such coinage is to be for a temporary period, how long is it intended to be in force ?

(c) Has any arrangement been arrived at with Indian or foreign gold mining companies for the supply of gold in connection with such coinage ?"

The Hon'ble Sir William Meyer replied :—

"(a) The reasons for the coinage of gold mohurs were explained fully in a Press Communiqué issued on 14th June last, a copy* of which is placed on the table for the Hon'ble Member's information.

(b) As mentioned in a Communiqué issued on 24th August the coinage of sovereigns, for which that of gold mohurs was only a provisional substitute,

*Not included in these Proceedings.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

[Sir William Meyer; Mr. Surendra Nath Banerjea; [9TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.]
Sir William Vincent; Mr. V. J. Patel.]

was started at Bombay on the 16th August. The Government are unable to say whether future circumstances may or may not require the further coinage and issue of gold mohurs.

As regards clause (c), the answer is in the negative. The coinage was made from the large stock of gold bullion already in the hands of the Government of India."

The Hon'ble Mr. Surendra Nath Banerjea asked :—

The Indian Arms Act.

2. "With reference to the following statement regarding the Arms Act made by His Excellency the Viceroy at the meeting of the Imperial Legislative Council held on 5th September 1917, namely :—

'The question of the administration of the Arms Act is one which requires considerable and detailed examination. We have had it under examination now for some time, and we are still awaiting the views of Local Governments on our proposals, but this much I can say, that we, as the Government of India, will not accept any solution of the question which continues to base exemption on racial distinctions.'

will Government be pleased to state—

(a) what progress has been made to give effect to these views of His Excellency, and

(b) the approximate time within which they will be given effect to and the necessary modifications made in the regulations ?"

The Hon'ble Sir William Vincent replied :—

"I will explain the present position of this case in the course of the debate on the Resolution by the Hon'ble Mr. G. S. Khaparde that the Indian Arms Act should be so modified as to bring it into line with the English law."

The Hon'ble Mr. V. J. Patel asked :—

The Arms Act.

3. "Will Government be pleased to lay on the table the opinions of the Local Governments as also all the correspondence that may have passed between the Government of India on the one hand and the Local Governments or the Secretary of State on the other, regarding the proposed amendment of the Arms Act ? Is an amending Bill on the subject likely to be introduced ? If so, when ?"

The Hon'ble Sir William Vincent replied :—

"The Hon'ble Member is referred to the reply which I have given to-day to the Hon'ble Mr. Surendra Nath Banerjea's question on the same subject."

The Hon'ble Mr. V. J. Patel asked :—

Prohibition orders against certain newspapers and magazines entering certain provinces.

4. "Is it a fact that several newspapers and magazines have been of late prohibited entry into certain provinces, and, if so will Government be pleased :—

(a) to give the names of the provincial administrations which have issued such prohibitive notices, together with a list of newspapers and magazines so prohibited, and the dates on which such orders were enforced ;

(b) to give reasons for such orders of prohibition ;

(c) to state whether the printers and publishers of such prohibited newspapers and magazines were previously called upon to state why such orders should not be issued, or otherwise given an opportunity to explain themselves ?"

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

[9TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.] [Sir William Vincent; Mr. V. J. Patel; Maharaja Sir Manindra Chandra Nandi; Sir George Barnes.]

The Hon'ble Sir William Vincent replied :—

"The information is being collected and will be laid on the table when complete."

The Hon'ble Mr. V. J. Patel asked :—

High Courts and High Court Pleaders.

5. "Will Government be pleased to state which, if any, of the High Courts have thrown open the Original Side to High Court Pleaders, and since when ?"

The Hon'ble Sir William Vincent replied :-

"It is only in the Madras High Court that vakils are permitted to appear on the Original Side. The rule authorising their appearance was, it is believed, in existence in 1866, and was probably made not later than 1863."

The Hon'ble Maharaja Sir Manindra Chandra Nandi asked:—

Appointment of a junior Superintendent of Post Offices to act as an Assistant Director General.

6. "(a) Has the attention of Government been drawn to an editorial article in the 'Amrita Bazar Patrika' of 17th August, 1918, on 'Higher appointments in the Post Offices,' commenting on the injustice of appointing a comparatively junior Superintendent of Post Offices in the second grade to act as an Assistant Director General, in supersession of all Superintendents of the first grade and about twenty of the second grade, of whom as many as eleven had previous experience of secretariat work ?

(b) Will Government be pleased to state if no Indian officer could be found qualified for the post in question among the Indian officers who are senior to the gentleman who has been recently selected to fill it ?

The Hon'ble Sir George Barnes replied :-

"(a) The answer to the first part of the Hon'ble Member's question is 'Yes.'

(b) With regard to the general question of selection of officers for the Directorate, I would refer the Hon'ble Member to the answer given to the Hon'ble Mr. Rangaswamy Ayyangar on the 22nd March last. It is essential that any officer appointed to be an Assistant Director General of the Post Office should have had Secretariat experience, and these acting appointments are used as a means of testing an officer's fitness. Superintendents of Post Offices are Executive Officers, and only some of them have had Secretariat experience. When the acting vacancy in the Directorate occurred, an Indian was selected from among the Superintendents to fill it on probation, but though a good Superintendent he was not successful as an Assistant Director General, and has since been given a further trial as an officiating Deputy Postmaster General in the same grade, namely Rs. 800. The next Superintendent then selected to fill the acting vacancy in the Directorate was, in the opinion of the Director General, the most suitable man in the Department whose services were available.

I can assure the Hon'ble Member that the only object is to choose the best men for the Directorate, and would further point out to him that of the Superintendents said to be passed over five are already officiating in higher appointments, nine are over fifty years of age and two are on field service."

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

[Sir Gangadhar Chitnavis; Sir William Meyer.] [9TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.]

The Hon'ble Sir Gangadhar Chitnavis asked :—

One rupee notes.

7. " (a) Are Government aware that one-rupee paper notes are found very inconvenient to handle by people among whom they are most used ?

(b) Is it not the fact that representations have been made by several people through newspapers and publicity boards that it would be far more convenient if these paper notes be substituted by some sort of metallic note or a nickel coin ?

(c) Is it not the fact that complaints have been made by several correspondents through newspapers regarding the difficulty experienced in many places about exchange of these and some higher notes into money ?

(d) Will Government be pleased to say if these difficulties have been considered by them, and if anything can be done to remove them ?"

The Hon'ble Sir William Meyer replied :—

" (a) The Government of India are aware that among the cultivating and labouring classes, whose pocket accommodation is limited, one-rupee notes are to some extent inconvenient to handle, though this inconvenience can be greatly minimised if use be made of a simple note case, and Government are considering the question of putting on to the market such a case at a low price.

As regards (b), no such representations have been brought to the notice of the Government of India. They have no intention of issuing a metallic rupee coined of some metal other than silver, or one of any lower silver content than the present rupee.

As regards parts (c) and (d) of his question the Hon'ble Member is referred to my reply given to question No. 4, asked by the Hon'ble Sir Dinshaw Wacha on the 4th September. I presume that when the Hon'ble Member refers, in part (c) of his question, to the exchange of notes into 'money,' he means 'coin,' and does not mean to imply that currency notes are not money."

The Hon'ble Sir Gangadhar Chitnavis asked :—

Income-tax.

8. " (a) Do Government expect the assessment of income-tax under the provisions of the new Income-tax Act to result in a large increase in the amounts realised ?

(b) Do Government propose to consider the desirability of realising the tax from assessees, not in one lump sum but in two or three reasonable instalments ?"

The Hon'ble Sir William Meyer replied :—

" (a) The Government do not expect a large increase in the amounts realised from income-tax as a result of the provisions of the Income-tax Act, 1918, though the improvements introduced by the Act in the machinery of assessment, and the removal of previous inequalities in the burden of the tax on individual assessees should result in some additional revenue.

(b) The rules under the Income-tax Act framed by certain Local Governments provide for the payment of income-tax by instalments, and the Government of India would have no objection to the adoption of this procedure in the provinces in which it does not exist. It is, however, a matter for the discretion of the Local Governments, since the detailed administration of the Income-tax Act rests with them."

RESOLUTION re FINANCIAL ASSISTANCE IN RESPECT OF THE COST OF THE MILITARY FORCES RAISED, OR TO BE RAISED, INDIA.

[9TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.] [Sir William Meyer.]

RESOLUTION re FINANCIAL ASSISTANCE IN RESPECT OF THE COST OF THE MILITARY FORCES RAISED, OR TO BE RAISED, IN INDIA.

The Hon'ble Sir William Meyer :- "My Lord, I rise, with your Excellency's permission, to move the following Resolution :— 11-10 A.M.

'That this Council recognises that the prolongation of the war justifies India's taking a larger share than she does at present in respect of the cost of the military forces raised, or to be raised in this country'

As the speech deals with very important matters involving many financial statistics, I may unhappily have to exceed the usual time limit, and I hope your Lordship will be pleased to grant me this concession.

"My Lord, the moving of Resolutions is ordinarily left to non-official Members of this Council, but the circumstances which warrant the present one are so important and special that we have adopted the abnormal course of having the Resolution put forward by a Member of the Government, the Member specially responsible for the finances of India. And this course also justifies the abnormal form—seeing that it contains no recommendation to the Governor General in Council -in which your Excellency has specially permitted the Resolution to be put. At the same time we have no desire to use our Government majority in order to force this Resolution through the Council. We want to leave the decision thereon to the non-official Members on behalf of the much larger public in India to whom we desire to appeal; and if the bulk of our non-official colleagues should feel themselves unable to support the Resolution, which as I shall presently explain, involves, in its ultimate application, the imposition of fresh taxes, the Resolution will be withdrawn, and on them will rest the responsibility for withholding the further aid which we desire to tender to His Majesty's Government at this crisis of the war

"I do not think that it can be said that the Resolution comes, in any way, as a surprise to the Council and to the country. It has already been foreshadowed in your Excellency's speech at the commencement of this Session, and before that in your speeches at the War Conference held in Delhi last April. I will, in the first instance, recall the following words from His Majesty the King-Emperor's gracious message to that Conference :—

'The need of the Empire is India's opportunity, and I am confident that under the sure guidance of my Viceroy her people will not fail in their endeavours. Recent events have made the struggle on the Western front more bitter and more intense At the same time the position in the East is menaced by disturbances in Asia instigated by the enemy It is of ever increasing importance that the operations of our armies in Egypt, Palestine and Mesopotamia should be largely sustained from India I look confidently to the deliberations of the Conference to promote a spirit of unity, a concentration of purpose and activity, and a cheerful acceptance of sacrifices without which no high object, no lasting victory can be achieved'

"Your Excellency again, in your opening speech at the Conference referred to the fact that 'the terrible revolution which has hurled Russia into anarchy has opened another door for Germany through Southern Russia to the confines of Eastern Persia and Afghanistan,' and you indicated how from this vantage ground she could threaten India. You went on to say that we must be ready to guard our own possessions with the whole man-power and resources of India ready behind us, ready also, as you likewise indicated, to defend India, if necessary, beyond Indian soil. In this connection, the War Conference at Delhi concerned itself, through the sub-committees it appointed, mainly with the provision of increased man-power and the development of India's material resources in matters connected with the war

"As regards man-power, it is fairly well known, I think, that prior to the war, the normal recruitment of combatants for the Indian Army was only about 15,000 men a year. In the year ending with May 1917, this had been raised to 121,000, and in the following year, that ending on 31st May 1918, to over 300,000. We did not, however, think that even that figure was sufficient, and during the present recruiting year, which commenced on 1st June 1918, we have, after considering the advice offered to us by the Man-power Sub-committee at Delhi, fixed the quota of combatant recruitment which we hope to obtain from India at about half a million men to be raised by voluntary endeavour. The returns so far have been quite encouraging, and further stimuli are now afforded by the sanction of His Majesty's Government to proposals submitted to them in two directions which the Man-power Sub-committee had emphasised as desirable — the larger grant of King's Commissions to Indians and a material improvement in the emoluments of all ranks of the Indian Army, especially the sepoys.

"But it is not enough in the present crisis for India to raise large numbers of additional soldiers, valuable as this assistance is, if she leaves His Majesty's Government to bear the entire burden of paying for them. And it was perfectly clear, therefore, to us of the Government of India and, I think, after your Excellency's remarks at Delhi, to many other people besides, that the recruitment effort we were making, which was prominently before the Conference, would have to be supplemented by further financial assistance. Your Excellency, in opening the Delhi Conference said, in this connection :—

'How India can best render further financial assistance is a matter which must engage our earnest attention Later on when the position is clearer than at present, we propose to consider in conjunction with the Legislative Council, for this is a matter essentially in its sphere how far it will be feasible for India to increase the direct financial contribution she has already made to His Majesty's Government, or in what other way she can assist financially. If additional taxation should be necessary we shall not shrink from proposing it, and I am sure that you will gladly bear it.'

And in closing the Conference, you said :-

'There is one matter in which I am sure, we shall receive support In this Conference we have not dealt through a committee of the Conference with the large question of finance. Now, I am very jealous of the position of the Imperial Legislative Council The question of finance is essentially one in which we have to consult and carry with us the Members of our Imperial Legislative Council. We have endeavoured through the informal Meeting which has been held by the Hon'ble the Finance Member to do something towards enlightening certain Members with regard to our financial efforts, but I am of the decided opinion that the matter is one which can only properly be discussed in our Imperial Legislative Council. In September we shall be in a position, I trust and hope, to discuss matters with the Imperial Legislative Council. There can be no direction in which India or the Government of India can fail to respond to the call from Great Britain when that call is made, whether it is for men, whether it is for materials or whether it is for money. I feel confident that it will be the wish of India that we should try and see what response we can adequately make in that matter of finance, which is essentially a matter for the Imperial Legislative Council.'

"The question of additional financial assistance was thus definitely mooted, but it was held that constitutionally we should defer discussion of definite plans in pursuance thereof till this Council assembled for its autumn Session.

"Finally, your Excellency said in your message to the people of India on the 4th August last—'I feel then that I have a right to-day to call, in the name of our beloved King-Emperor, for India's fullest and most ungrudging help through the final stages of the great War, so that when victory is achieved India's name may stand in the world's history linked for all time with the noble ideals for which the British Empire is to-day so desperately fighting—not as India the giver of a doubting and half-hearted support, but as India who read the issues aright and gave freely and generously. And as I remarked just now, further free and generous help implies not merely the raising of men, for which His Majesty's Government will pay, but financial support also, to the measure of India's abilities.

RESOLUTION re FINANCIAL ASSISTANCE IN RESPECT OF THE COST OF THE MILITARY FORCES RAISED, OR TO BE RAISED, IN INDIA.

[9TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.] [Sir William Meyer.]

"Let me now turn to what India has already done financially in connection with the war, apart from the generous help that has been given for specific war objects and war funds by the Indian Princes and private individuals. At the outset of the war we decided to forego the claim, which we would admittedly have had under ordinary conditions, for the full cost of troops employed outside India in connection with the various expeditionary forces, and we decided, with the full approval of the Legislative Council, that we ought to bear the normal cost of such troops. This offer was appreciatively accepted by His Majesty's Government, and was embodied, as the law required, in a Resolution passed by both Houses of Parliament in November 1914, which I will cite in extenso as it has an important bearing on the proposals I shall subsequently make.

'That His Majesty having directed military forces charged upon the revenues of India to be despatched out of India for service in the war in which this country is engaged, this House consents that the ordinary pay and other ordinary charges of any troops so despatched, or that may be so despatched during the continuance of the war, as well as the ordinary charges of any vessels belonging to the Government of India that may be employed in these expeditions, which would have been charged upon the revenues of India if such troops or vessels had remained in that country or seas adjacent, shall continue to be so chargeable, provided that, if it shall be necessary to replace the troops or vessels so withdrawn by other vessels or forces, then the expense of raising, maintaining and providing such vessels and forces shall be repaid out of any moneys which may be provided by Parliament for the purposes of the said expedition.'

"As I said in my speech introducing the Financial Statement for 1917-18 (paragraph 40)—'So long as this Resolution is in force, His Majesty's Government and we are equally bound by it, and we can neither increase nor decrease the amount of financial assistance which we render in accordance with its terms.'

"Under the strict application of the terms of the Resolution, India's contribution—in respect of (a) the cost of the military forces despatched out of this country, (b) the vessels placed at the disposal of the Admiralty, (c) the difference between the normal cost to India of the trooping service and the smaller amount that is payable in present circumstances—will amount, roughly, to about £23 million to the end of 1917-18 and £30 million to the end of the current year.

"We have also to take into account the fact that, in order to be prepared for eventualities on our own frontiers, we have had to expand our military budget very considerably in connection with re-armament and military supplies generally, the development of road communication and so forth; as also by the cost of certain additional units which were required to meet eventualities in India and not the actual or potential demands of the expeditionary forces, and by outlay on port and coast defences. We also, of course, pay the actual cost of military operations on our frontiers. The result has been that, as I explained to the Council in connection with the Financial Statement of the current year, whereas our normal net military expenditure before the war was £20 million, the Budget provision now stands at £29 million, with the probability that this will be somewhat exceeded in respect of the current year's actuals. But taking the Budget figure, we shall, up to the end of the current year, have spent owing to the war, about £25½ million more under military charges in India than we should have done otherwise. We have likewise, in connection with the war, had to bear a share of expenditure in Persia which is classed as 'Political,' as also charges similarly classed in respect of militia on the North-West Frontier, which may be put collectively at £2¾ million up to 31st March 1919, taking the Budget estimates for the current year.

RESOLUTION re FINANCIAL ASSISTANCE IN RESPECT OF THE COST OF THE MILITARY FORCES RAISED, OR TO BE RAISED, IN INDIA.

[Sir William Meyer.] [9TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.]

"I have explained on previous occasions how it was that financial circumstances in India precluded us from doing more at the outset in the way of pecuniary assistance to His Majesty's Government, apart from the demands on our own purse than the foregoing of the normal charges in respect of our troops employed abroad. But in 1917 the position justified us in going much beyond this, and with the general assent of this Council, we offered His Majesty's Government a lump sum of £100 million as a special war contribution by India. This contribution was in the shape of a capital sum, involving an additional recurring contribution on Indian revenues of £6 million which, besides paying the interest charges, provided for a sinking fund calculated on present data to extinguish the debt in about 30 years.

"We raised in India about £35 million of the £100 million required by last year's war loan, and taking a cautious estimate, I thought that we might count on getting £20 million more in respect of the war loan of the current year. The balance not thus provided for was to be met by our taking over an equivalent portion of the Home War Debt. I may say here that the results of this year's war loan have already exceeded the £20 million put forward in the Budget, though not by any means to the extent that I had hoped might be the case. So far as our figures at present go, we have as yet obtained a sum of over £25 million, and I hope this may yet be considerably exceeded ere the main section of the loan closes.

"The offer of the lump sum contribution of £100 million made was gratefully accepted by His Majesty's Government. We met the additional liabilities which it imposed upon us partly by fresh taxation imposed in the year 1917-18, and partly from the proceeds of our existing revenues which had been swelled by taxation in the year previous. Taking the Budget figures for the current year, as I explained in my speech introducing the Financial Statement for that year (paragraph 125), the war charges of 1918-19, including the burden of the £100 million contribution, which is shown separately under 'interests,' and outlay under 'Political' with reference to special expenditure in Persia and the cost of militia employed on the North-West Frontier, exceed the figures of 1913-14 by £16 million, of which £9½ million has been met by taxation, while the balance has been found from other expansion of revenue.

"I may add, too, that, as explained in my speech on the current Financial Statement (paragraphs 34 and 35), we have also in effect lent a sum amounting to £83 million to His Majesty's Government by investments from the Paper Currency and Gold Standard Reserves, and through the special reserve for future capital requirements which we established in connection with the transactions of 1917-18.

"When we framed the current year's Budget, it was felt—and our views on this point were endorsed at Home—that it was not expedient at that time for India to add to her taxation with reference to further war contribution, and we felt that the currency difficulties with which we were confronted could be best met in this country by a generous response to the new war loan, which would be primarily at our disposal although it would eventually be credited to His Majesty's Government.

"Subsequently, however, the war situation changed materially for the worse owing to the sequelæ of the Treaty of Brest-Litovsk, which enabled the Germans, not merely to transfer to their Western front the troops they had previously to maintain on the Eastern, but, by breaking up Russia into fragments and controlling large areas of these by armed force, to threaten an advance which might eventually lead them to the borders of India. Towards the end of March and subsequently, Germany was able, by re-constitution of her troops following on the Russian situation, to start most serious and menacing attacks on the Allies' French front, which is and must remain the main theatre of war, and in these attacks she attained material successes. The result was a double menace—to the British Empire and to the Allies generally by reason of the situation in France; to India specially by reason of the altered situation in Central Asia; and I need hardly remind the Council that, apart from this latter situation, anything which broke the force of the British Empire in France would necessarily re-act on India, and open the way to Germany for what Mr. Montagu, in a recent speech, described as her policy of subjugation, domination, spoliation, and theft. This was the atmosphere in which we met at the War Conference in Delhi, while at the same time India was faced, owing to shortage of silver, which was not in any way our fault, with the possibilities of a grave financial crisis. We therefore felt, as your Excellency said, that we should have to ask the Council to supplement the increased recruitment now in operation by further financial sacrifices, which we can more readily make now that the financial crisis has happily abated owing to the generous supplies of silver we have obtained from the United States. And let no one think that the fact that victory has recently and happily shone upon the arms of the Allies in the West calls for a reconsideration of the assistance India should offer. We rejoice in these victories, and regard them as a good omen for the future. But the fact remains that in all human probability the war will last for a long time yet—if we are to conclude it, as we all wish, by a peace that shall secure tranquillity to the world including India, and shall not be a mere prelude to a further Armageddon. We have to remember, as Mr. Lloyd George said in a recent speech, that the military caste are still predominant in Germany—and that a satisfactory peace is unprocurable so long as they remain so. We must remember, too, the vigour and staying-power which Germany, under the dictation of that caste, has shown on previous occasions when the odds seemed heavy against her, as for instance in the early part of 1917.

"It will be seen, however, from what I shall say presently that, if this Resolution be accepted, the financial assistance which will be offered in connection therewith will be proportioned to the duration of the war, so that if, contrary to expectation, peace should come speedily India will have to pay less than would be the case if the war should still last for long. I also wish the Council to understand that, as we have already represented to His Majesty's Government, the contribution proposed from India, which is largely to assist in keeping war off her borders, must be liable to reconsideration if, by unhappy chance, we should have to fight on our own frontiers and to incur large expenditure in that connection. I may say, however, that in that event additional taxation would be still more necessary than in the present hypothesis of India's lending further help to the Empire to win the war outside her own borders. It should also be understood that the contribution would similarly require reconsideration if we were faced with grave financial burdens in other respects, as for instance by a worse agricultural situation than that which we have at present to look to, or if, though I trust this is unlikely, we should be attacked by another grave currency crisis.

"I now turn to the ways in which we propose to apply the Resolution I am speaking to. We do not desire to make any fresh lump contribution such as was thought appropriate in 1917. We propose that the help India is to give should be earmarked for specific war items in regard to which she is deeply concerned, and that our further contributions should therefore be in the shape of taking over current charges in respect of these matters, so that the burden which would fall upon us, and the relief afforded to His Majesty's Government will be automatically regulated by the length of the war.

"The most important proposal we have to make under this method, and as a practical outcome of the Resolution, is that we should now take a much larger share in respect of the normal charges of troops in India than was assigned to us by the Parliamentary Resolutions of November 1914. The ordinary peace strength of the Indian portion of the Army in India may be taken roughly at 160,000 men and in respect of these the Parliamentary Resolutions place the normal cost upon us even though the men may be employed with Expeditionary Forces outside India, in which case however the additional charges consequent on such employment fall on His Majesty's Government.

RESOLUTION re FINANCIAL ASSISTANCE IN RESPECT OF THE COST OF THE MILITARY FORCES RAISED, OR TO BE RAISED, IN INDIA.

[Sir William Meyer.] [9TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.]

"To give effect to the settlement, estimates have been worked out, and approved by his Majesty's Government, showing in respect of each type of combatant unit, as well as of the various classes of auxiliary services, that is Supply and Transport, Medical (including Army Bearer Corps and Army Hospital Corps) and Veterinary, the 'normal cost' which would have fallen on Indian revenues if no expeditionary forces had been sent out of India. This 'normal cost' includes all pay charges, food charges and cost of maintenance of clothing equipment, stores and animals. When a combatant unit is sent from India to a theatre of war, all its expenditure from the date of leaving India is met by His Majesty's Government; but Indian revenues pay a contribution equal to the 'normal cost' as above calculated. A similar arrangement is followed as regards auxiliary services.

"I may mention that the initial cost of equipment, stores and animals which are required in connection with the additional troops which we are raising in India is debited in the accounts to a suspense head. At the end of the war, if we find that we require a portion of these additional stores, etc., to meet our ordinary requirements in the next few years, the cost will be met from Indian revenues. The value of all surplus stores, animals, etc., will be charged to His Majesty's Government, at whose disposal they will then be placed.

"To replace the combatant units and the members of the auxiliary services that have been sent for service in various theatres of war, a number of additional units have been raised in India, and the auxiliary services also have been expanded. The cost of these units, and of the additional officers and men of the auxiliary services, is chargeable to His Majesty's Government. Further, to supply drafts to, and to meet the requirements of, the Indian Expeditionary Forces, (e.g, in the shape of additional units) the strength of the units in India has been largely increased and additional units have been raised, while the auxiliary services have been further expanded. The cost of these expansions and additional units is also debitable to His Majesty's Government. To put it shortly, our liability is limited to the normal cost of 160,000 men, and to the additional expenses caused by military operations on our own frontiers and measures taken for the safeguarding of those frontiers and of our ports.

"But, as I have already indicated, in cases where it has been necessary to raise additional combatant units, or to create additional appointments in the auxiliary services, to meet requirements in India which have proved to be in excess of our pre-war complement, and not to meet the actual or potential demands of the Indian Expeditionary Forces, the cost of such additional units, etc., has been charged wholly to Indian revenues.

"While the general formula which governs our method of making a contribution to His Majesty's Government, in pursuance of the Parliamentary Resolutions, is superficially simple, its working out has involved much labour. Accordingly, whatever further contribution we may decide to make, it is essential that we should adhere to our present method of determining the incidence of cost between ourselves and His Majesty's Government and merely alter certain factors to their advantage. That method has, after the most careful examination at the India Office and the War Office, been accepted in toto by the Home Government, and it would be productive of much labour and correspondence to suggest any change therein at the present stage.

RESOLUTION re FINANCIAL ASSISTANCE IN RESPECT OF THE COST OF THE MILITARY FORCES RAISED, OR TO BE RAISED, IN INDIA.

[Sir William Meyer.] [9TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.]

"I have mentioned that the normal strength of the Indian Army before the war was about 160,000, roughly equivalent to 11 divisions, namely, 9 in India proper, 1 in Burma, and 3 Independent brigades on the North-West Frontier. On the 1st April 1918, the number of Indian troops, both in India and overseas, was about 490,000, or an increase of some 330,000. Of these, about 230,000 represent recruits under training and men at depôts who are required to maintain at their proper strength the units in the field and to replace wastage in India. The remaining 100,000 may be taken as representing fresh formations equivalent in all to 7 infantry divisions, though all the troops were not actually raised on a divisional basis.

"We are also, as I have already explained, expanding our recruitment during the year commencing with the 1st June last to obtain, if possible, about 500,000 additional combatants, and out of these we shall, besides supplying wastage in India and the field, raise a number of additional Indian Infantry divisions.

"Before setting out our views as to the extent to which we might offer to bear the normal cost charges of additional Indian troops, at present debitable to His Majesty's Government, I will refer briefly to an alternative idea that India should bear the full cost of the Expeditionary Forces overseas. I have already explained to what extent Indian revenues bear the normal cost charges of the Indian Army, and shown that His Majesty's Government bear in any case all extraordinary charges, such as batta, special field allowances, etc.. of troops serving overseas. We are not in favour of the idea that we should take over the whole burden of the Indian Expeditionary Forces overseas, because—

(1) The cost of these forces, especially those in Mesopotamia, includes expenditure of a quasi-civil character, arising out of the necessity for developing the country, e. g., expenditure on railways, river transport, wharves, docks, agricultural development, semi-permanent buildings, etc. It would be inequitable to saddle Indian revenues with expenditure of this nature.

(2) This would necessitate constant re-adjustment of accounts and Budget forecasts with reference to fluctuations in the strength of the forces overseas.

"Reverting now to the question of offering to pay for an additional number of Indian troops, a possible course would be to take over, with effect from 1st April 1918, the entire normal cost charges of all additional Indian troops for whatever purposes raised, i.e., all troops that had been raised by the 1st April 1918 and may hereafter be raised, in excess of the normal peace strength of 160,000 men. There are, however, objections to this course, in that it would lay on India, which has already made a lump contribution of £100 million towards the war, further and indefinite liabilities, which would involve commitments that we could not ask the people of India to assume. We feel that the statesmanlike course is to assume definite liabilities and apply ourselves to financing these

"It is clear, therefore, that, in deciding the extent to which we can offer further financial assistance to His Majesty's Government, we must take a definite and at the same time large number of troops of whose normal cost charges we are prepared to relieve them.

RESOLUTION re FINANCIAL ASSISTANCE IN RESPECT OF THE COST OF THE MILITARY FORCES RAISED, OR TO BE RAISED, IN INDIA.

[9TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.] [Sir William Meyer.]

"I have already said that though we are at present bearing the normal cost of about 160,000 men only, the number of Indian troops in this country and in the field amounted on 1st April last to 490,000, and this number will be materially added to by the increased recruitment quotas introduced last June. We propose, therefore, to take over as from 1st April last the normal cost, calculated on a divisional basis of 200,000 additional men, raising what may be called our normal-cost Army to 360,000 men. And from 1st April 1919, having regard to the additional recruitment now going on, and to the consequent growth in the strength of the Army, we propose to take over the normal cost, again calculated on a divisional basis, of 100,000 men more.

"In roughly estimating the eventual cost of this proposal, it is of course necessary to make an arbitrary assumption regarding the probable duration of the war. The assumption I make for this purpose is that the war will continue until the 31st March 1920, and that the year 1920-21 will be a year of gradual demobilization. It is obvious that it will take a considerable period after the close of hostilities to disband additional troops and to reduce the strength of the army to its pre-war figure.

"It will, of course, be understood that in making this assumption I am not, in any way, posing as a military prophet. I earnestly hope that the war may be over before the date here assigned to it, but in making calculations which affect the Indian taxpayer, we must necessarily avoid optimistic assumptions.

"Taking figures on this basis, in the year 1918-19, we shall have to meet an additional expenditure of about £8·8 million in respect of 200,000 men whose cost we propose to take over from 1st April.

"In 1919-20, on the assumption above made that the war is still continuing throughout that year, the additional cost in respect of normal charges quâ the 300,000 men above mentioned—200,000 whom we take over from the 1st April last and 100,000 more whom we propose to take over from the 1st April 1919—is estimated at £13·5 million, and in 1920-21, the year of assumed demobilization, at £6·8 million.

"I now turn to a subsidiary proposal. The Council is aware that His Majesty's Government have sanctioned our recent proposals for addition to the emoluments of Indian troops, and the cost of these has been included in the estimates above given. It operates more largely in 1919-20 than in the current year when it started its effect on 1st June; hence the figure above cited for 300,000 men in 1919-20 is somewhat larger proportionately than the estimate for 200,000 men made in the current year. We have, however, to take into account the incidence of this extra charge in respect of the 160,000 men whose normal cost we already bear, and it has been ruled that as the addition to emoluments was made as a war measure in order to stimulate additional recruitment, the cost must, under the Parliamentary Resolutions of 1914, fall upon His Majesty's Government. We desire, however, to relieve them of this charge, which would entail on us an extra outlay of £900,000, namely, £200,000 in the current year, £500,000 in 1919-20, when the increased emoluments will be in operation for a full year, and £200,000 in 1920-21, the year of assumed demobilization.

"The next proposal I have to put forward relates to non-effective charges. The position with regard to these is, briefly stated, as follows. Under the Parliamentary Resolutions above cited, the net cost of all extraordinary pensions (i.e., wound, injury and family pensions) relating to Indian troops and British officers of the Indian Army which may result from the war, is debitable to His Majesty's Government. By net cost is meant that His Majesty's Government will be credited, at the expense of Indian revenues, with the cost, calculated on an actuarial basis, of the ordinary service pensions which Indian revenues would have had to bear had the men in question completed their service for ordinary pension. The exact method of calculating the amount to be credited to His Majesty's Government has, however, not yet been decided

RESOLUTION re FINANCIAL ASSISTANCE IN RESPECT OF THE COST OF THE MILITARY FORCES RAISED, OR TO BE RAISED, IN INDIA.

[Sir William Meyer] [9TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.]

"With regard to British troops belonging to the Indian establishment, the position is that Indian revenues have no liability for the 'extraordinary' pensionary charges arising out of the war. They have to pay to His Majesty's Government the service share of ordinary pensions in respect of the normal British garrison of India. I may explain that the 'service share' of a pensionary charge means the share debitable in the case of the ordinary pension of a long-service British soldier to Indian revenues. This share bears the same proportion to the full pension as the soldier's period of service in India bears to his total army service.

"We consider that, in present circumstances, we might offer to bear the extraordinary pension charges on account of Indian troops and followers, and British officers of the Indian Army; and the 'service share' of similar charges relating to British troops, including both those who belonged to the Indian establishment at the outbreak of the war and those who have at some previous time served in India. The total eventual amount of these non effective charges is at present roughly estimated at £11½ million. The expenditure would be spread over a term of years, and would not probably exceed £500,000 in the current year and a like amount next.

"A further proposal we have to make is this. At present, under the incidence situation set up by the Parliamentary Resolutions of 1911, all expenditure on temporary lines for the accommodation of the additional Indian troops whom we have raised and are raising is debitable to His Majesty's Government, to whom will be credited after the war any sums which may be realised by the sale of material. (This amount, however, is likely to be so small as to be practically negligible.) We now propose that we should take over all expenditure which has been incurred from 1st April 1917 and which may hereafter be incurred on the provision of temporary accommodation for additional Indian troops. I estimate the cost roughly at £3 million, all of which could practically be adjusted during the current financial year.

"Lastly, we think that we might suitably offer to relieve His Majesty's Government, with effect from the 1st of April last, of the relatively small cost of the European section of the Indian Defence Force which is, at present, debitable to them and which amounts to about £200,000 a year.

"It will be convenient here to summarise the financial aspects of the various proposals I have now explained as regards the additional outlay on Indian revenues.

"In 1918-19, we shall have to defray £500,000 additional for pension charges; £9,000,000 in connection with our liabilities for a larger normal-cost Army, as it may be called, including the increased emoluments sanctioned for Indian troops; £3 million in respect of Indian troops lines, and £200,000 in respect of the European section of the Indian Defence Force; working to a total of £12·7 million.

"After this year the charge in respect of Indian troops lines will disappear, save as a practically negligible item, but in 1919-20, assuming this to be a

RESOLUTION re FINANCIAL ASSISTANCE IN RESPECT OF THE COST OF THE MILITARY FORCES RAISED OR TO BE RAISED, IN INDIA.

[9TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.] [Sir William Meyer.]

a full year of war, the continuance of the remaining charges on a somewhat larger scale, and the addition to these in respect of the further 100,000 men whose additional cost we should be taking over, may be put at £14·7 million. Consequently, our total figures are—for the current year £12·7 million, for 1919-20 £14·7 million and for 1920-21, allowing for the results of gradual demobilization, £7·7 million, making a total of about £35·1 million. Adding to this £10 million further liabilities in respect of additional pension charges we work up, roughly, to a grand total of £45 million.

"It will of course be realised that these estimates are necessarily rough, since some of the factors are still indeterminate. One greate advantage of our proposals is, however, that if the war comes to an end sooner than I have assumed, the burden falling upon Indian revenues will be proportionately diminished, but at the same time the necessity for giving further assistance to His Majesty's Government will also decrease. If, on the other hand, the war lasts longer than anticipated, India's contribution will be proportionately increased, but ex hypothesi the need for rendering assistance will also be greater.

"As regards the financing of these contributions, I think, having regard to the quotations I have made previously from your Excellency's speeches, to various references I have seen in the newspapers, and to the Bill I introduced a few days ago allowing a provisional and temporary levy of enhanced customs and excise duties prior to the law enforcing them coming into actual effect—though this measure was really intended to help procedure on some future occasion on which we might have to raise the duties in question—that there has been expectation that we should propose additional taxation this Session. That indeed was the idea which we had ourselves formed. But on further consideration and discussion of the matter with the Secretary of State, we have come to the conclusion that additional taxation will not be required this year. The reasons for this are twofold :—

First.—We have come to the conclusion that we can meet the £12⅔ million which I have indicated as the approximate charge this year of the programme of contributions outlined from our existing resources, having regard to the fact that, notwithstanding the poor agricultural situation in some parts of India and the probability that our military charges will be somewhat in excess of the Budget provision, our actual surplus is likely to be much larger than the £2½ million which we took in the Budget This is due in the main to large receipts from the gain by Exchange we are making on the present exchange rates (and it will be remembered that the normal exchange basis has been raised to 1*s*. 6*d*. since April) which were excluded from our Budget calculations for the reasons stated in paragraph 56 of my speech introducing the current year's Financial Statement. Briefly, the reason given was that we did not wish to gamble on the uncertainties of exchange.

Second.—We desire that any additional taxation we may have to impose should be adjusted so as to fall largely on the well-to-do, and especially upon those who have made large profits from circumstances arising out of the war.

"A substantial excess profits tax, in respect of which we should be following the example of Great Britain and other parts of the Empire, stood in the forefront of our programme. But on further consideration we thought, having regard to the administrative difficulties involved in fixing a fair basis for a tax of this character, and in applying it adequately with the scanty machinery at our disposal—as likewise to the desirability of giving the interests affected due opportunity for considering our proposals and putting forward any legitimate criticisms they might have to offer—that it would be very undesirable to rush through this Session a taxation programme, the principal portion of which would be an excess profit tax.

RESOLUTION re FINANCIAL ASSISTANCE IN RESPECT OF THE COST OF THE MILITARY FORCES RAISED, OR TO BE RAISED, IN INDIA.

[9TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.] [Sir William Meyer.]

"We propose, therefore, as I have said, to finance the burden which will fall on us this year without resort to fresh taxation, and I may say that in holding this view we are in absolute accord with His Majesty's Government, who consider that it would be much more satisfactory to bring our additional taxation proposals forward next year as a part of the Budget programme. We shall, however, publish a draft Bill embodying our excess profits proposals well in advance of the Delhi Session in order to afford the information and opportunity for criticism which I have already mentioned as desirable. How far this tax may require to be supplemented by other methods of raising revenue, and what these shall be, is a question which will have to be considered and discussed in connection with the Budget. I think it will be evident on consideration that we can not commit ourselves now. We must follow the usual course of seeing what the position at the time of the Budget is, what expenditure we shall have to bear, how far that expenditure can be met from the expansion of our existing sources of revenue, and from what I may call wind-falls such as the gain by exchange. But I will repeat now, what I have already said, that we depart from the normal policy of silence in respect of the Budget by stating that an excess profits tax will stand in the forefront of our programme. I will add another pledge. I will say now that the Council may rest assured that any such proposals will be framed, so as to avoid placing undue burdens upon the poorer classes.

"It will of course be understood that the carrying out of this programme of further financial assistance in connection with the war will involve modification of the Parliamentary Resolutions which at present govern the incidence of war charges as between England and India; and it will be necessary for His Majesty's Government to take steps to that end.

"I should like to say a few words more about our contemplated excess profits tax. We considered the desirability of imposing such a tax in connection with the increased taxation of 1917-18, but rejected it in favour of a super-tax for the reasons stated in paragraph 61 of my speech introducing the Financial Statement for that year. I then said :—

'Another method which would primâ facie be appropriate to present conditions is the levying of a large excess profits tax on industrial and commercial profits which have been specially enhanced by reason of the war. On full consideration, however, we have decided that this would not be advisable. In the first place, as we know from the experience obtained in England, the fixing of what are normal profits and what consequently may be considered excess gains, which must vary with reference to particular trades and even in respect of the circumstances of individual firms or companies, is a very difficult matter ; and it has only been found possible to apply it with a fair amount of equity at home—though even there there has been much trouble and criticism in particular cases—by reason of the very efficient and elaborate income-tax machinery already existing and by the appointment of special expert boards of reference to deal with disputable cases. In India, we lack both the elaborate administrative machinery and the material for impartial and authoritative boards. Secondly, an excess profits tax is obviously only a temporary measure, which cannot be continued when the war is over, whereas what we need is a more permanent source of revenue.'

"But the present conditions are different. We are not proposing permanent taxation, but what may be called a special temporary war levy, and primâ facie, as I said in 1917, it is most desirable that the additional funds we need in connection with the prosecution of the war should be largely provided by those who have made special profits under war conditions.

"As regards the difficulties of adequate assessment, though these are still very considerable, they are not so great as they were in 1917, since we have lately increased the efficiency of our income-tax machinery, through which the excess profits tax will be worked, and added to the establishments. We think, therefore, after confidential consultation with Local Governments, that we ought to be able to tackle an excess profits tax satisfactorily, provided we leave out individuals and concerns whose profits have been less than a given amount, which will receive further consideration, and concentrate ourselves on those who have made larger profits than this. The general method we propose to apply in respect of this latter category is to make a liberal allowance for normal expectation of profits and to obtain non-official assistance, where possible, in dealing with difficult cases. It will be necessary, as in the case of the super-tax, to make matters more simple by levying the taxation for next year on the profits of this, and so on; and that is a further reason for the course we have determined on of publishing the Bill well in advance. Further information as to methods will be found in that Bill, but I may say now that our present idea, though I must not be deemed to commit the Government to this absolutely, is that the excess profits tax should be levied at (say) 50 per cent of the assessable profits after making the allowance already mentioned for normal expectations.

RESOLUTION re FINANCIAL ASSISTANCE IN RESPECT OF THE COST OF THE MILITARY FORCES RAISED, OR TO BE RAISED, IN INDIA.

[Sir William Meyer; Rao Bahadur B. N. Sarma.] [9TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.]

"Now, my Lord, I need not detain the Council much longer. The fate of the Resolution which I move rests with the non-official Members, for though officials may take part in the discussion, we propose to instruct them not to vote. We have also thought it right that having regard to the necessarily general terms of the Resolution, I should, on behalf of the Government, explain how, if it is carried, we propose to apply it so that there should be no idea that we are asking the Council for a blank cheque. In this connection I may emphasise the fact that the disbursements to which these proposals apply are being, or will be, made in any case, and that they fall primarily on Indian funds though in present incidence conditions the Home Government would repay the cost to the Secretary of State in London. I have already explained to the Council more than once, in connection with financial arrangements, how this state of things, which the war has conditioned, often puts a great strain on us in India from the ways and means point of view, while the Secretary of State has large balances. The upshot of the present proposals will be not an increase of outlay in India, but the foregoing of a portion of the amounts recoverable from the Home Government on the ground that such expenditure is so emphatically in the direct interests of India that India ought to pay finally as well as provisionally. The scheme will not therefore add to our ways and means difficulties in this country, though it will reduce the Secretary of State's redundant balances. I may add, too, that the outlay by the individual recipients will be almost entirely in India, for even in the case of Indian soldiers fighting and paid abroad, whose normal pay charges we bear, they make considerable family remittances to this country. I have also explained that though we do not consider increased taxation called for this year, it is proposed to apply it next in connection with the Budget arrangements, and that in the forefront of such taxation will be a substantial excess profits tax. But—and this is fully understood by His Majesty's Government—if this Resolution should fail to pass, the proposals for an additional war contribution and for future additional taxation will lapse also. The responsibility for rejecting the course which, after full consideration, we have proposed, will then fall on the non-official Members of this Council. But we do not believe that our Hon'ble friends will take such a course. We are confident that they will rise to the situation; that they will feel that the prolongation of the war and the effects this may have on India justify further assistance; that they will also feel that when India is legitimately claiming larger political freedom and a higher Imperial status, she must likewise be prepared to assume a larger share of the burdens required by the safety and interests of the Empire, with which her own safety and welfare are so closely intertwined."

12-4 P.M. The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur B. N. Sarma:—"My Lord, we have listened with keen and absorbing interest to the clear explanation which the Hon'ble the Finance Member has given us of the present situation and what it is likely to be under the proposals which he would carry out if the Resolution should be carried. The principle of the Resolution I, in moving my amendment, do accept in a modified form, and I shall proceed to show why I think that it is absolutely necessary, in the interests of India, that our contribution to the United Kingdom should be limited in the manner I have suggested. The amendment which I have the honour to move runs as follows. At the end of the Resolution moved by the Hon'ble Sir William Meyer, the following words should be added :—

RESOLUTION re FINANCIAL ASSISTANCE IN RESPECT OF THE COST OF THE MILITARY FORCES RAISED, OR TO BE RAISED, IN INDIA.

[9TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.] [Rao Bahadur B. N. Sarma.]

'Provided that no further taxation is imposed, except in respect of excess profits derived during the war.'

"My Lord, we have listened to the impassioned appeal which was made by the Hon'ble the Finance Minister at the conclusion of his remarks, and not unmoved. But, at the same, time we realise the immense responsibility resting upon us in defending the finances and the économic prosperity of the Indian people. There are one or two considerations which are generally brought into this question which I feel are not altogether pertinent or relevant, but inasmuch as they generally influence the final consideration I am forced to allude to them. One consideration which is generally appealed to and which was partly referred to in the final remarks of the Hon'ble Member was that, if India wishes to be treated as a partner in the Empire, she would have to assume higher responsibilities than might otherwise be needed. I may state, my Lord, that we are not proceeding, in substance, on a consideration of the grounds based upon the partnership theory in finally determining our attitude with reference to this Resolution What our liabilities would have to be in respect of this war, treating India exactly as a partner in the Empire, is a question with which we are not concerned at the present moment. Ours is a partnership of a peculiar complexion. We are divided into houses which, on the present theory, would have to be defended by their respective inhabitants. The inhabitants of one house have no right to set foot in the house of another, and the rights of citizenship which have to be equal in respect of all essential matters on the partnership theory have not been accepted by any, and consequently it is not necessary for me to pursue that subject at the present moment.

"Another question which is generally brought into this matter is the analogy of the policy which has been pursued by the self-governing Dominions. It has been stated in the Press and outside that the self-governing Dominions have been undergoing various sacrifices in the defence of the Empire, and that, when compared with the self-governing Dominions, India's share has not been proportionate. My Lord, this is a very large question and it cannot be gone into here; but it would not be impertinent to say that the self-governing Dominions have vast potential resources at their command, that a very small population is in possession of vast areas which they can develop and which they propose to develop unaided, and by themselves, and that it is in the defence of those interests that they are undergoing these sacrifices. It may also be said, my Lord, that, relatively, the populations are very rich. What with greater relevancy may be said is also this. They are in command of their armies to a very large extent and have got the financial control to adjust their resources to their needs. There being, therefore, a vast difference between the position of the self-governing Dominions and India, I do not think any one can justify the relative contribution of India on the basis of what the self-governing Dominions have been doing. A stronger argument, indirectly alluded to in the speech of the Hon'ble the Finance Member, was that in practice and in substance these 500,000 troops which are to be raised in future may be looked upon as being raised really for the defence of India, and, consequently, though not technically, yet in fairness, India ought to bear the cost of those troops. The Resolution does not rest upon any such legal foundation. It assumes that on the present theory and under present conditions, the United Kingdom has to bear that cost. We are asked only to make a contribution and, consequently, having regard to the remote connection of India with the particular circumstances which led to the war, whether it cannot be fairly argued on behalf of India that India may demur to undertaking that financial responsibility, is a question which does not directly concern us at the present moment, and, therefore, that may also be dismissed. The contribution is asked for particularly on one ground, namely, that India is a part of the Empire, that her interests are vitally connected with those of the Empire, and that it is but fair, therefore, that, when the Empire undertakes a particular task, India should, to the best of her ability, contribute to the successful fulfilment of that task. No one can take exception to that principle, and we shall have to consider whether on that principle India has done enough, whether India is in a position to do more, and whether India can be found fault with if she is, owing to her peculiarly unfortunate financial and economic position unable to do more. The question resolves itself purely and simply into one of ability. But I have not chosen to rest my amendment on the question of ability. If I were to rest it purely and solely upon the question of ability, I would have had emphatically to say that India is unfortunately not in a position to undertake any further financial burdens. But, my Lord, I really think that there is such a thing as sentiment, that there is such a thing as attachment, that there is such a thing as policy, and that when the Empire is undergoing such great sacrifices, it would not be fair for us to say 'no' when we are called on to do what little we can, and it is on that foundation, on the foundation of sentiment, on the foundation of attachment, on the foundation of policy and on the foundation of loyalty, that I have based my amendment. But before I do so I may be permitted, my Lord, to make one or two remarks with reference to the question, as to whether India is really in a position to bear further financial burdens. In 1917-18, when the question of India's contribution was under discussion in the House of Commons, the Secretary of State, while defending his position, stated distinctly that the additional taxation, including the enhanced duty on cotton goods imported into India, was undertaken wholly for the purpose of enabling India to bear this cost of £100,000,000, that it was not necessary for her normal needs and that she felt that she could not assist to the extent of £100,000,000 if those duties were not enhanced. The cotton merchants of Lancashire said that the Government might have reduced that £100,000,000 by the amount which would have been found impossible if those duties had not been levied, and that was the position that was taken by Mr. Asquith also. And it was further moved that India may be thanked, but that the contribution should not be accepted inasmuch as it was coupled with this enhanced duty on cotton goods. I am mentioning this for two purposes: firstly, to show that the Government of India, as well as the Secretary of State, felt that there were no additional resources that they could fall back upon in order to enable them to meet the additional annual cost necessary for making this £100,000,000 gift, that the margin of taxation had been reached and that it was necessary to raise the duty on cotton goods to meet that cost. There is also the danger in accordance with that Resolution that the whole thing might be revised at the end of the war, and if we are to say to-day 'It is true we are in a position to enhance our taxation and the people are in a position to bear it,' we lay ourselves open to the attack of Lancashire that what was said in 1917-18 was not accurate, and they would be perfectly justified in asking for the reduction of the cotton duties. But that is a separate question. Well, the authors of the Report which has been under discussion have themselves admitted in paragraphs 135 and 132 the peculiarly unfortunate pecuniary position of India. In paragraph 135 they say:—

RESOLUTION re FINANCIAL ASSISTANCE IN RESPECT OF THE COST OF THE MILITARY FORCES RAISED, OR TO BE RAISED, IN INDIA.

[Rao Bahadur B. N. Sarma.] [9TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.]

'The Indian Government compiles no statistics showing the distribution of wealth, but such incomplete figures as we have obtained show that the number of persons enjoying a

RESOLUTION re FINANCIAL ASSISTANCE IN RESPECT OF THE COST OF THE MILITARY FORCES RAISED, OR TO BE RAISED, IN INDIA.

[9TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.] [Rao Bahadur B. N. Sarma ; the President ; Pandit Madan Mohan Malaviya.] substantial income is very small. In one province the total number of persons who enjoyed an income of £66 a year derived from other sources than land was 30,000, in another province 20,000. The revenue and rent returns also show how small the average agricultural holding is. According to one estimate, the number of landlords whose income derived from their proprietary holdings exceeds £20 a year in the United Provinces is about 1,26,000 out of a population of 48 millions.'

"They go on to say :—

'It is evident that the curve of wealth descends very steeply, and that enormous masses of the population have little to spare for more than the necessaries of life.'

"And in paragraph 332—I shall not read the whole of it because it will take up too much time—there is just this sentence :—

'Moreover, though as recent inquiries have shown the standard of living among the peasant classes has improved perceptibly of late years, there is still no great margin of taxable capacity The people are poor ; and their poverty raises the question whether the general level of well-being could not be materially raised by the development of industries.'

We have raised during the last three years the taxation from £80 millions to £113 millions.........

His Excellency the President :—"I would like to warn the Hon'ble Member that he has one minute more, and it would therefore be advisable if he would concentrate his arguments on his amendment in that one minute."

The Hon'ble Pandit Madan Mohan Malaviya :—"My Lord, may I rise to a point of order. In view of the fact that the question raised by the Resolution practically amounts to a Money Bill, may I request your Lordship to suspend the Rules of Business so that the discussion may be free and long."

His Excellency the President :—"I think that will be quite impossible, but I am quite prepared to show indulgence to the Hon'ble Member who is moving the amendment. I will give him five minutes more than his time, or I will give him six minutes, as we have wasted a minute in discussion."

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur B. N. Sarma :—"And under those circumstances, my Lord, I submit that it would not be possible to look forward to any very large margin of taxation to reach this extra sum of 45 millions, which is but a rough estimate and may be largely increased, by the operation of various causes.

"Then, if we analyse the heads of revenue, inasmuch as there is a practical guarantee that the poorer classes will not be touched, I take it that the salt revenue cannot be increased. Then Opium you cannot get much from, nor from Customs ; the cost of cotton cloth has already risen considerably, and consequently we cannot fall back on any of those heads. The only thing we can fall back on is the imposition of death duties or the increase of income-tax, and I submit that though it will be possible to get a little larger sum under the head of income-tax by enhancing the rates or bringing in the landlords, I submit that it would not be possible to raise the sums that are needed during the next two years—i.e., 14½ millions and 7 millions—unless the rate of exchange be as favourable as it has been in the past. There is another argument also, and that is, that in view of the economic war which we have to meet, would it be wise to bleed further the few men who have a little which they can devote to the improvement and development of industries ? It may be that a few people have benefited by the war. It may be that a few people have become rich. But have not the poor people—the very poorest—to look to them for the money which is needed for primary education, sanitation, and the development of industries ? I submit therefore that it would be a short-sighted policy completely to bleed them for this purpose and leave us beggars at the end of the war, unable to hold our own against other countries which are sure to wage a cruel economic war against us with our open door tariff policy.

RESOLUTION re FINANCIAL ASSISTANCE IN RESPECT OF THE COST OF THE MILITARY FORCES RAISED, OR TO BE RAISED, IN INDIA.

[Rao Bahadur B. N. Sarma ; Sir William Meyer.] [9TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.]

" My amendment would substitute another method of carrying out the object which the Hon'ble Sir William Meyer has at heart. He does not want any taxation for this end this year. If the rate of exchange is favourable, as it has been in the past, and if the war continues, there is no reason why it should not be possible to raise the money without resorting to fresh taxation. He will get his 9½ or 10½ millions, as usual, which can be supplemented by a tax on excess profits. The amount needed for the third year is 7 millions and I think the same argument will apply to that. But if unfortunately it should so happen that the necessary amount could not be raised in that way, and it should follow that we were not able to undertake the financing of an additional 200,000 and 300,000 troops with our present resources, there would be no harm done. Nobody would find fault with India for a grudging or miserly response to the call of the Empire. There is besides great danger in accepting indefinitely the financing of these troops. A new policy is involved therein ; and there is also the risk that once the financial machinery is completed for the purpose of meeting from the revenue the cost of these additional troops, they will remain permanently.

" My Lord, the words used by the Hon'ble Sir William Meyer were that no undue burdens should be placed upon the poorer classes. The phrase is very elastic, and I do not find fault with it, because no Government of India could say more, if you accept the principle of this Resolution. But what may not be 'undue burdens' from the official point of view, may be 'undue burdens' from the people's point of view, and it does not afford any relief to be told that they will not be 'undue burdens.' Then I have already dealt with the question of the well-to-do being taxed, leaving nothing for the industrial and educational development of the country. I therefore think that in all the circumstances if my amendment is carried, we shall not be guilty of a rude or ungracious reply to His Majesty's Government which has asked for help. We appreciate and understand our duty and state that to the extent we are in a position to do it, whatever may be the legal liability we will meet our friends in the spirit in which we ought to meet them and place all our available resources at their disposal. We will go further and are prepared to tax the excess profits, which should legitimately be employed in improving the industrial condition of the country, for the exigencies of the war, because that must be the first object. But to go further than that seems to me, my Lord, to be unjustified by the circumstances of this country. After all, England has raised 7,000 million pounds. What is this 40 millions to her ? It will not help her materially, and that was the position taken in the House of Commons debate. It is only a token of our loyalty to offer this to her : it does not enable her to discharge her liabilities to any material extent while it would cripple and ruin us. I hope the Government of India will bear that view in mind and will be in a position to accept my amendment."

12-23 P.M. The Hon'ble Sir William Meyer :—" My Lord, it may perhaps help my Hon'ble friends in their discussion if I indicate what the views of the Government on this amendment are. To a large extent, the Hon'ble Mr. Sarma's views and mine are in agreement, but in some important respects they diverge. I could not, for example, agree with my Hon'ble friend that India should adjust her war contribution on a strictly limited liability principle. We have tried to define and limit the liability of India as much as we reasonably can. My Hon'ble friend goes further, however, and says :—

RESOLUTION re FINANCIAL ASSISTANCE IN RESPECT OF THE COST OF THE MILITARY FORCES RAISED, OR TO BE RAISED, IN INDIA.

[9TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.] [Sir William Meyer ; Rao Bahadur B. N. Sarma.]

'The poor cannot pay because they are too poor : the well-to-do should not pay because it would diminish the subsequent development of the country.'

Well, who is going to pay ? The officials, I presume !

"I also of course reject the plea that it does not matter if we cut down the contribution, because in any case England can and will pay. If this Resolution is rejected, it will make a great difference to the feelings with which India is regarded in England. I say, even though your contribution is small as compared with England's outlay, still it is a proof of love and loyalty. It is like the gifts which children make out of their little savings, valuable for the self-denial and love which have called them forth.

"Now the fate of the Hon'ble Member's amendment I must leave to my Hon'ble friends the non-official Members ; but I would appeal to them against passing the amendment as it stands. Those who have done me the honour to follow my exposition on the main Resolution will have seen that I have gone as far as any Government can in regard to the question of future finance. We have said that we will put an excess profits tax in the fore-front of any taxation programme that we may have to introduce next year, and that we will not do anything which will press unduly upon the poor. I think that is a very material pledge. But we cannot say yet—it is really a matter for my successor and his colleagues—we cannot say yet what the exact financial position will be next year. We have got to take into account the military expenditure which will follow as a consequence of accepting the Resolution; we have got to take into account other expenditure; we have got to take into account the growth of our normal sources of revenue, and what we may get by a favourable rate of exchange. On these factors, it may be that an excess profits tax will be sufficient. On the other hand, it may not, and some other tax may have to be imposed, some tax which will not press unduly upon the poor. Therefore, I say that no Government can accept a tying of its hands in this way. Further, though I am sure my Hon'ble friend did not intend it, the literal application of his amendment is this. 'We do not mind a large amount of extra Indian recruitment; men may have to die for India, men of the agricultural classes largely ; we do not mind paying an extra contribution, provided it falls on the commercial classes who have made money out of the war, but when it comes to us of the professional classes we do object very much to giving anything.' I am sure, as I have said, that my Hon'ble friend did not really mean that, and that he would be quite willing to be taxed further if necessary, but that is the literal impression his amendment would give if carried. However, I want to make things easy for him and for my non-official colleagues, and I would ask him whether some such formula as this would meet the case, a formula which embodies the declarations I have made in my speech, and perhaps the Council may think that its embodiment in the Resolution will give it greater sanctity. The Resolution would then stand as it does at present but with a proviso :

'That this Council recognises that the prolongation of the war justifies India's taking a larger share than she does at present in respect of the cost of the military forces raised, or to be raised, in this country :

'Provided that such additional taxation as may result from the application of the Resolution is so adjusted as not to press unduly upon the poor, and shall be levied primarily on those who have made large commercial profits during the continuance of the war.'

"I think that is reasonable and meets the objects which the Hon'ble mover's amendment has in view. I would ask him whether he accepts it."

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur B. N. Sarma :—"My Lord, I regret that I cannot accept it for this reason, that I would like to limit the amount also in the way I have done. The wording is vague and would enable the Government to levy any tax whatever...............

The Hon'ble Mr. Srinivasa Sastri:—" May I rise to a point of order? I have a small amendment to move, and I should like to know whether the Council would deal with my amendment first and...........

The Hon'ble Mr. A. P. Muddiman:—" The Hon'ble Member has given no notice of his amendment."

The Hon'ble Mr. Srinivasa Sastri:—" I have not given notice, but it will be clear from the terms of the amendment that it was impossible to have given notice of it."

His Excellency the President:—" I have received Mr. Sastri's amendment now, and it is to this effect :—

'........... and recommends that such larger share be to the extent and under the conditions and safeguards indicated in the speech of the Hon'ble the Finance Member in moving the Resolution.'

That is an amendment to the amendment, and therefore I should take it in precedence to Mr. Sarma's amendment, and Mr. Sastri will move it now."

The Hon'ble Mr. M. A. Jinnah:—" My Lord, I rise to a point of order. Can Mr. Sastri move an amendment without giving proper notice?"

His Excellency the President:—" By permission at present he can, and I give it."

The Hon'ble Mr. M. A. Jinnah:—" My Lord, I rise to a point of order. Is Mr. Sastri's amendment an amendment of the Resolution?"

12-35 P.M.

His Excellency the President:—" Certainly it is. The prolongation of the war justifies India taking a larger share than she does at present and then come details as to how that larger share is to be determined. That is an amendment to the Resolution."

The Hon'ble Mr. Srinivasa Sastri:—" My Lord, in moving this amendment I am fortified by the thought that the Hon'ble the Finance Member has made the point perfectly clear in his speech. I am only making assurance doubly sure, remembering, as no doubt several of my Hon'ble friends here remember, that sometimes the exuberant language of a Resolution may commit us further than we intend. In speaking to the Resolution as I propose to amend it, I wish at the outset to say that Government in bringing this Resolution forward have placed non-official Members on the horns of a cruel dilemma. If we accept the Resolution, while we shall be declaring our loyalty to the Empire, we shall at the same time be handicapping the responsible government which is to be inaugurated and which is to undertake the expansion of education and sanitation and other things on a large scale. If, on the other hand, we reject the Resolution we shall, I fear, be causing an aspersion on our own loyalty which will be entirely unjustified and unfounded, and at the same time inviting risks to the political future of India which we have so much at heart. It is, therefore, in the nature somewhat of a test vote that we are asked to give at the present moment, but I am fully prepared to ask my Hon'ble non-official colleagues to rise equal to the test and, however hard it might pinch the people of this country, to give the vote that is demanded at the present moment. There are other considerations, my Lord, which I would urge on the attention of our Members. In the first place, this burden is to be only temporary; it is to last during the period of the war, and not longer. Then we have been assured that the taxation will not press unduly hard on the poor, and there are also other safeguards. Three of them have been mentioned prominently by the Hon'ble the Finance Member. In the first place, if we had our own frontier troubles and had to incur additional expenditure, the question of this payment would be reconsidered. Also if either famine or other financial or currency stringency presses the Government and the Finance Member's resources, a reconsideration would likewise come. Then also I am disposed to place some importance on the consideration that a good deal of this money is being already spent in India, and a financial expert has assured me that out of this amount which we are now asked to sanction, between 70 and 80 per cent will really come back to India in one form or another."

RESOLUTION re FINANCIAL ASSISTANCE IN RESPECT OF THE COST OF THE MILITARY FORCES RAISED, OR TO BE RAISED, IN INDIA.

[9TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.] [Mr. Srinivasa Sastri; Khan Bahadur Mian Muhammad Shafi.]

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur Mian Muhammad Shafi:—"My Lord, in leaving the fate of this Resolution in the hands of the non-official Members alone, the Government have adopted a procedure which, at first sight, does appear to be somewhat uncommon. But on a very careful and anxious consideration of the position, both Indian and international, I am convinced that the procedure thus adopted is commendable on many grounds. As I said on Friday last the non-official section of this Council is thoroughly representative of the Indian peoples, constituting three-fourths of the entire population of the glorious Empire, of which India is proud to be an integral part. We have here present to-day the representatives of the great Hindu community the predominant nature of whose interests in the future welfare of the country is self-evident. We have also the representatives of the 70 millions of His Majesty's Mussalman subjects whose traditional loyalty has been vindicated in this war, under circumstances unparallelled in history. We have the acknowledged representative of the great Sikh race who have added to their martial glory in this unparallelled world conflagration. We have also the representative of the intellectual Parsi community which plays such an important part in the public life of this country. And last but not least we have the representatives of the great non-official European community whose interests, we Indians readily recognise, are as permanent in the future welfare of this country as ours. It will be seen, therefore, that a decision given on this Resolution by the non-official Members will obviously carry with it a tremendous significance both for our foes as well as for our friends. 12-40 P.M.

"My Lord, towards the end of July 1914 when negotiations between Russia and Austria, owing to the mediation of the British Foreign Secretary, had already taken a somewhat favourable turn, Germany, fired by an unrighteous ambition for world dominion, at once accelerated the crisis by declaring war upon Russia. One of the miscalculations which at that time influenced the mind of the German autocracy in declaring this war was that England would either not intervene, or if she did intervene, then in India, in South Africa and in Ireland she would be involved in domestic troubles which would cripple her efforts in successfully carrying on this war. The manner in which India took up the challenge and falsified the calculations of Germany, will ever remain an outstanding fact not only in the history of the British Empire but of the world. But what I wish to invite the attention of my Hon'ble friends in particular to-day is a telegram which was sent out to India by Reuter on the 27th of August last.

"This is what the telegram said :—

'A correspondent of the 'Morning Post' quotes extracts from German newspapers showing that great efforts are being made in order to prevent the public's losing heart. The alluring prospect is painted of adding India to Germany's vassal States. The Conservative Suddeutsche Zeitung declares that the fact cannot be too insistently proclaimed that this is the psychological moment which will perhaps never return for Germany to hold out her hands to India.'

RESOLUTION re FINANCIAL ASSISTANCE IN RESPECT OF THE COST OF THE MILITARY FORCES RAISED, OR TO BE RAISED, IN INDIA.

[Khan Bahadur Mian Muhammad Shafi.] [9TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.]

"My Lord, by unanimously adopting the Resolution which has been placed before us to-day we will emphatically declare that we spurn the hand which German militarism thus holds out to us, a hand which is covered with the blood of innocent children and women.

"My Lord, immediately after the declaration of war by England on the 3rd August, 1914, here in India as in England, and Ireland all domestic political controversies were hushed. For two years the whole of the Empire in a single-hearted manner combined to resist German aggression. But the war itself having been prolonged and having given birth to world-forces which could not but produce their effect, last year in England as well as in Ireland and also in India, voices were heard on behalf of constitutional progress. On your Excellency's insistence His Majesty's Government on the 20th of August last year made a memorable declaration as to the ultimate goal of British policy in India, and in compliance with the pledge then given, on your Excellency's invitation again the Right Hon'ble the Secretary of State came out to India, and as a result of your joint devoted labours we have had placed before the country the Scheme of Constitutional Reforms which was discussed in this Council, in its general principles, last week. My Lord, it must be evident to every sincere well-wisher of India that the British Parliament is about to place on the Indian subjects of His Majesty the King-Emperor an amount of confidence which shows that the British Parliament is convinced of the loyalty of the Indian people. Let us by adopting this Resolution to-day, I appeal to my non-official friends, give one more proof that we are fully worthy of the confidence which the British Parliament and the British public are about to place in us.

"My Lord, three years ago, I had the honour of moving in this Council a Resolution on behalf of my country advocating India's right to be placed on an equal status with the rest of His Majesty's Dominions in the Councils of the Empire. His Majesty's Government were pleased to accept that Resolution. The British Colonies freely and gladly admitted India into the Councils of the Empire. They are now paying in full the expenses of their own respective Expeditionary Forces which are fighting side by side with other allied troops on the battle-fields of three Continents. Will it be said of us in these British Colonies that although we claimed to occupy an equal status with them, yet nevertheless we were unwilling to pay in full the expenses of the Indian Expeditionary Force?

"I appeal to my Hon'ble friends present here in Council to-day not to allow our country to be subjected to attack like that, but to show to our Colonial fellow-subjects that in claiming equal status with them, India is ready also to bear gladly and willingly the Imperial responsibilities resulting from the acquisition of that status.

"My Lord, nothing has come out in greater prominence as a result of this war than the solidarity of the British Empire. Although composed of countries situated in the East, South, West and North, in all parts of the world, yet the different parts of the Empire have by their conduct in this war proved to the rest of the world that the solidarity of the British Empire is absolutely unshakable. Let us here in India give one more proof by accepting this Resolution that the solidarity of this Empire is unshakable for ever. On Imperial grounds as well as on grounds connected with our own constitutional development, I appeal to my Hon'ble friends to accept this Resolution, and to my Hon'ble friend Mr. Sarma to withdraw his amendment. Surely, the Hon'ble the Finance Member has met him more than half-way by proposing a modification of the original Resolution. He complains that the partnership between the British Colonies and India is in the nature of two houses exclusive of each other. Should our friend take a few shares in a private Railway Company, would he admit that, by his taking those few shares, his co-sharers in the partnership would be entitled to interfere in his domestic affairs? Surely not. The partnership extends only to the purpose for which it is formed. Similarly, our partnership with the rest of the Empire is in the Imperial affairs of the Empire, and not in the domestic affairs of any part of the Colonies. Only recently in the Imperial War Conference it has been decided that India shall in future have the same liberty of restricting immigration as the Colonies enjoy in respect of India. Surely that decision of the Imperial Cabinet meets the situation.

"I would therefore appeal to my Hon'ble friend Mr. Sarma to withdraw his amendment, to meet the Hon'ble the Finance Member half way as the Finance Member has met him more than half way and let the Resolution as now amended by the Hon'ble the Finance Member himself be accepted unanimously by all the non-official Members of this Council."

The Hon'ble Sir Fazulbhoy Currimbhoy :—" My Lord, the statement made here in full and in detail by the Hon'ble mover of this Resolution has satisfied me, and I have no hesitation in supporting the Resolution. I feel indebted to the Hon'ble Sir William Meyer for the admirable manner in which he has dealt with India's services in the war, and also for the scrupulous care and courage with which he has safeguarded our financial interests. Therefore, both on public and private grounds, I support the Resolution with the addition made by my Hon'ble friend Mr. Sastri who has made it more explicit. 12-53 P.M.

" My Lord, in the beginning of the war, my Hon'ble friend Sir Gangadhar Chitnavis moved a Resolution in this Council which expressed an opinion that the people of India, in addition to the military assistance now being afforded by India to the Empire, would wish to share in the heavy financial burden, now imposed by the war on the United Kingdom.

" My Lord, in addition to the cost of the Expeditionary Force, we have consented to give 100 millions as a gift on the Resolution that was brought before the Council. We have willingly borne the extra income and super-tax, and we have been asked to-day to give our consent to a fresh taxation to support the military forces raised in India. India has never grudged to bear her share of the hardships and sacrifices that this war has entailed. We have freely given of our men, material and money to the best of our means, in full confidence that your Lordship's Government will not burden the country more than she is able to bear.

" My Lord, when the war is over it is our proud wish that it shall not be said that India did not bear her share equal and in proportion to that of the other Dominions of the British Empire.

" We all appreciate the peace and tranquillity that we have so far enjoyed during these four years of war. The new Army is nothing else but an insurance against the invasion of this country. The enemy though yet nowhere near our frontier is threatening at some distance, and these new forces are necessary to guard against this.

" Coming to the analysis of the grant, I find the Hon'ble Sir William Meyer proposes to allot 12,700,000 for the present year. This amount, we understand, will be mainly devoted to the new army of two hundred thousand men which has been raised in India, making the total to 360. In the third year it will be 460.

" The allotment will involve no new taxation this year as the money required will be found from the surplus, undoubtedly due, to exchange and the rise of the price of silver caused by the war. In all fairness therefore the war can claim this amount.

RESOLUTION re FINANCIAL ASSISTANCE IN RESPECT OF THE COST OF THE MILITARY FORCES RAISED, OR TO BE RAISED, IN INDIA.

[Sir Fazulbhoy Currimbhoy; Maharaja Sir Manindra Chandra Nandi.] [9TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.]

"As regards the next year's 1919-20 contribution which I gather will be 14,700,000, it will require taxation, and an imposition of an excess profits tax is the means which the Finance Member has in view. In the last year 1920-21, I find the total allotment required is 7,700,000 million, and this is based on the assumption that the war will be over in the spring of 1920 and that demobilization will begin. But 1920 is a far cry. Many things might happen between then and now. The war and economic conditions may improve and it is idle to forecaste for 1920. The total estimated contribution is 45 million required for the war.

"My Lord, with regard to the war profits tax that is proposed, it will affect materially the commercial and industrial classes to which I belong, but it will be unfair for me to take exception to the principle of this taxation. This class has borne the burden of the previous taxation willingly, and they have also voluntarily subscribed and have made both the 1st and 2nd War Loans a great success. I am glad to know from the Hon'ble mover that the Government will afford ample opportunity to those who will be affected by this impost, and I must fully reserve to myself the right of detailed criticism when the Bill comes off before us next spring.

"As regards the poorer classes, the Finance Member has assured us that they will not be pressed hard. The agricultural and economic outlook is anything but bright at present, and the condition of the poor people, owing to the high prices, is already serious, and I am sure that no addition can be possible to the salt tax or other necessaries of life. Also, I trust, that the taxation will be distributed in such fair proportion as not to unnecessarily burden the industries which in this country need great nourishing. I hope that the fresh taxation will be levied in such a way that all those that have made extra war profit and those that are rich enough will be able to give their quota in the defence of their safety, peace and order, which they enjoy. I am not one of those who want to support this Resolution in the spirit of bargaining, but what we want to give we must give freely and gracefully. With these few words, I support the Resolution."

12-58 P.M. The Hon'ble Maharaja Sir Manindra Chandra Nandi:— "My Lord, the war in Europe, which has now entered into its fifth year, has inflicted untold miseries and sufferings and no end of troubles upon men in every part of the world, India not excepted. But, like all other peoples, we have tried to face the situation bravely and manfully in view of the very large issues involved in it. It is for the highest cause of justice and freedom, of international rights and obligations, for which England, America and France are pouring their blood and treasures in a way to which the history of the world affords no parallel; and we, as an humble partner in the fortunes of the British Empire, have put ourselves also heart and soul into the fight. We are prepared to see the war to the finish, no matter what it would cost us in men, time and money. The prolongation of the war to such an unconscionable length is, therefore, not a matter to be regretted very much. It has to be: there is no escape out of it, no alternative to think of.

"As for the consequences involved in the prolongation of the war, I quite realise, my Lord, that my country is a very poor one and that she can hardly afford to pay the bill of a very costly modern war. But, at the same time, I recognise that we have to do our little bit in helping the war to be brought to an honourable close, if not for the great issues involved in it, at least for the sake of our best material interests. If England wins the war, we swim with her: if she loses, we go down with her. The best prospects of the peace and prosperity of my motherland, together with the best chances of the realisation of our political individuality and national self-consciousness, hang on the success of the Allied Cause. It is, therefore, our highest duty in the best interests of the country that we should pay for the bill of the war as much and so far as we can.

RESOLUTION re FINANCIAL ASSISTANCE IN RESPECT OF THE COST OF THE MILITARY FORCES RAISED, OR TO BE RAISED, IN INDIA.

[9TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.] [Maharaja Sir Manindra Chandra Nandi; Mr. G. S Khaparde; Sir William Meyer.]

"Then there is another aspect of the question to consider. We must not forget that, in no distant future, the German menace may materialize itself in our Western frontier. If and when it does, we shall almost be in a death-grip. We must, therefore, prepare ourselves to anticipate that situation and save India from a German invasion. That is certainly a question of more military forces to be raised in the country and more money to meet the cost. I have, therefore, very great pleasure in supporting the motion of the Hon'ble the Finance Member, but I hope he will take into his very kind consideration the poor finances of India and the hard conditions of her people and avoid imposing any fresh taxation on this very unfortunate country. Nothing will give us greater pleasure than to see the bill paid for out of the profits made by the Government of India in her silver purchases and coinage, and supplemented, if necessary, by an extra tax on profiteering in the country. But in whatever way the money may be found or raised, I have no doubt whatever that the time has come when we should take a larger share in respect of the cost of the military forces raised, or to be raised, in this country."

The Hon'ble Mr. G. S. Khaparde :—"The Resolution submitted this morning by the Hon'ble the Finance Minister is really so good that my heart turns to him and I should like to support him, but unfortunately the head turns the otherway. I should like to contribute but I find myself unable to do so, and that is why my position is one of some difficulty. I agree that we ought to bear all the expenses and contribute as much as we can, and in fact more than we can, but the trouble is this, as your Excellency and the Members of the Council will remember there is that Act 21 and 22, Vict. which in section 25 lays down that Indian revenues cannot be spent on any military operations beyond the frontiers of India without the special permission of Parliament. This provision has been reproduced in section 22 of the Government of India Act of 1915, so it is a technical question, not of much importance and to it I also do not attach much importance, but there is the technical difficulty and it would have been well if we had approached Parliament and obtained their permission for power to contribute to the military operations carried on beyond the frontiers of India. But as I said I do not lay stress on this, but mention it as a technical difficulty, and under the special circumstances I believe Parliament may grant us that power......

The Hon'ble Sir William Meyer :—"May I point out that in my introductory speech—it had to be a long one and perhaps the Hon'ble Member missed one passage towards the end—I said that if this Resolution was carried we should move His Majesty's Government to get the existing Parliamentary Resolutions modified."

The Hon'ble Mr. G. S. Khaparde :—"Then I withdraw these remarks of mine, as they have no application. I did not know.

"The next matter I wish to bring to your Excellency's notice is that, as has been mentioned by nearly every speaker, India is a very poor country. The earnings of each individual are much smaller than in other countries, not to mention England, but even in the Colonies also. I do not think there is any place in the British Empire where the individual earns less than he does in India. Then unfortunately we have been told that we are in the middle of the war. The last few years were good years and we had good crops, but this year there has been a failure of rain and the latest news I get from my province is that they have rather a gloomy prospect before them, and they speak of the difficulty there may be of food and also of fodder. Whatever we could possibly do I believe we have done, and it has been generously acknowledged, and the Hon'ble the Finance Minister has also mentioned it, so I do not wish to dwell upon that question. But there is one matter to which I wish to draw attention, that by the grace of God this year the exchange has been good and we have got some amount of money, and this year's difficulties we can tide over anyhow without any trouble at all. But the trouble is with regard to future years. I do not like to anticipate difficulties; my motto is, 'sufficient for the day is the evil thereof.' If we can get on this year, why should we anticipate the need for further contribution next year. Our armies are driving the Germans back, we are winning the war, we shall be able to get the enemy to pay compensation. So I will take that optimistic view and say that we are very willing that whatever we have made this year on this exchange and whatever we make in other ways on the income-tax, etc., certainly ought to go towards the maintenance of the expenses of this war. As to the next year we shall see how things stand, and if my prognostications come true, if we win and get an indemnity from the enemy, I hope our Finance Minister will be glad to drop this suggestion. This being the state of things there is only one way by which, if it is necessary, we can increase our power to collect money. What I mean is, that we can tax goods that come into India. Japan is sending a large amount of goods here which are selling and capturing our markets, and if the Council had the power to tax those goods that are coming in, and other nations that are trying to make profits out of our difficulties here, then I suppose we should soon see our way to raising as much money as is necessary. If this power is taken, if we can get what is called fiscal autonomy—which are rather long words—we could certainly raise as much money as is necessary and we would certainly do so.

RESOLUTION re FINANCIAL ASSISTANCE IN RESPECT OF THE COST OF THE MILITARY FORCES RAISED, OR TO BE RAISED, IN INDIA.

[Mr. G. S. Khaparde; Raja of Kanika.] [9TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.]

"Under these circumstances what I humbly submit is, that we do really give all that we get by exchange over and above anything that we get by our improved income-tax machinery and so on, and for the next year, when the difficulties do arise we shall see. In the meantime I accept the principle that we are willing to contribute, and we shall always contribute whatever it is in our power to contribute. At present we are too poor to provide for what is going to happen next year; let us mind this year, that is all"

1-8 P.M. The Hon'ble Raja of Kanika :—"My Lord, I confess when I first read the Resolution which has just been moved by the Hon'ble Sir William Meyer, I felt some hesitation about it. To me, it seemed, at first that the Resolution, as it stands, amounts practically to giving the Government of India a blank cheque and I felt, as I am sure most of my Hon'ble friends here also felt, that it was highly desirable to have greater details about our military necessities on the one hand and the ways and means of the Government of India on the other than could be found in the text of the Resolution itself before we could discuss the Resolution with advantage.

"I am glad, my Lord, Sir William Meyer has given us in his speech this morning enough information upon which it is now possible for us to proceed to an useful discussion of the Resolution.

"The titanic war which is literally shaking the world from end to end for the last four years and more has got to be won, and any sacrifice that might be necessary, in this crisis of the Empire, to achieve that supreme end, must be borne and cheerfully borne. The millions that are being freely spent in this war for the supreme task of winning it are really the insurance premia which every civilised country is being called upon to pay in order to make the world safe for liberty and justice and to save humanity and civilisation in all future times from another rehearsal of a brutal military despotism. The British Empire, my Lord, is out in the war on the noblest task of crowning liberty in all parts of the world and for all time to come, and in this supreme crisis of the Empire, it is our duty as well as our interest to be a real partner and comrade in arms.

"To have a hand in such a work is the highest of privileges, and India will be cheerfully ready to pull her weight and bear her share in this supreme crisis in the history of the British Empire.

"The pledge that has been given by the Hon'ble Sir William Meyer on behalf of the Government that the poorer classes will not be unduly pressed by any new taxation will go a long way to satisfy the vast majority of the people in this country.

"My Lord, I have very great pleasure in supporting the Resolution."

The Hon'ble Sir Gangadhar Chitnavis:—"My Lord, I think I am not mistaken when I take this Resolution to be only a sequel to the Resolution which was moved and unanimously adopted by this Council almost at the beginning of the war, in the year 1914. And in offering an elaborate explanation in support of his Resolution the Finance Minister has, I am glad to find, taken the attitude of sympathy towards the people which will be appreciated, particularly in view of impending famine in some parts of the country. My Lord, I am sure that the Government will lose no opportunity of bringing relief to those who may be stricken by the famine. In my opinion the Resolution before the Council is pressed on our attention on principles of loyalty and patriotism. For over a century England and India have been so situated in bonds of sympathy on one hand, and of gratitude on the other, that I feel confident that my Hon'ble colleagues in this Council will agree to the contribution asked for being made in view of the prolongation of the war and its consequent results. The pressure of the contribution will not weigh on those who are least able to bear it, but on those who are best able, and especially on those who are so fortunately situated owing to the enormous war profits they are making. It must be stated that the urgency of the maintenance of our army on the frontier has been the result of German activities in Persia and perhaps nearer home. As loyal subjects of the Empire it is our bounden duty to help the Government to ward off all troubles on the frontier. But for it the harrowing situation we all should be in, can better be imagined than described.

1-10 P.M.

"My Lord, we are all happy to find that during the four years that the war has been going on, enough voluntary and cheerful efforts have been made, both honorable to individuals and the country generally to help the prosecution of the war to a successful conclusion. My Lord, in doing so and continuing to do so, the honour of the nation has been and will be fully vindicated, and in every part of the country the patriotic spirit has been displayed and will further display worthy of the relations by which the country is connected with the great Empire. My Lord, the country feels grateful that in your speech on Wednesday last you have shown, on behalf of the Government, your high appreciation of the services that have been hitherto rendered. I assure your Excellency that these services will go on increasing in proportion to the needs of the hour, and if in this Council there are being heard some notes of caution, they may be taken to be the result of apprehensions of impending troubles in the country due to deficient rainfall and the condition of the people due to the abnormal rise in the prices of all necessaries of life, and this accounts for the desire to caution Government to keep a reserve of strength for this and other necessary purposes. We are all glad of the assurance that has been given by the Hon'ble the Finance Member on these points. We all hope that these unhappy signs of impending famine will, with God's favour, soon pass away, that rains will be plentiful and there will be smiling prosperity in the land. This will then enable India to bear her share in an increasing proportion more cheerfully than ever, so that the world will feel that it is not only to the splendour of our arms and to the noble achievements of the British fleet, that we will be indebted for the proud position we will all enjoy after the war, but also to the wisdom of the counsels which His Majesty's Ministers and your Excellency will have adopted in winning over by an expanding constitution and by your sympathetic attitude the affections and the confidence of the people over whom you, on behalf of His Majesty, are called on to rule."

1-14 P.M. The Hon'ble Sardar Sundar Singh Majithia :—" My Lord, on behalf of my Province, I rise to support the Resolution which has been placed before this Council by the Hon'ble Sir William Meyer, regarding the larger share that India should take in respect of the military forces raised, or to be raised, for the defence of the Empire. My Province has responded to the call of our Gracious King Emperor in a manner of which we Punjabees are proud. We have military traditions behind us and we have, I am glad to say, maintained them, and the sacrifices that have been made have been cheerfully borne. The recruitment to the Indian Army has been fully maintained, and I have no doubt that the Punjabees will keep up this spirit, and even though the Punjab is comparatively a small Province, the brave hearts of the Province will maintain its traditions. The Punjab, my Lord, is not a rich Province, but in the last war loan we won the third position, and in the present one too, we are occupying the fourth place. The Punjab is prepared to bear its part in the services to the Empire. The Sikhs are doing their level best, and I can assure your Excellency that we will not be found wanting in the future. The members of the other communities are also doing their part splendidly, and should occasion arise to bear the first brunt of the battle in any war on our frontiers, the Punjab's sons will present an iron wall to any enemy attempts that might be made. It is in the fitness of things that an attempt has been made to meet the enemy beyond our frontiers, and consequently the occupation of our armies beyond our frontier has proved to be a wise policy.

" I am sorry to find, my Lord, that my friend the Hon'ble Mr. Sarma has seen fit to move an amendment to the Resolution. He said that on account of sentiment, attachment and loyalty we cannot say 'no' to this Resolution. I should like to point out to my friend that in this matter must be added to the above the sentiments of patriotism and the defence of our hearths and homes. He also said that we might be beggars at the end of the war, and that if well-to-do persons had to bear this burden they would have nothing left to give for the development of the country after the war. I would remind him of what has happened in Belgium. After its occupation by the Germans, what little money the Belgian people had to spare was squeezed out by the invaders. If a thing like that were to happen to India, I am sure there would be nothing left for the development of the country, but every pice would be taken away by the enemy.

" My Hon'ble friend also said that 45 millions is a small amount which might be borne by the British Government itself. I will remind him of the old proverb, 'that even small drops of rain make rivers, and those rivers in their turn falling into the sea make it a big ocean.' Similarly, though we are poor and though we are not able to bear all the burdens that might be placed on us, our endeavours at the present moment should be such that we must place all our resources at the disposal of the Empire, and not a single pice must be spared to win the war. With these few words, my Lord, on behalf of my Province, I support the Resolution of my Hon'ble friend Sir William Meyer."

RESOLUTION re FINANCIAL ASSISTANCE IN RESPECT OF THE COST OF THE MILITARY FORCES RAISED, OR TO BE RAISED, IN INDIA.

[9TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.] [Raja Sir Rampal Singh ; Mir Asad Ali, Khan Bahadur.]

The Hon'ble Raja Sir Rampal Singh :—" My Lord, howsoever deeply conscious I might have been of the poverty-stricken condition of my country and whatsoever might have been the uneasiness on any apprehended further increase in the burden of taxation I, in the interest of my country, could not withhold my support to the Resolution moved by the Hon'ble the Finance Member. But now having heard the speech of Sir William Meyer, I accord it a most hearty support that I can offer Although India in discharge of her duty and obligation to the cause of the Empire has rendered services in this war —services, my Lord, on which we legitimately take pride—to the best of her capabilities commensurate with her means and resources, yet in her own interest as well as out of considerations of deeper consequence I strongly hold that no sacrifice should be considered too great for her, no expenditure too heavy to incur at this juncture to help the Empire in the subjugation of the German militarism, which at one time seemed to be in the ascendant and a menace to India herself. It has not yet been fully subdued and the menace is not yet over, but signs are not wanting that it has been crippled and humbled, and with it the threatening to India made more remote. But we cannot sit at ease until Germany and her Allies are completely overpowered and a victorious peace concluded. With that end in view it is an imperative necessity to maintain the Indian Army on a war strength, and also to increase it as far as possible not only to guard the borders of this country and all possible inlets even outside it through which the enemy could threaten us, but also to send it abroad to help the Empire. Had it been an ordinary war, all the extra cost due to it would have legitimately fallen as they must have fallen up to this time on the British Ex chequer. But the prolongation of the war, enormous expenditure already incurred over it by the Imperial Government, and at the same time the fact that the vital interests of this country are also involved in it, justify that India should now take a larger share than she does at present in respect of the cost of the military forces raised or to be raised here.

1-19 P.M.

" My Lord, these are very hard times for India as they undoubtedly are in a much greater degree to the countries at war with one another, but with this difference that we are too poor to stand any comparison with them as far as the finances are concerned. They have recuperative power emanating from a sound and solid financial strength, while we lack it altogether. They can stand a financial strain while we cannot. Our poverty is quite apparent from the fact that a rise in the price of cloth has made it difficult for the poorer classes to hide their nakedness. But duty is duty and it must be performed at any cost and at all sacrifice, and greater the sacrifice greater the credit for that action.. India claims and is an integral part of the Empire. Would it be proper for her to shrink from the responsibilities and obligations that she owes to it. I therefore give my whole-hearted assent to the Resolution before the Council ? "

The Hon'ble Mir Asad Ali, Khan Bahadur :—" My Lord, as I have been convinced by the Hon'ble Sir William Meyer's speech, which has removed from my mind any apprehensions with regard to taxation, I beg to support this Resolution on the following grounds :—

1-23 P.M.

" I may be permitted to remind this Council of my esteemed friend and colleague, the Hon'ble Sir Gangadhar Chitnavis' Resolution unanimously passed in Council just about this time four years ago. That memorable Resolution gave expression to ' their feelings of unswerving loyalty and enthusiastic devotion to their King-Emperor and an assurance of their unflinching support to the British Government,' and further expressed ' the opinion that the people of India, in addition to the military assistance now being afforded by India to the Empire, would wish to share in the heavy financial burden now imposed by the

RESOLUTION re FINANCIAL ASSISTANCE IN RESPECT OF THE COST OF THE MILITARY FORCES RAISED, OR TO BE RAISED, IN INDIA.

War on the United Kingdom.' Since then, my Lord, India has been contributing her share in an everincreasing degree to the defence of the Empire, and I may assure this Council that she is still prepared to render further help in all possible ways. But the prolongation of the war demands still greater sacrifices. In his last message to India, His Majesty the King-Emperor asked us to realise that 'the need of the Empire is India's opportunity.'

"Again, at the Delhi War Conference in April last, your Excellency observed that 'the liberty of the world must be won before our aspirations for the liberalising of Indian political institutions can acquire any tangible meaning.' So the Resolution before the Council gives India yet another opportunity to help to win the liberty of the world. The military forces raised or to be raised in this country may not all be employed in the defence of our frontiers, and generally for home defence. Some have been and may be employed in Mesopotamia, and others sent to the eastern theatre of war. Considering the heavy financial burden of the British Empire as in these terrible times of war, military expenditure continues to grow by leaps and bounds, we ought to be able to recognise the justice of India's increasing share in bearing a part of this heavy burden, not as a dependent but as an integral part of the British Empire. Though the end of the war is not yet in sight, it has, however, been brought appreciably nearer through the recent continued successes and victories of the British and their Allies on the Western front. If this allied offensive is to be pushed vigorously further into the enemy's entrenched positions, more money is needed for putting forth still greater efforts. Enormous sacrifices in men and material have already been made in stoutly opposing the enemy's advance, and driving him back. To stop further bloodshed and further sacrifices every part of the Empire, including India, should now bestir itself and further aid the Empire in bringing this gigantic world struggle to an early and successful close. India is fully aware, my Lord, that her very future depends upon the complete success of the British arms, and that her political salvation lies in the liberal and progressive British methods of administration along modern constitutional lines. Since the widened angle of vision has brought together much closer the rulers and the ruled, we have learnt to identify, in a larger measure and to a greater extent, our best interests with those of the British Empire. I desire, therefore, to give my warm support to the Finance Member's Resolution, and trust that it will meet with the unanimous acceptance of this Council."

1-26 P.M.

The Hon'ble Rai Sita Nath Ray Bahadur:—"My Lord, it is with the deepest interest that I listened to the speech which the Hon'ble the Finance Member made in moving the Resolution before the Council. While I am in sympathy with the object of the Resolution, I regret that it should still be necessary after four years of devastating war to raise further forces in this country, but it seems it has become necessary to do so by reason of the obstinate character or determination of the enemy, to successfully crush whom is the great objective of the Allied forces, and I rejoice to find that my valiant countrymen have played and are playing no inconsiderable part to that end. My Lord, the Allied forces are gaining ground every day. The prospects everywhere are bright and cheering, and the silver lining is now visible in the dark cloud. With the daily increasing accretion to the army of the Allies, the relentless foe is continually being hurled back, leaving a daily increasing number of prisoners in the hands of the mighty forces of the Allies.

"My Lord, mighty England has grudged no expense and no sacrifice for the carrying on of the war, not with a view to self-aggrandisement, but with a view to allow small nations opportunities to determine their own destinies. India's contribution may be small compared to the gigantic contributions in men and money which England has hitherto made and may yet make, but, my Lord, her heart is there perfectly sound, true and loyal. The contribution that India, a poor agricultural country without any of those commercial and industrial magnates who have made England the richest country in the world, has hitherto made, is worthy of all praise and I have no doubt she will yet do more to justify her connection with England for the last 150 years, and to prove that that connection has been for the mutual benefit of both England and India. My Lord, we are on the threshold of a new political life whose success will be measured in proportion to the sacrifice we are prepared to make. If our sacrifice should be considerable, I am confident under the ægis of the British rule our future would be great. If the history of great nations teaches us one lesson more forcibly than another, it is that nations are made through sacrifices, and I am sure, my Lord, that that wholesome lesson shall not be lost upon my devoted and loyal countrymen.

"There can be no question that India is a very poor country. The vast majority of the people cannot earn enough money to keep their body and soul together, which will be evident from the fact that the average income of the people in India is about Rs. 21 per capita a year. In view of these facts some of my countrymen think that India should not be called upon again to render further pecuniary help to England, but I say, would that be a proper attitude for us to take in her present hour of need? Perhaps our friends think that India is a separate entity quite distinct from England, that any adversity that may befall England will not affect India, she will remain firmly seated in her present position. This is certainly a notion altogether false and misleading. My Lord, I cannot contemplate how wretched and miserable would be the position of India in case our so-called friends, the Germans, succeed in crossing the Indus and appear on the plains of India with Gitas and Puranas in their hands preaching the doctrines of the sacred religion of the Hindus. The result, I am sure, would be extremely disastrous. I cannot contemplate the misery of such a picture.

"I beg to remind my countrymen, my Lord, that our fortune, our prosperity and the general well-being of the country are inextricably mixed up and entwined with those of England, and they are absolutely dependent on the existence of the British Empire as a whole and the maintenance of her proud position in the comity of nations. We have lived together as brethren and fellow-subjects for more than 150 years sharing in one another's joy and sorrows.

"With these words, I beg to support the Resolution."

The Hon'ble Mr. Malcolm Hogg:—"My Lord, I wish to accord the complete and hearty support of the Chamber I represent and myself to the Resolution which has been moved by the Hon'ble the Finance Member, and on this occasion I am glad to be able to speak not only for my own Chamber but also for the other leading European Chamber of Western India, the Karachi Chamber, as I have received a telegram from the Chairman of that Chamber expressing his Chamber's hearty support of this Resolution, and their hope that it will be unanimously passed, a hope in which I also share. I think very few words are needed from me to elaborate our support to this Resolution, but I would just like to refer to one or two points. In the first place, I think it is as well to emphasise that neither the Resolution itself, nor my or I am sure any one else's support of it, carries with it any disparagement whatever of the efforts which India has so far made. As the war progresses appeals for further efforts have to be made, have been made in other parts of the Empire, and such appeals carry with them no disparagement or criticism whatever. I am also glad to be able to support not only the general principles of the Resolution, 1-32 P.M.

RESOLUTION re FINANCIAL ASSISTANCE IN RESPECT OF THE COST OF THE MILITARY FORCES RAISED, OR TO BE RAISED, IN INDIA.

[Mr. Malcolm Hogg.] [9TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.]

but the general proposals by which the Hon'ble the Finance Member proposes to meet its consequences, that is to say, his dictum that an excess profits tax will stand in the forefront of any taxation which may be necessary. It will probably be within the memory of many Hon'ble Members that at the time the super-tax was introduced my predecessor in this Council opposed its application to companies, not on the ground that companies ought not to be further taxed, but on the ground that the super-tax was not a sound way of taxing companies. From that opinion we have in no way moved, and my Chamber thinks still that an excess profits tax on the lines of the excess profits tax that has been adopted in England is a far more proper way of taxing industrial and commercial profits than the application of the super-tax. However, that is a point which may be argued at greater length on a subsequent occasion, if necessary. I want to say a word or two about the amendments that have been put forward. I cannot support in any way the amendment of the Hon'ble Mr. Sarma, because it seems to me to be unreasonable to ask this Council to tie the hands of Government in the future so completely as his amendment would do. I do not think I need say anything more about that amendment as the Hon'ble the Finance Member has dealt with it very effectively. There is, then, the amendment brought forward by the Hon'ble Mr. Sastri. I quite agree that as to the actual wording of that amendment, there is very little to take exception to, but I do just want to ask my Hon'ble friend two questions. In the first place, is his amendment necessary? His amendment proposes to limit the scope of the Resolution to the terms of the Hon'ble mover's speech. But surely that limit is already there. I am sure that my Hon'ble friend never meant to suggest that Government having obtained the sanction of this Council to the Resolution by the Hon'ble mover's eloquence, would then attempt to interpret the Resolution in a wider sense than is indicated in the Hon'ble mover's speech. That, I am sure, was not meant to be implied, but if that is not implied, where is the necessity for this limiting amendment? I submit, therefore, that the amendment is not necessary, and I would ask my Hon'ble friend another question. Is the limiting amendment wise, is it politic? Is there not a danger, and I for one honestly believe there is, that the placing of any limiting amendment or limiting addition to this Resolution, however innocuous it may be in itself, may do something to detract from the effect which this Resolution will have in the Empire and the world at large? Does it not lay this Council open to a certain amount of misrepresentation, a certain amount of suggestion that they met this appeal in a rather grudging spirit? I do not for a moment suggest that that was my Hon'ble friend's intention. I am sure it was not, but I do honestly believe that there is a danger of that interpretation being put upon the addition of even the most innocuous amendment to this Resolution. And I would ask Hon'ble Members to believe that I speak solely and absolutely with no other idea than a wish for the good name of India in the Empire and the world at large. I would therefore make an earnest appeal to my Hon'ble friends, both of them, to withdraw their amendments and to the non-official Members of this Council to pass this Resolution in its original form unanimously."

The Council then adjourned to Tuesday, the 10th September, 1918.

THE Council met at the Council Chamber, Viceregal Lodge, Simla, on Tuesday, the 10th September, 1918.

List of books and pamphlets proscribed since the passing of the Press Act, 1910.

1. "(1) Will Government be pleased to give a list of books, pamphlets, etc., published either in English or in the Vernaculars of the country that have been proscribed since the passing of the Press Act of 1910, and to state :—

(a) whether it has been the policy of Government to consult any independent body of literary men before arriving at any decision in regard to the proscription of a publication, and, if not, whether Government propose to consider the advisability of setting up such a body in each province?

(b) whether any specific reasons for the step taken in the order of proscription were given or communicated either to the authors or publishers of the proscribed publication?

(c) whether the passage or passages taken objection to by the Government were sufficiently and clearly identified in the order, and whether any opportunity was given either to the authors or publishers to expunge them totally or to re-write them and publish anew the proscribed publication?

(d) in how many cases applications for expunging or re-writing the objectionable passages were granted or rejected?

(e) the total value of the proscribed publications destroyed by the Government.

(2) Are Government aware that certain vernacular translations of English books and speeches and writings of eminent persons have been proscribed, whereas the original English books, etc., have free and unrestricted circulation in this country? If so, will Government be pleased to assign reasons for the course adopted?"

The Hon'ble Sir William Vincent replied :—

"The information is being collected and will be laid on the table when complete."

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

[Mr. V. J. Patel; Sir George Barnes; Maharaja Sir Manindra Chandra Nandi; Major-General A. H. Bingley; Sir William Meyer; Mr. Surendra Nath Banerjea.] [10TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.]

The Hon'ble Mr. V. J. Patel asked:—

Indian Pearl Merchants of Bombay.

2. "(a) Have Government received a memorial dated the 15th June 1918, signed by some of the leading Indian Pearl Merchants of Bombay? If so, what orders have been passed on the said memorial, and have those orders been communicated to the memorialists?

(b) Is there any truth in the rumours (referred to in paragraph 13 of the memorial) that the restrictions imposed on exports of pearls have been relaxed in the case of certain foreign merchants?

If so, will Government be pleased to state the reasons for the relaxation and the names of the firms in whose favour it has been made?"

The Hon'ble Sir George Barnes replied:—

(a) A memorial from the Pearl Merchants' Association of Bombay was received and duly considered by the Government of India. The memorialists were informed in reply on the 28th August 1918 that the Government of India for the reasons stated were not prepared to reconsider their orders.

(b) With reference to the second part of the Hon'ble Member's Question, there is no truth whatever in the rumour referred to."

The Hon'ble Maharaja Sir Manindra Chandra Nandi asked:—

Recruits raised for the Indian Army, since August, 1914.

3. "Will Government be pleased to state the total number of recruits raised for the Indian Army, Province by Province, since August 1914, and what proportion of them have actually been sent out to fight in the different battle-fields of the War?"

The Hon'ble Major-General A. H. Bingley replied:—

"It would be contrary to the public interest to furnish the information asked for."

The Hon'ble Maharaja Sir Manindra Chandra Nandi asked:—

The Gold Standard Reserve.

4. "Will Government lay on the table (a) the nature of the investments made in London with the gold standard reserve and (b) the names of the firms, if any, to which moneys out of this reserve have been lent out by the Secretary of State in England in 1915, 1916 and 1917, and the conditions of their investments and their rates of interest?"

The Hon'ble Sir William Meyer replied:—

"(a) A statement* showing the details of the securities held on behalf of the Gold Standard Reserve in London on 31st March 1918 is laid on the table.

(b) The information asked for is not available in India."

The Hon'ble Mr. Surendra Nath Banerjea asked:—

Appointment of Advisory Committees regarding internment cases.

5. "(a) Will Government be pleased to state in respect of each Province separately:—

(i) the number of Advisory Committees appointed in connection with cases of internment under the Defence of India Act, and of detention under Regulation III of 1918?

*Not to be included in these Proceedings.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

[10TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.] [Mr. Surendra Nath Banerjea; Sir William Vincent; Pandit Madan Mohan Malaviya; Sir William Meyer; Major-General A. H. Bingley.]

(ii) the dates of their appointments ?

(iii) the number of cases disposed of by them ?

(iv) the number of cases in which they recommended the release of prisoners, and how many prisoners have been released in consequence ?

(b) Are Advisory Committees authorised to call for fresh evidence in any case in which they deem such evidence to be necessary ? And have they, as a matter of fact, called for such evidence in any case ? "

The Hon'ble Sir William Vincent replied:—

"We have telegraphed to Local Governments for this information, and when complete it will be laid on the table."

The Hon'ble Pandit Madan Mohan Malaviya asked:—

Contribution made towards the War by India.

6. "Have Government received any paper or papers which were presented to Parliament, giving a statement of the contributions made to the war in men and money by the Government of India, the Ruling Princes, and the people of India ?

If the answer be in the affirmative, will Government be pleased to lay the papers on the table ? "

The Hon'ble Sir William Meyer replied:—

" Certain papers regarding offers of service, money, etc., made in India in connection with the War, were laid before Parliament in the autumn of 1914. These papers were published in the Gazette of India of the 14th November 1914 (page 1879, et seq.). It is not known whether any further papers were subsequently presented to Parliament.

It is intended to publish as soon, as possible after the war, a report completed, as far as is possible, of contributions by India towards the prosecution of the war. Steps have been taken to facilitate the completion of this report on the termination of hostilities."

The Hon'ble Pandit Madan Mohan Malaviya:—" May I ask why such a Report should not be published now ? Why not now ? "

The Hon'ble Sir William Meyer replied:—"There are two reasons. In the first place, it could not be complete, and in the second place, perhaps the Hon'ble Member will understand that all the Departments concerned are simply up to the eyes in work in connection with war measures. They cannot set aside that work for the preparation of this Report."

The Hon'ble Pandit Madan Mohan Malaviya asked:—

Number of combatants and non-combatants furnished by India.

7. " Will Government be pleased to lay on the table a statement showing the total number of (a) Indian combatants, and (b) Indian non-combatants engaged from the beginning of the present War up to the end of July last, and also a statement of the total number of casualties amongst them during the same period ? "

The Hon'ble Major-General A. H. Bingley replied:—

" It is not in the public interest to give the information asked for."

RESOLUTION re FINANCIAL ASSISTANCE IN RESPECT OF THE COST OF THE MILITARY FORCES RAISED, OR TO BE RAISED, IN INDIA—contd.

11-8 A.M. His Excellency the President:—"We will resume the adjourned debate of yesterday on Sir William Meyer's Resolution."

11-8 A.M. The Hon'ble Mr. Ironside:—"Your Excellency, whenever Government require support and approval for proposals involving the safety, honour and welfare of the country and the community, they have always been aware that they can command and count upon the support of the community which I have the honour to represent, and knowing full well that the main burden of the proposals for taxation which the Hon'ble Member presented yesterday will fall, so far as Calcutta and Bengal are concerned, on my community, I can still promise you, my Lord, the same support, absolute and undivided. I wish, however, to make a few observations on the Hon'ble Member's proposals, and I fear that, as they will deal with matters commercial, they are rather apt to be uninteresting to the bulk of Members present here.

"We have always disputed the success of the Hon'ble Member's Budget proposals of the past two years. The super-tax will ever remain a sore point with industrialists and financial people with a true desire for the furtherance of industrial progress on sound economic lines. The present proposal in regard to excess profits in consequence of the Hon'ble Member's hesitation (though this opinion may not be held by all the Members of the Council), to face the music last year, is bound now to create a very serious situation on the Stock Exchanges of Calcutta and Bombay. It is quite possible that some of the Jute Companies, for instance, will be unable during the current half year to pay any dividends at all if the proposals as outlined yesterday are given full effect to. Investors are bound to suffer much inconvenience, presumably we may take it that stock exchange speculators deserve no consideration. But the financial question appertaining to the subject may cause not a little financial inconvenience and trouble.

"I would ask Government, if possible, to broaden the incidence of their taxation proposals. At present you seem to have proceeded along the line of least resistance. It is easy to slaughter the wicked industrialist and merchant to make a holiday.

"We have been accused even of profiteering, and I for one dispute that assertion and I will endeavour before I sit down, to disprove it. Now, one of the proposals I have to make is, can you not also tax those firms who have come to India since the war started where by circumstances which one need not enter into closely but which must be apparent to everybody,—circumstances which have been taken advantage of by these new arrivals, our difficulties of shortage of staff, finance and freight,—I mean those technically British and Foreign firms and others possessing as far as I know no country at all; but they exist in Calcutta and Bombay, and it is my contention that these people have been the real profiteers, people who have made Rs. 5 for every one that the true Indian producer has earned. Surely what is sauce for the British Indian goose is equally applicable to the foreign gander.

"The Jute Companies of which I have some small knowledge have supplied, since the beginning of the war, through His Majesty's and your Excellency's Government, a thousand million and odd jute bags and many hundred million yards of cloth to Government, equal to 30 per cent or a third of the entire output, the prices of which have been controlled by Government and have been worked on the basis of 10 per cent profit over cost of production. I will leave it to my legal friends present here to say whether that can be called profiteering. The greater portion of the remainder of the jute production has gone to foreign countries and has been disposed of by the mill agents largely to speculators, and it cannot be brought against the mills if other people like to take the risk and purchase jute cloth 12 and 18 months ahead and capture the market against the consumer. It is not the mills' fault if the consumer has had to pay high prices.

RESOLUTION re FINANCIAL ASSISTANCE IN RESPECT OF THE COST OF THE MILITARY FORCES RAISED, OR TO BE RAISED, IN INDIA.

[10TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.] [Mr. Ironside.]

"Coal, with which also I have a sneaking acquaintance, has been controlled from the start to the extent of 80 per cent of its production both as to price and output. I personally have been blamed as a consequence for starving share-holders of their dividends. Perhaps there may be one or two such share-holders here.

"Tea of burning memory to the Hon'ble Member is entirely controlled by His Majesty's Government, and I could enumerate a score of articles. Paper and Steel, Mica and Wool, all of which have helped to make the wheels of the Empire go round. We have filled a niche, I contend, with credit to ourselves and the body politic, and to those, my Lord, who dispute my claim, I can only say that I would not give them the vote.

"We have made large profits in consequence of war conditions, but I will leave a dissection of the War Loan figures to convince the Hon'ble Member that we have played our part, I mean so far as my community are concerned at any rate, and I know also that my Indian Industrial neighbours too have played their part, as British citizens.

"The Reserve Funds built up during the past few years have been in Calcutta practically entirely invested in the War Loan. My Lord, I hesitate to use the word 'practically'. I fear I shall be accused of concealing a fraud by the Hon'ble Member opposite who is such a stickler for judicial finesse, but I cannot express myself in mathematical equations and the Hon'ble Member will forgive me if I limit myself to the English dictionary. The European firms have played their part. I could mention one office who with its ramifications and varied interests has put into the War Loan one-tenth of the total of Calcutta and Bengal. I could name three who collectively have placed a fifth to the credit of the Hon'ble Member. This is not loose surplus money for which we have no other use. The organizations I refer to have placed their entire financial strength at the disposal of Government.

"Let me just refer in passing to those nebulous, nascent industries, a number of which have been started ince the war commenced, largely at the behest of Government, poor fledglings scarcely out of the shell, does the Hon'ble Member suggest that these miserable birds should be divested of their plumage before they are able to fly?

"Then there is one more point which I should like to ask the Hon'ble Member. Does he propose to tax the individual in regard to excess profits on the same scale as the company and firm? because, the present super-tax appertains to limited companies and individuals? If the individual is to be charged excess profits, plus super-tax, my Lord, some additional applications will be made to the Government of India for posts at Simla. I think I have placed the position as far as the purely mercantile and industrial organizations are concerned before the Hon'ble Member, and I have done so in no hesitating or carping spirit. We know that we have made money as a consequence of the war, and Government will find us at their back whole-heartedly to do as we are asked as good citizens. I would now appeal to my non-official Indian friends to consider these financial proposals in no spirit of hesitancy, surely rather in one of devout thankfulness to the soldiers and sailors of the Empire and her Allies and to the Almighty for preservation from the horrors and pain which have afflicted so large a portion of the world, and which might well in any other circumstances have been the lot of us all in this country."

11-17 A.M. The Hon'ble Rai Bahadur B. D. Shukul:—"My Lord, although I could not be present here in the Council yesterday, yet I have read the speech delivered by the Hon'ble the Finance Member very carefully and, while offering my heartfelt thanks to my Hon'ble friend for the care and solicitude he has evinced for the welfare of the poor in the country, I must confess that the Resolution in its present form does not appeal to me. I wish to make my position clear.

"My Lord, at the very outset, I wish to state that I am in full sympathy with the object of the Resolution, and have no doubt that the country would receive it in the same spirit, provided its scope were defined and specified. I do hope therefore that the Government will see their way to accept the amendment moved by my Hon'ble friend, Mr. Sastri. He asks for nothing more than to embody in the Resolution itself what the Hon'ble mover has thought fit to declare in his statement, with a view to protect and safeguard the interests of those who are least capable of bearing further burdens. I have every confidence in the Hon'ble mover seeing the force and justice of such a step which, if taken, will secure for the Resolution the unanimous support not of this Council alone but of the country at large.

"The Resolution, if accepted in its present form, will, I am afraid, be regarded by the people as placing the whole country under obligations, which it might not be possible for it to discharge. After all, my Lord, India's fate is that of a poor man, though an obliging man. His ambitions are high and spirit generous, but the coffers are empty. Ever since the commencement of the war India has been heart and soul with England. She has done what she could to help her in her hour of need, and she only wishes that she had more, and could be of greater assistance to the country with whom her future destinies are so indissolubly linked. My Lord, it is certainly to the credit of the Hon'ble mover that, so far as the present year is concerned, the additional expenditure amounting to Rs. 12·7 millions could be borne out of the existing revenues and one should be but too willing to accept the suggestion. For the succeeding year also, my Lord, I am confident that none could take any objection to the extra expenditure out of the tax on war-profits. But the matter for serious consideration comes in when the question of imposing an additional burden has to be considered. India is an agricultural country, and we will have to be very careful that no additional burden is imposed upon the agricultural classes, whose poverty is proverbial and 'the enormous masses of whom' as your Lordship has already observed in that memorable document, the Report on the Indian Constitutional Reforms, 'have but little to spare for more than the necessaries of life,' and with regard to whom it is recognised that 'there is still no great margin of taxable capacity.' If I have to oppose the Resolution as it stands, it is in the interest of these dumb millions, the poverty-stricken classes, with whose conditions, I frankly acknowledge, your Lordship as well as the Hon'ble mover are already in full sympathy. For these reasons, my Lord, it is highly desirable that the amendment be accepted so that there should be no disappointment or uneasiness felt in the country, rather the decision of the Council may be received by the people in a spirit of intense devotion and unswerving loyalty."

11-20 A.M. The Hon'ble Sir William Meyer:—"May I just explain, my Lord, to help the discussion that, so far as the Government are concerned, there is not the slightest objection to the amendment proposed by my Hon'ble friend, Mr. Sastri."

11-21 A.M. The Hon'ble Pandit Madan Mohan Malaviya:—"Would your Lordship permit me to move an amendment at this stage, to the effect that provided that the total amount of such additional cost shall be regarded by His Majesty's Government as a part of the contribution of £100 million which we promised last year to England."

His Excellency the President :—"I think the Hon'ble Member must see that any amendment of that sort is a direct negative and would be regarded as such by the Government of India."

The Hon'ble Pandit Madan Mohan Malaviya:—"My Lord, as I submitted yesterday, the Resolution moved by the Hon'ble the Finance Member virtually amounts to a Money Bill, and I therefore asked that the Rules of Business of this Council might be suspended in order that the Resolution might be fully and fairly dealt with. I must express my regret that the suggestion did not commend itself to your Lordship. The course adopted by the Government has placed us in a difficult position. The Hon'ble the Finance Member has moved the Resolution in a long speech which lasted nearly an hour, and which raised important issues, which would commit the country to a fresh expenditure of £45 million, and in a general way to proposals for taxation by which that amount is to be raised in the future, and we are asked to form and express our opinions on those issues. I submit, my Lord, that as is done in the case of the annual Financial Statement a week's interval should have been allowed after the Statement was made by the Finance Member, to enable the Members and the public to digest it and to suggest such amendments as they might think fit. As matters stand, without meaning any disrespect to any one, I venture to doubt if some of my colleagues who have so readily given their support to the proposal have weighed fully all that it means, whether they have weighed, for instance, the propriety of that part of it which would saddle India with £11½ million on account of 'extraordinary' pension charges not merely of Indian troops and followers, but of British officers of the Indian Army, and the 'service share' of similar charges relating to British troops including those who belonged to the Indian establishment at the outbreak of the war, and those who have at some previous time served in India. As the Hon'ble Member stated, at present 'with regard to British troops belonging to the Indian establishment, the position is that Indian revenues have no liability for the 'extraordinary' pensionary charges arising out of the war.' But he evidently was not troubled by any doubt in arriving at the conclusion and proposing 'that, in the present circumstances, we might offer to bear these extraordinary pension charges,' also. I doubt, however, if any Indian Member would have equally easily assented to this part of the proposal if he had had time to consider it.

"Now, my Lord, coming to the subject-matter of the Resolution, we have been reminded by the Hon'ble the Finance Member that your Lordship said at the Delhi Conference as follows :—'Now I am very jealous of the position of the Imperial Legislative Council. The question of finance is essentially one in which we have to consult and carry with us the Members of our Imperial Legislative Council,' and your Lordship said you would later on 'consider in consultation with the Legislative Council, for this is a matter essentially in its sphere, how far it will be feasible for India to increase the direct financial contribution she has already made to His Majesty's Government, or in what other way she can assist financially.' From these remarks of your Excellency one should have expected that your Government would have consulted us, Members of the Legislative Council, in camera before shaping your proposal and deciding to publish it to the world and to put it formally before the Council in the manner it has been put. When the Government decided to do as they have done, they should have taken the responsibility of carrying their proposal in the ordinary way with the votes of the official majority of this Council. But the Government have adopted an unusual course. While you have given us no voice in determining upon the proposal, you have decided to leave the responsibility of accepting or rejecting it upon us non-official Members of the Council. And at the very commencement of his speech the Finance Member hurled at us what cannot, in the unhappy position in which we are placed, be regarded as a mere brutum fulmen, that if the bulk of us should not be able to support the Resolution, the Resolution will be withdrawn and on us will rest the responsibility for withholding the further aid which the Government of India desire to tender to His Majesty's Government at this crisis of the war. He concluded his speech by again reminding us that the responsibility for rejecting the course which, after full consideration, the Government have proposed, will fall on the non-official Members of this Council. I wonder, my Lord, if any disinterested person will regard this as a fair way of consulting and carrying the non-official Members of this Council with the Government. By adopting the procedure your Government have adopted, you have placed us in a position of great disadvantage. We must either swallow the proposal and become responsible for a large additional burden and fresh taxation being imposed upon the country, or we must expose ourselves to the risk of our opponents, and unfortunately they are neither few nor uninfluential, making political capital in England by saying that Indian representatives had withheld the further aid which the Government of India desired to tender to His Majesty's Government at this crisis. He will be a bold man who will say that the vote of the non-official Members on the Resolution will, in these circumstances, be an altogether free vote. I yet hope, however, that my colleagues will try to act according to the dictates of the small voice within, which after all is the last anchor that holds.

RESOLUTION re FINANCIAL ASSISTANCE IN RESPECT OF THE COST OF THE MILITARY FORCES RAISED, OR TO BE RAISED, IN INDIA.

[Pandit Madan Mohan Malaviya; Sir William Meyer.] [10TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.]

"Now, my Lord, it should hardly be necessary for me to reiterate my deep and respectful sympathy with England in her present position. I fully recognise that the prolongation of the war inflicts an increasingly heavy burden upon her. It is a matter of sincere satisfaction to us that India has been able to help to the extent she has done. I hope it will be acknowledged by all reasonable men that she has helped ungrudgingly all these four years in men, money and material. I will not take up the time of the Council by attempting to recount what she has contributed. But the help we can give must be limited by our means, and by a consideration of what our duty to our own people, whom we are here to represent, permits, in other words, it must be limited to what we can spare and reasonably bear. The Hon'ble the Finance Member has told us that the Government have decided to leave the decision of this question to us non-official Members, on behalf of the much larger public in India to whom they desire to appeal. We are therefore not to express our opinions here as private individuals, but as representatives of the people, and we must, in forming that opinion, bear in mind how the proposal which the Government have put forward will affect the people at large. In considering this, my Lord, let me briefly refer to the history of our contributions during the last four years. Speaking two years ago of those contributions, our late Viceroy, Lord Hardinge, said that India had been 'bled white '......................

The Hon'ble Sir William Meyer :—" May I ask the Hon'ble Member to cite the passage in which Lord Hardinge said that India had been bled white ?"

The Hon'ble Pandit Madan Mohan Malaviya :—" I have not got it here, but I will give it to the Hon'ble Member later on. "

The Hon'ble Sir William Meyer :—" I put it to the Hon'ble Member that what Lord Hardinge said was bled white of troops and war material. "

RESOLUTION re FINANCIAL ASSISTANCE IN RESPECT OF THE COST OF THE MILITARY FORCES RAISED, OR TO BE RAISED, IN INDIA.

[10TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.] [Pandit Madan Mohan Malaviya.]

The Hon'ble Pandit Madan Mohan Malaviya :—" If that is so, my Lord, I thank the Hon'ble Member for correcting me. Summing up our contributions in 1916, the Hon'ble the Finance Member explained why India could not contribute more. He said : ' we have also to remember that the termination of this war, when it comes, will leave us with heavy financial demands on us, and that the experiences and lessons of the war must also add in some directions to our permanent military charges.' He also reminded the Council that ' we should be in a position, when peace returns, or as soon after as may be, to provide further funds for such beneficent purposes as the improvement of education and sanitation.' Notwithstanding all this, it was proposed in 1917 that India should make a direct money contribution to the war. It is an open secret that the Government of India first fought hard against the idea, and that they eventually agreed after much correspondence and discussion to offer a gift to England. The public does not know what exactly passed between the Government of India and the India Office, but there is a strong belief, and it is widespread, that the Government of India wanted to offer a much smaller amount and agreed to give a £100 million only when the Government of England agreed to allow them to abolish the Cotton Excise duty.

"When the proposal to make a gift of £100 million to England came before this Council, many of us felt that it was far too heavy a burden for our poor country, with its very limited means, and its numerous vital domestic needs, to bear. I will take the liberty of quoting a few sentences from what I then said about it:—

' In the second place, my Lord, it cannot be denied that the burden is a stupendous one. It will require special high taxation to the tune of £6 million a year to be maintained for the long period of over 30 years, to discharge it. Not to talk of the United Kingdom, if we were half so rich and prosperous as the self-governing Dominions, we would have gladly undertaken such a burden. But unfortunately India is very poor. Her resources are limited Her vital domestic needs are great and pressing. The vast mass of her population suffers from want of education. Her agriculture and industries badly need to be developed. Her extreme poverty which is the normal condition of the vast majority of the people, and which keeps them on a low grade of vitality and thus exposes them to disease and suffering requires to be ameliorated. For many years we have been pressing these problems of internal improvement on the Government of India, and urging them to frame large schemes commensurate with the requirements of the situation, to carry out the necessary measures of improvement and we have always been met by the reply that funds are not available for the purpose .. But the proposals of the Budget leave us face to face with a situation in which for the life-time of a generation internal improvement of even the most necessary kind will be considerably hampered.'

"The proposal was accepted by the Council. We supported it and we were told that that would be the ' ultimate total special contribution to the war.' The words ' ultimate total special contribution ' were used in the telegram which we were told your Excellency had been pleased to send to the Secretary of State, and it was quoted by the Hon'ble the Finance Member in his Financial Statement. Thus, my Lord, when that contribution had been made, we had reason to think that we had done with a direct money contribution to the war. Let us see what has happened since to justify our making a further contribution by agreeing to bear a larger share of the cost of the new forces raised, or to be raised, for Imperial purposes. No doubt the war has been prolonged. Well, in loyal response to His Majesty's message, we have agreed to raise half a million more of men We have made every effort to do so, and I hope the required number will be raised, that is our further contribution to the war. And it is not a small contribution. But so far as a further money contribution is concerned, I regret to think that we are not in a position to make it. If the matter had been raised at the Delhi Conference, I am sure there would have been a very clear expression of opinion on it on the part of many of the representatives of the people, that it was not the will to contribute more that was wanting, but the power to contribute more money. I think my esteemed friend Mr.

RESOLUTION re FINANCIAL ASSISTANCE IN RESPECT OF THE COST OF THE MILITARY FORCES RAISED, OR TO BE RAISED, IN INDIA.

[Pandit Madan Mohan Malaviya; Khan Bahadur Mian Muhammad Shafi.] [10TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.]

Gandhi, in the letter which he addressed to your Excellency shortly after that Conference made this point clear. We have laboured accordingly to raise recruits, and to support the Government in every way we can; but I regret that the poverty of the country does not permit of our assenting to a larger money burden being imposed upon the people.

"My Lord, we are asked to make a further money contribution to the Imperial expenditure on war by taking upon ourselves the charge of meeting the cost of the new forces raised in this country and to be raised hereafter. It is said that this proposal is subject to three conditions: that our liability to pay the proposed additional charge shall be reconsidered if (a) agricultural conditions should be worse than they are at present; (b) if exchange should be affected adversely; and (c) that the war should come nearer home, and we should have to fight on our own account on our frontiers. I respectfully submit that when these three possibilities are before us, it will be the part of wisdom not to undertake any further obligations upon us. But that on the same principle on which it is proposed that in the event of certain new conditions arising, we shall be released from the obligation which we are asked to undertake, in view of the fact that since we agreed to contribute £100 million to England as a war gift, we have raised and are going to raise half a million men in this country, the cost of this additional force should be met out of the £100 million which we have promised.

"It was said we would not be doing enough if we raise the troops and let the pecuniary charges be borne by England. We have promised to contribute £100 millions. We have paid £60 millions of this by loan. We have to pay £40 millions more. In view of this fact, it is not too much to ask the Government in England to accept this additional help that we are giving as a humble contribution and to allow the cost of raising these troops to be regarded as a part of the contribution which we have already agreed to make. It is proposed that this additional cost should be met partly out of the surplus of this year and partly by an excess profits tax. The excess profits tax should have been levied two years ago; at any rate it should have been levied last year. The reasons urged by the Hon'ble the Finance Member for not levying it then did not satisfy a large section of the public that it should not have been raised earlier. What should have been done, my Lord, when the £100 million gift was promised to England, was that an excess profits tax should have been levied in order to liquidate the debt as early as practicable. My Lord, as matters stand, it will take nearly thirty years to liquidate the debt of £100 million. This is a matter which ought to receive the attention of Government and to be provided for. How can this be done except by raising every possible revenue that can be legitimately raised and by meeting the situation in the way I have suggested.

"My Lord, I hope I have made it clear that I am not opposed to the idea that we should bear the additional charges of the new troops we are raising. I say again let us bear them; but let us represent to His Majesty's Government in England that in view of our entire situation, in view of the large contribution we have already promised, in view of the deplorable poverty of our people, in view of the unfortunate fact that fresh taxes cannot easily be put upon the people, they should allow the cost of these new troops to be met out of our contribution of £100 million... ...."

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur Mian Muhammad Shafi:—"I rise to a point of order, my Lord. Apart from the generosity of the suggestion made by my learned friend, is he in order in proposing that these additional charges be debited against the free gift which has already been made by this country?"

RESOLUTION re FINANCIAL ASSISTANCE IN RESPECT OF THE COST OF THE MILITARY FORCES RAISED, OR TO BE RAISED, IN INDIA.

[10TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.] [The President; Pandit Madan Mohan Malaviya; Mr. Kamini Kumar Chanda.]

His Excellency the President :—" I do not think that is a point of order. I think the Hon'ble Member is quite in order in putting this forward. It is not put forward as an amendment but as an argument which can be considered by His Majesty's Government when they read the Hon'ble Member's speech."

The Hon'ble Pandit Madan Mohan Malaviya :—" I thank you, my Lord. As I have said, I am not opposed to our country bearing the proposed further charges. I am only suggesting that, in the circumstances of the case, these should be met out of the contribution which we have promised. I sincerely wish, my Lord, that we were in a position to agree to a fresh larger contribution ; but, as I have submitted, we are really not in a position to do so. That is the belief of a large number of us, and by reason of this belief, I regret I find myself unable to support the Resolution as it stands. I do not wish, however, that it should be considered that we are unwilling to render all the support that it is in our power to give. In the telegram which your Excellency sent to the Secretary of State at the beginning of January 1917, you said that India should agree to bear all the charges which she could according to her circumstances and her position. I have not got that telegram with me, but that was what your Lordship pointed out in the telegram which you sent to His Majesty's Government and to the Secretary of State. All that I am urging now is that our help should be limited by a consideration of what we can bear. It has been said that the poor will not be taxed ; but, in my humble opinion, it will not be possible to meet all the extra charges which are likely to be thrown upon us by the Resolution by means of merely an excess profits tax. I fear that other taxes will have to be imposed, and I fear that it will be a misfortune if fresh taxes are levied.

" One last word more, my Lord. We, the non-official Members are asked to decide the fate of this important Resolution by our exclusive votes. This means that we should take the responsibility of putting fresh burdens and fresh taxation upon the people. If the Government were to agree to leave the adjustment of these burdens, the decision as to what taxes should be levied in order to meet these burdens to us, the non-official Members, I should feel in a better position to vote than I do at present. As matters stand, my Lord, I submit with all humility that as the power of imposing taxes rests practically exclusively with the Government, I do not feel myself justified in undertaking the responsibility of assenting to that burden. I hope, my Lord, the matter will be looked at by His Majesty's Government and the Government of India in that light, and I do submit to your Lordship that you will find that there is a great volume of opinion in the country which will echo my request that the cost of the additional troops which we are to bear should be met out of the £100 million that we have already promised, and that only when that sum is exceeded should we be asked to make a further money contribution to the war."

11-38 A.M.

The Hon'ble Mr. Kamini Kumar Chanda :—" My Lord, I wish to make a free and voluntary confession to the Council. Yesterday when I read the text of the Resolution standing in the name of the Hon'ble the Finance Minister and of the amendment of which my Hon'ble friend Mr. Sarma gave notice, I felt that to be on the safe side it would be better following the precept of the ancient Hindu politician 'Chanakya' who said : 'Don't trust Government and another class of persons' to have the emendment embodied in the Resolution. But, my Lord, after hearing the speech of the Hon'ble the Finance Minister, and his luminous presentation of the matter, I felt that there was really not much need for anxiety. And when in addition to that my Hon'ble friend Mr. Sastri proposed that the speech of the Hon'ble the Finance Minister should form part of the Resolution, and the Hon'ble the Finance Minister himself offered to accept an amendment to the Resolution giving effect to the suggestion, I thought, my

RESOLUTION re FINANCIAL ASSISTANCE IN RESPECT OF THE COST OF THE MILITARY FORCES RAISED, OR TO BE RAISED, IN INDIA.

[Mr. Kamini Kumar Chanda.] [10TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.]

Lord, that all anxiety on the score was removed, and that there is not much reason to support the amendment of my Hon'ble friend Mr. Sarma. The anxiety which he felt has been met by the assurance that the Hon'ble Sir William Meyer has given. Honestly speaking, I do not think Government could go beyond the assurance which the Hon'ble the Finance Minister has seen his way to give. Therefore, my Lord, I do not wish to support the amendment of my friend Mr. Sarma. One word in connection with this matter. The Hon'ble Mr. Hogg thought that the amendment of the Hon'ble Mr. Sastri was unnecessary, and that the Government would be bound by the speech of the Hon'ble Sir William Meyer. But, my Lord, I am afraid the Hon'ble Mr. Hogg is not correct in this. The Courts in England and India have held repeatedly that it is not relevant to the interpretation of an Act to refer to the speech of the Member who introduced the Bill. Therefore, it was quite correct for my Hon'ble friend Mr. Sastri to have made that amendment, which I am glad to find the Hon'ble the Finance Minister has accepted. In speaking on the motion of the Hon'ble Mr. Banerjea on Friday last on the Reforms Scheme, I ventured to suggest that a more real and substantial advance should forthwith be made towards responsible government. The principle on which I based that submission is the very principle which has prompted me to-day to give my humble support to the Resolution which was placed before the Council by the Hon'ble the Finance Minister. My Lord, when we ask for self-government, we must give proof of our appreciation of the responsibilities which participation in the administration carries with it. It will not do to evade that duty, and I think we shall not be true to ourselves if we do not show our readiness to bear the burden which will be laid on us.

"My Lord, in addition to this, there is this much to be added. The Hon'ble Members of this Council, all of us, or most of us, as Members of the Delhi Imperial War Conference, have already committed ourselves to the principle of this Resolution. The Resolution which was adopted unanimously by the Conference pledged this country to give all help to the Empire in this matter to the utmost of our capacity, and this Resolution is only an application of the decision of the War Conference. Of course by accepting this Resolution, it is obvious that we do not commit ourselves to support any tax that will be proposed by the Hon'ble the Finance Minister, and we shall have full right to criticise any proposal of taxation which may be brought forward afterwards. It shows that we need not be at all anxious in accepting this Resolution which has been placed before this Council. I am one of those who really believe that the British connection with India is an act of direct Divine dispensation. We see in it the finger of God and believe that it is absolutely necessary for the good of both countries. Our allegiance to this connection is deep-rooted and we feel that everything ought to be done to strengthen and to cement it, everything ought to be done to make the people feel and realise that they are really an integral part of the Empire, that the Empire belongs to them as much as to anybody else, and that it is their duty to do everything to strengthen that bond, their organic relationship to the Empire. My Lord, we thus feel it is our moral duty to help the Empire in the hour of its need, to stand by it, to live for it, and, if need be, to die for it.

"It is quite true, my Lord, that we have done much in the past in discharging our duty in this matter. We have given freely of men, money and resources, which will all stand to our credit, and we may justly feel proud of it. But, my Lord, more is required. The work is not finished. The enemy is still knocking at the gate, and we cannot rest on our oars but must go on and win the war. Of course it is a very serious matter. We all feel it is a very terrible business. Fresh contributions coming on the top of the 100 million pounds direct contribution which we made the other day, in addition to millions we have given in the shape of men, services, stores and ammunition, will bleed the country white. For years to come there will be no money for the development of the country, for the industries, for sanitation, for education. People will be ruined, whole communities and interests will suffer, institutions may have to be closed down. All this is very appalling and painful to contemplate. But, my Lord, it is as nothing compared to the momentous issue before us, which is nothing less than a question of life and death. For what remains of life, my Lord, if serfdom comes which will be the case unless the Central Powers are crushed. I therefore think, my Lord, that all these considerations must be laid aside, and we must give all we can to the Empire. Your Lordship and the Right Hon'ble the Secretary of State for India have pointed out that the war is not yet won, and that until the war is won there can be no realisation of India's aspirations. That is an obvious truth which we must lay to our hearts, and we must make every sacrifice to help the cause of the Empire. I shall conclude my remarks, my Lord, by quoting the gracious words of His Majesty, that 'the Empire's need is India's opportunity'."

11-46 A.M.

The Hon'ble Dr. Tej Bahadur Sapru:—"My Lord, it was on the 3rd of this month that I came to know, at an informal conference with the Hon'ble the Finance Member, of the terms of this Resolution; and ever since that date I have given it my most anxious consideration. Now, my Lord, so far as the Resolution itself is concerned, it embodies a principle and asks this Council to recognise that principle. It asks the Council to recognise that India owes a certain duty and an obligation to the Empire, and it also suggests the manner in which that obligation can be discharged.

"Now, my Lord, so far as that principle is concerned, I do not think there is one among us who has any the least hesitation in accepting it whole-heartedly. I do recognise without any reserve and without any qualification the obligation of India to stand by the Empire through thick and thin at this crisis; but I confess that the implication of this Resolution, namely, that it involves a certain amount of taxation, has given me considerable anxiety, and it was not until yesterday morning, when I heard the speech of the Hon'ble the Finance Member, that I was able to make up my mind definitely. Having heard the speech of the Hon'ble the Finance Minister, and having subsequently listened to the speech of my Hon'ble friend Mr. Sarma and the proposal which the Hon'ble the Finance Member has subsequently made by way of an amendment—which, unfortunately, from my point of view, was not accepted by the Hon'ble Mr. Sarma—I had no hesitation at that time in making up my mind.

"My Lord, one anxiety that was present in my mind was what the effect of this Resolution might be on the poorer classes; and I am glad to find from the speech of the Hon'ble the Finance Member that, so far as the poorer classes are concerned, they will not be unduly pressed. He has further given us the assurance that, in the event of any trouble arising on our own front, or in the event of the Government having to face an anxious agricultural situation or a famine on a large scale, this arrangement will have to be reconsidered and there will be no double taxation. My Lord, in view of these assurances, and in view of the clear statement made on that point, I have come to the conclusion that I must support this Resolution. But, my Lord, while I do support the Resolution, I desire it to be distinctly understood that I am not committing myself to any particular form of taxation. I reserve to myself the liberty of expressing my opinion with regard to any form of taxation when any scheme may be laid before the Council. It is from that point of view that I have no hesitation in supporting the Resolution as amended by my Hon'ble friend Mr. Sastri. I wish even now that it was possible for my friend the Hon'ble Mr. Sarma to accept the suggestion made by the Hon'ble the Finance

RESOLUTION re FINANCIAL ASSISTANCE IN RESPECT OF THE COST OF THE MILITARY FORCES RAISED, OR TO BE RAISED, IN INDIA.

[Dr. Tej Bahadur Sapru; Khan Zulfiqar Ali Khan.] [10TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.]

Member, because if it were accepted by him, I think it would meet the wishes of many of us."

11-50 A.M. The Hon'ble Khan Zulfiqar Ali Khan:—"My Lord, the Hon'ble the Finance Member, in moving his Resolution, has fully explained the needs which are pressing on the Empire at the present moment. He has also explained by what methods he wants to raise the money which is absolutely necessary to maintain the Expeditionary Forces which India has sent out to the different fronts. He has fully explained that his new proposals are confined only to the tax on excess war profits, and that they do not mean the laying of any burden on the poor.

"After hearing some of the speeches, it seems to me that some of the non-official Members are hostile to the idea embodied in the Resolution. It seems to me, my Lord, that we in India, at a distance of six or seven thousand miles away from the theatres of this world wide war, do not fully realise the mighty issues involved. The fate of the world hangs in the balance. The liberties of nations are either to be crushed or they are to be maintained. The one point which has to be realised is this, that there is a conflict between two ideals. On the one side, there is the idea of liberty: on the other side, the idea of force. The British, the Americans, and the French, by their love of liberty, by their love of justice, have established a dominion over the human mind, and the Germans, by their cult of force, as inculcated by their Professors and as practised by the Junkers, have enjoyed the privilege of inspiring the most violent antipathy in the world. The ideals of the Allies have won for them the co-operation and alliance of practically all the world, while the ideals of the Germans have excited against them the bitterest hatred and fear. On the one side, there is the ideal of domination; on the other side, there is the ideal of championing the cause of a weak and helpless nation. We have to choose between these two ideals. A German victory would mean the extinction of all liberty of thought and action; the victory of the Allies would mean the maintenance of those liberties. I do not think that much reflection is required to choose between those two ideals. Once we choose, there is no sacrifice from which we should shrink. Some Hon'ble Members, by their speeches, have shown that whereas they are quite willing to make all sacrifices as regards men, as regards money, they are not quite prepared to make any sacrifice. There is a Persian saying, which says,

> 'If you ask for my life, I will not hesitate; but if you ask for money, I feel reluctant.'

Well, my Lord, seeing that the Germans have a design on the liberties of India, I must impress it on my non-official colleagues that this is no time for hesitation or for petty considerations. They must make up their minds that they have not only to maintain their own liberties, but have to help in maintaining the liberties of the world, without which I do not think that the world would be worth living in. My Lord, the Allies have cultivated the arts of peace, and the Germans have cultivated war as a fine art. How long will the world be tortured by the horrors and the miseries of this war? We must make every sacrifice that is possible for the successful conclusion of this war. Now, my Lord, when the Finance Minister has clearly laid it before the Council that his Resolution does not mean any extra taxation on the poor, I do not see why there is so much hesitation on the part of the non-officials to meet his demands; and I would once again impress it on their attention that at this juncture, when Great Britain wants our help, we must not lag behind. It would mean that we were not conscious of those great ideals for which we are fighting. My Hon'ble friend Mr. Sastri said yesterday that the Hon'ble the Finance Member's Resolution had put him on the horns of a cruel dilemma. My Lord, I think on the contrary that the Finance Member's Resolution has put us in a very proud position.

RESOLUTION re FINANCIAL ASSISTANCE IN RESPECT OF THE COST OF THE MILITARY FORCES RAISED, OR TO BE RAISED, IN INDIA.

[10TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.] [Khan Zulfiqar Ali Khan; Mr. K. V. Rangaswamy Ayyangar; Mr. V. J. Patel.]

It enables us to take advantage of the opportunities which it offers us for the manifestation of those personal responsibilities to the great events which are now happening in the world and which are the surest foundation of conscious citizenship. With these ideas and guided by this spirit, I beg to support the Resolution as amended by the Finance Minister."

12 P.M.

The Hon'ble Mr. K. V. Rangaswamy Ayyangar:—" My Lord, while I can appreciate the need and the claims of His Majesty's Government, I cannot shut my eyes to the dangers that India is subject to and will be subject to in the near future. We should also not ignore the low recouping power of India overtaxed, backward, and without fiscal rights. The question to us should be, how far we can impose upon the country this new burden? By the decision of the Government of India to leave the matter in our hands, I take it that the matter is not of paramount importance. If this had been a matter of imperious necessity, the Government would have taken upon themselves the responsibility and made the arrangements themselves. Obviously the matter is such that can take the risk of being thrown out by the non-official element of the Council who are afraid of taxation, and who are of opinion that it is certain to prostrate Indian finances. I dismiss that appeal of some of my colleagues that if this is given the war will be won, and otherwise the whole thing will be against us, as a sentimental harangue. While this gift will be nothing to Great Britain, it is a great thing for India. No doubt a part of the pay of the soldiers would come to India as remittances for families, but this is out of proportion when we consider the strain we are to impose upon ourselves. So I think we must not go beyond the Parliamentary Resolution of November 1914, and thank ourselves that we did sacrifice to the unimaginable extent of making a gift of 100 millions last year. We do not know what taxation will be imposed and whose rights will be interfered with. The speech of the Finance Member in the Budgets of 1917 and 1918 and also in yesterday's Council, as well as some indications in the Reform proposals carrying the threat to the permanently settled estates, are ominous Sir William Meyer says assenting to the Resolution is automatically assenting to taxation and that of the rich alone. We will have no voice in taxation and our hands will be tied when taxation proposals come. Unless we have the right to order extensive retrenchments in the civil administration and to resort to the imposition of necessary tariffs, it will be a disastrous financial policy to go on piling up our expenditure as proposed now, and the assent to this by us, non-official Members, would be like riding a horse when the bridle and whip are not in the rider's hands.

" My Lord, I am sorry such expressions of opinion are being characterised as taking a 'sordidly selfish' view by Sir William Meyer. But that will not prevent me from expressing my mind on the occasion that I shrink from assenting to this Resolution."

12-4 P.M.

The Hon'ble Mr. V. J. Patel:—" My Lord, I confess I find myself in a very difficult situation. I know on the one hand that the country is poor; I know that its resources are limited; I also know that its domestic needs are great and pressing; I further realise that its agriculture and industries need to be developed; I do not and cannot shut my eyes to the fact that disease and suffering, due to want of education and extreme poverty, require to be ameliorated without delay, and I also realise that a great many pressing problems of internal importance are staring us in the face. On the other hand, it is said that it is not wise to shut our eyes to the fact that our enemies in India and elsewhere will make a political capital out of our adverse attitude towards this Resolution. In this state of circumstances, I repeat, I find myself in a very, very difficult situation. If this question were really to be answered on the ability of India to pay this further contribution, I would and should unhesitatingly say 'No, I shall not support the Resolution.' But then this consideration of our enemies making a capital, a political capital, out of our refusal to support this Resolution troubles me, and I am therefore not in a position to decide exactly what I should do in the peculiar circumstances of this Resolution. Your Excellency, I must say that the Government in choosing this procedure of asking the non-official Members to take the responsibility in regard to this Resolution has put them in a very awkward position. I do not know why Government should not have taken that responsibility themselves. Rights and responsibilities, my Lord, go together. You have got the power to get any supplies you like; you have got the power to get any legislation you like. And why, I pray, put the non-official Members in this awkward hole? There are one or two points which I should like to say in connection with this Resolution. We are told that we are not asked to give a blank cheque to the Government of India in this connection. I beg to differ from this view. If you carefully analyse the speech of the Hon'ble mover, you will find that we are not to stop at 45 millions. He clearly tells us that the estimates are only rough, and that there are several matters which are still indeterminate. If that is so, I do not really understand whether it is proposed to stop at 45 millions, or whether we are also asked to assent to any further contribution that may be found necessary as a result of these indeterminate factors......

RESOLUTION re FINANCIAL ASSISTANCE IN RESPECT OF THE COST OF THE MILITARY FORCES RAISED, OR TO BE RAISED, IN INDIA.

The Hon'ble Sir William Meyer:—"May I explain that the chief indeterminate factor to which I referred was the length and character of the war."

The Hon'ble Mr. V. J. Patel:—"I beg to point out that the factor, length and character of the war, is already separately mentioned. It is stated further on in the same paragraph that if the war lasts longer than anticipated, India's contribution will be proportionately increased. That is another factor which, in considering this proposal, we have to pay due attention to.

"Then, there is another difficulty, your Excellency. It is a question that this tax will fall merely on those who have derived profits owing to this war, because the Hon'ble Sir William Meyer is perfectly clear and frank when he says that so far as possible this amount will be realised by taxation on excess war profits, but that the hands of Government in this respect should not be fettered, and that they should be left perfectly free to tax any other class of people that they think necessary. That being so, it is perfectly clear, as my Hon'ble friend Pandit Malaviya has just pointed out, that as it will not be possible to meet this extra demand by taxation of war profits merely you shall have ultimately to resort to other taxation also. If, therefore, it is a question of consenting to the power to be given to the Government of India to tax the poor people, I for one am not prepared to support the Resolution in the form in which it stands. With these few observations I close my speech."

12-19 P.M.

The Hon'ble Sir George Lowndes:—"My Lord, I beg at the outset to congratulate the majority of the Council on the tone of the speeches that we have heard during this debate. We have had this Resolution acclaimed, if I may say so, by representatives of almost all the great nations in India, Mussulman, Hindu, Sikh, and, I hope before the debate closes, of the Parsis. I could have wished that the Resolution might be carried unanimously. I think India will lose by the small minority who will vote against it, but that minority is, I venture to submit, negligible not only in numbers, but in argument. It is to them alone that I propose to address myself.

"We have heard much of the poverty of India, but the Council has been assured that there is no intention of laying a heavy burden upon the poor of this country in connection with any further contribution that we may make. But, my

RESOLUTION re FINANCIAL ASSISTANCE IN RESPECT OF THE COST OF THE MILITARY FORCES RAISED, OR TO BE RAISED, IN INDIA.

[10TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.] [Sir George Lowndes.]

Lord, is India so poor when the balances we have with our bankers in England run to 83 millions upon which we shall assuredly be able to draw at the end of the war? It is upon this balance that it is suggested that we should indent now and upon nothing else. The ways and means question, the provision of the actual money for payments, as my Hon'ble colleague has pointed out, is one which will not be affected. These are payments that we shall make in any case. The only question is, whether these payments are to be debited to the Home Government and added on to our bankers balance, or whether India will bear the burden herself?

"To my Hon'ble friend Mr. Sarma 'the economic prosperity of the Indian people'—the words are his own—is dearer than anything else,—so dear that all he is prepared to agree to is a contribution of what we can comfortably spare in India. 'Leave us the rest of our wealth', he pleads 'in order that we may make more. India needs it.' But is it for India that individuals make their wealth? Is it to pay the cost of Sanitation and Education that fortunes are laid up in India? Is it out of these fortunes that sums are contributed for these purposes apart from taxation and what the Government provides for them. Is it for these purposes that fortunes are accumulated in India? I fear not.

"Then, again, my Hon'ble friend spoke of the 'remote connection of India with the causes of the war',—again his own words. My Lord, is that the sentiment of a grown up daughter of the Empire? 'Remote connection with the causes of the war'? The Hon'ble gentleman seems to forget that if India is of the Empire, then if the Empire is at war, India is at war. If the life of the Empire is the life of India, then the battles that are being fought for it, whether on the fields of France or in the deserts of Mesopotamia, are the battles of India and India must fight them.

"My Hon'ble friend Pandit Malaviya spoke of India 'helping England.' Is that again the sentiment in which we are going to vote on this Resolution to-day? 'Helping England!' What we are asking India to do to-day is to take her share in the great burden of the Empire and not to help England. We are not here as a Government to beg for England. We are merely to point out to India her opportunity.

"Then we have heard of sacrifices. I doubt if the gracious message of His Majesty the King-Emperor which spoke of 'the sacrifices without which no high object can be achieved' referred to the vicarious sacrifices which apparently a little India party would think sufficient—of others' lives, be paid for by the money of others again.

Has the pinch of the war touched any of the well-to-do classes in India? Yet the Council has been told that it is only on the wealth of these classes that there is any suggestion of laying the burden of further taxation. Have we in India felt the horrors of the war which other parts of this world have felt so unhappily? Has it been brought home to most of the well-to-do in India that we are at war at all? Have we forgotten the 'Emden' and what the freedom of the seas has meant to India? Without it where would India's prosperity and India's wealth be to-day? Is not the Navy fighting for India as much as for any other part of the Empire?

"And then there is that last eggregious argument; 40 millions is so much to India and so little to England. Let us stand aside' the Hon'ble Member says, and give nothing in addition to what we have given already. We want the

RESOLUTION re FINANCIAL ASSISTANCE IN RESPECT OF THE COST OF THE MILITARY FORCES RAISED, OR TO BE RAISED, IN INDIA.

40 millions; England can do without it; let England pay the cost of the war. Let England achieve the peace for which we are all longing so much, and India will enjoy it. After all, what the Council has been asked to vote for to-day is only to turn what has always seemed to me to be the mercenary army of India into a real Indian Army. We are surely not going to say 'We will give the blood of our sons, but will not pay them. We will leave it to England to pay'.

"All that we are asking the Council to do is to say that India shall pay not only with her blood, but with her money. Which is the more precious thing to a country, her life blood or her money?

"I pass on to other speeches that have been delivered. I remember the Hon'ble Mr. Khaparde's speech; he apparently welcomed the proposal, he told us that his heart was in this Resolution, that his heart dictated to him to vote for it. He will not be far wrong if he follows the dictates of his heart in this case; it is but a faint response to the pulsations of the great heart of India.

"Then, my Hon'ble friend the Pandit in a notable speech told us that when £100 millions were contributed by India it was not a free vote.........

The Hon'ble Pandit Madan Mohan Malaviya:—"I did not say that, my Lord, I said we all agreed to it"

The Hon'ble Sir George Lowndes:—"I regret that my ears should have taken in a different sound to what the Hon'ble Pandit intended. At all events we have what I may call his posthumous association with the £100 millions.

He imputes to us a desire to bargain when we proposed a contribution of £100 millions. We did not bargain with His Majesty's Government. So far as the Government of India was concerned it was a free offer, and an offer which was endorsed by this Council. I used to think that the Hon'ble Pandit was a leader of men. If he has time to stay for a division to-day, we shall know of whom he is a leader in this Council. I fear there will be few to follow him.........

The Hon'ble Pandit Madan Mohan Malaviya:—"I have never claimed to be a leader in this Council or elsewhere. I am a follower of my conscience, my Lord, and I hope I will continue to be so despite the fulminations of the Hon'ble the Law Member."

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur Mian Muhammad Shafi:—"My Lord, if a man follows conscience he should have the strength to vote in accordance with it."

His Excellency the President:—"Order, order, Mr. Shafi has already spoken."

The Hon'ble Sir George Lowndes:—"The Hon'ble Mr. Patel is also unable to support this Resolution. He gave us frankly the contents of his mind, the pros. and cons. The 'pros' were not a very high ideal. It was only a doubt whether it might not be a good political investment to make a further contribution to England. That again, I take it, is not the spirit in which most of the Members of this Council will vote for this Resolution. He shrank, it seemed to me, from this, almost the first touch of responsibility that has been laid on Hon'ble Members. He said, why put it upon us to decide this question? Let the Government decide. I am afraid the time is coming when the Hon'ble Mr. Patel will have to take more responsibilities than this.

RESOLUTION re FINANCIAL ASSISTANCE IN RESPECT OF THE COST OF THE MILITARY FORCES RAISED, OR TO BE RAISED, IN INDIA.

[10TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.] [Sir George Lowndes; Mr. Surendra Nath Banerjea.]

My Hon'ble friend is a representative of the great Bombay Presidency which I know and love so well. He comes here, by the votes of 28 constituents, to vote against this Resolution. I doubt if his 28 constituents will support his vote to-day. I am sure that the great Presidency to which I have referred will not do so. There is no more loyal province in this country, and I shall be greatly surprised if they endorse his representation of it to-day.

"My Lord, if I have spoken warmly it is because I feel deeply. I am jealous for the future reputation of India. I want to see India do her part as a great daughter of this Empire. I want her to come up to the great expectations which have been entertained of her, and which I hope she will realise on an occasion like this."

The Hon'ble Mr. Surendra Nath Banerjea :—"My Lord, there is one remark of the Hon'ble speaker who has just sat down (Hon'ble Sir George Lowndes) to which I take exception. He observed that there is no more loyal Presidency than the Presidency of Bombay. I venture to enter a respectful protest against that observation on behalf of the great Presidency which I have the honour to represent. I will say mine is the premier Presidency in loyalty and devotion, and we have maintained that position by our splendid contribution to the war loan of this year, and I hope we shall maintain that premier position by keeping the top place in the war loan this year. 12-24 P.M.

"My Lord, I have given this matter the most anxious consideration that I could. When we came here we did not know that our votes would be wanted with regard to this grave problem. I have not had the opportunity of consulting my constituency ; my Lord, the mandates of constituencies are helpful, but we are not only to follow them implicitly, I think it is our duty to lead our constituencies to what is proper, right, loyal, and patriotic. I remember the great dictum of Edmund Burke, addressed to the Sheriffs of Bristol, in connection with a memorable event and a memorable occasion. He laid down the dictum, and it is a universal truth binding upon us all, that we are bound to give to the mandates of our constituencies the greatest consideration, the most sympathetic consideration, but we are not to be guided by them, we are to be guided by our own consciences ; we are to be guided by the deliberations that take place in the Legislative assemblies to which we may belong. However indulgent, however sympathetic we may be towards the mandates of our constituencies, we are to form our own judgments independently and try to lead and guide them.

"My Lord, I believe my duty in this matter is not only to act rightly, but to lead the conscience and judgment of the country to recognize that what we have done is right. I have no hesitation in supporting the Resolution which the Hon'ble the Finance Member has placed before us, coupled with the amendment of my friend the Hon'ble Mr. Sastri. The Hon'ble Pandit Madan Mohan Malaviya has told us that we are in a difficult position. My Lord, the post of danger is the post of honour. I admit that we are in a difficult position, but we are also in a highly honourable position. For the first time in the history of this Council, the Finance Member has before taking action consulted us with regard to a financial matter of the greatest importance. Is not that a position of honour, is not that a position of responsibility ? He might not have done so at all. He might have acted upon his own initiative. Parliament might have passed a Resolution in regard to this matter which would have been binding upon your Excellency's Government ; but we are here called upon to say what we think of this proposal, and furthermore we have been told that if we disagree, it will be dropped. Therefore an added responsibility is imparted to our position, and it seems to me that we have not only a responsibility to our Motherland, but also to the Empire, and the responsibilities to the Motherland and the Empire are bound up together in the present case. I think, my Lord, that my friends here take too despondent a view of our resources. My Hon'ble friend Pandit Malaviya said the other day that I was an optimist. Yes, my Lord, I am an optimist to the marrow of my bones. I have great faith in the political capacity of my countrymen, and also an abundant measure of faith in the expansiveness of our industrial resources. And I do think that if our resources are properly organised, controlled and guided, as your Excellency has suggested in the Reform Proposals, the darkness and gloom which clouds our minds at the present moment will disappear, and all these pessimistic fears about the future financial catastrophe and the bankruptcy which awaits us, if we accept this Resolution, will dissolve themselves into thin air. I do not think the financial situation is so bad as my friend represents it to be. I think our revenues have proved elastic, and I trust that, in consequence of the industrial development which is bound to take place, if the Reforms Proposals are given effect to, our resources will expand, our wealth will increase and the proceeds of our taxation will be more fruitful.

RESOLUTION re FINANCIAL ASSISTANCE IN RESPECT OF THE COST OF THE MILITARY FORCES RAISED, OR TO BE RAISED, IN INDIA.

[Mr. Surendra Nath Banerjea.] [10TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.]

"My Lord, this Resolution which has been placed before us is merely the operative part of similar propositions to which the country stands pledged. My Lord, from the floor of this Council Chamber, from our public meetings, from our patriotic demonstrations, the cry has gone forth of a united people determined to stand by the Empire in this crisis, and we are pledged to do our utmost in the defence of the Empire. Is all this but a sounding brass or a tinkling cymbal? Are we to be profuse in our protestations of loyalty and devotion to the Empire, but when the time comes to translate words into deeds, are we to exercise a wise self-restraint in loosening our purse-strings? Let us see to it that our words bear fruit in deeds, and here is an opportunity for translating our words into real living acts of self-sacrifice which will redound to the credit of the Motherland and the glory of the Empire.

"My Lord, my friend the Hon'ble Mr. Patel has referred to what our enemies will say if we do not accept this Resolution. We aspire to the privileges of the Empire, we ought to be in a position to participate in the burdens of the Empire. We aspire to be full-fledged citizens of the Empire, we ought to be in a position to participate in the self-sacrifice which that position entails. Therefore, I hope and trust that this Resolution, coupled with the amendment of my Hon'ble friend Mr. Sastri, will be accepted with practical unanimity by the non-official Members of this Council. I do not use the word 'practical' in the sense in which the Hon'ble the Home Member said the other day that he as a Judge of the High Court had used it. Practical unanimity here means real unanimity. May I hope that the voice of dissent will be withheld in the performance of what I deem to be a highly patriotic duty? My friend is afraid of the condemnation of a section of my countrymen if we accept this Resolution. My Lord, we ought to face unpopularity in the discharge of a patriotic duty to the Motherland and the Empire. Popularity is a very transitory thing. It comes and goes. A man may be popular and a demi-god to-day, he may be pulled down from his position the day after; but the voice of conscience and of duty prevails. What is our duty at the present moment? That is the question. I desire to put to the non-official Members of this Council what is our bounden duty and what is expedient in the interests of the country? The interests of the country and the interests of the Empire are one. If the Empire suffers this country will suffer, and if the British democracy were to feel that in this great crisis of the Empire we had not performed our obligations to the Empire, the prospects of our political elevation would receive a shock and a check from which it would take years to recover. We are in view of the promised land, bright visions of political emancipation are about to open out to us. Are we going to darken those prospects by an act which is bound to tell against the best prospects of the Motherland and which would be a slur upon our loyalty and devotion to the Empire and the cause of freedom? I hope and trust—I repeat once again—that the vote of this Council will be practically a unanimous vote in support of the Resolution of my Hon'ble friend the Finance Minister."

RESOLUTION re FINANCIAL ASSISTANCE IN RESPECT OF THE COST OF THE MILITARY FORCES RAISED, OR TO BE RAISED, IN INDIA.

[10TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.] [Mr. Surendra Nath Banerjea ; Sir William Meyer.]

The Hon'ble Sir William Meyer:—"I should like, my Lord, to make a few remarks before we proceed to the voting on this amendment. The procedure we have introduced in connection with this Resolution and by consequence in connection with the amendments is really a great step in a democratic direction. We could have introduced the Resolution simply after consultation in your Excellency's Cabinet; we could have carried it by the official vote. We have not done this; we have left the Resolution to the vote of the non-official Members. And my Hon'ble friend Sir George Lowndes and I, before the Resolution came on, asked some of the Members to meet us confidentially to discuss it. And yet I am surprised to find that this is objected to because it puts Hon'ble Members in an awkward position. My Hon'ble friend Sir George Lowndes has dealt with that argument. I will only add, with reference to the Hon'ble Pandit's remarks, that we acted in accordance with Parliamentary procedure even in democratic countries. We, the Government, are responsible for expressing our opinions as embodied in this Resolution, but we leave it to the non-official Members of the Council to accept or reject. Similarly, the responsibility, if the Resolution is carried, as I am sure it will be, of finding ways and means in connection with the carrying out of that Resolution must rest with the Executive Government as it would rest in the most democratic country in the world. But, as has been said by a previous speaker or two, when we come to formulate our proposals for taxation, they will involve legislation and will come before the Council. Moreover, we took another new departure in that I lifted part of the veil which must necessarily still shroud the coming year's Budget, and I gave certain undertakings as to the character of the future taxation, which my Hon'ble friend Mr. Sastri by his amendment practically embodies in the Resolution. I would remind the Council too that in moving this Resolution, we are really, as my friend the Hon'ble Sir Gangadhar Chitnavis pointed out yesterday, carrying out the spirit of Resolutions formerly passed in this Council. Sir Gangadhar himself shortly after the outbreak of war, moved, and carried with unanimity, in this Council, a Resolution to the effect that the people of India, in addition to the military assistance now being afforded by India to the Empire, would wish to share in the heavy financial burdens now imposed by the war on the United Kingdom, and requested the Government of India to take this view into consideration, and thus demonstrate the unity of India with the Empire. And on the 24th of February 1915, Mr. Madhu Sudan Dass moved a Resolution, which was also unanimously carried, setting out the unswerving resolution of Indians to support the honour, dignity and prestige of the Empire regardless of the sacrifice it may entail on them. Well, we might under the letter of those Resolutions have carried out a more extensive programme of contributions and taxation than we have as yet done; but we went slowly. The Government, and the Finance Member in particular, have been assailed with criticisms from various quarters for not doing enough in this connection. But we held to the interests of India first and foremost, and we adapted our financial policy so as not to press hardly on the people of India We first of all took over a share of the expenditure in connection with the Expeditionary Forces by foregoing the normal charges; and then, in 1917, when our own financial situation justified us in doing more, we got to the 100 million contribution, of which I am glad to learn now that the Hon'ble Pandit approved. The Hon'ble Pandit suggests that that was regarded as a final measure. It was certainly regarded as a final measure at that time, because at that time we were all, unfortunately, unduly optimistic as to the end of the war. We thought that the 100 million pounds would be enough. But I have already pointed out in my speech in moving this Resolution how the war has been prolonged, and the additional dangers which beset India. In these circumstances, it is not in the least inconsistent with our previous grant of a hundred millions that we should now come forward and offer more. I may observe too, with reference to the Hon'ble Pandit's suggestion that we should meet the charges it is now proposed to bear, from the £100 millions, that, as another Hon'ble Member pointed out, that would be a mockery. The £100 million was a free and unconditional gift. As my Hon'ble Colleague Sir George Lowndes indicated just now, it was some acknowledgment of the way in which the British Fleet has kept the seas free for India's trade. It was also a set-off to the greatly increased war charges in India which were falling on His Majesty's Government. As I pointed out in my speech yesterday, although we are at present bearing the normal cost of an army of 160,000 men, the total army raised by India has been greatly increasing; and now we come to a time at which we think that, owing to the unhappy prolongation of the war, the £100 millions requires to be supplemented by a further contribution.

"I do not quite understand the attitude of the Hon'ble Pandit, because he says 'I quite accept the desirability of India's bearing the charges the Finance Member puts forward, but let us bear them out of the £100 millions.' At the same time, he says he wants an excess profits tax. He criticised me, by the way, for not having brought in an excess profits tax before. That is a matter of opinion, but I do not remember any word from the Hon'ble Pandit asking me to bring in an excess profits tax in connection with previous Budgets. Well, apart from that, he says 'I want an excess profits tax.' Pray what for? By his own argument we do not want it for the expenses of the war, because that is to come out of the £ 100 millions......

The Hon'ble Pandit Madan Mohan Malaviya:—"Not to meet the expenditure, but to contribute towards the £100 millions. You have raised 60 millions. If you raise 40 millions more, you will meet the charges which you now propose to take up."

The Hon'ble Sir William Meyer:—"The £100 millions was a capital contribution, the interest charges on which have to be met, and the principal of which we will gradually liquidate. The Hon'ble Pandit apparently wants to devote the excess profits tax to liquidating the principal more rapidly.

"One Hon'ble Member suggested that the matter of this Resolution was not of primary importance, or it would not have been left to the votes of the non-official Members. Well, there are cases, of course, which are of such primary necessity that the Government, under the present constitution, must take the responsibility: we cannot leave them to the votes of the non-official Members. But as I pointed out yesterday, if this contribution were not made, it would not affect the war. England would pay. For that reason we have left the decision to the non-official Members. And may I remind them that this money is largely an insurance for keeping the war off our borders. If we had a war on our borders, India would have to pay, and we could then not leave the matter to the votes of the non-official Members; we should have to bring the whole strength of the Government to bear on meeting the military operations and their cost. But at present we are in a happier position, and we leave the matter to the votes of our non-official colleagues. I need not repeat what I said yesterday about this money that we are going to give. I accept the statement of the Hon'ble Member who said it was trifling compared with what England is paying for the war; but I say it is anything but trifling as an example of India's loyalty and devotion. That is the issue to-day. Are we going to give a further proof of our solidarity with Great Britain, of our love for the Empire, of our determination to do what we can to see this war through? Or are we going to stand aside and say, as one or two Hon'ble Members have said, 'Oh, well, the war is all right, because England has got to win it in any case and England has got to pay. Let us keep our hands in our pockets and get the benefits which the peace will bring.' I submit, my Lord, that that is an unworthy attitude, and I trust that the voting on this amendment will show that it is shared by a very small fraction of my non-official colleagues."

RESOLUTION re FINANCIAL ASSISTANCE IN RESPECT OF THE COST OF THE MILITARY FORCES RAISED, OR TO BE RAISED, IN INDIA.

[10TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.] [Sir William Meyer; The President; Mr. M. A. Jinnah.]

His Excellency the President:—" I will now read to Hon'ble Members the Resolution and the two amendments which have been moved. I shall then put the Hon'ble Mr. Sastri's amendment to the vote. The Resolution being moved by the Hon'ble Sir William Meyer is to the following effect:—

12-47 P.M.

'That this Council recognises that the prolongation of the war justifies India's taking a larger share than she does at present in respect of the cost of the military forces raised or to be raised in this country.'

To this Resolution the Hon'ble Mr. Sarma has moved an amendment: that the following words be added at the end of the Resolution:—

'Provided that no further taxation is imposed except in respect of excess profits derived during the war.'

The Hon'ble Mr. Sastri has moved a further amendment that the following words be added at the end of the Resolution:—

'And recommends that such larger share be to the extent and under the conditions and safeguards indicated in the speech of the Hon'ble the Finance Member in moving this Resolution.'

"I shall put Mr. Sastri's amendment to the Resolution first."

The Hon'ble Mr. M. A. Jinnah:—" May I rise to a point of order? I understood the Hon'ble Mr. Sastri's amendment was not to the amendment, but to the Resolution."

His Excellency the President:—" If the Hon'ble Mr. Sastri's amendment is carried, it disposes of the Hon'ble Mr. Sarma's amendment altogether, because it is a direct negative to the Hon'ble Mr. Sarma's amendment, and will therefore abolish it. The Hon'ble Mr. Sarma's amendment finds no part in the Hon'ble the Finance Member's speech, and it would therefore be excluded by the Hon'ble Mr. Sastri's amendment being carried. I am now going to put the Hon'ble Mr. Sastri's amendment."

The motion was put and agreed to.

His Excellency the President:—" As I have already ruled to the Hon'ble Mr Jinnah's point of order, the adoption of Mr. Sastri's amendment removes the Hon'ble Mr. Sarma's amendment from the paper. I am now going to put the Resolution as amended to the Council:—

'That this Council recognises that the prolongation of the war justifies India's taking a larger share than she does at present in respect of the cost of the military forces raised or to be raised in this country, and recommends that such larger share be to the extent and under the conditions and safeguards indicated in the speech of the Hon'ble the Finance Member in moving this Resolution'.

PROCEEDINGS OF THE INDIAN LEGISLATIVE COUNCIL ASSEMBLED UNDER THE PROVISIONS OF GOVERNMENT OF INDIA ACT, 1915.
(5 & 6 Geo. V, Ch. 61.)

THE Council met at the Council Chamber, Viceregal Lodge, Simla, on Wednesday, the 11th September, 1918.

PRESENT :

The Hon'ble SIR GEORGE LOWNDES, K.C.S.I., K.C., Vice-President, presiding, and 55 Members, of whom 48 were Additional Members.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

The Hon'ble Rai Bahadur B. D. Shukul asked :— 11-6 A.M.

Rise in the price of cloth, etc.

1. " (a) Is it a fact that high prices of cloth and other necessaries of life, such as food-grains and kerosine oil, etc., are causing acute distress among the people? If so, is it a fact that this rise in prices is as much due to speculation on the part of traders as to economic causes arising out of the war?

(b) If the answer to (a) be in the affirmative, what action has been taken in each Province, or is proposed to be taken, to put a stop to such speculation and to regulate prices?

The Hon'ble Sir George Barnes replied :—

" (a) It is, I regret to say, a fact that the high prices of cloth and other necessaries of life, such as kerosine, and in certain places, food-grains, are causing distress among the people. The increase in prices is due to the economic position created by the war, which has unfortunately in some cases been taken advantage of by speculators.

With regard to the second part of the Hon'ble Member's question, a detailed statement* is laid on the table, explaining the steps which have been taken, or are under contemplation, for the control of prices of commodities most used by the poorer classes. I may inform the Hon'ble Member, however, generally what we have already done.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

[Sir George Barnes; Rai Bahadur B. D. Shukul; the Commander-in-Chief in India; Mr. Kamini Kumar Chanda.] [11TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.]

In the case of salt, every effort has been made to increase the outturn of the salt sources; Local Governments have started shops for the sale of salt under Government or Municipal control; and powers have been taken to give priority for supplies of salt to these controlled shops. The Government of India and the Local Governments now have power to prescribe maximum prices for the sale of commodities of general use, whenever it is shown to be necessary in the interests of public safety.

Schemes for the sale under control of kerosine oil have been brought into operation by several Local Governments to prevent profiteering, and to ensure that the public get the benefit of the favourable price at which the oil is supplied by the Oil Companies to their sub-agents. In the Province of Bombay, similar schemes apply to firewood and charcoal.

To meet the case of high prices of cotton cloth, a Bill was introduced on the 4th of this month to secure the manufacture, at reasonable rates, of the kinds of cloth worn by the poorer classes and for their distribution to the public through licensed traders and municipal shops.

The high prices of cotton cloth have in part been produced by speculation in raw cotton, and in order to check this speculation, the Bombay Government have been provisionally empowered to set up a Cotton Exchange and to control transactions in raw cotton of the 1918-1919 crop. These provisional powers will be brought before the Bombay Legislative Council for confirmation."

The Hon'ble Rai Bahadur B. D. Shukul asked :—

Results of recruiting for the Indian Army.

2. " (a) Will Government be pleased to lay upon the table a statement of the results of recruiting for the Indian Army, Province by Province, since the 1st May 1918 up to July 31st, showing the monthly quota fixed, the number of recruits obtained, combatants and non-combatants, as well as the total number and the percentage of the male population of the Province fixed as the monthly quota ?

(b) Is it a fact that the problem of voluntary recruiting in India is becoming more and more difficult, and if so, will Government state in detail what action has been taken, or is proposed to be taken, to popularize recruiting in each Province ?"

His Excellency the Commander-in-Chief in India replied :—

" (a) It is not in the public interest to give the detailed figures asked for.

(b) Far from becoming more difficult, recruiting on a voluntary basis continues to improve, and is now on a most satisfactory footing. As the Hon'ble Member is aware, a substantial increase was recently made to the emoluments of Indian officers and other ranks, for the period of the war. These measures have proved conspicuously successful in stimulating recruiting. The results for July were substantially in advance of those for any month since the beginning of the war. In these circumstances, no further action is called for in this respect at present."

The Hon'ble Mr. Kamini Kumar Chanda asked :—

Appointment of Civilian Judges to temporary vacancies in the Calcutta High Court.

3. " (a) Have the temporary vacancies in the Calcutta High Court caused by the deputation of the Hon'ble Justice Sir Asutosh Mookerji and the Hon'ble Mr. Justice Beachcroft, respectively, been filled up by District Judges who are members of the Indian Civil Service ?

(b) Is it a fact that temporary vacancies are as a rule filled by appointing such District Judges ? Is any inquiry made before doing so whether suitable Barristers or Vakils are available ?

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

[11TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.] [Mr. Kamini Kumar Chanda; Sir William Vincent; Maharaja Sir Manindra Chandra Nandi; Sir Robert Gillan; Sir Dinshaw Wacha.]

(c) Is it in contemplation to appoint an extra Judge to the Calcutta High Court? If so, will Government be pleased to consider the question of appointing a Barrister or a Vakil?"

The Hon'ble Sir William Vincent replied :—

"(a) The answer is in the affirmative.

(b) Temporary vacancies in the High Court are frequently, though by no means always, filled by the appointment of District Judges who are members of the Civil Service, when it is considered undesirable to appoint practising members of the local Bar to the Bench for short periods.

(c) The Government of India are not in a position to make any definite statement regarding the appointment, save that it will be filled by a barrister."

The Hon'ble Maharaja Sir Manindra Chandra Nandi asked :—

Abandonment of the Khulna-Barisal Railway project.

4. "Has the project of a railway line connecting Khulna with Barisal in Bengal been abandoned?

If so, will Government be pleased to state the reasons for this?"

The Hon'ble Sir Robert Gillan replied :—

"The project for a railway connecting Khulna with Barisal and Faridpur has been abandoned for the following reasons :—

(a) in the opinion of the Government of Bengal the tract through which the line would pass is already sufficiently well served by water communications;

(b) the cost of provision of the necessary headway and waterway at the bridges for the steamers belonging to the Inland Steamer Companies is prohibitive;

(c) it is believed that the construction of a railway embankment in this area would so interfere with its drainage, as seriously to affect the health of the population."

The Hon'ble Sir Dinshaw Wacha asked :—

Postal clerks.

5. "Will Government be pleased to place on the table a return showing :—

(a) the total number of postal clerks who were serving in the different post offices of each of the provinces of India and Burma on 31st March 1918 on—

(1) a salary ranging from Rs. 20 to 50,
(2) Ditto do. „ 51 to 100,
(3) Ditto do. „ 101 to 150,
(4) Ditto do. „ 151 to 200;

(b) the total cost of war or grain allowances or both granted in each province to such clerks; and

(c) the total amount of increase sanctioned in each province for each class of such clerks from 1st April 1918, the date of such increase and the date when the increase came into operation in each province?"

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS; THE INDIAN PAPER CURRENCY BILL.

[Sir George Barnes; Sir William Meyer; Rao Bahadur B. N. Sarma.] [11TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.]

The Hon'ble Sir George Barnes replied :—

" I place on the table a return* giving the information desired.

The increases have been brought into operation at various dates between the 1st of April, 1918, and the 31st of August, 1918, and I presume that the Hon'ble Member does not require a return showing the exact date from which each particular increase has been given effect to.

I add for the Hon'ble Member's information a further statement showing further increases of pay which have been sanctioned and which will be brought into operation as soon as possible during the present financial year."

THE INDIAN PAPER CURRENCY BILL.

11-13 A.M. The Hon'ble Sir William Meyer :—" I beg to move that the Bill to provide that silver held on behalf of the Secretary of State for India in Council or the Governor General in Council may, if so held in the United States of America or in course of transmission therefrom, be deemed to be part of the Reserve referred to in section 19 of the Indian Paper Currency Act, 1910, be taken into consideration. I explained the objects of this Bill last week that it was necessary in order to meet the present currency situation, in which we depend so largely for our necessary supplies of silver on the United States, and that it continues the provision of an Ordinance which the situation required us to issue earlier in the year. Further, that it was a war measure to provide for present conditions, and would therefore remain in force only during the continuance of the war, and for a period of six months thereafter. We have had no criticisms on the Bill and I need not therefore make any further remarks."

11-14 A.M. The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur B. N. Sarma :—" Sir, inasmuch as it is not proposed to refer this Bill to a Select Committee, but to pass the measure into law to-day, I beg leave to make a few remarks in order that I may obtain further information from the Hon'ble the Finance Member to enable me to vote intelligently on this Bill, for I find it difficult, with the information at my command and the thought I have given to the subject, to give my assent to this Bill. The object of treating the silver bullion in the United States as silver held in India for the purposes of the Currency Act may be either to inspire confidence in the public, to fulfil a statutory requirement, to enable the Government to make further purchases of silver, that is, enhance its resources, or to meet trade facilities. The last two reasons were the reasons that were urged by the Hon'ble the Finance Member when the Council was asked to give its assent to a somewhat similar measure in connection with the gold and silver that were purchased and were being coined in Australia. Now, with regard to the first point, namely, as to whether, by treating silver in the United States as silver held in India for the purposes of the Currency Act, we will inspire confidence in the public, I must unhesitatingly say, no. It is only when silver is available for actual exchange purposes to meet the note issues when the notes are presented for exchange that there would be confidence. The mere fact that there is silver in the United States will be published by the Government of India for the general information of the public and will inspire such confidence as it may, but a further statutory enactment would not inspire any greater confidence than the mere publication of the fact that the Government have at their command those silver resources in the United States would by itself add.

THE INDIAN PAPER CURRENCY BILL.

[11TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.] [Rao Bahadur B. N. Sarma.]

"Then coming to the question of the statutory requirement. It would enable the Government to reduce in a way the metallic portion of the currency in the currency chest and increase its security portion, otherwise it has no object. There is no statutory limitation by which the Government must hold a particular proportion in metallic currency, but there is a practical limitation by saying that the Government cannot invest in securities more than a certain amount. Now the result of that has been that we have not been able to hold in the Currency Reserve a metallic portion larger than one-third of the whole. On the 19th February 1918, when our total issue was 104 crores of rupees, we had in the currency chest 42 crores 52 lakhs either in silver, or in gold, or in bullion. Now on the 22nd August, when our note issue was 130 crores of rupees we held in the currency only 39 crores, that is 3 crores less than what we held on the 19th February, and we have about 5 crores of rupees in the United States of America. That is, putting the two together, we have 44 crores, or nearly one-third. If the 39 crores alone be taken it would be less than one-third. The securities we held as against the 104 crores in February were 61 crores, 10 of the Government of India and 51 in England, whereas we increased the securities in England to 75 crores, the total amount of securities thus becoming 85 crores. My object in mentioning these figures is to show that to enable the Government to treat the United States bullion as bullion in the currency chest for the purposes of the Act would only encourage them to be a little more liberal in their investments in securities, and that is a danger which we have to take into consideration, unless there are countervailing advantages to be gained from such a course. Now, Sir, I beg to submit that this theory that, by issuing one-rupee currency notes, we will be enabled to help the Government of India by keeping two-thirds of it in securities is a theory which has not been in actual practice found correct. I find that just before the war the total note issue was 68 crores of rupees. It is now 130 crores, or an increase of 62 crores of rupees. Now what do we find with regard to the metallic portion? We have increased the rupee circulation by 60 crores—

In 1914 we coined	...	...	...	...	4 crores,	88 lakhs.
In 1915	...	...	...	...	1 ,,	52 ,,
In 1916-17	...	...	...	...	30 ,,	77 ,,	and
In 1917-18	...	...	...		23 ,,	87 ,,

Therefore for every rupee added by way of note circulation we had to coin a rupee either by way of subsidiary coins or by a whole rupee. We had to coin in metallic money exactly the same equivalent, certainly more if the gold and subsequent silver coinage be added.

"Therefore, the theory that we are saving by this note issue and adding to the currency circulation, I think is not very accurate, and it will be dangerous to proceed upon the theory that we can invest any portion of our note circulation in securities without impairing the confidence of the public in our note circulation. I need hardly allude to the fact that, unfortunately, during recent months, the confidence of the public in the note circulation has been impaired, and we should never hereafter embark upon any measure which might increase the apprehensions of the public that the Government are supplying the people with paper and taking away their money. It is absolutely an erroneous impression, I quite concede, but in order to enable us to meet the trade facilities and to increase our securities in England we are impairing that confidence, and it is leading to a dangerous position, because, with a smaller metallic currency, we were able to exchange notes just before the war, and shortly after the war, whereas we have had to coin during recent years 60 crores of rupees, and even now the mints are very busy coining money, and yet are unable to meet the demand for conversion. It is noteworthy, Sir, that between February and August we increased the note circulation by 26 crores of rupees, and that is approximately the amount of the excess exports which had to be met by the Council Bills, i.e., about 21 crores were the Council Bills that we met during the last four months. As to whether the profits which we derive by these excess exports cannot be paid for by a long term bond is a matter which the Government, I think, may take into consideration. But I humbly submit that by having to pay in the shape of notes first, thereby increasing the currency and prices and then manufacturing notes and coin to meet that seems to me hardly a correct procedure. If we are to meet the 21 crores excess profits by having to pay for them, I do not see any reason why, when a few months thereafter you have to coin metal, silver or gold, you should not straightaway do that and not unnecessarily increase the currency. At any rate there seems to be no real reason why we should treat the bullion in the United States of America as metal available for our currency purposes at the present moment. Nothing is lost if this Bill is not passed into law. We have 75 crores of rupees in securities and in Treasury Bills which would be available for the purchase of silver in the United States. Therefore, I would respectfully ask for further information for my enlightenment, so that, if any portion of my argument is absolutely unsound, I may correct myself and vote for the Bill."

11-25 A.M. The Hon'ble Sir William Meyer:—"Sir, I rise to address myself in all humility to the task the Hon'ble Member has laid upon me of trying to get him to vote intelligently on this subject.

"The Hon'ble Member in the first place seems to me to lay too much stress on the distinction between metallic currency and paper currency. If you coin more rupees and issue them to the public the effect on prices—though, as I have said on previous occasions, there are other factors—is really just the same as if you issued notes; and, as His Excellency pointed out the other day, it is a much more wasteful process.

"The Hon'ble Member also referred to the state of things existing before the war during which, except in regard to a fixed investment of 14 crores, we had to put silver or gold into the Paper Currency Reserve against all notes issued, and he seemed to think that we have made a material change from that situation. Well, we have made a material change, but we have made it not by a departure in principle, but by a departure in degree. We still hold to the principle that the Paper Currency Reserve must contain coin or bullion equivalent to the notes in circulation, save in so far as we are authorised by law to replace part of that coin or bullion by investment. The Hon'ble Member will perhaps recollect that under the stress of war we have very largely increased that investing power, but it has in every case been done by law and with the full assent of the Council. So that even if we were, as the Hon'ble Member suggests, actuated by the desire to use the provisions of this Bill in order to increase our currency investment, we should not be able to do so. We should have to go to the Council for an alteration in the law.

"The Hon'ble Member further suggests that it makes no difference to public confidence whether we show a large or a small amount of silver in our returns week by week in the Paper Currency Reserve. I say there is a great difference. He is right of course in saying that the ultimate test is whether people who bring their notes to the Currency Offices can get them cashed. Perfectly true; but if people see that our metallic reserves are growing they do not bring their notes to the Paper Currency Offices in such quantities as would otherwise be the case. That has been very well brought out by the events of the last few months. As our reserves of rupees were diminishing the pressure on our Currency Offices in regard to the encashment of notes grew. Now that our reserves are increasing, it has diminished. There is, therefore, a great deal in confidence arising from the perusal of our weekly Paper Currency returns.

"Then, my Hon'ble friend asks what the practical advantage of this Bill is. The practical advantage is that as he, I think, knows our stock of rupees in the Currency Reserve is subject, in these times of war, to great strain. We have for example to make heavy war payments on account of His Majesty's Government. We make those as much as we can in notes. But when we issue notes, save in so far as the investment provisions under which we can act allow us to dispense with this, we have got to keep money or bullion in the Paper Currency Reserve against them. In some cases, too, we have to issue rupees at once. Well, the stock of rupees in our treasuries may go down, and in that case we may want to transfer rupees from Currency to Treasury.

THE INDIAN PAPER CURRENCY BILL; THE GOLD COINAGE BILL; THE ENEMY TRADING ORDERS (VALIDATION) BILL.

[11TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.] [Sir William Meyer; Sir George Barnes.]

"Now all this Bill practically says, is—'You have got a lot of silver in the United States of America, which is yours; which you have bought; and which you know will be out presently and be available for coinage. You may, to meet a temporarily difficult situation, treat that silver as part of the Paper Currency Reserve, and, consequently, make a freer use of the rupees you already have.' But, I may explain that we do not intend to show automatically all the silver we possess in America in these returns, any more than we used to do in the old days in regard to all the silver bullion we happened to possess in London. We shall only use the power now in question as appears to be necessary in order to help our currency difficulties.

"The provisions of this Bill are therefore not obligatory on us: they are merely a safeguard for a temporarily difficult situation. So far from the powers taken under the Ordinance and now to be continued by the Bill—so far from their being, as the Hon'ble Member suggests, a prelude to further investment of the Paper Currency Reserve, it is just the other way round. I may say that the other day the demand on our rupees was so great that we should have had to make further investments from the Currency Reserve but for the use of this American silver. It is therefore a safeguard against further investment and not an incitement. I do not think I need add any further remarks, and I hope my observations will have the right effect upon the Hon'ble Member."

The motion was put and agreed to.

The Hon'ble Sir William Meyer :—"Sir, I now move that the Bill be passed."

The motion was put and agreed to.

THE GOLD COINAGE BILL.

The Hon'ble Sir William Meyer :—"Sir, I beg to move that the Bill to provide for the coinage of a gold coin at the Mints referred to in the Indian Coinage Act, 1906, be taken into consideration. 11-33 A.M.

"Here again, the Bill continues the provisions of an existing Ordinance and was explained in my speech on its introduction last week. I do not think I need make any further remarks, except to say that we have received no criticism on the subject of the Bill."

The motion was put and agreed to.

The Hon'ble Sir William Meyer :—"I now move that the Bill be passed."

The motion was put and agreed to.

THE ENEMY TRADING ORDERS (VALIDATION) BILL.

The Hon'ble Sir George Barnes :—"Sir, I beg to move that the Bill to terminate doubts which have arisen as to the continuance in force of notifications, orders and rules made or issued under the Enemy Trading Ordinance, 1916, be taken into consideration. 11-34 A.M.

THE ENEMY TRADING ORDERS (VALIDATION) BILL; THE INDIAN ARMY (SUSPENSION OF SENTENCES) AMENDMENT BILL; THE INDIAN DEFENCE FORCE (FURTHER AMENDMENT) BILL.

[Sir George Barnes; H. E. the Commander-in-Chief in India; Pandit Madan Mohan Malaviya; The Vice-President.] [11TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.]

"As I pointed out, Sir, on the 4th of this month, when this small Bill was introduced, it is a purely technical Bill, and its only object is to put an end to certain doubts which might be raised and which it seems desirable to remove."

The motion was put and agreed to.

The Hon'ble Sir George Barnes:—"I beg to move, Sir, that the Bill be now passed."

The motion was put and agreed to.

THE INDIAN ARMY (SUSPENSION OF SENTENCES) AMENDMENT BILL.

11-37 A.M. His Excellency the Commander-in-Chief in India:—"I beg to move for leave to introduce a Bill to amend the Indian Army (Suspension of Sentences) Act, 1917. The object of this Bill is clearly set forth in the Statement of Objects and Reasons. The repeal of section 15 of the Indian Army Act has necessitated some consequential modifications in certain sections of the Indian Army (Suspension of Sentences) Act, 1917. Advantage is being taken of this opportunity to make certain minor amendments in the latter which the experience of a year's working has shown to be desirable. No new principles are involved. The changes referred to are unimportant and call for no remark."

11-38 A.M. The Hon'ble Pandit Madan Mohan Malaviya:—"Sir, may I take this opportunity of bringing to the notice of His Excellency the Commander-in-Chief and the Government the desirability of dealing with the question of flogging when this Bill is being considered. Sir, I have found in the course of our experience in connection with recruiting that the fact that such punishment can be inflicted is really acting as an impediment to recruitment in many places. . . .

The Hon'ble the Vice-President:—"I am afraid I must remind the Hon'ble Member that any question outside this Bill is not before the Council. The question at this moment is not whether this Bill shall be taken into consideration, and there is no amendment before the Council. I must rule therefore that the Hon'ble Pandit's suggestion is out of order."

The Hon'ble Pandit Madan Mohan Malaviya:—"I bow to your ruling, Sir."

The motion was then put and agreed to.

His Excellency the Commander-in-Chief in India:—"I beg to introduce the Bill, and to move that the Bill, together with the Statement of Objects and Reasons relating thereto, be published in the Gazette of India in English."

The motion was put and agreed to.

THE INDIAN DEFENCE FORCE (FURTHER AMENDMENT) BILL.

11-39 A.M. His Excellency the Commander-in-Chief in India:—"Sir, I beg to move for leave to introduce a Bill further to amend the Indian Defence Force Act, 1917. Under the Indian Defence Force Act military training is compulsory in the case of European British subjects between the ages of 18 and 50. It has been represented that there are men over 50 years of age who were volunteers prior to the creation of the Indian Defence Force, and who are anxious to serve with the latter. At present they are debarred from doing so owing to their being over age. We are anxious to meet the wishes of those who are fit for military duty by allowing them to enrol themselves voluntarily, either for general or for local service, as may be found most suitable, having regard to their physical qualifications and personal inclinations. Special rules will be made enabling them to be relieved of any liabilities so undertaken, should circumstances render it desirable. We do not expect any large increase in numbers from this source, but it will enable Government to utilise the services of many patriotic volunteers who are still active and efficient and who are desirous of prolonging their military service till the end of the war."

The motion was put and agreed to.

His Excellency the Commander-in-Chief in India :—"Sir, I beg to introduce the Bill, and to move that the Bill, together with the Statement of Objects and Reasons relating thereto, be published in the Gazette of India in English."

The motion was put and agreed to.

THE INDIAN COMPANIES (FOREIGN INTERESTS) BILL.

11-40 A.M.

The Hon'ble Sir George Barnes :—"Sir, I beg to move for leave to introduce a Bill to take power to prohibit the alteration, except with the sanction of the Governor General in Council, of Articles of Association, which restrict foreign interests in certain Companies, and to provide for other purposes connected therewith.

"This Bill closely follows the lines of an Act which has been passed in the United Kingdom, and it seems wise that its provisions should be made law in this country also.

"The reason for the Bill I can explain in a very few words. Certain companies operating in this country have, with the approval of the Government of India, purged themselves of enemy control or enemy taint, and have adopted Articles of Association restricting the transfer of their shares to enemy aliens. Besides these existing companies, it may be thought necessary in the case of a new company undertaking work which is of importance to the security of this country or of the Empire as a whole to require that similar restrictions should be included in its Articles of Association. I need not tell you, Sir, or the Members of this Council who are learned in the law, that Articles of Association so amended can, in the ordinary course, be changed again by a vote of the shareholders. The object of this Bill is to prevent any such change without the consent of Government. To turn to the Bill itself, the first two clauses contain the name and definitions only. Clause 3 declares that the Bill shall only apply to notified companies, and clause 4 declares that such companies shall not change their Articles of Association without consent, and shall not evade the Act by means of the winding up of the company. Sir, I beg to move for leave to introduce the Bill."

The motion was put and agreed to.

The Hon'ble Sir George Barnes :—"Sir, I beg to introduce the Bill, and to move that the Bill, together with the Statement of Objects and Reasons relating thereto, be published in the Gazette of India in English."

The motion was put and agreed to.

THE COTTON CLOTH BILL.

11-44 A.M.

The Hon'ble Sir George Barnes :—"Sir, since the Cotton Cloth Bill was introduced on the 4th September, a wish has been expressed by several Members of this Council that the Bill should be referred to Select Committee, and I am very glad to be able to meet the wishes of those Members in that respect, and to move that the Bill to take powers to provide for the cheap supply of cotton cloth to the poorer classes of the community be referred to a Select Committee consisting of the Hon'ble Sir George Lowndes, the Hon'ble Sir Fazulbhoy Currimbhoy, the Hon'ble Rai Sita Nath Ray Bahadur, the Hon'ble Mr. Muddiman, the Hon'ble Sir Dinshaw Wacha, the Hon'ble Mr. B. N. Sarma, the Hon'ble Mr. Fagan, the Hon'ble Mr. Ironside, the Hon'ble Sir Verney Lovett, the Hon'ble Mr. Low, and myself, with instructions to report on or before the 18th September, 1918."

11-45 A.M. The Hon'ble Mr. M. A. Jinnah:—"Sir, as the Council is aware I was entirely opposed to the principles of this Bill, and I am still opposed to the principles of this Bill. But I do not wish to object to this motion that it should be referred to Select Committee, and I shall be very glad to see how far the Select Committee can really make the Bill acceptable. I reserve all my rights fully to oppose the Bill on principles as well as on details when the Select Committee's Report is submitted to us."

11-46 A.M. The Hon'ble Sir Fazulbhoy Currimbhoy:—"Sir, I have no objection to refer the Bill to Select Committee, and I also reserve my remarks and criticisms until the Bill comes before us after passing through the Committee."

11-46 A.M. The Hon'ble Pandit Madan Mohan Malaviya:—"Sir, I should like to know if the Government have considered the two questions that were raised on the day the Bill was introduced, the one with regard to doing something to control imported cloth and to regulate its price, and the other with regard to putting an export duty on cotton, so that cotton may become cheaper and mills may be able to produce cloth cheaper."

11-46 A.M. The Hon'ble Sir George Barnes:—"In answer to the Hon'ble Pandit's question, Sir, the Government have been considering this, and have been considering it for some time past. It is not a matter that really concerns this Bill, and I doubt whether I ought to say anything about it at the present time, but I should be very happy to give the Hon'ble Pandit the fullest information as to what we have done and what we are doing."

11-46 A.M. The Hon'ble Pandit Madan Mohan Malaviya:—"May I explain, Sir, that we want the information now to enable us to say whether the Bill should be referred to a Select Committee or not."

The Hon'ble the Vice-President:—"I venture to suggest to the Council that the best course, if we are to get through our business for the Session, would be that this Bill should go to Select Committee, leaving us free, if necessary, to have a full debate when the Report of the Select Committee comes before Council. I suggest for the convenience of the Council that the views of Hon'ble Members can be given when the Bill comes back to us after emerging from Select Committee."

The motion was put and agreed to.

THE LAND ACQUISITION (AMENDMENT) BILL.

11-48 A.M. The Hon'ble Mr. V. J. Patel:—"Sir, I beg to move for leave to introduce a Bill further to amend the Land Acquisition Act, 1894. The object of this Bill is firstly, to secure to litigants under the provisions of the Land Acquisition Act right of appeal to the High Court in all cases; and, secondly, to restore to them the right of appeal to His Majesty in Council.

"As regards the first, the difficulty which has been created is confined almost entirely to the Bombay Presidency. Under the provisions of section 16 of the Bombay Civil Courts Act (XIV of 1869), where a claim below Rs. 5,000 in value has been decided in the first instance by an Assistant Judge, an appeal from it lies to the Court of the District Judge. In such cases, it has been held that the right of appeal given by section 54 of the Land Acquisition Act (I of

THE LAND ACQUISITION (AMENDMENT) BILL.

[11TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.] [Mr. V. J. Patel; Khan Bahadur Mian Muhammad Shafi.]

1894) is exhausted by an appeal to the Court of District Judge and no further appeal lies to the High Court. This has been laid down in two cases by the Bombay High Court, namely, Vathubhai Narandas v. Monardas Laldas (14 Bombay Law Reporter, 325) and Ahmedbhoy Habibbhoy v. Waman Dhondre (16 Bombay Law Reporter, page 72). It must be borne in mind that even in ordinary cases, when Government is a party, with claim however so little, there is always an appeal to the High Court. It is thought therefore that in proceedings under the Land Acquisition Act (I of 1894) to which the Government is almost always a party, there should be appeal to the High Court irrespective of the amount of the claim, always of course subject to the provisions of the Civil Procedure Code.

"As regards the second, the change sought to be effected is of a more momentous character. Before the year 1916, that is, prior to the decision of the Privy Council in Rangoon Botatoung Company, Limited v. the Collector, Rangoon (14 Bombay Law Reporter, 833), appeal to His Majesty in Council was allowed under conditions laid down in sections 109 and 110 of the Code of Civil Procedure (Act V of 1908). The reported cases show that cases under the Land Acquisition Act (I of 1894) did go by way of appeal now and then before His Majesty in Council, and principles of far reaching importance were laid down in them. In cases, where 'some substantial question of law' has arisen in proceedings under the Land Acquisition Act it is difficult to understand why the aggrieved party should be denied the privilege of appealing to the highest tribunal in the land. Further, in cases where the claim in dispute exceeds Rs. 10,000 in value and satisfies the requirements of section 110 of the Civil Procedure Code, it seems almost an act of injustice to deprive him of his right of taking his case before the Privy Council. In the decision of the Privy Council above referred to, it was held that no appeal from the decision of the Chief Court of Lower Burma in proceedings under the Land Acquisition Act lay to the Privy Council. Since then, this decision has been followed by the Bombay High Court in the Special Officer Salsette Building Sites v. Dossabhai Bezonji Motivala No. 2 (14 Bombay Law Reporter, page 1194), where it has been held that similarly no appeal lay from the decision of the High Court. It is therefore proposed to provide that in proper cases, a party to the proceedings under the Land Acquisition Act should have a right to appeal to the King in Council."

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur Mian Muhammad Shafi:— 11-53 A.M.
"Sir, the Bill which my Hon'ble friend seeks to introduce in this Council is, in my humble judgment, calculated to remove a glaring defect in the existing law, and I have therefore great pleasure in supporting the motion now before the Council. Under the ordinary law of appeal, in all civil suits of value not exceeding Rs. 5,000, whenever there is either a concurrent judgment or a judgment of the Lower Appellate Court modifying the decree of the first Court, there is a second appeal to the High Court on questions of law, and in all suits above the value of Rs. 10,000 where the Appellate Court reverses or modifies the decree of the first Court, there is an appeal of right to their Lordships of the Privy Council; while in cases where the Appellate Court passes a concurrent decree with the original Court, an appeal lies to their Lordships of the Privy Council on the Appellate Court certifying that a substantial question of law is involved in the case. Unfortunately the provisions of the existing Land Acquisition Act do not make any provision at all with reference to either a second appeal to the High Court in cases of the former description mentioned by me or to their Lordships of the Privy Council in the latter class of cases. The injustice to the claimants for compensation in case of compulsory acquisition of land by Government is obvious. But there may be cases in which the Government also may have a complaint against the decision of the High Court with reference to the award of compensation; so that looked at from either point of view, whether in the interests of the claimant, or in the interests of the Government, the amendment which my Hon'ble and learned friend seeks to introduce in the existing law is obviously commendable. This is a defect which ought to have been removed long ago, and I am very glad that my Hon'ble and learned friend Mr. Patel has now asked for permission for the introduction of this Bill in order that that defect may be removed."

The Hon'ble Sir Claude Hill:—"Sir, it will, I think, perhaps conduce to economy of time if I rise at once to explain the position of Government in respect of this motion. We are quite ready to agree to the introduction of my Hon'ble friend's Bill, on the understanding that the Bill shall not proceed beyond the introductory stage until we have consulted Local Governments, and I hope my Hon'ble friend will agree to that understanding. I should like to add that we feel unable to commit ourselves definitely to the principle of this Bill at all events until we have consulted Local Governments, because although the measure sounds a simple one and has obvious arguments in its favour, it is also one which requires careful consideration, and I need only instance the one direction in which such careful consideration is necessary, and that is as regards the question whether appeals should extend to matters of facts as well as to points of law. However, I do not propose to detain the Council longer now, having said that we are willing to admit the motion on the understanding I have mentioned, which I hope my Hon'ble friend will accept." 11-55 A.M.

The Hon'ble Mr. V. J. Patel:—"Sir, I am much obliged to the Hon'ble Sir Claude Hill and the Government for the sympathetic treatment of this question, and I am perfectly agreeable to the Bill being referred to Local Governments for opinion." 11-56 A.M.

The motion was put and agreed to.

The Hon'ble Mr. V. J. Patel:—"Sir, I now introduce the Bill, and move that the Bill, together with the Statement of Objects and Reasons relating thereto, be published in the Gazette of India in English, and in the local official Gazettes in English, and in such other languages as the Local Governments think fit."

The motion was put and agreed to.

RESOLUTION re THE EARLY RELEASE OF INDIAN INDENTURED LABOURERS.

The Hon'ble Pandit Madan Mohan Malaviya:—"Sir, I beg to move the following Resolution:— 11-58 A.M.

'This Council recommends to the Governor General in Council that the Government of India should move the Secretary of State for India to negotiate with the Colonial Office and the Crown Colonies concerning the early release of those Indian labourers whose indentures have not yet expired.'

"I do not wish, Sir, to take up the time of the Council by going into the previous history of this question of indentured labour. We all remember that His Excellency the Viceroy announced in May last that the system was finally abolished, and we have now the assurance of Government that it is not going to be revived. The public of India have felt very grateful for this, and we all hope that in no form will the system be revived again. My proposal to-day is that those Indians who are still under indenture, i.e., whose indentures have not yet expired, should now be released from them. I will briefly state the grounds for this proposal. There are thousands of Indians who are still under indenture, and they are exposed to all the evils which belong to the system. The stigma of the indenture system will go on unabated till 1921, if my proposal is not accepted. When India is asking for a rightful place in the Empire, this badge of helotry ought not to remain and ought to be completely swept away. This is not a mere sentiment, but a practical question. The respect of Australians for Indians cannot be what it should be, while Australians know that near their own shores, Indians are still being worked in men gangs and women gangs under indenture. Presiding over a meeting in

RESOLUTION re THE EARLY RELEASE OF INDIAN INDENTURED LABOURERS.

[11TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.] [Pandit Madan Mohan Malaviya.]

London at which Mr. Polak read a paper on Indian Labour Emigration within the Empire, Lord Carmichael took note of this fact, and said :—

'If there are any of you who want to do away with or modify the feelings of Australians on the subject of white Australia as far as regards India; if any of you look forward to a time when Indians shall be allowed to go backwards and forwards to Australia with the full consent of Australians,—well it is no use your thinking of that as long as indentured labour leaves India. I feel perfectly certain of that. I do not think the average Australian is the least likely ever to welcome the free ingress of any people, some of whom go out as indentured labourers. They may be wrong, but that prejudice, if it is a prejudice, or that well-founded opinion, if it be a well-founded opinion, exists, and I do not think it is the least likely to be modified.'

"This, Sir, is the first ground for my proposal.

"The second is that the indenture has already been broken from the side of the Fiji Government and Planters on account of the war. They are sending no Indian men and women, who have finished their contract, back to India on account of the shortage of ships. The whole of the funds, which the labour of these indentured Indians has earned for their return passage, is being held up by the Fiji Government, which is not now carrying out and cannot carry out its contract. In connection with this question of repatriation, I will quote here from Mr. Andrews who visited Fiji for the second time last year.

"I should like to say here, Sir, that I doubt if we fully realise how much we owe to Mr. Andrews and Mr. Pearson for their self-sacrificing mission to Fiji in 1915, and for the continued interest and repeated mission of Mr. Andrews last year to that island. I do not think that the enormity of the evils of the system of indentured labour would have been so fully realised by us but for the humane efforts of these two gentlemen. Well on this question of repatriation, this is what Mr. Andrews writes :—

'The Fiji Government gave a definite undertaking to each Indian labourer before embarkation for Fiji that his passage back to India should be provided for him free of cost. There are now already many thousands whose claims for a free return passage cannot be met on account of the shortage of shipping. The Fiji Government and the Sugar Companies have taken advantage of the labour of the Indians during the War to make immense profits out of the sugar, but they have themselves appropriated that part of the labourers' earnings which was to pay for their return passages. The Indian labourer notes that the great 'Sugar' steamers ply their trade as usual, but not one of these steamers can be spared to repatriate the labourers who have helped to grow the sugar'

"My third ground is this. Indians have the right of buying off a part of their five years' indenture by payment of a sum of money. This right of commutation has been qualified and restricted by a law passed in Fiji that no commutation should take place until the employers could replace the labourer from a new immigrant vessel. As no vessels are now going with new labourers, the right has practically become a dead letter. The Indians are thus exposed to a serious hardship. Mr. Andrews says :—

'In order to show the extreme tenacity with which the employers are taking advantage of the Indian labourers' helplessness, the following incident is significant: When the Planters insisted that all commutation rights were null and void, I tried to obtain relief from the Fiji Government in the hardest case of all,—the case of a legitimate wife being forced to remain on, under indenture, amid the frightful moral evils of the coolie 'lines' after her husband's indenture had expired. I asked that, in this case, at least, the right of commutation (the husband paying the money due) should be absolute and immediate. There was strong opposition to this among some of the Planters. (One of them actually told me, face to face, that he was against it, as it would increase the disproportion of men to women in his 'lines'), His Excellency the Governor appointed a Committee on which four leading Government officials (Heads of Departments), seven members of the Fiji Legislative Council, and four Planters' representatives, sat together to consider this and other questions. My own proposal, which was put before them, was rejected, and the following resolution was unanimously adopted :

'That, in the opinion of this Committee, commutation of indenture should be allowed (when desired by a female immigrant legally married to an immigrant whose indenture has expired), provided that the husband and wife, if required by the employer, first, by combined effort, work off the number of days to complete the wife's indenture.'

RESOLUTION re THE EARLY RELEASE OF INDIAN INDENTURED LABOURERS.

[Pandit Madan Mohan Malaviya.] [11TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.]

"Mr. Andrews says the words 'by combined effort' were put in italics in the copy given him by the Colonial Secretary, and he goes on to add:—

'Thus according to these gentlemen, including among their number the most responsible members of the Fiji Government, the wife's position of extreme moral danger is to be exploited in order to induce the husband to work off half her time and thus give the employer the advantage of a man's work instead of a woman's.'

That, Sir, is the position so far as the right of commutation is concerned, and I submit that Government should take steps to put an end to the injustice which is being done to those who have earned their commutation.

"My fourth ground is that Indians are exposed to great hardship owing to the rise of prices. The prices of all commodities have gone up enormously during the war. Even, originally, the contract was a grossly unfair one, because information was not given to intending emigrants as to the price of food-stuffs in Fiji. In the Report which Mr. Andrews and Mr. Pearson published in 1916 on indentured labour in Fiji, they said:—

'Another serious omission from the agreement (seeing that those who sign it are for the most part ignorant and illiterate people) is the failure to record the fact that food rates in Fiji differ materially from those in India. The coolie is told in the agreement that he will be paid at the minimum of twelve annas a day; but he is not told that the purchasing power of twelve annas in Fiji is scarcely equal to that of five annas in India. He is not told, also, that more is required in the way of clothing and other necessaries of life in Fiji than in India. So that the bare living expenses are nearly three times as high as in India itself.'

"I drew the attention of the Government to this fact when I moved a Resolution in this Council on the 20th March, 1916, urging the abolition of the system of indentured labour. The Government was pleased to accept the Resolution. Lord Hardinge announced that the Secretary of State had accepted the policy of the eventual abolition of the system which had been advocated by his Government, but that for reasons which he stated a certain period must elapse before the policy could be carried out. We thankfully accepted the decision. But I submitted that so long as the system continued, the Government should see, among other things, that not a single more Indian should be allowed to go out of the country in ignorance of the facts which would materially affect his life and happiness. I did not then specifically refer to the question of the prices of food-stuffs in Fiji, as I had drawn prominent attention to it in my speech when moving the Resolution. It was hoped that the Government would see that the necessary information was supplied to all intending emigrants who subsequently entered into their indentures. Government had not given a formal pledge that they would do so, but the matter was so important that we had every reason to expect that this serious omission would be remedied. I am sure the Hon'ble Member for Commerce and Industry will agree with me in regretting that this was not done. The result has been very unfortunate, for evidently throughout the year 1916, Indian men and women were recruited for Fiji on the old fraudulent terms. The consequences of this omission to supply the necessary information have been deplorable. Mr. Andrews says in his article from which I have already quoted that, when he landed in Fiji in 1917, he found that—

'Those who had recently come out under indenture, instead of getting in Fiji the equivalent of what they could purchase for twelve annas a day in India (as they expected and had every right to expect, being simple, unlettered people), were living in the coolie 'lines' in an impoverished condition, with the war prices continually rising. One of these, a Madrasi, had attempted to commit suicide, by hanging himself, and gave evidence in Court that he could not bear to hear his children crying for food and yet have nothing to give them. During the first month, after my arrival in Fiji, I spent a considerable amount of time investigating this question. I went very carefully into the cost of living and checked all figures from independent sources, such as the retail storekeepers' prices. By going in and out among the Indian labourers it was easy to discount any exaggerations and to arrive at the true facts, which were palpable enough. I laid the information I had gathered before His Excellency the Governor, who told me with some annoyance and surprise that it had not before been brought to his notice. The whole case was also placed before the Planters in the north of the main Island at their Association meetings, and it is a pleasure to record that, in a short time, after consultation with the Colonial Sugar Refining Company's representative (who was visiting the Islands) an advance of 25 per cent in wages was agreed upon. This undoubtedly saved the Indians, still under indenture, from very great hardship and compensated in some slight degree for the fraud which had been practised on them at the time of their recruitment.'

But he adds:—'the mere 25 per cent rise in wages does not by any means cover the whole difference of expenditure. It has been but a palliative, not a real sharing of profits.'

On this further ground then, I submit, that the existing indentures ought to be put an end to.

"Fifthly, and this is the most important of all the arguments in support of my proposal, the gravest moral consideration requires that thi should be done. It has been proved beyond need of further proving that the indentured coolie quarters have become nothing more nor less than brothels. The 'coolie lines' in which the indentured labourers live are long wooden sheds with very thin partitions and no privacy at all, and each partition is occupied by three unmarried men, or else by a family. The root of the evil lies in the excessively low proportion of the women to the men within these crowded coolie lines. According to the departmental statistics the proportion of men to women in the coolie 'lines' under indenture is roughly three to one. According to the information of Mr. Andrews it is four men to one woman. The unspeakable evils which arise from it cry for immediate redress. Mr. Andrews says :—

'By far the strongest ground, in my opinion, for the immediate closing down of the present indentures,—thus making all Indians free—is the moral one. Here higher considerations of statesmanship come in, rather than legal rights or money payments. It has been proved up to the hilt that the coolie 'lines' of Fiji lead directly to the prostitution of the Indian women, and also that there is no possible remedy while women are forced by law to remain against their will in what are, for all practical purposes, brothels. This condition of things should surely not be allowed to go on. The statement definitely made, in the Fiji Government Medical Report, and published by the Fiji Government itself, that, 'one indentured Indian woman has to serve three indentured men as well as various outsiders' is so completely final, coming as it does officially along with the Government of India's own Despatch of October, 1915, that no administration worthy of the name should tolerate for a moment such a state of things, whatever financial inducements might be held out for their continuance.'

"Lastly, Sir, the situation of the whole of the Indians in Fiji has to be considered. They cannot rise in status till this last part of the old system is done away with. They feel intensely the disgrace and the stigma of the indenture, and they long to be free from it as soon as possible. For all these reasons, I submit that steps should be taken to secure the early release of those Indians, whose indentures have not yet expired.

"Before I conclude, I think I should draw the attention of the Indian public and the Government of India, to an extract from the Report of the Colonial Sugar Refining Company for the current year. It runs as follows :—

'Concerning attacks on the Colonial Sugar Refining Company in various Australian papers about the conditions under which the Indian labour is housed and worked in Fiji, it is only necessary to say that all details of the living conditions of these people, and their relations with employers, are strictly ordered in accordance with the regulations laid down by the Indian and Colonial Governments. In respect of health, earning and prospective employment, immigrants are much better off in Fiji than in India, the only serious defect being the discrepancies of the sexes—a point inseparable from emigration from every free country. The attack though apparently directed at the Company is really on the Fiji Government, and it is, we believe, instigated and carried out by the party in India which has for its main object the weakening of British Rule in that country.'

"The party which has laboured in this connection includes the Government of India as well as the public. I do not know what notice the Government of India will take of this scandalous and disgraceful libel both upon the Government of this country and upon its people, for these people say the conditions which prevail in Fiji are conditions which prevail in India. Now, Sir, we have been left exposed to this intolerable libel and disgrace, and

RESOLUTION re THE EARLY RELEASE OF INDIAN INDENTURED LABOURERS.

[Pandit Madan Mohan Malaviya; Sir George Barnes.] [11TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.]

it is time that the Government of India took immediate steps to put an end to the existing indentures which give rise to all this evil. The state of thing created by them has been bad enough from the beginning, but it has been growing worse and worse day by day. Mr. Andrews has pointed out that sexual murders on account of the evils inseparable from the coolie lines have increased since the time the report of Mr. Andrews and Mr. Pearson was written. The latest figures are :-

1915	8 convicted of murder.
1916	15 convicted of murder.
1917 (6 months only)	13 convicted of murder.

This, surely, ought not to go on longer. Government ought not to allow our women to be compelled to work as prostitutes. Every day longer the old system continues is a day of India's degradation. She cannot hold up her head and say that no Indian is any longer under this badge of indenture. While we are talking of the Imperial partnership of India and the other self-governing Dominions, we should leave nothing undone to abolish this virtual slavery and unspeakable compulsory degradation of Indian women who have been led to go to Fiji under a system for which the Government of India and England are responsible.

"I have nothing more to say. I hope the Government will accept the Resolution and do all that lies in their power to put an end to the existing indentures, and thus to release Indians from the intolerable conditions to which they are still exposed by reason of those indentures."

12-15 P.M. The Hon'ble Sir George Barnes :—"Sir, I think it might save the time of this Council if I stated the position of the Government in this matter at this early stage. The Hon'ble Member by his Resolution asks us to negotiate for the release from their indentures of the Indian labourers at present in the Crown Colonies and especially in Fiji. At the outset, I must point out that anything like real negotiation is a difficult matter, when, as the case is, the only quid pro quo that would really appeal to the sugar planting companies is the hope of more labour from India, and this is precisely what we are unable to offer. I will return to this point later. The position in Fiji is, as my Hon'ble friend well knows, that these labourers have bound themselves by contract to serve for a term of five years, at the end of which term, they have the right to return to India, and after ten years' continuous residence, five of which have been working years, they are entitled to a free passage back to India at the expense of the Planters, who also of course have paid for the cost of their importation.

"Now, Sir, I should like to tell the Hon'ble Member that we have not waited for his Resolution to do what was practicable with regard to Fiji, which Colony, I think, he has principally in mind. Our information regarding the position there is much more complete than in the case of the other Crown Colonies, where indeed perhaps owing to the existence of a much larger settled Indian population the evils existing in the case of Fiji are certainly much less marked and to a great extent are non-existent. Last March, His Excellency the Viceroy, who, as every Member of this Council knows, has taken a personal interest in this matter, saw Mr. Andrews on his return from Fiji, and invited him to submit a written statement containing any suggestions he had to make. Mr. Andrews accordingly submitted a memorandum in which he suggested the following reforms :—

(1) that the last remaining years of those still under indenture be closed down at the earliest possible date ;

(2) that at the mill centres the coolie lines be reconstructed so as to give privacy and separateness to married labourers ;

(3) that at the mill centres the hospitals be placed under the supervision of a resident matron ;

RESOLUTION re THE EARLY RELEASE OF INDIAN INDENTURED LABOURERS.

[11TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.] [Sir George Barnes.]

(4) that in future appointments no young unmarried overseer be placed in charge of field gangs of Indian women';
(5) that in future appointments, no young unmarried hospital assistant be placed in charge of an Indian Hospital where there is no matron ;
(6) that an Indian married woman, whose husband's indenture has expired, should be allowed to commute ; and
(7) that no child in the coolie lines shall be compelled on reaching the age of 15 to serve under indenture without his or her own will and consent

"The Memorandum containing these suggestions was sent by His Excellency on the 13th April last to the Governor of Fiji, who was begged to give his personal attention to the points raised by Mr. Andrews. His Excellency also drew special attention in his letter to the moral condition of the labourers, as acknowledged in an official paper of the Fiji Government, and urged that this publication furnished a very sufficient justification for regarding the existing state of things as demanding prompt remedial measures. An answer to this letter has just been received through the Secretary of State for India in which he tells us that the Secretary of State for the Colonies agrees that either points (2) to (5) of Mr. Andrews' memorandum must be carried out, or the labourers released from indenture, and with regard to points (6) and (7) the Colonial Office are willing to amend the law with the object of giving unconditional right to commutation if it is found that sections 2 and 6 of Ordinance No. 28 of 1917 are inadequate. I think I had better tell the Hon'ble Pandit again what points (2) to (5) are. They are as follows :—

(2) that at the mill centres the cooly lines be reconstructed so as to give privacy and separateness to married labourers ;

(3) that at the mill centres the hospitals be placed under the supervision of a resident matron ;

(4) that in future appointments no young unmarried overseer be placed in charge of field gangs of Indian women ;

(5) that in future appointments, no young unmarried hospital assistant be placed in charge of an Indian hospital where there is no matron.

Then the two points on which the Colonial authorities are willing to amend the law are—

(6) that an Indian married woman, whose husband's indenture has expired, should be allowed to commute ; and
(7) that no child in the coolie lines shall be compelled on reaching the age of 15 to serve under indenture without his or her own will and consent.

"Well, Sir, this seems to us a satisfactory advance, and I hope will be looked at in the same light by my Hon'ble friend the Pandit and by the other Members of this Council.

"We know also that the lot of the labourers in Fiji has been in many other respects greatly improved. Imprisonment as a substantive punishment for strictly labour offences has been expunged from the Immigration Ordinances, and an assurance has been received that in none of the Colonies are emigrants employed on work repellent to their caste ideas or religious beliefs. There are already some improvements in the educational arrangements for the children of Indian emigrants in Fiji. Not only are most of the State aided schools now open to them, but some of the mill-owners have entered into arrangements with certain missionary bodies by which, in consideration of donations received from the mills, the latter have undertaken to teach the Indian emigrants at the mill centres concerned.

"I may add that the Fiji Government are now in correspondence with the Government of India regarding the importation of efficient teachers for the Indian Schools in Fiji.

RESOLUTION re THE EARLY RELEASE OF INDIAN INDENTURED LABOURERS.

[Sir George Barnes.] [11TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.]

"The constitution of the Legislative Council in Fiji has been modified by the addition of a seat which may be filled by an Indian, provided he is a British subject and does not hold a public office. An ex-indentured Indian named Badri Maharaj, who had acquired considerable property in the Colony has been accordingly appointed to the Council. This man, who has been elected to the Council, is not at all alone in having succeeded in becoming a considerable landowner after having been an indentured labourer, and this speaks much for the grit and perseverance of the Indians who have emigrated.

"So far as health is concerned, for those who have made Fiji their home, there seems much to be said, for Mr Andrews who has been a source of information to myself and the Hon'ble Pandit writes :—

'More and more it has been borne in upon me by what I have seen that Fiji, as far as conditions provided by nature are concerned, is a good place for Indians to live in. Those who have settled there have told me again and again what a splendid climate it is. It is surprising to see the change which has come over the physical growth of the people in a place like Nadi, on the north of the main island, the breadth of shoulder in the growing lads and their increased stature. The burden of malaria, which has pressed so heavily on the villagers of Northern India, is entirely relieved.'

"But to return to the reforms which have been made,—last year an Act was passed in Fiji to make provision for the purchase of land within the Colony for purposes of Indian settlement. A new Marriage Law was last year passed in Fiji providing for the appointment of Indian priests as marriage officers and the registration of Indian marriages by them without making it compulsory so far as the party to the marriage is concerned. Married labourers are now said to be provided with separate quarters. This, however, I only know from a newspaper report; we have not as yet any official information on the subject.

"All this seems to me to show a substantial advance in a comparatively short time, and may all be said to be the result of pressure exercised by the Government of India.

"With regard to the cancellation of indentures, my Hon'ble friend knows that the Planters in Fiji, and I think in the other Crown Colonies also, are so anxious to get more Indian labour for the sugar plantations that they offered to cancel all existing indentures if the Government of India were willing to accept the scheme of assisted emigration, which was put forward at the London Conference. This scheme, it must be freely acknowledged, was an immense improvement on the old indentured system, but the Government has never accepted it, because they believed that it was not acceptable to public opinion in India, and I imagine that the Hon'ble Pandit does not suggest that the scheme ought to be accepted in order to secure the cancellation of the outstanding indentures.

"Even if it were possible to secure the cancellation of the existing contracts at once, I must point out that it would be impossible with the present shortage of shipping to provide vessels for the return of the labourers to India, for it seems quite clear that all the shipping available will, for some time to come, be needed for purposes, directly or indirectly, connected with the war on the issue of which the welfare of this country and a large part of the world depends.

"With regard to those labourers who have already earned their right to repatriation, the Colonial Governments are without doubt unable at the present moment to fulfil their contracts, because they are unable to get the ships, but my Hon'ble friend may feel assured that no Colony will repudiate any liability it has undertaken to repatriate time-expired emigrants, and if such a contingency ever arose (which we regard as not only unlikely but absolutely out of the question), the Government of India will be ready to make the strongest representation on the subject. If the Hon'ble Pandit really feels any doubt on this subject, I see no objection to asking the Fiji Government or the Government of any other Colony for an assurance that no labourer shall be prejudiced by being unable owing to the shortage of shipping to claim his return voyage within the specified time (which in the case of Fiji is two years) after the right to repatriation has arisen.

RESOLUTION re THE EARLY RELEASE OF INDIAN INDENTURED LABOURERS.

[11TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.] [Sir George Barnes; Mr. M. A. Jinnah; Pandit Madan Mohan Malaviya.]

"The Hon'ble Member has quoted Mr. Andrews, and so have I, and I should like to quote him again. He wrote to me a few days ago saying that his latest news from Fiji was, as he described it, 'distinctly encouraging.' The public, he said, of the Dominion of Australia, where the sugar companies operating in Fiji are mainly, if not entirely, domiciled, has taken up the question of the treatment of the Indian women, and as a result one of these Australian sugar companies, namely, the Melbourne Trust, has already sent a fully qualified matron for that Company's hospital. I think that this Council will be interested to know of this instance of good-will and fellow-feeling between the people of the Dominion of Australia and the people of India. Another instance of the same fellow-feeling is to be found in a letter from the Women's Christian Temperance Union of Western Australia to Mrs. J. B. Petit of Bombay (who headed a deputation of the Women of India to His Excellency the Viceroy in Delhi last year) a copy of which she has been good enough to send to His Excellency. This letter says :—

'We are glad to be able to report to you that two of our West Australian women are already on their way to Fiji to help, one as a teacher and the other as a nurse.'

Another letter from the Women's Service Guild says :—

'We are about two thousand miles away from Sydney, where a large deputation representing most of the women's organizations in Australia, including our own, waited on the Colonial Sugar Refining Company asking for certain reforms in connection with the conditions under which Indian people are working on that Company's plantation in Fiji. We are hopeful that some good will result from this deputation, and we do not intend to let the matter drop. Two of our members have volunteered to go to Fiji to help the Indian people, and we hope they will keep us in touch with what is going on there.

'We women feel akin to the spirit of the motive that has prompted you to take action on behalf of the Indian women in Fiji, and recognise it as part of an evolutionary process which is sweeping through the world and prompting women in every land to join hands and work for the uplift of the human race.'

"I have tried, Sir, to give the Hon'ble Member and this Council all the information that I can. He will see that we are not only willing to open negotiations with regard to the emigrants to Fiji, but opened them some months ago. He may rest assured that we are watching this question with the greatest care, and will leave no stone unturned to secure the well-being of the Indians who have emigrated to Fiji."

The Hon'ble Mr. M. A. Jinnah :—"May I know, Sir, if the Government accept this Resolution?"

The Hon'ble Sir George Barnes :—"So far as Fiji is concerned we are not only willing to open negotiations, but we have opened negotiations."

The Hon'ble Mr. M. A. Jinnah :—"Then, Sir, it is certainly a matter of the greatest satisfaction indeed that there is entire agreement between the policy of the Government and public opinion in this country. I do not wish to detain this Council any more. I am sure that it will give the utmost satisfaction to the public at large in this country when they read the statement of the Hon'ble Member in charge of the subject. Sir, I only wish to say this, and I put this question for this reason, that if the Government will accept the Resolution, it will only strengthen their hands in doing what they have already been doing." 12-30 P.M.

The Hon'ble Pandit Madan Mohan Malaviya :—"Sir, I sincerely thank the Hon'ble Member for Commerce and Industry for the sympathetic statement which he has made and the information he has given us. We are all grateful to him and to His Excellency the Viceroy for the sympathy which they have shown throughout in connection with the question of indentured labour, and we have no doubt that by their kind intervention the conditions of the Indian people in Fiji will be further improved. I am thankful to note that there has been a satisfactory advance in what Sir George Barnes has told us of the negotiations with that Government. I would make a few suggestions for his consideration. One is that as repatriation is not practicable owing to ships not 12-31 P.M.

RESOLUTION re THE EARLY RELEASE OF INDIAN INDENTURED LABOURERS.

being available, some reasonable compensation should be given to those who are kept back or prevented from coming home to India, so that the sense of hardship that they feel may be somewhat mitigated. My second suggestion relates to the question of commutation. The law which lays down that no commutation shall take place until the employers can replace the labour from a new immigrant ship ought to be modified in view of the fact that no ship can carry any new immigrant now. As in one case owing to ships not being available the Planters are excused from repatriating Indians who have finished their indentures, so in the other case the persons who want to purchase their commutation should be allowed to do so, being relieved against the condition of replacement, by a new immigrant, which has become impossible of fulfilment, as ships cannot carry any new immigrants to Fiji at any rate at present. This is my second suggestion.

"The third is with regard to prices. Prices have risen enormously in Fiji owing to the war, and some Planters have agreed to an increase of 25 per cent in the wages of labourers. But the inquiries of Mr. Andrews have shown that this is not sufficient. I submit that it is only fair that the Government should insist upon the wages being raised to a reasonable extent after such inquiry as the Government or some representative of this Government and of the Fiji Government may be able to make and report on. Fourthly, there is the moral evil which is really the gravest in the whole situation. I am very thankful that His Majesty's Government will insist on separate coolie lines being built for the indentured women. But I beg to urge further that some immediate steps should be taken to secure protection and freedom of action and movement to the unfortunate women who are condemned to live at present in the lines that exist. I do not know how long it will take to build the new separate lines, how they are going to be built, and what protection they will afford to the women. My whole anxiety is, and I am sure in this I shall have the sympathy of every Member of the Government here and in England, that the unfortunate women who have been condemned to go to Fiji should be protected from any further compulsory degradation of themselves; they should be protected against all unlawful assaults; they should be placed under conditions in which they can, if they so desire, be free and respectable women. I hope that this will be borne in mind by the Hon'ble Member. I need not refer to the efforts which Mr. Andrews has already made in many of these directions ; the Hon'ble Member is fully aware of them. I believe that if the Government of India will put the necessary pressure, and if the Government in England will put the necessary pressure on the Fiji Government, as they have already put to some extent, the Fiji Government will recognise the wisdom, if not the propriety, of yielding to the representations of the Government of India. The Government of India stand under a moral obligation to do everything that is possible to put an end to any further evils arising from this system, and I hope the matter will be further considered."

The Hon'ble Sir George Barnes :—"I accept the Resolution so far as Fiji is concerned. So far as the other Colonies are concerned, I feel I have not got the necessary information, but I understand that the Hon'ble Pandit will be quite satisfied to confine his Resolution to Fiji?"

The Hon'ble Pandit Madan Mohan Malaviya :—"I am quite willing to confine my Resolution to Fiji for the present, Sir, if you will kindly permit me to do so?"

The Hon'ble the Vice-President :—"That is, to substitute the words 'Indian labourers in Fiji' for 'those Indian labourers'?"

The Hon'ble Pandit Madan Mohan Malaviya :—"If you please, Sir."

The Resolution was then adopted in the following form :—

'This Council recommends to the Governor General in Council that the Government of India should move the Secretary of State for India to negotiate with the Colonial Office and the Crown Colonies concerning the early release of Indian labourers in Fiji whose indentures have not yet expired.'

RESOLUTION re MODIFICATION OF THE INDIAN ARMS ACT.

[11TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.] [Mr. G. S. Khaparde.]

The Hon'ble Mr. G. S. Khaparde :—" Sir, the Resolution which I have the honour to move reads like this :— 12-38 P.M.

'This Council recommends to the Governor General in Council that the Indian Arms Act be so modified as to bring it into line with English legislation on the subject.'

" I do not think it necessary to make a long speech or elaborate the matter much, for the reason that this was discussed at the last Delhi War Conference, and I understood then that the Government was willing to improve this law, or to make alterations in this law so as to bring it more or less into conformity with the English Act. I, however, put forward the Resolution because I did not like that the subject should drop, and I am glad to find that my Hon'ble friend Mr. Surendra Nath Banerjea as also my Hon'ble friend Mr. Patel have put questions on that same point on the 9th instant, the answers to which are to be given under this Resolution. This subject is rather difficult in one sense of the word, or rather in all senses of the word. It looks prima facie right that everybody should not be permitted to carry arms; it also looks right prima facie to say that the possession of arms should be restricted, and should be hedged round by certain precautions. But it also appears to me, and appears to be demonstrated by experience, that these restrictions have only helped to make, the law-abiding and peaceful people armless without any right to possess arms whereas the dacoits and evil-minded persons going about their iniquitous ways have been able to secure arms. So it comes to this, that the more peaceful and good people are helpless and the evil-inclined people have a certain advantage over them. This state of things certainly has to be remedied, and I suggest in my Resolution that this can be done by approximating to the practice that obtains in England. In England, it will be seen that it has been recognised from time immemorial that every private citizen has a right to carry arms, but as occasions arose they limited this right. The earliest law that I can discover is 7, Edw. II, c. 3, which laid down that people may carry arms, but they should not come armed to Parliament. That was the first limitation they imposed. The next limitation was imposed by 2 Edw. III, c. 3, which gave the people the liberty to carry arms, but restricted them from going armed in affrays. That is to say, it gave them the liberty to go armed to any market, but not to go to any big affray and if there is an affray it is certainly right that people should not carry arms. That was the next limitation.

" The third limitation came, and that is rather important, and it is mentioned in 1, Will. and Mary II, c. 2, and it came about in this way. James II, we all know, either ran away, was deposed or abdicated or whatever it was and then William was crowned. About that time they drew up a Will of Rights, and in that the carrying of arms is mentioned very prominently, and there is a very amusing feature about it. They said that James was very wrong, because he allowed Catholics to carry arms but disarmed all Protestants. That was done on religious grounds, and now we can afford to smile at the existence of all these disabilities, because all these distinctions have disappeared.

" Then we have the Acts of 33 and 34 Vict., 1870, which deal with fire-arms, and what I am very glad to find is that in the case of agriculturists and people who have got crops to protect, it is not necessary for them to get a license. They keep fire-arms without any special license; they have a right to have them.

" Then we have the Acts 63 and 64, Vict., 1870, which say that you cannot export arms, but so far as the possession of arms goes, it does allow anybody to carry arms unless I suppose prohibited. Lastly, we have the Act 3 Edw. VII, c. 18, which is popularly called the Pistol's Act, and all explosives and dynamites come under it. But what I particularly wish to bring to the notice of this Hon'ble Council is that in England they look upon it as the right of every citizen to carry arms subject to the limitations which they have imposed, whereas in India unfortunately we began by saying that nobody has got any business to have arms unless he is permitted to do so by certain laws. I wish that we went back and adopted the English principle that everybody has a right to carry arms subject to the limitations which may be imposed, and not that no man is entitled to have arms unless he is permitted to do so. That is the point of view which I wish to place before this Hon'ble Council, and the advantage would be very great indeed. First of all, arms are required for two purposes. One is for the purpose of private defence of property and person, and the second is for public purposes, that is to say, for national defence and national purposes. So far as private purposes go, we know that the Indian Penal Code provides the right of private defence, but to a great extent that right of private defence is minimised or rendered difficult to be exercised by the arms not being allowed to be carried as a matter of right. Supposing a few pigs or wild animals come into my field, I have got every right to kill them, and I suppose the law permits it. But the law says, 'you cannot have a gun unless we permit you.' But I have not got a gun, and the consequence is that the animals come and eat away the crops and no civil suit can be brought against them, as they are not amenable to the jurisdiction of civil Courts; and that is where the difficulty comes in. Similarly, in the case of dacoits, robbers and thieves. In England, it has been the immemorial custom sanctioned, I believe, by law, though I cannot find it myself, if burglars or thieves get into a house, the inmates can shoot them without any question. I can show you, at any rate, I remember, a remark of Sir Henry Maine on his commentaries on the Indian Penal Code to that effect. In India, we have still that right, I believe, that if a burglar gets into my house about midnight and I see him armed and that he has a big weapon, I suppose I can shoot him. But the law here is guarded in various ways. The Indian defence goes on from step to step If the burglar who gets into my house has got a big lathi, though you can beat him and if he is running away with your property, you may shoot him in the leg; the law says that you should not shoot him on certain parts of his body, in the trunk of his body and so on. There are these limitations of law imposed. So, I submit, that this is a state of things which requires to be remedied.

RESOLUTION re MODIFICATION OF THE INDIAN ARMS ACT.

[Mr. G. S. Khaparde.] [11TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.]

"In various parts of my country I find that many agriculturists and poor people lose their crops often by the depredations of wild animals, and it is quite necessary that they should possess fire-arms, not of the best type of Mawser pistols, but small arms like fowling-pieces and shot guns, or anything that will make noise enough to scare away wild animals and birds. They must have a right to possess such small arms without the necessity of applying for a license. For instance, a big man having a large and extensive field and crops should have the right to possess a small fowling-pistol or something which will make noise enough to scare away wild animals and birds.

"Similarly, I also think that bankers and rich men should have the right to possess arms. In these days generally money is sent by post or by railway. But still there are bankers in my rural part of the country where they have got to maintain large balances in their house to lend money to their tenants, and often times also they have to transfer money from one village to another. So I think these people must have certain facilities, that is to say, a person desiring to send anything over Rs. 1,000 should either be entitled to the service of a police-man carrying a gun or his servant may be permitted to carry a gun to protect his money. That will reduce the dacoities and thefts that are taking place on a large scale.

"Then my third proposal is, that the method of obtaining licenses should be rendered easy. In England, if you wish to purchase a gun, you have only to go to a post office and pay there 5*s.* or 10*s.*, as the case may be, and that post office gives you a license, and then with that license you go to the shop-keeper and he gives you a gun on your producing the license, and there is no more trouble about it. Whereas in India, if I want to purchase a gun, I must, in the first instance, apply to the Sub-divisional Officer. He then refers my application to the Police Inspector, and the Police Inspector submits his report to the District Superintendent of Police, and he again forwards the application to the Sub-Inspector for inquiries who eventually recommends, if he thinks fit, that the applicant appears to be a good enough man to have a gun and under the usual conditions he may be given it. Then it goes to the District Magistrate ; so that the poor man gets absolutely tired of the whole procedure and having to run about so many times for obtaining a license. Many people get tired of this procedure and never press for a license, as the procedure involved is very cumbersome. They sit down and trust to chance, and instead of a gun they take empty tins and beat them to scare away wild animals. I submit, Sir, that the obtaining of licenses should be made easy so that people may readily obtain them. I also submit that it is necessary that some people should be entirely exempted from taking a license and they should get it as a matter of right.

RESOLUTION re MODIFICATION OF THE INDIAN ARMS ACT.

[11TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.] [Mr. G. S. Khaparde ; Mr. C. A. Kincaid.]

" I have got one or two Resolutions which will come later on which relate to Boy Scouts, University Volunteers, etc., and I suppose that under the existing rules they will be permitted to carry arms at least during the time that they are under training. Then there will be a depôt, or some establishment where the arms will be deposited, though I should personally prefer that they should be allowed to carry arms to their houses, and during their leisure hours they may be encouraged to go about shikaring and having a little sport so that their martial spirit may be revived.

" And there is in sport that need for a man to undertake a certain amount of fatigue, go without food, follow animals and yet not lose his temper. There are many lessons that a man gets from sport, and I should like our young people to be encouraged in these outdoor sports, more especially those of shooting and running down animals, which is a very useful exercise indeed and the people might be given opportunities for it. These are then, Sir, the proposals that I would put forward. Our Indian law is all right so far as it goes, but it should be slightly remodelled on the English type so as to enable every free citizen—there are now no non-free citizens, slavery has gone—to have the right to carry arms. Agriculturists with small farms should be permitted to have fowling-pieces and for the rest of the people licenses should be easily procurable. These appear to me to be the main features. One of these at any rate was discussed at Delhi, and it was said, if I understood rightly, that steps were being taken to make the procuring of these licenses easy. That view was taken at Delhi. These are the recommendations which fall within my Resolution, and I move the Resolution and hope that it will be accepted."

The Hon'ble Mr. C. A. Kincaid :—" Sir, I rise to oppose this Resolution. I would at the outset ask this Council to cast back their memories, or rather to go back to the history of India some sixty years ago. As this Council is aware in May 1857, the Indian Mutiny broke out at Meerut. Seeing that the outbreak was at so central a place, it seemed very likely that if to the military outbreak was added a civil rebellion by the people the rebellion would spread east, west and south. It seemed specially likely that the rebellion would spread to the west because there lay the Province of the Punjab inhabited by a brave and warlike population who had only yielded to the British power after a long and very often doubtful struggle. As a matter of fact things turned out somewhat differently. There was a civil rebellion, but it did not spread to the west. The population of the Punjab, not very long before the Mutiny, had been disarmed, and the result of that was, that the disloyal elements in the Punjab were unable to overawe the loyal elements. They were unable also to render any effective assistance to the Mutineers. The loyal elements rallied round British officers like Hodson and Nicholson, and instead of being a danger to the British Empire rendered services of almost incalculable magnitude. On the other hand, the population of Behar, the old North-West Province, Oudh and Central India had not been disarmed. There the exact contrary took place. The loyal elements were swept away by the disloyal elements who were armed, and the result was two years of war which taxed to the utmost the resources of the British Empire, and caused intense suffering and misery throughout great Provinces. In the year 1860, the first Indian Arms Act was passed. That was 58 years ago, and from that time to this there has not been one

12-58 P.M.

RESOLUTION re MODIFICATION OF THE INDIAN ARMS ACT.

[Mr C. A. Kincaid.] [11TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.]

serious rising in any part of India. Now, I would ask the Council to consider that statement. A rising in India, looking at the resources of the British Empire, must be abortive, and an abortive rising means military executions, hangings, fines, confiscations, the ruin of individuals and the misery of many often innocent families. I will go even further and express my deep regret that the first Indian Arms Act was not passed in 1850 instead of 1860. Had that been done, there would undoubtedly have been a military outbreak, but not a civil rebellion; and India would have been spared two years of war and suffering, years of racial hatred and of political stagnation. Of course the Hon'ble Member may reply, that that was merely a coincidence, that Arms Act or no Arms Act, there would have been no rising in India after 1860. I think if he were to make that statement it could easily be disproved. As long ago as the 15th century the Mussalman writer Ferishta, the historian of the Bahmani Kingdom, said there was no country in the world that was so liable to rebellions and revolutions as India. I think that is only natural when you consider the vast sub-continent, its difficult communications, its immense population and their extraordinary liability to sudden fits of religious excitement. I will not quote more than one instance, but one instance I will quote in illustration of what I say, and that is what happened only the other day in the Akola taluka of the Ahmednagar district of the Bombay Presidency. A mamlatdar had been pursuing a recruiting campaign with possibly an undue amount of zeal and enthusiasm when a body of some 2,000 or 3,000 Kolis gathered round his house and set fire to it. I am not sure whether they chopped him to pieces or burnt him alive. Certainly they showed their disapproval of his methods in a very vigorous manner. Now if the Koli population of the Western Ghats had been armed, the whole of this portion of the country would have been in flames, and you would have had the railway cut between Bombay and Poona and between Bombay and Nasik and all communication via Bombay with Europe, Africa and Irak, would have been stopped. I put it to this Council that that would have been a political calamity of the first magnitude.

"Now, Sir, there is a second aspect of this case Previous to this war the garrison of British India was 73,000 British troops, and rather more than double that number of Indian troops. Visitors from foreign countries used to express great surprise how the garrison of so great a country was not larger. As a matter of fact there was no secret about it, the key to the enigma was the Arms Act. Had the population of India been armed a very much larger garrison would obviously have been needed. Now the garrison of India is a charge on the Indian Exchequer, and a larger garrison would have meant a larger burden to the Indian taxpayer. Therefore, I submit the Indian Arms Act has, during the last 60 years, saved the Indian taxpayer hundreds of thousands of pounds sterling.

"There is a third aspect, Sir, of this case. It is this. On two occasions in recent years India has played her part most nobly in assisting Great Britain. The first occasion was when Lord Curzon's Government in 1889 sent an Indian contingent to the defence of Natal, and military experts have expressed the opinion that it was the assistance rendered by that contingent that saved the situation at that time.

"The second occasion was when Lord Hardinge's Government sent troops to Basra, East Africa and France. I say to this Council that it would have been absolutely impossible to do this had the population of India been armed. I hope the Council will accept my assertion that I do not cast any aspersion on Indian loyalty. I would not do so for a single moment. But with an armed population the danger of a rising is so great, its spread is so swift and its consequences so terrible, that it would be a very brave Government indeed that would dare to denude India of troops under these conditions in time of war. I would therefore put it to this Council that they should be very slow indeed before they do away with an Act which, during the last 60 years, has secured to India public tranquillity, saved the taxpayers hundreds of thousands of pounds and enabled the Government on two great occasions to play her part nobly by the Empire.

RESOLUTION re MODIFICATION OF THE INDIAN ARMS ACT.

[11TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.] [Mr. C. A. Kincaid; Sir William Vincent.]

"Of course the Hon'ble mover may reply, that he does not want to abolish the Act, but wants to modify it. I put it to this Council that modification on the lines suggested by the Hon'ble mover amounts to abolition. I have not read all the Acts which the Hon'ble mover has quoted, but I have practical experience (and I expect many Members in this Council have also) of the working of the English Arms Act. You go to the Post Office and pay a pound for a gun license and two pounds for a game license. Now, apply those conditions to India. There are often behind rioters very wealthy people; it was so during the recent Arrah riots. Those wealthy people could, by the expenditure of a few thousand rupees, get licenses for several hundred men and distribute arms to them, and there you are, the riot becomes a rebellion with all the lamentable consequences which that involves. There is one criticism which was suggested by the Hon'ble mover, it was also a favourite theme of Indian speakers before the war. The Indian Arms Act, so it was said, had unmanned and degraded the Indian population, and the illustration generally employed was in connection with the Maratha nation to which the Hon'ble mover belongs. It used to be asked where were those splendid armies which once held India in fee, where were those 200,000 horsemen the tramp of whose chargers was heard from Attock to Rameswaram? The answer was they had been abolished by the Arms Act. It was said that, exposed to the malignant influences of the implacable enactment, their courage had been dissolved; it had oozed out of their finger tips, and that from being the foremost warriors of India they had become mere helots, mere tillers of the soil. Though it was conceded that there were certain Maratha regiments, it was said they were not fit for modern warfare and that they were fit only to police Southern India; and even so great an authority as the late Earl Roberts expressed the opinion that Maratha regiments were not good enough to stop an Afghan rush.

"Well, as His Excellency the Viceroy said the other day, this war has brushed away a great many cherished theories and, I may add, a great many cherished prejudices. I have served for 15 years in the Maratha country, and I am sure I shall have the sympathy of the Council when I say that I love the Maratha country and I love the Maratha people; I love that splendid land which stretches from the Vindhya mountains down to the confines of Kanara and from the Central Provinces to the shores of the Arabian Sea; I love its temperate climate, its noble hills and its perennial rivers, and above all its deathless epic of military glory. And I can assure this Council that I felt a glow of pride and pleasure—and I may say that feeling was shared by other Members of my Service in the Maratha country—when I learnt of the gallant deeds of the Maratha regiments who sailed with Sir Arthur Barrett to Irak, who occupied Basra, who took Kurna and won at Saiba. Sir, every single man of the rank and file of those regiments had been exposed from birth to the so-called blighting influences of this terrible enactment, and yet they fought in a way which would have roused the envy of the veterans of the Bhosle and the comrades of Chimnaji Appa. I put it, Sir, to this Council that the gallantry of the Maratha regiments on the battle fields of Mesopotamia is the surest answer to that criticism and the best proof that it has never had the slightest shadow of a foundation."

The Hon'ble Sir William Vincent:—"Sir, I welcome the discussion of this Resolution for various reasons. In the first place, it will afford me an opportunity of explaining what the Government policy is and what it has been, and this is the more necessary, as misleading accounts of that policy are often made public which do considerable harm. There are also a certain number of people, who, I believe, are genuinely in error as to the policy of the Government in this matter; indeed it seemed to me from what I have just heard that this remark applies not only to non-officials, but that at least one official Member of this Council is in the same position. I hope to convince the Council of the necessity for legislation of this kind on entirely different grounds from that adopted by him. I believe that this necessity is recognised everywhere. It is no new policy in India and does not date from 1857 at all. It began with the advent of British rule into this country. I have here a quotation from Sir Bartle Frere, where he says 'one of the first measures of Sir Charles Napier in Sind was a proclamation forbidding persons to carry arms without license. The real reason for these restrictions on carrying and possessing arms was the inherent difficulty of maintaining law and order over vast tracts inhabited by peoples of widely different degrees of civilisation.' That is the real reason for this legislation into which the Government has been forced from time to time. I believe indeed that such measures are a natural accompaniment of growing order and civilisation.

"It is true that the basis of our present legislation was the Act of 1860, and that Act was passed shortly after the Mutiny, and was probably connected with the unfortunate rising of 1857, but I do not think it can be said that the Act of 1878, which is the present Act, is in any way connected with that event though I do not doubt that the unrestricted issue of licenses for fire-arms might affect the military situation in that it would probably necessitate the maintenance of larger forces, a point already put by Mr. Kincaid. To return to the Act of 1860, it was found in a few years after the measure was enacted that a large number of cheap fire-arms were being imported and used throughout the country, and the consequence of that was that large gangs of armed bandits wandered about the country who became too powerful for the police to cope with. It shortly became necessary therefore to impose further restrictions on the possession of arms in order to maintain that law and order which is, as I have frequently said in this Council, the greatest asset of British rule in this country. I will quote what Sir Henry Maine said in 1881 on this subject, because, I think, it illustrates my argument and tends to disprove the idea that the Arms Act was the result of the Mutiny. He said :—

'It is one of the unfortunate consequences of the great struggle of 1857-58 that legislation of this kind is supposed to be connected with loyalty and disloyalty. As a matter of principle it rests on quite different grounds. There is no surer sign of barbarism than the habit of carrying arms, and no clearer mark of advancing civilisation than the gradual disuse of this practice'

"These words explain the reason why the Act of 1878 was passed. The previous Act was insufficient for the maintenance of the public peace. It was to secure this that the later Act was enacted, and I think it may fairly be said that it has been fairly effective.

"The Hon'ble mover has told us that every person in England is entitled, and has always been entitled, to carry arms as a matter of right. This is not strictly accurate. The Bill of Rights to which he referred says that 'the subjects which are Protestants may have arms for their defence suitable to their conditions and as allowed by law.'.........

The Hon'ble Mr. G. S. Khaparde:—"Will the Hon'ble Member kindly read clause 6 'By causing several good subjects being Protestants to be disarmed at the same time when Papists were both armed and employed contrary to law.' Those two sentences have to be read together."

The Hon'ble Sir William Vincent:—"The two sections have to be read together, but I submit that they do not make out that every one was allowed to carry arms without restriction. People were allowed to hold arms according to their position. That is what the Act says.

"The Hon'ble mover went on to say, if I understood him correctly, that I had agreed at the Delhi Conference on behalf of the Government of India, to a proposal to assimilate the law in India to that in England."..........

The Hon'ble Pandit Madan Mohan Mâlaviya:—"He did not say that."

RESOLUTION re MODIFICATION OF THE INDIAN ARMS ACT.

[11TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.] [The Vice-President; Sir William Vincent.]

The Hon'ble the Vice-President:—"Order! Order! The Hon'ble Member is continuing his speech."

The Hon'ble Sir William Vincent:—"If I misunderstood the Hon'ble Member I will not deal further with the point; except to disclaim having made any such statement. I did however say that we proposed, so far as might be compatible with the public safety, to relax the rules for the possession of arms in India so as to facilitate the possession of fire-arms by respectable citizens. I also said that we intended—as a fixed principle—to do away with all racial distinctions as to the possession of arms. But further than that I did not go.

"The Hon'ble Member is particularly anxious that arms should be given out freely for protection against dacoits. Well, Sir, the position in regard to that is clear. Local Governments do give out arms and issue licenses in various districts for this purpose. In the province of Bengal arms have been issued with some success for protection against dacoits,—I think in the district of Mymensingh,—and Local Governments will, I am sure, be quite prepared to consider the necessity for further measures in that direction. If the facts justify such extension and certainly this is a matter to which the Government of India would always give sympathetic consideration. In my own province, in one district a number of licenses were issued for weapons to be used against dacoits; but I am afraid they were never used. Indeed on some occasions they were stolen by the dacoits. There was one instance in which a gentleman was given a gun for the protection of the village against dacoits, and when asked why he had not used it in a particular occasion, he said that he had been unable to do so as the dacoits threw stones at him. In the district of Khaira in the Bombay Presidency a number of arms or licenses were also issued to householders to use against desperate criminals, with, I am afraid, very indifferent results. The arms have been stolen in some cases and used by the thieves for purposes other than that for which they were given. In Bengal, as I have said, the experiment has been successful, and the Government of India are quite prepared to advocate any extension of that system which may appear feasible. For the protection of crops, licenses are issued freely at present, and this is a matter to which special attention has been drawn more than once.

"But this is a very different matter from accepting the Resolution of the Hon'ble Member, the result of which would be that every village badmash, every thief and dacoit, could, on payment of Rs. 5 or Rs. 7, at a Post office get a gun and use it to terrorise his village neighbours. Every village assassin, every Goonda, as they are called in Calcutta, could procure a gun or revolver, for the purpose of terrorising his enemies. That is a position of affairs we cannot contemplate, and I hope it will not commend itself to this Council. It is quite true that licenses are issued for fire-arms on such conditions in the United Kingdom. But the conditions there are entirely different. The population is more civilised, less prone to violence, and the necessity of avoiding force as a means of determining quarrels is fully recognized. There is also a very general sense of civic responsibility. Further, it may safely be said that in the United Kingdom, save for an occasional armed burglar, the only offences for which fire-arms are used are poaching affrays. In India, the position is entirely different. We have a large amount of agrarian crime and in many provinces dacoities are very prevalent. There are again bitter religious fanaticism and faction disputes which often lead to serious disturbance of the peace; and it seems to me that it would be most unsafe to allow unrestricted possession of fire-arms in India in such circumstances. I cannot but think that the position of affairs in the Punjab, for instance, in 1915, would have been much more serious if the lawless section of the inhabitants had been allowed to secure arms without restriction. Similarly, in Arrah in 1917, there might have been much more loss of life. We know what effect the possession of fire-arms in one district in Bengal had upon crime. I refer to the district of Backerganj. I think at least one Member of this Council will remember the time when gunshot murders in Backerganj were extremely common..........

The Hon'ble Mr. Surendra Nath Banerjea :—" It was disarmed."

The Hon'ble Sir William Vincent :—" Exactly so: the whole district was disarmed."

The Hon'ble the Vice-President :—" I must ask Hon'ble Members who wish to intervene to rise. According to the rules an Hon'ble Member must rise if he desires to do so."

The Hon'ble Sir William Vincent :—" The Hon'ble Member, I may say, Sir, is quite correct in saying that the district was disarmed, with the result that the number of murders diminished by half.

" With all these facts before Hon'ble Members I want the Council to consider seriously whether it would be safe so to relax the present restrictions as to possession of arms as to allow every bad character, as I have said, to secure a gun license merely on payment of Rs. 5 or Rs. 7. That is really what is proposed by the Hon'ble Member who moved this Resolution. I submit that that is not safe and that the Government could not possibly undertake the responsibility for preserving the peace on those conditions.

" The real effect of this would be largely to increase the physical power for evil of a certain section of the people without any corresponding increase in those moral forces of restraint which obtain in more advanced countries. I need not say also that any such change in the system would involve a large and immediate increase in police expenditure. As to Bengal, the danger of allowing the free purchase of pistols and revolvers which would necessarily follow from the acceptance of the Hon'ble Member's Resolution is well illustrated by the Report of the Rowlatt Committee. Council knows that the theft of 50 automatic pistols by the members of the revolutionary party in Bengal led to a very large number of murders, chiefly of police officers. The Hon'ble mover said just now that the free possession of firearms was necessary for two purposes: firstly, for protection against wild animals; and, secondly, for national defence. I think we might add that in the case of a certain section of the people, shooting policemen would also be a favourite pastime if weapons were procurable without restriction. Let us see what the Rowlatt Committee say on this point. They say that taking the whole supply of arms together, the revolutionaries only obtained arms enough for isolated outrages. If the supply had been sufficient to give every gang an ample and separate supply, the conspiracy might have produced a calamity of terrible character in Bengal. I think, Sir, that this indicates the very great danger of allowing the free purchase of pistols and revolvers by men of this character; and such purchase would be a necessary consequence if the Resolution were accepted.

" Similarly, we know Germany has made great efforts to get at the disaffected portion of the population of this country, and that attempts have been made to import arms for their assistance. Is it reasonable that when we are at war the disaffected portion of the population, small though it may be, should be given an opportunity for making trouble? Is it reasonable, I say, that we should facilitate the very end which the Germans have in view? I read a lecture which was delivered by an Indian in Berlin the other day, in which he frankly said that the reason why people, like him, did not rise in this country and had not given more trouble was that they had been unable to secure arms.

" I do not for one moment suggest that there would be many of such people, but I maintain that it would be madness for us to increase the facilities for procuring lethal weapons by even a small number of such persons at a time like the present.

"Sir, so far I have attempted to explain why I cannot accept the Resolution. But if I am allowed a few moments more to explain what our intentions in the direction of amending the rules are, I think it may be of interest to the Council and also that it may very possibly meet the Hon'ble mover. We have formulated certain proposals to which the Government might have given effect earlier, but we thought that it would be fairer if we deferred our final decision until this Council met when we could consult a number of the provincial representatives and non-officials of this Council on the adequacy and propriety of the measures. Though there are dangers in any general relaxation of the restrictions which are now imposed, it by no means follows that the Government is not in sympathy with much that has been said by the Hon'ble mover, or is unwilling to do all that is possible to remove any reasonable grievance. I have been a District Magistrate myself, and I know that men who want licenses are put to a great deal of inconvenience, and that whatever trouble the District Officer may take there is often reason to believe that a license costs more than the eight annas that is paid for the stamp. This is the kind of inconvenience that we seek to avoid. Our main principles, so far as we have formulated them, are as follows :—Firstly, we will abolish all racial distinctions at once ; secondly, we propose to facilitate the issue of licenses to men of a prescribed class, if I may use the term. We propose also, if the Local Governments do not satisfy us that there are grave objections to such a course to extend the period and the area for which licenses should be valid so that a license issued should hold good for a number of years and throughout British India. The exact qualifications of the prescribed class to which I have referred is a matter of detail which we shall have to work out, but the idea is that on the application by any person of that class licenses shall be issued as a matter of course without any inquiry by any subordinate authority, and we have suggested (though whether this is a feasible proposition or not, I do not know) that licenses should be issued by some more conveniently situated authority than District Magistrates. I cannot say that these proposals have been adopted, because as I said we do not know what the views of Local Governments are in respect of them. They have been circulated for opinion and what I propose to do now is, to ask the official members coming from the provinces and also a number of non-official members to attend a conference where we may discuss and thoroughly thresh out these proposals. As I said I hope to be able to take some steps which, while not endangering public peace, will at the same time afford reasonable facilities to those who desire to keep arms for their own protection or for the protection of their crops, or for any other lawful purpose."

The Hon'ble Mr. Surendra Nath Banerjea :—"Sir, my Hon'ble friend the Home Member has got certain proposals in his mind, and he wants to consult the official members and after consulting them his idea is to make an announcement, I hope in this Council. If I have rightly understood him, I think the best thing to do would be to adjourn the debate and then after his proposals have been matured by him in consultation with the official members I hope some of the unfortunate non-officials will be taken into confidence ; after he has done that I think it would be as well to take up the debate on this point .... 1-25 P.M.

The Hon'ble Sir William Vincent :—" May I explain, Sir, that I did not say that I proposed to consult the official members only ; I said that I proposed to consult certain non-official members also. 1-26 P.M.

"I am afraid however that I cannot accept the proposal of the Hon'ble Member, because our proposals have really nothing to do with this Resolution. The Resolution proposes that the law of this country should be assimilated to the law in England. That is a proposal to which the Government of India will not and cannot assent, and if I have explained at the same time what we intend to do, although it is not strictly relevant to the Resolution, I did it only for the satisfaction of Council."

1-27 P.M. The Hon'ble Mr. Surendra Nath Banerjea :—"If these proposals which my Hon'ble friend hopes to for mulate after consultation are laid before an adjourned meeting of this Council, it is possible that my friend will withdraw his motion, and in that event the Council will be able to come to a unanimous conclusion on the subject. Therefore, I do press the point that in view of the fact that my Hon'ble friend wants to make certain announcements with regard to the Arms Act and here we have got this Resolution before us, it would facilitate discussion and possibly promote unanimity if the debate was adjourned and taken up when the proposals were made. It seems to me that this is an exceedingly reasonable proposal which I hope my Hon'ble friend will accept, and then we can discuss the matter perhaps in a less heated atmosphere than what is likely to be if my friends have to speak on the Resolution now....

1-29 P.M. The Hon'ble Sir William Vincent :—"I am very sorry, Sir. I did not say that I proposed to make any announcement whatever. I said that I proposed to consult the various members who have come from the provinces before arriving at a decision. I cannot consent, so far as I am concerned, to the discussion of this Resolution being adjourned. As I said the Government is going to oppose this Resolution, although they are taking measures to make reasonable modifications in the present system."

1-30 P.M. The Hon'ble Mr. Surendra Nath Banerjea :—"Am I to understand then, Sir, that my friend does not consent to an adjournment of this debate in view of the proposals that he may have to make to this Council on a subsequent occasion? Because, Sir, our attitude with regard to this motion and our observations will depend very largely upon that announcement.........

The Hon'ble the Vice-President :—"The Hon'ble Member may take it that the debate will be adjourned automatically at a not very distant period."

The Hon'ble Mr. Surendra Nath Banerjea :—"Well, then, Sir, I must confess to a sense of disappointment at the observations which have been made by my Hon'ble friend the Home Member. I think, Sir, it was announced about this time last year by His Excellency while presiding over the deliberations of this Council that the Arms Act or at any rate the Regulations in connection with the Arms Act would be so modified as to remove all racial disabilities.

"Sir, we have been waiting for the last 12 months and we have been waiting in vain. At the Delhi Conference I took the liberty of raising this question, and my Hon'ble friend was then pleased to say that the delay in issuing these regulations was due to him. He took the entire responsibility of that delay upon his own shoulders in view of the heavy work that he had to perform, and I think he expressed the hope that the Regulations would soon be issued. That was in April. This is September. The Regulations have not been issued. The Local Governments are being consulted, the official and non-official members will be taken into confidence. God only knows when these Regulations will be issued and the elements of racial disability removed. Therefore, Sir, I think I am entitled to utter a word of complaint, a word of protest, against the delay that has taken place. Sir, if I may be permitted to indulge in an observation, I will say this, that delay is the bane of bureaucracy; that our bureaucratic friends do not seem to realise the great value of timely concessions and of time as a factor in the determination of political considerations. There is a good deal of impatience felt by all of us, that there should be such a delay in connection with a matter in regard to which the people of India have expressed a strong opinion at all their public meetings and demonstrations. Sir, it must be said that the continuance of this racial disability is a source of great irritation amongst our people.

RESOLUTION re MODIFICATION OF THE INDIAN ARMS ACT.

[11TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.] [Mr. Surendra Nath Banerjea ; Sir William Vincent ; Sir Edward Maclagan.]

"My Hon'ble friend the Home Member has referred to the dangers which the free distribution of arms will produce especially in Bengal. Well, I want to point out to him that it is the peaceful people who are deprived of their arms, who are not able to defend themselves, while the robbers and the dacoits, the anarchists and the revolutionaries have no difficulty in procuring them......

The Hon'ble Sir William Vincent:—"They have considerable difficulty in getting arms."

The Hon'ble Mr. Surendra Nath Banerjea:—"They have no difficulty whatever and they easily loot houses and commit acts of robbery and plunder. It is the peaceful, helpless and undefended who are exposed to the depredations of these people. If we had arms I think our position would have been somewhat different. Therefore, I do submit that facilities, whether we accept my Hon'ble friend's Resolution or not is another matter, I do think that facilities ought to be afforded to peace loving and loyal citizens in order that they may provide themselves with arms to defend themselves or their properties. What happens when an application is made for a license to have a gun? If you make the application to the Sub-divisional Officer or to the Magistrate, he sends it down to the Superintendent of Police; the Superintendent sends it down to the Inspector; the Inspector sends it down to the Head Constable, and then after two or three months possibly the license is granted. In the meantime, the applicant has no arms, no gun to protect himself. Now this is the state of things that goes on. My friend referred to the Barisal District and the disarmament of the Barisal district. That is perfectly true, but was there any diminution of crimes as the result of that disarmament ?......

The Hon'ble Sir William Vincent:—"Yes, there was a large decrease in the number of murders."

The Hon'ble Mr. Surendra Nath Banerjea:—"I should like to have the figures."

The Hon'ble Sir William Vincent:—"I will give the figures to the Hon'ble Member later. I have not complete figures available here; I will give them later."

The Hon'ble Mr. Surendra Nath Banerjea:—"My information is that there was no sensible diminution. At any rate, the effect of the disarmament has been to deprive the peaceful and law-abiding people of defending themselves and the agriculturists of protecting their crops.

"Then the invidious racial distinction is one which is a source of great irritation to us. Let me illustrate my point. My friend the late Maharaja of Mymensingh had under him a number of Eurasian servants. He had not the right of carrying arms without a license, but these men could get as many guns as they pleased without a license, and it was abundantly proved in one of the recent cases that many of these anarchists and revolutionaries got their arms through unscrupulous European and Eurasian agents and some of them were convicted and punished. Therefore it seems to me that it is a matter of first importance that without any unnecessary delay the regulations with regard to the Arms Act should be modified. Whether you accept my friend's Resolution or not, it is another matter, but that we stand in an exceedingly unsatisfactory position is admitted by the Government, and I appeal to my Hon'ble friend, before this Council closes, to issue the new regulations which may help to create a feeling of contentment and remove the irritation which the present working of the Arms Act has produced among the Indian community at large."

The Hon'ble Sir Edward Maclagan:—"Sir, it was the intention of my Hon'ble friend Mr. Fagan to address the Council on the motion before us, and if he were here I should not trouble the Council with any remarks of my own. But Mr. Fagan, I am sorry to say, is laid up with fever, and I venture in his absence to make a few suggestions regarding the way in which the proposals of the Hon'ble mover would work in the province to which we belong.

RESOLUTION re MODIFICATION OF THE INDIAN ARMS, ACT.

[Sir Edward Maclagan.] [11TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.]

"I do not think it is necessary for me to take up the general points which have been discussed by the Hon'ble Mr. Banerjea. We all of us agree specially those who had to deal with the working of the Act, that the Act itself and the rules under it require very large modifications, and we have been told that those modifications are going to be introduced. But what the Hon'ble mover asks us to do, is to approximate the legislation of this country to that at Home, and by that he means that there should be a substantial and very large increase in the number of licenses held, and the number of arms possessed, by the people in the country, and on that point I wish to point out one or two aspects of the case with regard to the Punjab. Now I think if we were to put this question before one of the well-to-do peasants in the Punjab who is probably a typical elector of our constituencies of the future and ascertain his real feelings on the subject, I do not think he would look at the question quite in the same way as the Hon'ble Member thinks. His first idea would be that as his enemy has a gun he must get one too. The idea that a gun is given to a man entirely for self-defence is one which would not, I think, strike him. The Punjab is a province in which, according to a recent Report, the interval between thought and action is unusually short and there are many occasions on which there are racial and other disturbances and local factions and so forth on which the free possession of guns on either side would certainly lead to difficulties in maintaining the peace of the country. In fact, if the principle which the Hon'ble Member is advocating were carried to its extreme, the time might come when the peasant would have to go to his well and follow his cattle with arms in his hands and the country would relapse into the condition from which we rescued it 70 years ago.

"We have a further difficulty which especially affects the Punjab. There is a certain amount of apprehension already being felt even in England as to what the effect will be when a large number of men come back from the war, men who have been accustomed to see bloodshed, men who are well accustomed to the prompt handling of arms; when they come back in civil life and wish to enforce their claims for this or that. We also shall be having large numbers of men coming back from the war; men who are daily accustomed to handling arms,—men in the prime of youth. Would it be wise to let them have access to arms for their civil disputes and to make themselves, as they probably would, a terror to the countryside?

"A further point has been raised, that by allowing the people to have arms we would be maintaining their martial spirit. If that were the case, I think the point would require further consideration, but I doubt very much whether we can accept that as an axiom. Mr. Kincaid has already mentioned one case in which it certainly has not been the result of not having arms that the people have lost their martial instinct. I may take the case of the English people themselves. 99 out of a hundred of the men who are now fighting have not handled arms before the war, and no one can say they had lost their martial instincts. In the Native States it is ordinarily the custom to allow the use of arms, but recruiting in the Native States has not been better than in British India.

"I need hardly allude to the increased difficulties which the free possession of arms would put in the way of dealing with organised violent crime. At present the people of the criminal and predatory population have difficulties in getting arms. They have to do so by subterfuge or force, but if they had free access to arms, the trouble of keeping them in order would be very greatly increased. I think we all recognise the absolute justice of the contention which has been put forward, that where there is a great fear of dacoity or predatory crime, that there it is only right that we should allow a certain proportion o arms to the people who are likely to be attacked; but these arms, as Sir William Vincent pointed out, would have to be placed in the hands of men who know how to use them, and who would use them in the manner that has been intended. Even if we had a free issue of arms in the manner the Hon'ble mover proposes, it is doubtful how far the ordinary money-lender or shopkeeper would provide himself with arms, and even if he did, his possession of arms would not deter the dacoit from robbing his house; in many cases it would afford an additional inducement for him to do so. If dacoits are to have free access to arms the protection of the commercial and industrial classes in this country will become a very difficult and costly affair.

"I have said nothing about revolutionary crime. Sir William Vincent has referred to it, but I may mention as regards the Punjab particularly that the recent report on the subject points out the effect that the absence of arms had on the attempts made a few years ago to introduce revolution in the Province. In one place it is said: 'The issue of the Ghadr of the 13th January, 1914 had advised Indians to go abroad, learn how to make rifles, bring boxes full of them into the Punjab and rain over the Province a sweet shower of guns'. Some pistols and ammunition were brought from America and Rash Behari contributed four revolvers. Other weapons too were collected, but most fortunately for the public the procurement of sufficient arms was a serious difficulty and the plans for attacking the Ferozepore and Mian Mir Arsenals collapsed. In another place, referring to the judgment in the second Conspiracy trial in the Punjab, the Report says: 'The judgment recites evidence which shows that it was mainly want of arms that prevented a large rising in December 1914'. If by any chance this form of crime was to revive in the Province and fire-arms could be easily obtained by purchase or by force, the difficulty of coping with this form of crime would be practically insurmountable."

The Council adjourned to Wednesday, the 18th September, 1918.

Fifty-eight per cent of the 1,428 plague deaths reported above occurred in the Bombay Presidency where, however, the prevalence of the disease is well below the mean.

It is many years since the northern portions of India experienced a week so free from plague as the one under report, a result in large measure attributable to the comparative failure of the monsoon. Bengal, Bihar and Orissa, the United Provinces, Rajputana, and Central India combined contributed only eleven deaths as compared with 1,446 in the corresponding week of 1917 : eight of these eleven deaths were reported from Central India, two from the United Provinces and one from Bihar and Orissa.

DEPARTMENT OF REVENUE AND AGRICULTURE.

Season and Crop Prospects for the week ending Saturday, 14th September 1918.

Burma.—The rainfall during the week was general throughout the Province. It was moderate in Lower Burma and light in the dry zone. Transplantation of winter rice has been nearly completed in Lower Burma and in irrigated tracts of Upper Burma. Reaping of early sesamum and cultivation of miscellaneous dry crops continue in Upper Burma. Standing crops are generally in good condition. Cattle are healthy. The price of unhusked rice has risen further and is much above normal. The market for white rice is strong at Rs. 360 per hundred baskets for specials.

Assam.—During the week the weather was seasonable. Manufacture of tea, transplantation of winter rice and harvesting of autumn rice and jute continue with outturns poor. Prospects of other crops are fair to good. Cattle disease is reported from four districts. The price of common rice is rising in Sylhet

Bengal.—During the week moderate rain fell throughout the Province. Transplantation of winter paddy is nearing completion. Weeding continues. Harvesting of autumn paddy is well advanced. Harvesting, steeping and washing of jute are in progress. Prospects of standing crops are generally fair except in some districts in Eastern Bengal. The price of common rice has risen by about 3 per cent.

Bihar and Orissa.—The rainfall during the week was general over the Province, the fall being heavy in parts of Bihar and light to moderate in Orissa and Chota Nagpur. Transplantation of paddy continues. Harvesting of autumn crops has commenced. Standing crops are, on the whole, doing well. The price of common rice has risen in eight districts, fallen in eight and remained stationary in the remaining districts as compared with that of the preceding week. Cattle disease is reported from eleven districts. The condition of standing crops in the Feudatory States of Orissa is good. More rain is, however, wanted in some States for the transplantation of paddy.

United Provinces.—During the week very little rain was received except in the south-eastern and eastern submontane districts. More rain is urgently needed. Damage to crops is reported from some western districts through drought. Preparation of land for spring crops, sowing of late autumn crops, harvesting and irrigation of autumn crops, transplantation of late rice and picking of cotton continue. Standing crops are, on the whole, doing well but except in south-eastern and eastern submontane districts prospects are unfavourable unless more rain is received soon. Agricultural stock is in good condition but slight cattle disease is still reported from some districts. Fodder, water and market supplies are adequate. Prices are rising.

Punjab.—No rain fell during the week. More rain is urgently needed. Sowings of autumn crops which still continue in some districts are below normal to normal. The condition of standing crops is average to good on irrigated and below average to average on unirrigated areas. Unirrigated crops have begun to wither in some districts for want of sufficient rain. Picking of cotton, ploughings for spring crops and sowings of oilseeds and gram have commenced in a few districts. The yield of cotton is expected to be average. Cattle are generally healthy and water is sufficient but fodder is scarce in parts of a few districts. Prices have risen and are generally above scarcity rates. Price of wheat :—Rawalpindi 6¾, Lahore 7, Ferozepore 7¼ and Lyallpur 7½ seers per rupee.

North-West Frontier Province.—During the week some rain has fallen in the Province but more rain is still required in Dera Ismail Khan. Sowings of autumn crops are proceeding in Bannu and those of spring crops have begun in Peshawar. Harvesting prospects are average on irrigated and below average on unirrigated areas in Peshawar and Bannu and poor in Dera Ismail Khan owing to want of rain. Cotton is being picked in Peshawar with outturn average. The price of wheat in Peshawar is 8¼ and in Dera Ismail Khan 8$\frac{1}{16}$ seers per rupee.

Jammu.—No rain fell during the week. Prices are rising slightly.

Kashmir.—Report not received.

Rajputana.—Light showers were received during the week. Standing crops and cattle are in fair condition. Fodder is generally sufficient. Prices are rising.

Central India.—The rainfall during the week was partial. It was insufficient in Baghelkhand and Bundelkhand and in parts of Gwalior, Malwa and the Southern States. Autumn crops are being sown and weeded. Land for spring crops is being prepared in Indore, Bhopal and the Southern States. Standing crops are in fair condition. Agricultural stock is improving in Gwalior and is generally in good condition elsewhere. The condition of fodder is improving in Gwalior. Prices are high.

Central Provinces.—The weather has been occasionally cloudy and warm. Nine districts in the south and the east of the Provinces had light to moderate rain, nowhere exceeding 2 inches. Nimar, Betul, Chanda and the districts of Berar require more rain urgently and a shower or two will be most welcome generally. In Berar, juar is reported to be deteriorating for want of rain and the position at present, almost throughout the Provinces, is that with moderate rain in the immediate future a full or even bumper autumn outturn should be assured but without early rain the outturn will fall off, perhaps seriously in some districts. Sowings of til, kodo and kutki are nearing completion. Weeding of autumn crops and ploughing of fields for the sowing of spring crops are in full swing. Reaping of maize and of minor millets has been started in a few districts. Agricultural stock is in an unsatisfactory condition in Buldana and cattle disease prevails in parts of eight districts. Fodder is dear or scarce in Akola and Buldana. In the Sironcha tahsil relief works continue. Gram rose by 3¼ seers in Amraoti. Other prices exhibit a sharp upward tendency, the variations ranging between ¼ to 1¾ seers per rupee.

Feudatory States :—Kawardha and Khairagarh require more rain. Otherwise prospects are favourable.

Bombay.—Slight rain fell during the week in the Presidency Proper. More rain is needed everywhere. Standing crops have been damaged by rats in Karachi, are withering in parts of Sind, East Deccan, Kathiawar, Kolhapur and the Karnatak and are in fair to good condition elsewhere. Preparations for the sowing of spring crops have commenced in Sukur, Larkana, the Upper Sinds Frontier, Ahmednagar, West Khandesh and Dharwar. Sowing of spring crops continues in parts of Gujarat, Ratnagiri and Baroda and has been retarded in Cutch and the Karnatak. The fodder supply is generally deficient but pasture has been improved by recent rains. Agricultural stock is generally sufficient but cattle are deteriorating in parts of Hyderabad, Gujarat, the Deccan and Belgaum. Irrigation is deficient in parts of Sind, Kaira, Surat and Dharwar. Prices of fodder and food grains are rising.

Hyderabad.—The rainfall during the week was fair in eight districts and light to nil elsewhere. The average fall was 77 cents. Autumn crops are withering for want of rain in parts of six districts and are in fair to good condition elsewhere. Early rice is in fair to good condition and needs rain. Lands for spring crops are being prepared and sown Cattle are generally healthy. Fodder is scarce in parts. Prices of grains are abnormally high. Juar is selling at 2¾ seers per rupee in Gulbarga.

Mysore.—The week was practically rainless. Ploughing and sowing operations have been retarded and standing crops are withering for want of rain. Cattle are generally healthy. Prices are fluctuating.

Coorg.—Except for light showers the weather remained dry during the week. Rain is badly needed. Transplantation of rice has been nearly completed. Cattle disease prevails in some villages. Water and fodder are sufficient. The public health is fair. Prices of food grains are high.

Madras.—The rainfall during the week was good in the Circars except Kistna, fair in Kistna, Trichinopoly and the Carnatic except Nellore and light or nil elsewhere. Standing crops are in fair condition generally but in parts they are withering and require rain immediately. Harvesting of paddy and dry crops is proceeding with outturn fair generally but poor in three districts and in parts of eight others. Sowings of paddy and dry crops are proceeding but are restricted generally for want of rain. The condition of cattle is good generally. Water is insufficient except in two districts. Pasture is sufficient except in seven districts and in parts of eight others. Fodder is sufficient except in two districts and in parts of seven others. Prices are rising generally.

FIELD OPERATIONS.

No. 2211.—The following despatch from Lieutenant-General Sir W. R. Marshall, K.C.B., K.C.S.I., Commanding-in-Chief, Mesopotamian Expeditionary Force, on the operations in Mesopotamia from October 1st, 1917 to March 31st, 1918 is published for general information :—

I assumed the command of this Force on the 18th November last on the death of the late lamented Lieutenant-General Sir Stanley Maude, and now have the honour to submit a report on the operations in Mesopotamia from October 1st 1917 till 31st March of this year.

2. The last despatch of General Maude covered the period April 1st to September 30th, 1917, and concluded with the operations which resulted in the capture and occupation of Ramadi on the Euphrates. At the commencement of the period covered by the present despatch this force was opposed on the north-east by Turks who were holding the hills known as Jebel Hamrin, while up the Tigris they were entrenched in front of Daur, and the left wing was secure at Ramadi.

3. At the beginning of October it was decided to clear the Turks from the left bank of the Diala, and occupy the Jebel Hamrin astride of that river, in order that the control of the canals might be in our hands. This operation was entrusted to the Corps then under my command. I decided as a preliminary operation to drive the Turks out of their forward positions on the right bank of the Diala, where they were holding a line near Deli Abbas, and after that to hold them in front whilst my main attack developed from the south-east against their left flank. These measures had the desired effect of dislodging the enemy from a very strong position with extraordinarily few casualties in my force but owing to the Diala being, at that time of year, fordable in innumerable places the bulk of the Turks evaded capture, destroyed their bridge at Kizil Robat and retreated to the right bank of the river. All our objectives were gained and a position astride the Diala gorge, protecting the head works of the canals, was seized and consolidated.

To ensure a perfect system of communication in the new forward area, considerable work was necessitated. The main canals, i.e., Khalis, Mansuriya, Khorassan, Mahrut, Haruniya, and Ruz, as well as their numerous distributaries, were rapidly bridged often at more than one place and this mobile bridging equipment was subsequently replaced by more permanent structures capable of carrying heavy loads. 75 bridges of various sizes were built in this area alone, and the Jebel Hamrin, which, prior to our occupation, was a roadless tangle of hills, was gradually pierced by a very complete and convenient number of roads suitable for wheeled traffic. These roads have involved heavy work not only in digging but in rock cutting through the hills and in metalling over the sandy flats.

4. Whilst the operations referred to in paragraph 3 were in progress the 18th Turkish Army Corps on the Tigris undertook a counter demonstration against our troops on that line and in the middle of October advanced as far as El Huweslat, 8 miles north of Samarra, where they proceeded to entrench themselves. General Maude decided to attack before they had time to consolidate their position to any great extent, and on the 24th October after a night march our leading division on the Tigris front captured El Huweslat, which the Turks had evacuated in haste, and then pushed north to Daur supported by our cavalry. This position was captured on 2nd November by the 28th Infantry Brigade, who by pressing on with vigour caused the Turks to evacuate also their second line of trenches. The cavalry endeavoured to press round the western flank but were met with heavy artillery fire, under cover of which the Turks withdrew to Tekrit. Although by this time our infantry had already marched 30 miles in 24 hours it was decided to push on to Tekrit and on 5th November the 8th Infantry Brigade assaulted the hostile position at that place, capturing the whole of their objectives and repelling two counter-attacks in force. The enemy suffered heavily and many prisoners were taken. Meantime the cavalry supported by the 19th Infantry Brigade had pushed round the flank, and in the afternoon a spirited attack by the infantry coupled with a charge by the (Cavalry Brigade on the flank threw back the Turks in disorder who fled panic stricken under cover of strong rearguard positions which had previously been prepared for some miles in rear and which held up our pursuit. During the following night the enemy withdrew the whole of their forces to Shoreimiya and burnt large quantities of ammunition and stores. Their losses were estimated at 2,000 including 300 killed, and considerable booty fell into our hands.

The Turkish position was found to consist of an intricate system of trenches many of which had been well and deeply dug with numerous machine gun emplacements, and its capture at a moderate cost redounds to the credit of all ranks.

The main portion of our troops were then ordered back to Samarra.

5. On the 19th November 1917 the army in Mesopotamia received the news of the death from cholera of our beloved and revered Chief, Lieutenant-General, Sir Stanley Maude, K.C.B., C.M.G., D.S.O. Needless to say it was a bitter blow to the whole force that he of all men should have been singled out by this fell disease, which was not in any way in epidemic form.

General Maude, whose genius had altered the whole face of affairs in Mesopotamia, was an almost irreparable loss; he had taken over an army whose moral had been severely tried by their failure to effect the relief of Kut, whose health had been sapped by a very trying climate, and consequently he had a very difficult task to restore its fighting efficiency, but in a few months by his hard work and great gifts of organisation, clearsightedness, determination, and above all by his intense sympathy with and love of his soldiers, a very different state of affairs came into being. Strongly backed by the efforts of His Excellency the Viceroy and the Government of India and by the War Office he thoroughly reorganized the transport services, and the troops were well fed and made as comfortable as circumstances permitted though training and discipline were never relaxed. When he considered that all was perfectly ready, and not until then, he moved and from that time this force never looked back. When, therefore, I had the honour of being appointed as his successor the moral of the army was magnificent whilst organization and training had reached a high level of efficiency. The Turkish army on the contrary was low in moral and desertions from it were numerous and frequent; on the Tigris and Euphrates they had retreated out of rapid striking distance and only on our right flank was there a good opportunity of hitting them. Towards the end of November therefore I determined to attack that part of the 13th Turkish Army Corps which was holding the Diala river above Mansuriya, the passes over the Jebel Hamrin and Kara Tepe.

The Turkish forces were well placed for defence and the task set to our troops included the forcing of the passages of the Diala and Nahrin rivers, as well as the Sakaltutan and Abu Zenabil passes through the Jebel Hamrin.

The operations were entrusted to Lieutenant-General Sir R. Egerton, K.C.B., K.C.I.E., whilst an independent force of cavalry under Major-General L. C. Jones, C.M.G., M.V.O., was ordered to demonstrate up to Adhaim river and prevent strong reinforcements being brought down against our attacking force from the line Tuz Kermatli-Kirkuk.

The passage of the Diala was successfully forced by night but it was found that the Turks had flooded the whole of the low-lying ground on the right bank about its confluence with the Nahrin river and this proved a serious obstacle. In spite however of the bad going the whole of the Turks position between Mirjana and the Nahrin river was occupied on the 3rd December, the Turks falling back northwards. During the same time the 38th Infantry Brigade advanced north-west along the Jebel Hamrin and drove the enemy towards the Sakaltutan pass and Nahrin river, while the 40th Infantry Brigade cleared Kishla Sohaniya capturing 44 prisoners and 2 field guns. During the night the Turks withdrew and we occupied the Sakaltutan pass, and devoted the following day to a forward concentration of troops and supplies, all of which had been delayed by the unavoidable difficulties of ground and weather.

On the 5th December a combined column pushed forward against Kara Tepe but progress was slow and it was not till the mid day of the 6th that an assault carried out by the 35th Infantry Brigade coupled with a flank attack by the 40th Infantry Brigade, captured the position. The majority of the Turks fled and the hilly nature of the ground coupled with the bad going saved them from heavy punishment. In their retreat through Kifri they set fire to their dumps of coal and the Kifri coal mine. 249 prisoners were taken and over 100 dead were buried by us. The features of the day's fighting were the determination and dash of the infantry, their close support by the artillery, and the valuable co-operation of the flying corps with both. During these operations our troops received valuable assistance from the Russian detachment under Lieutenant-Colonel Bicharakhov. On the 8th December the troops were withdrawn from the forward areas but the Sakaltutan and Abu Zenabil passes were held and a bridgehead established at Kizil Robat with a view to further action in the future. Our casualties were very small, in spite of the difficulties of terrain, and the operations reflected great credit on the commanders and staffs concerned, as well as on the regimental officers and men.

On the 9th December Khanikin was occupied and the communications in that area improved.

6. On the Euphrates Ramadi had been captured in September and the months from October to December were occupied by the troops in that area in consolidating their forward positions and in establishing a sense of security amongst the surrounding tribes. Offensive measures were of a minor kind and consisted of raids against hostile shaikhs some of whom were smuggling food to the Turks, of air raids, and of reconnaissances along both banks of the river and into the desert on either flank. Several bridges were thrown across the river Euphrates and the development of the forward area was taken in hand so as to relieve the strain on transport which had to bring supplies by road from Baghdad until the railway to Feludja was completed on 21st December.

During December and January it was evident that the Turks were being reinforced, the bulk of their troops being near Hit, and as their strength grew their patrols were pushed downstream as far as Uqbah and Nafata. I accordingly issued orders to Major-General Sir H. T. Brooking, K.C.B, K.C.M.G., commanding the troops on the Euphrates front, to capture Hit and its garrison as soon as his arrangements were completed and the state of the ground permitted. My opinion was that there would be no difficulty in capturing the town and driving the Turks out of their positions, but that the capture of the Turkish force would be a matter of extreme difficulty in consequence of their previous experience at Ramadi.

On 19th February troops were pushed forward to Uqbah which was found evacuated and it was ascertained that the Turkish main position was two miles above Hit behind a depression known as Broad Wadi, while about two-thirds of his troops were 15 miles further upstream at Salahiya. I did not wish to commit our troops to serious fighting unless I saw a chance of delivering a severe blow against the enemy, and accordingly touch was ordered to be maintained by constant patrolling and reconnaissances while forward communications were improved and supplies pushed up.

On March 8th it was discovered that the Turks had vacated their Broad Wadi position and were falling back on Salahiya. The troops were accordingly pushed forward and the Royal Flying Corps which co-operated by bombing and machine gun fire caused many casualties and much confusion amongst the retreating columns of the enemy and their transport. Hit was occupied on the 9th and Salahiya on the 10th, the Turks retreating to Khan Baghdadi.

I then issued orders to drive the enemy as far as possible from Hit and to inflict all possible damage on him. To assist in this object additional mobile troops including a cavalry brigade and light armoured motors were ordered to Hit with instructions to move by night and conceal themselves by day so that the enemy might think that no further advance by my troops was intended; in many other ways efforts, apparently successful, were made to deceive the Turks as to our intentions.

On the 26th the plan of operations was to make an attack in strength against the enemy's left and to send the cavalry and armoured motor cars round his right flank. Preparations for this attack were nearing completion when it became evident that the enemy had already commenced to withdraw from their forward positions but intended to make a stand north-west of Khan Baghdadi. Arrangements for assaulting this position were accordingly made and under cover of an effective barrage it was carried out at 5-30 P.M. with slight loss.

Meantime the cavalry after a long and difficult march gained the Aleppo road where it crosses the Wadi Hauran shortly after 5 P.M., and cut off the enemy's retreat by road and river. About 11-30 P.M. the Turks launched a heavy attack in the hope of breaking through the centre of the cavalry but were completely repulsed and lost 1,000 prisoners.

By 5-30 A.M. next morning the infantry columns arrived and completed the defeat capturing a large number of prisoners, supplies and munitions of all kinds. An energetic pursuit by the cavalry and by a mobile column in motor cars was then carried out. Haditha was captured without serious resistance, the enemy having no time to destroy his ammunition dumps at that place, and in the evening Khan Feheme was reached. On the 28th Ana was captured and another large dump of ammunition was found in it. The pursuit by motor was continued for 73 miles along the Aleppo road, many prisoners were taken, the Turks in most cases surrendering freely, being worn out and demoralised by the rapidity of our pursuit. The total prisoners taken were the commander and staff of the 50th Turkish Division, the commandant of Ana, 2 regimental commanders, 213 officers and 5,022 other ranks inclusive of Germans. Twelve guns, 47 machine guns and great quantities of rifles, ammunition and stores were also captured. The amount of ammunition found at Ana, being too large to be brought away, was blown up and on 30th March the troops were gradually withdrawn down the Euphrates to previously arranged positions.

The complete success of this operation I attribute to the masterly way in which the force was handled by Major-General Sir H. T. Brooking and his very complete preparatory arrangements.

The endurance of the troops and their determination to get at the enemy was worthy of all praise, whilst the tactical ability of their commanders was of a very high order. The magnificent work done by the 11th Cavalry Brigade under Brigadier-General R. A. Cassels as well as by the light armoured motor batteries, both in cutting off the enemy's line of retreat as well as in the pursuit to and beyond Ana, was a notable feat. Best of all, our casualties were very slight.

7. With the advent of the New Year the weather which had been unexpectedly good in December became consistently wet. Continuous operations on any large scale were rendered out of the question, and the greatest strain was thrown on the lines of communication and supply formations.

On the north-east front a small column was sent at the beginning of January as far as Pai Tak at the foot of the Tak-i-Girra pass. It met with no opposition and on its return occupied Kasr-i-Shirin. Towards the end of the month the state of famine to which the Turks had reduced northern Persia made it incumbent on me to endeavour to open the main trade route via Kirmanshah in order to get supplies to the poor inhabitants of the towns and villages and to provide them with an outlet for their home manufactures. With this object in view I increased the garrison of Kasr-i-Shirin and pushed small posts towards Kirmanshah. A large amount of tribal labour was also employed in improving the road which was in a lamentable state of disrepair. The continuance of wet weather up to the present date coupled with snow on the high ground east of the Tak-i-Girra pass has rendered the maintenance of troops along the road a matter of extreme difficulty.

8. In addition to the operations on the Diala, Tigris, and Euphrates and the activities towards Kirmanshah to which I have referred, numerous minor operations have been carried out on all fronts. These consisted generally of reconnaissances by cavalry and light armoured motor cars and by bombing raids by the Royal Flying Corps. At the end of March manœuvres under war conditions were carried out on a large scale near Tekrit but the Turks in that area withdrew northwards before the arrival of our troops.

9. In the time of my predecessor the Civil Commissioner, Sir Percy Cox, had strongly urged that the whole of the Euphrates line from Feludja to Nasiriyah should be brought under military and civil control, but at that time circumstances did not permit of any extension of our military responsibilities. By the middle of December, 1917, however, the military position had completely changed owing to the magnificent successes gained by General Allenby in Palestine. I therefore considered that the time was ripe to establish a firm control of the line of the Euphrates and by that means encourage and assist in the development of the rich agricultural lands in that area. To that end I issued orders for troops to be despatched from Nasiriyah and Baghdad to garrison various villages, thus establishing through communication by river between Basra and Feludja and controlling the development of local resources throughout the lower Euphrates valley. The extension of military control over this area was also desirable in order that the shaikhs of important towns like Kerbela, Nedjef, Hilla and Diwaniya might be brought more closely into the sphere of British influence and that pro-Turk sympathisers might be expelled.

Care was taken not to establish troops in either of the religious cities of Kerbela and Nedjef, and they were quartered at a distance. The inhabitants of Nedjef are for the most part well disposed holy people but there is in addition a proportion of irreconcilables in the town. On 12th January some of these fired on the troops exercising near the town causing a few casualties. Not wishing to injure a town which is full of sacred memories for Mahomedans I decided to punish two of the leading shaikhs, who were known to be responsible for the offence, and to levy a heavy fine. The shaikhs however fled before they could be arrested and they became outlaws. The fine was paid. After this incident matters seemed to be going on satisfactorily when on 21st March to my great regret the political officer in Nedjef, Captain W. M. Marshall, was murdered. No reason was given for the act as the deceased officer was universally liked. I immediately ordered a blockade of the town until all those implicated in the murder were given up, and surrounded it by a cordon of military posts joined by barbed wire. While I am prepared to go to extreme measures if necessary, in order to exact reparation for so foul a deed. I feel confident that by blockade methods I shall cause all the delinquents to be surrendered. When these have been removed the further punishment of the town will be a matter for subsequent consideration.

Meantime the development of the Hilla area has proceeded apace. Many hundred tons of seed grain have been planted and to assist in bringing the harvest into Baghdad a branch line down to Hilla is being made which is expected to be open for traffic by the middle of May. I have every confidence that this scheme will prove beneficial and enable this force to be dependent largely on local produce.

10 The riverain tribes of the Euphrates had long been independent, and though the capture of Feludja and Ramadi had produced a very marked effect upon them and checked any serious attempt of hostile action, nevertheless certain minor punitive operations had been necessitated These took the form of despatching small columns of all arms assisted by river gunboats by means of which the towers of recalcitrant chiefs were demolished and the tribe in question punished. Five such expeditions were sent out from Nasiriya between November and February and were uniformly successful. Though of a minor nature, nevertheless they taxed the powers of endurance of the troops employed.

11. A portion of this force is maintained along the Karun river primarily to protect the oilfields near Tembi, but also to maintain order in Ahwaz, Shushtar and Dizful. In this work the troops have been markedly successful. A disturbance occurred at Shushtar on November 2nd during which the British Consulate was threatened but it was quickly and easily suppressed, thanks to the energetic action of the officers in responsible positions and by the rapidity with which the troops employed performed a long and difficult march to the scene of action.

12. The maintenance of the line of communication defences along both the Tigris and Euphrates has been carried out with marked efficiency. Though the work has at times been arduous and often more monotonous than that of troops employed in forward areas, the inability of enemy agents to cause even the slightest damage or delay on the lines of communication redounds to the vigilance and credit of all concerned.

On the Tigris the only trouble caused has been due to losses by theft from trains and boats especially between Kurnah and Amarah. This district is inhabited by Marsh Arabs who in their native swamps are afforded complete immunity against attack by land, as they retreat rapidly into their boats leaving nothing of value behind.

The tribes between Basrah and Nasiriyah have been absolutely quiet and have made no hostile movement.

I have nothing but praise for the patrols, railway guards and escorts whose work has brought out qualities of self-reliance and devotion to duty.

The defences at Fao have been consolidated and improved, and the examination service of ships entering the Shatt-el-Arab has been effective. During the six months under review 581 vessels other than British and 8,466 native craft have been examined.

13. I desire to bring to favourable notice the names of my two Corps Commanders, Lieutenant-General Sir R. G. Egerton, K.C.B., K.C.I.E., and Major-General (temporary Lieutenant-General) Sir A. S. Cobbe, V.C., K.C.B., C.S.I., D.S.O., who have rendered me every assistance and have commanded their respective corps with ability.

My thanks are also due to the commanders of higher formations and staffs for their loyalty and untiring work, and to the gallantry, endurance and devotion to duty displayed by regimental officers, non-commissioned officers and men of all arms throughout the period under review.

Throughout the whole period covered by this despatch the work of the Royal Flying Corps has been as usual perfectly admirable and enemy machines, which endeavoured at one time to carry out raids on our camps and communications, were either driven off or brought down. Many reprisals were also carried out on the enemy aerodromes and camps both by day and night. During all operations the Royal Flying Corps have co-operated with other arms, cavalry, artillery and infantry, in the closest and most effectual way, whilst the pursuit of the retreating enemy columns has been harassed by our machines in the boldest manner both by bombing and machine gun fire.

14. The extension of the lines of communication to the north-east and north-west coupled with the opening up of the lower Euphrates has thrown an ever-increasing responsibility on Major-General Sir George MacMunn, K.C.B., C.S.I., D.S.O., Inspector-General of Communications, and I concur whole-heartedly in the opinion of his ability which was held by my distinguished predecessor.

One of the principal features of the lines of communications has been the rapid development of the port of Basrah by the completion of the dockyard and of the first set of wharves earlier planned, as well as the continuance of the arrangements for improving the working of ocean shipping. A large island at Magill has been raised by dredging to take ocean ships on one side and to load river steamers on the other. The auxiliary annexé of Nahr Umr has also given very great assistance with little outlay of material. All this work reflects great credit on the construction branch of the Port Administration and Conservancy.

The period covered by this despatch contains the worst months of low water when every day was a constant anxiety with regard to river navigation, and the river was kept open only by the most unremitting care of the buoying establishment. The river-borne tonnage has steadily improved, and the organisation of the Inland Water Transport has shown a very high state of efficiency.

Considerable progress has also been shown in the development of the railways in all sections of the lines of communication, and in the improvements of the river ports of Amarah and Kut-el-Amarah.

15. The high standard of efficiency displayed by all ranks of the Medical Service has been most gratifying to me, and reflects great credit on Surgeon-General A. P. Blenkinsop, C.B., C.M.G., my Director of Medical Services. The health of the troops has shown marked improvement as compared with the corresponding months of 1916-17. The sanitary organization and administration has steadily progressed and the standard of comfort and efficiency of the hospitals is most satisfactory.

The nursing sisters have as always devoted themselves with untiring care and zeal to the welfare of the sick and wounded. Through the generosity and kindness of Her Excellency Lady Willingdon clubs and convalescent homes for these devoted ladies are being established at suitable centres.

I also wish to take this opportunity of recording my gratitude and that of all ranks under my command for the valuable help afforded by the Red Cross Society which has resulted in the increased comfort of the troops.

16. I was lucky to receive a visit, early in March, from Lieutenant-General Sir E. Altham, K.C.B., C.M.G., Quartermaster-General in India, and Sir Thomas Holland, K.C.I.E., Head of the Munitions Board, who were thus able to see for themselves the wants of the country and the results of the efforts made by India to supply our needs.

The work thrown on the administrative services and departments, most of which is primarily due to the long line of communications, has been consistently heavy. In spite of distances traversed over a roadless country and of interruptions by floods supplies to the fighting troops have been maintained with the utmost precision. In transport a salient feature has been the welcome arrival of extra mechanical transport companies which increased the radius of action of the troops in the large areas over which they had to operate. The maintenance of these companies reflects great credit on the mechanical transport branch of the Army Service Corps.

Similarly, the mule columns and animal-drawn transport have shown a high standard of efficiency. In this connection I would specially mention the assistance rendered by the corps raised by Indian Princes, viz., Jaipur, Bharatpur, Gwalior and Mysore Imperial Service transport.

The Ordnance Services have been conducted and developed with energy and efficiency with a view to making the force as self-supporting as possible and to the consequent saving of sea transport. To this end boot-repairing shops, disinfecting and repair stations and other workshops have been established or extended.

The duties of the Works Department in providing protection for the communications to Baghdad and Baghdad itself against floods have proved long and arduous and show good progress. It is not perhaps realised that in this undeveloped country the only local produce are mud bricks, reeds for making mats, lime and bitumen in small quantities, and gravel in isolated localities. Every other requirement from a constructional point of view has to be imported. The supply of good drinking water has been well maintained. Automatic suction chlorination is now in general use and mechanical filtration plants have been or are being erected at all important posts.

The conduct and administration of the Remount Department is most satisfactory and I consider that the remount depôt and attached farm at Baghdad are models of their kind.

Owing to the increased area over which this force operates, to the amount of animal diseases existing in the territories conquered and to the consequent danger of the animals of the force becoming infected it has been found necessary to increase the veterinary administrative staff and to form extra veterinary hospitals. The results are most gratifying and reflect great credit on this Department.

The Irrigation Department, as such, has been recently constituted though irrigation work was carried out previously, chiefly on the Euphrates. The work done can only be described as extraordinary and I look forward to a great development in this direction next year. The excellent results already achieved are due to the untiring zeal and energy of all ranks in a country where until recently there was no military control.

The period has been one of constant construction work and of steadily increasing demands on the Railway Department. Floods have caused several interruptions, but the service of trains has been maintained with great success in face of difficulties inherent to lines rapidly constructed in a new country where all material has had to be brought from overseas.

The Department of Local Resources has in addition to its former duties taken over the control of grass farms, the feeding of the civil population, and the arrangements for the collection and transportation of the coming harvest. Tanneries, and a poultry farm primarily to supply hospitals, are being formed. The blockade system has been carefully regulated and ample evidence is available of severe shortage of supplies among the Turkish troops resulting in increased desertions and loss of moral. The department has been conducted with considerable ability.

Agriculture has made great progress and my especial thanks are due to Mr. C. C. Garbett, I.C.S., first revenue officer for the initiative displayed and the valuable work done by him in this connection. The latest estimate for the coming harvest is most gratifying. I hope by the institution of a properly constituted Department of Agriculture and by its co-ordination with the Irrigation Department that a very large increase will be shown next year in the agricultural development of this country.

The Postal Services have had to compete with the ever increasing wants of this Force and the Department has worked satisfactorily.

17. The chaplains of all denominations have continued to devote themselves to the spiritual welfare of the troops and have carried out their duties to my entire satisfaction. I am indebted also to the Church Army for the provision of tents for social and religious purposes which have not only afforded opportunities for recreation to the troops but have assisted the chaplains in their work.

The activities of the Young Men's Christian Association have extended considerably during the last six months. There are now a total of 70 centres and the system of soldiers' clubs has been initiated throughout the country; I greatly appreciate the excellent work of this society in undertaking the management of these recreational centres which tend so largely to the well-being of the troops.

Considerable advance has been made in graves registration and the special difficulties inherent to this country have been satisfactorily overcome.

To all those ladies and gentlemen who have so generously worked for, and contributed to the comfort of the troops by the provision of war gifts, hospital ships and launches, and in numberless other ways I can only, on behalf of this force, tender our very grateful thanks and assure them that their kindness will never be forgotten.

18. The Directorate of Signals and Telegraphs has had to deal with ever increasing communications, and to improve those already existing in connection with the extension of the area occupied and of the railway system, and with the development of the country. In addition the telephone system have been enlarged and extended, and the work done by the wireless squadrons has been of a high order. The efficiency of this directorate has been well maintained.

The work performed by the Surveys has assumed very large proportions, but my demands have always been met in the most satisfactory manner, and the Map Compilation Section has been of the greatest assistance.

19. In the work of the civil and political branch of this force I have been most ably advised by the Civil Commissioner, Sir Percy Cox, G.C.I.E., K.C.S.I, to whom I am greatly indebted. The military developments on both flanks have involved a corresponding extension of our political responsibilities. The functions of the civil administration consist in the extension of political control, the exercise of influence on agricultural shaikhs and tribes, the levy of revenue in kind, and not least the work connected with Central Arabian politics and the local Arab tribes.

The administration of the Basrah Vilayet continues to run smoothly on what are practically peace lines and satisfactory progress is noticeable in all branches.

20. The Royal Navy has ever been anxious to give me every assistance when called upon and I am grateful to Rear-Admiral D. St. A. Wake, C.B., C.I.E., and the officers and ratings under his command for their ready co-operation.

21. Lastly, I desire to record my most sincere thanks to my staff and technical advisers who have so ably and loyally carried out my wishes.

Major-General W. Gillman, C.B., C.M.G., D.S.O., my Chief of the General Staff, has rendered me most loyal and invaluable assistance, whist during his absence on an important mission his place was ably filled by Brigadier-General T. Fraser, C.B., C.M.G., to whose capable work I owe much both during that period and on previous occasions.

Major-General the Hon'ble A. R. M. Stuart-Wortley, C.B., D.S.O., my Deputy Quarter-master-General, has had an ever increasing load of work and responsibilities placed on his shoulders owing to the various new directorates which have come into being within the past six months, but his energy and ability have over-come all initial difficulties.

Major-General F. F. Ready, C.B., C.M.G., D.S.O., my Deputy Adjutant-General, has been a tower of strength to me and I owe much to his painstaking work and sound advice.

The entire absence of friction or discord which has characterized the work of all branches of the staff has been a source of great gratification to me and I feel sure to the entire force.

22. As a proof of the gallantry and devotion to duty displayed by regimental officers and men during the period covered by this despatch I have, under the powers delegated to me as Commander-in-Chief, made the following immediate awards for service in the field :—Distinguished Service Order, 15 ; Military Cross, 109 ; Distinguished Conduct Medal, 33 ; Military Medal, 67 ; Indian Order of Merit, 30 ; Indian Distinguished Conduct Medal, 104.

Note.—A list giving the names of those officers, ladies, warrant and non-commissioned officers and men whose services are deemed to be deserving of reward and special mention will be published later.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

Certain industries of national importance, which are essential to the maintenance of the forces in the field, are steadily expanding on a large scale, necessitating the employment of men with special technical knowledge and training on a scale commensurate with such expansion. It is becoming increasingly difficult to obtain the services of specialists from the United Kingdom, and it is proposed to utilise to the fullest extent the services of those who are in India. The Bill is designed to give effect to this proposal.

Briefly, the Bill provides for taking power by an order in writing to require any member of the European portion of the Indian Defence Force, whether in possession of an exemption certificate or not, to take up or continue any employment in any industry declared to be of national importance by the Governor General in Council. Persons in respect of whom such an order has been made will be deemed to have been called out for general military service, or to have been called upon to perform actual military duty, as the case may be, according as they belong to the general military service or local military service class.

It is not intended to exercise this power, except for the purposes of Government service and industrial concerns under Government control. It is proposed to make provision for the payment of reasonable salaries to persons employed on technical work, and to utilise the services of the Selection Committees formed under the Indian Defence Force Act for advising Government as regards individual cases.

Proceedings of the Indian Legislative Council.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

PROCEEDINGS OF THE INDIAN LEGISLATIVE COUNCIL ASSEMBLED UNDER THE PROVISIONS OF THE GOVERNMENT OF INDIA ACT, 1915 (5 & 6 Geo. V, Ch. 61.)

THE Council met at the Council Chamber, Viceregal Lodge, Simla, on Wednesday, the 18th September, 1918.

PRESENT :

The Hon'ble SIR GEORGE LOWNDES, K.C.S.I., K.C., Vice-President, presiding, and 56 Members, of whom 50 were Additional Members.

OATH OF OFFICE.

11-1 A.M.

The following Additional Member made the prescribed oath or affirmation of allegiance to the Crown :—

The Hon'ble Mr. John Perronet Thompson.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

The Hon'ble Mr. V. J. Patel asked :—

The Boy-scout movement.

1. "Will Government be pleased to lay on the table the Circular issued to the Local Governments in 1917 on the subject of the boy-scout movement, as also the replies, if any, thereto? What action has each Local Government taken on the Circular?"

The Hon'ble Sir C. Sankaran Nair replied :—

"A copy of the Government of India's Circular letter* No. 260, dated the 22nd March 1917, on the subject of the boy-scouts movement in India is laid upon the table. It was published at the time of its issue. The Circular did not call for replies, nor have Local Governments sent replies to it, save the Government of Bengal, whose letter* No. 197-T., dated the 8th May 1917, with enclosures and the Government of India's reply* (No. 469, dated the 30th May 1917) are laid upon the table. Local Governments have been requested to submit reports regarding the action taken on the Circular. When all these reports have been received, it is hoped to lay on the table the information requested."

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

[Mr. V. J. Patel; H. E. the Commander-in-Chief in India; Khan Bahadur Mian Muhammad Shafi; Sir William Meyer; Rai Bahadur B. D. Shukul; Sir George Barnes.] [18TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.]

The Tanning Industry in India.

The Hon'ble Mr. V. J. Patel asked :—

2. "(a) Has the attention of Government been drawn to the letter by 'a tanner' under the heading 'The destruction of the tanning industry' in the issue of 'New India,' dated August 8th, 1918 ?

(b) Are all or any of the allegations made in it substantially correct ?

(c) If Government do not admit any of the allegations in the letter to be correct, will they be pleased to consider the desirability of issuing a Press Note explaining their attitude in the matter ?"

His Excellency the Commander-in-Chief in India replied :—

"The reply to the first portion of the Hon'ble Member's question is in the affirmative.

With regard to (b), the Government of India believe that many of the statements of fact are correct, but there are others which are not susceptible of verification, and Government consider that no useful purpose would be served by investigating the allegations made and the inferences drawn by the writer of the article.

As regards (c), the Government of India do not think that there is any need to issue a Press Note, in view of the fact that the principal remedy suggested in the letter was the withdrawal of the prohibition of the export of tanned skins. It may interest the Hon'ble Member to learn that the position has been explained fully to the Southern India Skin and Hide Merchants' Association, who have promised to assist in increasing the output of tanned hides required for the Army, and have undertaken not to tan skins or to countenance their tanning by others so long as the present stringency continues. In view of their promise of co-operation, the Government of India have already permitted the export of their declared stocks of tanned skins, which is the action specifically recommended in the article referred to by the Hon'ble Member."

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur Mian Muhammad Shafi asked :—

Taxation of excess war profits in India.

3. "(a) Has the attention of Government been drawn to a report in the newspapers of an answer given in the House of Commons to a question regarding the taxation of excess war profits in India ?

(b) Will Government be pleased to state what steps, if any, they propose to take in respect of this matter ?"

The Hon'ble Sir William Meyer replied :—

"The attention of the Government of India has been drawn to the report in question. The position has now been fully explained to the Council in my speech on the 9th instant moving the Resolution regarding further financial assistance by India towards the prosecution of the war, and to this I would refer the Hon'ble Member."

The Hon'ble Rai Bahadur B. D. Shukul asked :—

Indigenous industries.

4. "Will Government be pleased to state in detail what means have been adopted to utilise the present opportunities afforded by war conditions with a view to foster the growth of indigenous industries ?"

The Hon'ble Sir George Barnes replied :—

"I would refer the Hon'ble Member to the speeches delivered in this Council by my predecessor and the Hon'ble Mr. Low on the 24th of February 1915 and the 21st of March 1916. These speeches gave a resumé of the action taken by Government during the early part of the war.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

[18TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.] [Sir George Barnes.]

It must be remembered that, although the shortage of shipping and the restrictions on manufacture in the United Kingdom and the Allied countries have enlarged the opportunities of Indian industries, these causes have also made progress more difficult. Technical experts cannot be obtained in many cases and the obstacles to the adequate supply of plant and machinery can only partially be overcome.

"Government have, in the first place, taken all possible action to guard against the unnecessary import of articles which are being produced or can be manufactured in India. They carefully scrutinise all indents from Government Departments and from the railways, in order to obtain as much as possible from Indian sources. Applications for priority in respect of articles required from the United Kingdom by business-firms in this country are similarly examined with the same object. Promising openings for manufactures in India are thus revealed and are brought to the notice of firms likely to take up the work. Existing expert knowledge has for the first time been organised and made readily available for the help of industrialists desirous of starting new ventures.

"With a greater or less degree of Government help or encouragement, a number of new industries have, in fact, been started, some instances of which I will now give the Hon'ble Member. Further details will be found in the statements* which I lay on the table. Caustic soda, magnesium chloride, thymol, sandal-wood oil, copperas, zinc chloride and refined nitre are chemicals which have now been made in India for the first time on a commercial scale. Ferro-manganese is being produced in large quantities and has even been exported. The manufacture of micanite has been taken in hand by a private firm and by the East Indian Railway. The production of silicate bricks for lining furnaces has been developed so far that it is hoped that India will soon be independent of foreign imports. Great progress has been made in the output of accessories for the textile and tea industries. The building of wooden ships has received encouragement by the offer of special terms, which were explained in a Communiqué published a month or two ago

"There has been an immense increase in the output of industries which were already established before the war. Perhaps the most important example is that of Messrs. Tata Sons and Company, whose output of steel ingots is now much more than double the output in 1913. Other lesser industries show similar development, and I would instance the glass industry, to which technical assistance has been given with excellent results in several cases, and the coir industry which has been rescued from severe loss, if not extinction, by war orders.

"The extent to which Indian industry has been able to meet the requirements of the Army for clothing and equipment has been very striking. In the current year, 30 million yards of khaki drill and of grey and bleached cloth have been purchased in India as against 610,000 yards before the war and 49 million yards of webbing and tapes, mainly the product of small artizans, have been purchased. Before the war the bulk of the Army requirements under this head were imported. Thus only 32,000 yards of flannel and 16,000 yards of grey-coat-cloth of Indian manufacture were obtained in India. The purchases this year amount to 850,000 yards of flannel and 650,000 yards of grey-coat-cloth. Six thousand workers are employed on making blankets. Two million pairs of boots are now being manufactured in a year, or more than 20 times the pre-war figure.

"The results obtainable from the use of indigenous tan-stuffs have been greatly improved by the work of the Tanning Research Factory at Maihar in Central India, and a loan has been made to Mr. Mirza of Ramnagar to extend his work on the manufacture of tanning and dyeing extracts. An expert tanner will shortly arrive in India to assist Government, and the services of the Tanning Expert appointed in 1916 have been extended for five more years. An experimental tannery has been established at Allahabad in connection with these investigations.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

[Sir George Barnes; Rai Bahadur B. D. Shukul; Maharaja Sir Manindra Chandra Nandi.] [18TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.]

"Numerous activities of minor importance have been undertaken by Local Governments, especially in Madras, where the success of the Government pencil factory has justified its being now handed over to private enterprise.

"I do not understand that the Hon'ble Member requires information as to the many important schemes under examination, some of which have now reached an advanced stage. The consideration of these schemes and of the whole work of development will be greatly assisted by the labours of the Indian Industrial Commission."

The Hon'ble Rai Bahadur B. D. Shukul:—"I beg to ask a supplementary question, Sir. Will the Hon'ble Member give me the names of the firms which have been recently started, so that we may know how many are Indians and how many Europeans?"

The Hon'ble Sir George Barnes replied:—"I should be very glad to give the Hon'ble Member the information he wants, but I have not got it here."

The Hon'ble Maharaja Sir Manindra Chandra Nandi asked:—

Prohibition of export of pearls to foreign countries.

5. "(a) Is it a fact that the export of pearls to foreign countries has been prohibited by an order of the Government of India under the Defence of India Act?

(b) If the reply be in the affirmative, will Government be pleased to state the reasons for such an order and the number of people who have been directly affected by the prohibition?"

The Hon'ble Sir George Barnes replied:—

"(a) The export of pearls has been prohibited by a notification issued under section 3 of the Import and Export of Goods Act, 1916.

(b) The reasons for imposing the prohibition are given in a Press Communiqué, dated the 20th March 1918, and were explained in detail by the Hon'ble the Finance Member in his reply to the Committee of the Indian Merchants' Chamber and Bureau. A copy of these* documents is laid on the table. Briefly, the measure is required in the interests of War finance. The Government of India do not consider it possible to obtain information as to the number of persons directly affected by the prohibition."

The Hon'ble Maharaja Sir Manindra Chandra Nandi asked:—

The Indian Civil Service.

6. "Will Government be pleased to lay on the table a complete statement regarding the following particulars in connection with the Indian Civil Service up to the 31st of March, 1918:—

(a) the total sanctioned strength;

(b) the actual strength;

(c) the total number of superior posts;

(d) the total number of the other posts;

(e) the total number of Indians in the superior and other posts respectively;

(f) the annual number of recruitments made in 1910, 1911, 1912, 1913 and 1914;

(g) the annual number of recruitments made annually since 1914;

(h) the principles on which recruitments are now based?"

* Not included in these Proceedings.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

[18TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.] [Sir Willam Vincent; Maharaja Sir Manindra Chandra Nandi; Sir Claude Hill.]

The Hon'ble Sir William Vincent replied :—

"(a) to (e). The information asked for is given in a statement* which I lay on the table.

(f) The number of candidates recruited in the years 1910-1914 is as follows :—

1910 .	60	1912 ...	47
1911 . .	52	1913 .	4[illegible]

1914 53

(g) The number of candidates recruited since 1914 is

1915 ..	14	1917 . ..	6
1916 ..	9	1918 . ..	5

(h) Recruitment is ordinarily based on the average annual rate of decrement, subject to variations, not exceeding 30 per cent either way, when the actual strength of the cadre is in excess, or falls short of the sanctioned strength. For a more detailed account of the system the Hon'ble Member is referred to paragraph 40 of Annexure X of the Public Services Commission's Report. In 1915, the Indian Civil Service (Temporary Provisions) Act was passed to render possible during the continuance of the war and for a period not exceeding two years thereafter, the appointment to the Indian Civil Service of persons who had been prevented by the war and consequent developments from entering by the usual open competition. The measures adopted by the Secretary of State to give effect to the purpose of the Act are described in a notice issued by the India Office on the 28th January, 1916, a copy of which is also placed on the table."

The Hon'ble Maharaja Sir Manindra Chandra Nandi asked:—

Stocks of rice in Bengal.

7. "(a) Is it a fact that there are large stocks of rice in Bengal which the cultivators have not been able to sell or dispose of in any way owing to the absence of adequate markets and prices, and that, in consequence, great distress has occurred among large masses of people in that Province?

(b) If so, do Government propose to take measures for finding adequate markets for this overstocked produce of Bengal?"

The Hon'ble Sir Claude Hill replied :—

"(a) The Government of India are aware that the price of rice in Bengal has been lower in the current year than it has been for some years past. At a Conference of Directors of Civil Supplies held at Nagpur on the 19th and 20th August, Bengal's exportable surplus was estimated at 300,000 tons. The United Provinces are, however, indenting heavily on Bengal for rice; and the Government of India understand that several provinces and Native States will require large quantities of this grain, much of which will have to be obtained from Bengal. There is, therefore, every reason to believe that the whole of the exportable surplus will ultimately be absorbed (b) In these circumstances, no special measures appear to be necessary to find a market for Bengal rice."

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

[Maharaja Sir Manindra Chandra Nandi; Sir William Vincent; H. E. the Commander-in-Chief in India.] [18TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.]

The Hon'ble Maharaja Sir Manindra Chandra Nandi asked :—

Publication and sale of copies of the Indian Constitutional Reforms Report.

8. " What is the total number of copies of the Report of the Viceroy and the Secretary of State on Indian Constitutional Reforms published and sold in India and England, respectively ? "

The Hon'ble Sir William Vincent replied :—

" Nearly 5,000 copies of the Report have been disposed of in England by sale or distribution. In India, 7,300 copies of the foolscap edition were issued for free distribution and 850 copies of the same edition were sold. Up to 31st August 1918, over 20,000 copies of the octavo edition had been issued for sale. It is not possible to say at present how many of these copies have actually been sold."

The Hon'ble Maharaja Sir Manindra Chandra Nandi asked : —

Admission of Indians to the Indian Defence Force.

9. " Will Government be pleased to lay on the table a statement showing the number of admissions in the different Provinces of India of Indians into the Indian Defence Force since its creation and up to the end of July, 1918 ? "

His Excellency the Commander-in-Chief in India replied :—

" A statement containing the information asked for by the Hon'ble Member is placed on the table. "

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

[18TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.] [Maharaja Sir Manindra Chandra Nandi; Sir William Meyer; Sir William Vincent.]

The Hon'ble Maharaja Sir Manindra Chandra Nandi asked:—

Encashment of one-rupee and 2½ rupee notes in rural areas.

10. "(a) Is it a fact that great difficulties have arisen in connection with the cashing of one-rupee notes in rural areas and that in several parts of Bengal it has become difficult to get more than fourteen annas for each such note?

(b) Do Government propose to take steps to remove these difficulties by the issue of notices and circulars and by penalising the refusal to accept or encash one-rupee notes for their face value?

(c) Is it a fact that two-and-a-half-rupee notes have failed to become popular in the country, and that this failure has reacted generally upon the entire paper currency of India, particularly on the notes of smaller denominations?

(d) If the reply to (c) be in the affirmative, do Government propose to reconsider the whole question of paper currency with a view to re-arrange the denominations of such notes?"

The Hon'ble Sir William Meyer replied:—

"(a) and (b) I would invite my Hon'ble friend's attention to the answer which I gave a few days ago to a similar question by the Hon'ble Sir Dinshaw Wacha. My Hon'ble Friend is no doubt also aware that a Resolution on the subject was recently moved in the Bengal Legislative Council, and that the Local Government are appointing a small Committee to consider the steps which can most suitably be taken with the object of minimising any difficulties that may have arisen in connection with the circulation of one-rupee notes in that province.

(c) It is a fact that notes for Rs. 2½ have not attained the same popularity as the Re 1 notes, but the Government of India do not believe that the circulation of notes of the former denomination has reacted on the popularity of the paper currency generally.

(d) Government do not propose to take action of the kind mentioned by the Hon'ble Member."

The Hon'ble Maharaja Sir Manindra Chandra Nandi asked:—

Expenditure incurred on the last Public Services Commission.

11. "Will Government be pleased to state the expenditure incurred for the last Public Services Commission in India on the following heads:—

(i) salaries per head of members of the Commission;

(ii) travelling expenditure of the whole Commission;

(iii) total cost of the publication of the Report?"

The Hon'ble Sir William Vincent replied:—

"As the expenditure was incurred partly in England and partly in India, the information asked for is not available. The total expenditure shown in the accounts of the Comptroller, India Treasuries, is Rs. 5,91,874."

The Hon'ble Maharaja Sir Manindra Chandra Nandi asked:—

Augmentation Grants.

12. "(a) Has the attention of Government been drawn to a Resolution in connection with the last Budget in Bengal, moved in the Bengal Legislative Council on the 14th March last, by Babu Bhabendra Chandra Roy, regarding certain deductions (amounting to over 5 lacs) made by the Local Government from the Augmentation Grant in 1914-15, 1915-16 and 1916-17?

QUESTIONS AND ANWERS.

[Maharaja Sir Manindra Chandra Nandi; Sir William Meyer.] [18TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.]

(b) Is it a fact that at the last financial settlement with Bengal, it was one of the understandings that the Local Government would find the amount of the Augmentation Grant on behalf of the Government of India and credit it to the District Boards year after year?

(c) Is the Augmentation Grant a fluctuating amount?

(d) If the answer to (b) and (c) be in the affirmative, has the Local Government any option to make any deductions from the said grant in the manner referred to in the discussion on the aforesaid Resolution?

(e(Do the Government of India intend to request the Local Government to give effect to the said Resolution?"

The Hon'ble Sir William Meyer replied:—

"(a) The Government of India have seen the Resolution in the Bengal Legislative Council to which the Hon'ble Member refers.

(b) The financial settlement made in 1912 with the Government of Bengal contained no specific condition such as is suggested by the Hon'ble Member and, as I stated in a reply to a question put by him on the same subject last year, the only obligation specifically thrown on Provincial Governments in this matter is the obligation to distribute among District Boards the total amount of the assignments received from the Government of India.

(c) As I explained to the Hon'ble Member in the reply to which I have referred, the grant called the Augmentation Grant which was made by the Government of India to Bengal in 1905 was calculated to represent an amount approximately equal to one-quarter of the aggregate receipts which District Boards then derived from the road-cess, and it was given by the Government of India in the form of a fixed annual assignment from Imperial to Provincial revenues In so far as the Government of India were concerned, the Augmentation Grant was, therefore, a fixed grant. The same applies in the case of the subsequent grant made in 1913, when the public works cess was made over to District Boards. The amount derived from local cesses on land naturally fluctuates from year to year, but any addition which might be made by the Provincial Government to the Augmentation Grant on account of a growth in the receipts from these cesses on land would fall on Provincial revenues.

(d) It is the usual practice, where a grant is made by the Government of India to compensate a Local Government for the loss of revenue, to fix the grant on the basis of the loss sustained by the Local Government at the time, and to leave the Local Government to bear any further future loss. But though this is the usual practice, the only obligation, as I have said, specifically thrown on Provincial Governments in such cases is the obligation to distribute among the beneficiaries the total amount of assignments received from the Government of India. The Government of India are, therefore, not prepared to hold that the Government of Bengal had not in the years 1914-15 to 1916-17 the option of reducing the Augmentation Grant to the extent to which they did, and when communicating with the Bengal Government on the subject in 1917, though they expressed the hope that the usual practice would be followed in future, they recognised that it was unnecessary to make retrospective adjustments with regard to the reductions in the years 1914-15 to 1916-17.

(e) No, having regard to what has been said above."

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

[18TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.] [Sir Dinshaw Wacha ; Sir George Barnes ; Sir William Meyer.]

The Hon'ble Sir Dinshaw Wacha asked :—

The industrial development of India.

13. " Will Government be pleased to lay on the table—

(a) a list showing the concessions granted from 1st January, 1917 to 30th June, 1918,

(i) to Europeans, and

(ii) to Indians, in respect of mining, minerals, oils, forests, etc., in India including Burma, fully describing each concession and mentioning the period over which it extends ; and (b) a list of the existing concessions the period of each of which will terminate on or before 31st December, 1920 ?"

The Hon'ble Sir George Barnes replied :—

" (a) Quarterly Statements are prepared by each of the Local Governments showing the applications for prospecting licenses for minerals and mining leases disposed of during the quarter in question. Copies of these statements for the six quarters referred to in the Hon'ble Member's question, that is to say, from the 1st January 1917 to the 30th June 1918 are laid upon the table.*

A statement is added showing the applications for forest concessions which have been submitted to the Government of India. This Statement does not include the numerous leases and contracts for the extraction of forest produce which are granted by Local Governments in the ordinary course of forest administration.

These lists are not prepared separately for European and Indian applicants, but as the name is given in each case, the Hon'ble Member will readily be able to distinguish between them.

(b) A list* of existing mineral concessions, the period of which will terminate on or before the 31st December 1920, is also laid upon the table."

The Hon'ble Sir Dinshaw Wacha asked :—

Sources from which the expenditure of Government has been met.

14. " Will Government be pleased to inform the Council how much of the spending power of the State in India has been obtained, say, from 1st January 1915 to 30th June 1918, from—

(a) Direct taxation,

(b) Indirect taxation,

(c) Real savings and economies,

(d) Export trade,

(e) Foreign investments, and

(f) Other sources ?"

The Hon'ble Sir William Meyer replied :—

"A statement* giving the figures asked for by the Hon'ble Member, commencing with the financial year 1914-15, is laid on the table. The question is however so broadly framed that it is somewhat difficult to give a categorical reply, and I had better add a few words of explanation as to the way in which the statement has been drawn up.

*Not included in these Proceedings.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

[Sir William Meyer; Pandit Madan Mohan Malaviya.] [18TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.]

2. In the first place, the classification as between direct and indirect taxation should not be taken as authoritative; for example, it is arguable how far the revenue from stamps can be regarded as direct taxation, or registration fees as indirect taxation. The classification made in the statement should, therefore, be regarded as made entirely ad hoc, and in no way as representing the Government's considered opinion as to the character of any particular form of taxation. The figures for the revenue from the various sources of taxation have been given separately in the statement, so the Hon'ble Member can easily re-classify them, if he wishes, according to his own predilections.

3. The figures for land-revenue and for the income from the commercial services have been shown separately from those for direct and indirect taxation.

4. As regards the Hon'ble Member's head (c) it is not possible to give figures for savings and economies or to specify the amounts which might, in different circumstances, have been spent. But my Hon'ble friend is no doubt aware that, since the commencement of the war careful economy in public expenditure has been strictly enjoined throughout India, the general rule being that no fresh expenditure may be incurred unless it can be shown to be of imperative necessity or likely to be immediately remunerative.

5. In asking for figures for the export trade the Hon'ble Member presumably has in mind a negative influence upon the spending power of the State in India, namely, the payment of Council Bills out of Treasury funds. Such payments have therefore been included in the statement.

6. As regards head (e) 'Foreign Investments,' the figures shown in the statement are those for the interest on the securities held in the Paper Currency Reserve, the Gold Standard Reserve and the Special Reserve of £20 million. This income, however, accrues in London and is not available for expenditure in India. It is possible, therefore, that my Hon'ble friend has in mind the withdrawals from the Paper Currency Reserve in India against investments in British Treasury bills at home. If so, then the figures are as follows :—

1914-15.	1915-16.	1916-17.	1917-18.	1918-19 (up to 20th August 1918.)
	£	£	£	£
Nil ...	4,000,296	18,994,317	8,657,972	16,069,858"

The Hon'ble Pandit Madan Mohan Malaviya asked :—

Expenditure incurred by India on account of the war.

15. "Will Government be pleased to lay on the table statements showing :—

(a) the total amount of expenditure incurred by the Government of India on account of the war up to the 31st March last;

(b) the total amount of loan given to, and the expenditure incurred on behalf of, the Government of the United Kingdom in connection with the war up to the 31st March last;

(c) the contributions made by the Rulers and the peoples of the various Indian States;

(d) the contributions made by private individuals and bodies in British India; and

(e) the total amount of loan raised up to the 31st August last towards the one hundred million gift to England?"

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

[18TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.] [Sir William Meyer; Rao Bahadur B. N. Sarma.]

The Hon'ble Sir William Meyer replied :—

"(a) A statement* showing the expenditure incurred by the Government of India on account of the war up to the 31st March 1918 is laid on the table. The figures given are approximate and do not include indirect expenditure due to the war, e.g. the cost of additional establishments entertained in the various secretariats, the telegraph department, etc., to cope with increased work resulting from war conditions. No separate record has been kept of such expenditure.

The figure shown against item (i) in the statement which is laid on the table is the excess of net military expenditure, in the period under consideration, over the pre-war scale of expenditure, and may be taken broadly to represent the extra military outlay resulting from the war It includes about £4¼ million on account of outlay incurred, for the most part, in connection with the operations on, and the defence of, the North-Western Frontier and coastal defence measures. It does not include the normal cost of certain troops employed outside India with the various Expeditionary Forces, nor the normal cost of certain Royal Indian Marine vessels placed at the disposal of the Admiralty, both of which India bears under the Parliamentary Resolutions of November 1914. The total of these two items, together with the saving in our troop service, all of which we have surrendered to His Majesty's Government under the spirit of the Parliamentary Resolutions, amounted to £23 million up to the end of 1917-18. This sum represents a saving which would have accrued to Indian revenues under the strict application of the Government of India Act, but which, in accordance with the Resolution unanimously passed by this Council shortly after the outbreak of the war, it was decided to forego.

(b) The Hon'ble Member is presumably referring in the first part of this question to the aggregate investments made in securities of the British Government on behalf of the Paper Currency and Gold Standard Reserve and the Special Reserve constituted in 1917-18. As stated in paragraph 35 of my speech introducing the Financial Statement for the current year, these amounted to £67 million up to the 31st March 1918. The expenditure incurred on behalf of His Majesty's Government up to the same date amounted to £131 million.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

[Rao Bahadur B. N. Sarma; H. E. the Commander-in-Chief in India; Mr. W. A. Ironside; Mir Asad Ali, Khan Bahadur; Sir William Vincent; Sir George Barnes.] [18TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.]

(d) What special arrangements, if any, have been made for ascertaining their condition since the reply given to my question on the subject during the last Delhi Session ? "

His Excellency the Commander-in-Chief in India replied :—

" I place on the table a statement* giving such information as is available."

The Hon'ble Mr. W. A. Ironside :—

Distribution and sale of copies of the Reforms Report.

17. " Will Government be pleased to state the number of copies of the Report by His Excellency the Viceroy and the Secretary of State on Indian Constitutional Reforms that have been distributed without charge and the number for which payment has been made to the 31st August last ? "

The Hon'ble Mr. W. A. Ironside :—" Sir, I beg leave to withdraw the question standing in my name, as an answer† has already been given by the Hon'ble Member to a previous question."

The question was by leave withdrawn.

The Hon'ble Mir Asad Ali, Khan Bahadur, asked :—

Publication of criticisms on the Indian Reform Proposals.

18. " Do Government propose to publish the criticisms on the Indian Reform proposals by Local Governments, public bodies and public men, and submit the same to the Secretary of State for India before the proposed constitutional changes are embodied in a Parliamentary Bill, and will the publication be made available to the public ?"

The Hon'ble Sir William Vincent replied :—

" The opinions of Local Governments and responsible criticisms received will be communicated to the Secretary of State before legislation is introduced into Parliament. It is not customary for the Government of India to publish such opinions and criticisms. "

The Hon'ble Mir Asad Ali, Khan Bahadur, asked :—

Food-grains used in the manufacture of alcoholic liquors.

19. " With reference to the reply given on 14th March last to my question regarding the total quantity of food-grains used in the manufacture of alcoholic liquors such as beer, do Government intend to advise Provincial Administrations to collect and include the necessary statistics in their respective annual reports on the excise administration ?"

The Hon'ble Sir George Barnes replied :—

" No, Sir, the Government do not propose to advise Provincial Administrations to collect and include the statistics suggested by the Hon'ble Member in their respective annual reports on the excise administration. "

THE PROVISIONAL COLLECTION OF TAXES BILL.

[18TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.] [Sir William Meyer ; Mr. V. J. Patel.]

THE PROVISIONAL COLLECTION OF TAXES BILL.

The Hon'ble Sir William Meyer :—" Sir, I beg to move that the Bill to provide for the immediate effect for a limited period of Bills introduced into the Indian Legislative Council which impose or vary certain taxation be taken into consideration. When introducing the Bill the other day I explained its scope and necessity supplementing the already full explanation given in the Statement of Objects and Reasons. Briefly, it is restricted, subject to certain safeguards, to cases in which the Government have introduced a Bill for providing for the imposition or variation of any tax in the nature of Customs or Excise duties. Where this is declared to be in the public interest, this present Bill allows such Bill to have temporary effect until the Bill providing for these duties has been passed into law, and subject of course to refunds in the case of a Bill being amended or the Bill failing to pass Sir, I have already explained that we are following in this respect the procedure now in force in the United Kingdom, and the course proposed is highly expedient in order to avoid leakage of revenue by abnormal clearances of goods during the period which would elapse between the declaration of fresh taxation and the passing of such taxation into law." 11-29 A.M.

The Hon'ble Mr. V. J. Patel :—" Sir, before this Bill is passed, I should like once more to invite the attention of this Council to the point I raised when the Hon'ble Sir William Meyer moved for leave to introduce it. The point is this. I submit that the proposed measure is outside the powers of this Legislative Council. This Legislative Council has no power to pass any measure which would affect any Parliamentary enactment applicable to British India. I would invite the attention of the Council in support of what I say to section 65 of the Government of India Act. Clause (2) of that section says ' Provided that the Governor General in Legislative Council has not, unless expressly so authorised, by Act of Parliament power to make any law repealing or affecting any Act of Parliament passed after the year 1860 and extending to British India (including the Army Act and any Act amending the same).' Now, I propose to point out how the proposed measure affects the Government of India Act. If you turn to section 68 of the Act you will find that a Bill has to be passed by this Legislative Council before it becomes an Act, and no Bill has any validity unless, after it is passed, it receives the assent of the Governor General, and the Governor General has also the power to reserve any Act for the pleasure of His Majesty. That being so, this measure which purports to provide that a Bill in which a particular clause is introduced shall become law before it is passed by this Legislative Council is, in my opinion, ultra vires of the powers of this Council. I may also point out that the consequences of passing this measure are likely to be very serious. The measure is particularly intended to be applicable to Taxation Bills. Now suppose a Taxation Bill is introduced into this Council, and is given effect to as law at once on its very introduction and afterwards a question crops up in a Court of Law, then all taxes realised by virtue of that Bill will have to be refunded. For instance, at the next meeting of the Council, say, the Bill with regard to excess war profits will probably contain a clause as provided in this Bill, and in that case it is very likely that persons affected by that measure might go to a Court of Law........." 11-31 A.M.

The Hon'ble Sir William Meyer :—" I should like to point out to the Hon'ble Member that an excess profits tax is neither an Excise nor a Customs measure."

The Hon'ble Mr. V. J. Patel :—" Anyhow the point remains that if any question regarding the validity of this measure crops up in a Court of Law and the Court agrees with the view which I have now put forward before this Council, then the consequences will be very serious indeed."

THE PROVISIONAL COLLECTION OF TAXES BILL.

[Mr. V. J. Patel ; Mr. A. P. Muddiman ; Rao Bahadur B. N. Sarma.] [18TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.]

11-36 A.M. The Hon'ble Mr. A. P. Muddiman :—" Sir, I should just like to make one point. The Hon'ble Member is quite right in saying that if the Bill affects the Government of India Act, then it may be beyond our legislative powers. But subject to the limitations imposed on our powers by that Act, the powers of this Legislative Council are as extensive as the powers of Parliament which, I think, is very clear to all lawyers in this Council. The law is very clear on the point. The point, as I understand the Hon'ble Member, is this. He says that by passing this Bill we shall affect section 68 of the Government of India Act. I very respectfully submit to the Council that this is not so, and that there is nothing in this legislation that affects that section. What we are doing on this occasion is, what has been frequently done in other Acts. We are merely embodying as a general measure an individual provision which has appeared in Acts which have been passed by this Council without objection, and I myself can see no objection. If the power exists at all, and if it can be exercised in individual cases, I do not see why it cannot be exercised in the general case. I, therefore, think that the Hon'ble Member's apprehensions as to the possibility of this Bill being ultra vires need not be taken very seriously. Of course it is always a serious matter if a Bill is passed by this Council, and it is subsequently held by the Courts to be ultra vires, but it is no more serious as regards this Bill than as regards any other Bill.

" As regards the point in regard to the refunding of taxation, the Bill itself provides for taxation being refunded in the event of the Council not passing the taxing Act to which temporary effect is given by the Bill."

11-37 A.M. The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur B. N. Sarma :—" Sir, I labour under a somewhat similar difficulty to the one expressed by my Hon'ble friend Mr. Patel, and I have not been able to follow exactly the reasons given in answer to the objections raised. I believe there is a way of meeting the difficulty which induced the Government to bring forward this Bill. Now the first question is, as to whether there is any difference of opinion with regard to the object of the Bill. With regard to the object of the Bill, I do not think there can be any objection taken by any one, because I think it is right that there should be no leakage of revenue during the interval that may elapse between the introduction of the Bill and its passing. The only question is, as to whether that object cannot be attained in any other way, and as to whether the procedure that is proposed to be adopted is the right one. Now, any Bill which may be introduced imposing a new Customs or Excise duty or altering the existing rate would, I think, come within the wording of section 65. 'The Governor General in Legislative Council has power to make laws for repealing or altering any laws which for the time being are in force in any part of British India.' The only person or rather the only body which has power to repeal or alter any law, or to enact the introduction of a Customs duty or alteration of any Customs or Excise duty would be the Governor General in Legislative Council.

" What we are proposing now is, that this power should be delegated by this Act by the Governor General in Legislative Council to the Executive Government of the Government of India, because the Bill that would be introduced would be at the instance of the Government of India, and it would be the result of the considered judgment of the Government of India. I have, Sir, very grave doubts as to whether it would be competent to delegate the powers of the Governor General in Legislative Council to the Executive Government even though the Bill may have only a temporary effect......

THE PROVISIONAL COLLECTION OF TAXES BILL.

[18TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.] [Mr. A. P. Muddiman ; Rao Bahadur B. N. Sarma]

The Hon'ble Mr. A. P. Muddiman:—"May I interrupt the Hon'ble Member for one moment? He probably remembers the recent decisions in the Patna High Court."

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur B. N. Sarma:—"Yes, it may delegate its functions for certain purposes, such as to make rules, or otherwise provide for the carrying out of the provisions of an Act, but the question is whether the Governor General in Legislative Council can delegate to the Executive Government powers under section 65 of the nature suggested. I have not been able to follow the argument, but that is my position, that they cannot. It may be said that the Governor General in Legislative Council is now passing an Act which it is competent for him to do that a certain measure of legislation to be hereafter introduced shall have temporary effect as an Act of the legislature. My submission is that the composition of the Legislative Council at the time a Bill is introduced into the Council may be somewhat different from the composition of the Legislative Council at the time this present Bill is passed into law, and I doubt whether it is competent for this Council to say that a future Council shall treat a Bill proposed by the Executive Government to have effect as a temporary law. Now an answer may be suggested to meet objections, and that is this. Before a Bill contemplated under this Act is introduced, it is open to the then Legislative Council to repeal this particular law, but my answer to that would be that no person can introduce a Bill with reference to this present Act, unless he has the consent of the Governor General, and it is perfectly open to the Governor General, even if the Legislative Council should pass such a Bill repealing this Act, before that Bill is taken up, to veto that legislation. Therefore my point is that we are unduly fettering the powers of future Councils. Sir, cannot the object be attained in a different way? I would submit that the Ordinance power of the Governor General would cover fiscal legislation also, and if there is any emergency, I think that power can be invoked. Apart from that, there appears to be no difficulty when a Bill is introduced into the Legislative Council to suspend the Rules of Business and pass that Bill into a temporary law for a period of 30 days. The Legislative Council may at that time give effect to that Bill as it stands without any alteration for a period of 25 or 30 days until it can give detailed consideration to the Bill and its specific provisions: I think therefore the object which the Government have in view might be attained on each occasion by suspending the Rules of Business and getting a temporary Bill passed into law, and there is wisdom in that also, because if it is obnoxious to the Legislative Council as a body, then the Government may not enforce that even as a temporary law, and the power of the Government is not in question because the Government have always had a majority in the Legislative Council, and it is proposed that they should have a majority even hereafter. Therefore, there appears to be no difficulty whatever in the Government obtaining the powers it wishes to have by invoking its jurisdiction of the Council when necessary. I do not see why we should pass a general law whereby we should empower the Executive Government to give temporary effect to any Customs duty or Excise duty without the Legislative Council which has to pass the law giving any consideration to the subject. And there is danger also, because if this principle be once accepted, it may be that we shall be asked to pass a law enabling the Government to give temporary effect to the will of the Executive Government for the period intervening before a Bill is taken into consideration by a Legislative Council. The time proposed in this Bill is one month, but there is no logical difficulty in extending that period to eight months or ten months, a period exceeding that period for Ordinances. I am only arguing on a general principle, not that the Government is going to exercise that power, but if we can empower by a general Act the Executive Government to treat a Bill as a law for a temporary period, it may be in fiscal matters to-day, it may be in some other matter to-morrow, we shall be delegating our functions to the Executive Government for an unlimited period without that Bill being considered by the Legislative Council. Therefore, Sir, if the same object can be attained by the Government in the two ways I have suggested, there seems to be no reason why it should not, especially in view of the legal difficulties in proceeding on the lines now suggested in the present Bill."

11-47 A.M. The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur Mian Muhammad Shafi :—"Sir, it seems to me that the position adopted by the Hon'ble Mr. Patel with reference to the point which he has placed before the Council is founded on a misapprehension. In order to clear up the position, it is necessary for me to invite the attention of the Hon'ble Members to the provisions of section 2 of this Bill:—

'When a Bill is introduced into the Indian Legislative Council by a Member of the Executive Council of the Governor General, and such Bill provides for the imposition or variation of any tax in the nature of Customs or Excise duties, and there is inserted therein a declaration that it is expedient in the public interest that the Bill should have temporary effect under the provisions of this Act, the Bill shall, for the period limited by this section and subject to the provisions of this Act, have effect from the date of its introduction as if it were an Act of the Governor General in Council.'

That is to say that, according to this provision certain particular kinds of Bills shall under given circumstances have retrospective effect from the date of their introduction. Then you will see that certain other provisions are embodied in the two subsequent clauses amounting to provisos under this section, and also in the succeeding section for the Bill being passed within a certain period and for the restoration of the status quo ante in case of ultimate total rejection of the Bill by the Legislative Council. Now a lawyer of the Hon'ble Mr. Patel's standing must know that, although Bills introduced into this Council become law when they are actually passed, yet it is within the cognisance of this Council to give retrospective effect to any Act which this Council may pass from a given date. That is to say, it is open to the Legislative Council to say that this Act shall be considered as having come into force on the date of introduction. If that is so, then it follows that there is nothing to prevent this Legislative Council in a general enactment of this kind from saying that Bills of a certain particular description, not every Bill that is introduced into this Council, but Bills dealing with a particular matter, shall, under circumstances stated in the Bill, be considered as having come into force on the day of their introduction.

"It seems to me, Sir, that this is perfectly within the jurisdiction of this Council, and that there is nothing inconsistent thereto in the Government of India Act to which my Hon'ble and learned friend has referred."

The motion was put and agreed to.

11-51 A.M. The Hon'ble Sir William Meyer :—"Sir, I now move that the Bill be passed. I do not think that we need be deterred in passing this Bill into law by the objections which have occurred to the ingenious minds of two Hon'ble Members of the Council. The legal objections have been suitably answered by my Hon'ble friends Mr. Muddiman and Mr. Shafi. The Hon'ble Mr. Sarma dealt mainly with the questions of policy, and as the Hon'ble Mr. Muddiman pointed out, his knowledge of legal decisions was unfortunately not quite up to date.

"As regards the questions of policy, there were various objections which were made by my Hon'ble friend, but I do not think any of them were valid. The first was, apparently, that this Council had no power to bind its successors. Well, I had at Delhi once to accuse my Hon'ble friend of Bolshevist sentiments, because he said in regard to a particular Resolution that, if people did not think as he did, it might be necessary to coerce them. He has now advanced another Bolshevist argument, namely, that laws should only be in force for the time that a

THE PROVISIONAL COLLECTION OF TAXES BILL.

[18TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.] [Sir William Meyer; Rao Bahadur B. N. Sarma.]

Council exists, and that, therefore, at the end of each Council, all our laws would lapse and we would get into the state of anarchy that my Hon'ble friend's leanings point to. Of course he was not really serious, because every Session a Council passes laws which bind succeeding Councils until such Councils choose to repeal or alter them.

"Then he said that he was very reluctant to delegate powers to the Government. He says this is a new departure, and that you are delegating powers which you ought to keep yourselves. Why, in almost every Act there are powers delegated to Government—the Governor General in Council is empowered to make rules which shall have the force of law on such and such matters.

"My Hon'ble friend, as a man of affairs, seems to admit the validity of the principle of the Bill. He says you must not let so much money escape, which belongs to the community, but you can do it in different ways, and with those despotic leanings which I have found in him he says 'do it by Ordinance. Well, we might perhaps do it by Ordinance, but we do not want to issue an Ordinance when it is possible to get a matter through promptly with the concurrence of the Legislative Council. Then, apart from the Ordinance, my Hon'ble friend would apparently like to rush the discussion through in a day. He would say 'there is precious money being lost; you must pass this Bill at once.' We are more democratic. We want to consult the convenience of the Council; we want to allow Money Bills of this sort relating to Excise and Customs to be debated at greater leisure than has been possible previously. Hence the object of this Bill, which enables the provisional collection of duties that the Council will be asked to validate permanently by a law.

"I got a chit from some Hon'ble friend, whose signature I unfortunately could not read, just now, in which he asked me what provisions the Bill made, in the event of the Council rejecting or modifying a Money Bill to which it would apply, for refunds. I would refer him to clause 3 (1), also to clause 3 (2)

"I think, therefore, that no valid reason has been given why this Bill should not be passed at once. The Council will, in respect of this matter merely be showing the same trust in the Government as they have constantly shown in regard to rule-making powers, and the same trust as the Parliament of England has reposed in His Majesty's Government.

"As for the thin-end of the wedge argument, I really think that was unworthy of my friend the Hon'ble Mr. Sarma. He said that, if this is allowed for 30 days, it might presumably be allowed for 360 days. We are dealing with the Bill as it stands, and, suppose you had an Income-tax Bill raising the income-tax to, let us say, two annas in the rupee, you might just as well argue that it ought to be rejected, because some future Government might perhaps raise it to 14 annas in the rupee. I would ask Council not to give serious consideration to arguments of that character, and to pass the Bill as it stands."

11-57 A.M.

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur B. N. Sarma: —"Sir, well in all humility I tried to be convinced by the arguments of the Hon'ble Mr. Muddiman and the Hon'ble Sir William Meyer, and I must frankly confess that I have not been convinced. In these days of democracy, when the Allies are fighting for the institution of democratic institutions throughout the world, it is no wonder that the Government of India and its Members try to convert themselves into democrats. If they are going to be democrats, I have not the slightest objection temporarily to assume the role of an autocrat. Perhaps it has been by constant close association for the last two years with bureaucrats that I have imbibed some of their tendencies, possibly unconsciously. If so, I beg to be excused.

"Well, the Hon'ble the Finance Minister has asked that we should repose the same confidence in the Government of India as Parliament has reposed in

THE PROVISIONAL COLLECTION OF TAXES BILL.

[Rao Bahadur B. N. Sarma.] [18TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.]

His Majesty's Government. Well, we have to repose confidence in the Government of India whether we wish it or no, and I do not think we need be asked particularly to repose confidence in the Government of India. Only there is this point of difference between the analogy that the Hon'ble Member has drawn between India and England. The legislature is not sovereign as in England, but derives its powers under the Act of 1915. Again, under the Provisional Taxation Act, it is only where a Resolution is passed by the Committee of Ways and Means of the House of Commons, so long as it is a Committee of the whole House, providing for the variation of an existing tax, that, pending the Money Bill being passed through Parliament, that variation should have effect. Therefore, I do not see that any particular confidence has been reposed by Parliament in His Majesty's Government. They require that a Committee of the whole House should pass a particular Resolution with regard to a variation in a tax, and what I said was also that, when any variation in a tax is proposed by His Majesty's Government in India, the Committee of the whole House here should pass that temporarily into law. I did not say that it should not be discussed, I did not say that it should have final effect. I said that temporary effect might be given in order to attain the object of His Majesty's Government in India by passing the Bill for 30 days before there is an adequate discussion of the whole measure in the Legislative Council of the Government of India.

"I am extremely sorry that the Hon'ble the Finance Member has not been able to follow the essential difference between the argument as I put it and the argument as he conceived it, namely, that I wanted this Legislative Council not to give any attention whatsoever to measures which may be brought before it, but to suspend all Rules of Business and immediately to give effect to them. Such a proposition I have never advanced.

"Then, Sir, my knowledge of law may be antiquated or incorrect, or I may differ from the views of the Bihar High Court as explained by the Hon'ble Mr. Muddiman. Well, I can defend myself with regard to my knowledge elsewhere. But the point is, should we now say that we pass an Act stating that any Bill that may be introduced by the Government of India for the purpose should have the effect of varying any taxation for 30 days, when section 265 distinctly says that the Legislative Council as then sitting alone can do that. My reading may be wrong, but I am surely entitled to say that there is some foundation for the argument advanced by my Hon'ble friend Mr. Patel and myself. I am not so ignorant of legislative machinery or legal principles as to say that this Legislative Council cannot pass a law which will be in force after its particular period of existence. Such an argument need not have been put forward by my Hon'ble friend the Finance Minister. What I said was—and I am perfectly right in saying it—that it is not competent for this Council to say that a future Legislative Council—which alone can adjudicate upon a measure varying taxation as then sitting—should have its hands tied now even for a temporary period by an Act of this nature. That was my point, and I was perfectly right in the criticism which I have made.

"With regard to the statement that the Government, with their democratic tendencies, did not want to effect the object they have in view by means of an Ordinance, but wished to do it by means of a Bill introduced and discussed in this Council, the only difference between an Ordinance and a Bill introduced in the Legislative Council proposed, would be that an Ordinance will have force for six months, while a Bill will have force for 30 days before it is passed in the Legislative Council. That seems to me to be a distinction without a difference. It means virtually that we are enabling the Governor General in Council to pass a Bill for a temporary period—a power which it already possesses under the Government of India Act. I think, therefore, there is no reason why we should pass this Bill into law; having regard to the fact that it does not enable the Legislative Council to

We also know that the Governments of the Dominions have been invited by the Home authorities to pass legislation on similar lines. The Bill, as I said on its introduction, is directed against our enemies, and is intended to prevent our enemies, who are excluded from embarking on business of this particular character in the metals named in the Bill, from coming to India and evading the Home Act by setting up their business here."

The motion was put and agreed to.

[The Commander-in-Chief in India; Sir George Barnes; Mr. Ironside.] [18TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.]

His Excellency the Commander-in-Chief in India :—"Sir, I beg to move that the Bill be now passed."

The motion was put and agreed to.

THE COTTON CLOTH BILL.

12-8 P.M. The Hon'ble Sir George Barnes :—"Sir, I beg to present the Report of the Select Committee on the Bill to take powers to provide for the cheap supply of cotton cloth to the poorer classes of the community."

THE INDIAN DEFENCE FORCE (FOREIGN SERVICE) AMENDMENT BILL.

12-9 P.M. His Excellency the Commander-in-Chief in India :—"Sir, I beg to move for leave to introduce a Bill to provide that certain persons deemed to be enrolled under the Indian Defence Force Act, 1917, shall be liable to serve as well without the limits of India as within those limits, and that when so serving they shall be subject to the said Act.

"Under the Indian Defence Force Act, 1917, European British subjects between the ages of 18 and 41 are liable for general military service in any part of India, and those between the ages of 41 and 50 are liable for local military service only, that is, service in the places in which they usually reside.

"In Great Britain, on the other hand, every man below the age of 51 may be called upon to render service in any part of the world. It is therefore evident that the obligations in respect of military service imposed upon European British subjects in India are considerably less onerous than those imposed up on their fellow citizens at Home. The Government of India have reason to believe that the general feeling among European British subjects in India is that this distinction should be removed, and that they should, in respect of military service, be under similar obligations and on the same footing as those in Great Britain and other parts of the Empire. In order to satisfy this feeling, the Government of India propose to enlarge the scope of the military service imposed by the Indian Defence Force Act so as to make service out of India compulsory in the case of European British subjects of the general service class. The proposal will not affect the local military service class. This measure, in addition to gratifying the sentiment to which I have referred, will have the advantage of considerably increasing the utility of the Indian Defence Force, for it is evident that military operations based on India might even extend beyond its frontiers and, in certain circumstances, the existing territorial limitations in regard to the employment of the Force would prove highly inconvenient."

12-11 P.M. The Hon'ble Mr. Ironside :—"Sir, I had no intention to-day of offering any remarks on the Bill introduced by His Excellency the Commander-in-Chief. The liability of European British subjects in India is already considerable, but I think it may be taken for granted that the circumstances obtaining in the United Kingdom and other Colonies are scarcely the same as they are in India. I make no objection to further obligations, and I see the point raised by His Excellency and the necessity for it. I trust, however, that the military authorities, particularly in view of the somewhat extensive powers provided under the Act, will proceed leisurely in giving effect to them. I presume that the powers conferred will only be used in cases of extreme emergency. I take that for granted, but

[18TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.] [Mr. Ironside; The Commander-in-Chief in India; Sir William Meyer.]

I think a few words from His Excellency to that effect might prevent apprehension from the public who are concerned, both employers and employés. We have allowed every man that can be spared to go, and the men who are left are ready to do their duty whenever called upon to do so. But we are engaged in many operations connected with Government, and to have our available man-power further reduced at short notice might have a very detrimental effect. I do not make these remarks in any spirit of criticism, but I do think that to prevent misapprehension in the public mind a few words to allay any fears that may be created would have considerable beneficial effect."

The motion was put and agreed to.

His Excellency the Commander-in-Chief in India :—" Sir, I beg to introduce the Bill, and to move that the Bill, together with the Statement of Objects and Reasons relating thereto, be published in the Gazette of India in English ; and in reference to this Bill and the observations which have been made by my Hon'ble friend Mr. Ironside, I can give him my assurance that where the question of the employment of men outside India is concerned, we shall move slowly, and after full consideration of the interests that are involved. I do not want to rake up old speeches in reference to this particular measure, but Mr. Ironside himself will remember that he urged us on the 29th April 1918 in impassioned language to proceed to the full employment of all the man-power and resources at our disposal. I shall not quote his words or ring up old echoes, but I think he will see that there has not been any undue hurry in taking advantage of the offers he made on behalf of those whom he represents at Calcutta. With these few observations, Sir, I beg to move that the Bill be published." 12-16 P.M.

The motion was put and agreed to.

THE BRONZE COIN (LEGAL TENDER) BILL.

The Hon'ble Sir William Meyer :—" Sir, I beg to move for leave to introduce a Bill to provide that certain bronze coins coined outside British India shall be legal tender in British India if they conform to the requirements existing in respect of coins struck at our own Mints. I need say little in explanation of this Bill, since this is set out fully in the Statement of Objects and Reasons, while the special circumstances for which it is intended to provide, namely, the coinage of bronze quarter-anna pieces at the Hyderabad Mint, were also recently mentioned by me in this Council in reply to a question by Sir Dinshaw Wacha. I am, however, glad to have this opportunity of expressing the obligations of the Government of India to His Exalted Highness the Nizam for allowing his Mint to undertake the work in question. The Bill is framed in general terms so as to provide for future cases in which coinage might be desirable elsewhere than at the Hyderabad Mint." 12-17 P.M.

The motion was put and agreed to.

The Hon'ble Sir William Meyer :—" I now beg to introduce the Bill, and to move that the Bill, together with the Statement of Objects and Reasons relating thereto, be published in the Gazette of India in English."

The motion was put and agreed to.

RESOLUTION re MODIFICATION OF THE INDIAN ARMS ACT.

[The Vice President; Dr. Tej Bahadur Sapru.] [18TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.]

RESOLUTION re MODIFICATION OF THE INDIAN ARMS ACT—(contd.)

12-19 P.M. The Hon'ble the Vice-President :—" The Council will now resume the adjourned discussion on the Resolution moved by the Hon'ble Mr. Khaparde. "

12-19 P.M. The Hon'ble Dr. Tej Bahadur Sapru :—" Sir, I have given notice of an amendment to the Resolution which was moved on the last occasion by my friend, the Hon'ble Mr. Khaparde. The amendment which stands against my name runs as follows :—

That in lieu of the words commencing with ' that the Indian Arms Act ' and ending with the word ' subject ', the following be substituted :—

> ' That a Committee of official and non-official Members of this Council be appointed to consider and report to the Governor General in Council to what extent the Indian Arms Act and the rules thereunder can be amended. '

So that if the amendment which I am now putting before this Council meets with its acceptance, probably it will not be necessary to carry on the discussion further with regard to the original Resolution which was moved by my Hon'ble friend Mr. Khaparde. Sir, it will be within the recollection of the Council that, when this Resolution of my Hon'ble friend Mr. Khaparde was under discussion, a sharp divergence of opinion between the non-officials and the officials was brought out with regard to this matter. I realise that the question is one of great importance affecting large interests, and it is for that reason that I have decided to move the amendment in the shape in which it has been presented to the Council to-day. Sir, I do not wish to enter into any controversial matter, and I am particularly anxious to avoid raising any issues which might lead to any unnecessary discussion, though if it were necessary for me to enter into any such discussion, I would say with all respect to my Hon'ble friend Mr. Kincaid that I was not prepared to accept many of the statements he made in the course of his speech. However I shall not say any thing further on that subject.

" The Council are aware that there has been for many years past a very strong feeling in the Indian community that the Arms Act, or rather the rules and regulations framed under it, imply a stigma upon Indian character and status, and so far as the Indian community is concerned, it has been anxious that that stigma should be removed at the earliest possible opportunity. There is no doubt about the strength of the feeling that the racial distinctions observed under the Arms Act are, to the Indian mind, very obnoxious, and the sooner the Government decide to remove those obnoxious provisions, the better for all concerned. There is no doubt I repeat, about the strength of feeling on that point, and I wish to put it in the forefront of my argument. At the same time, I realise that the interests of public safety cannot also be forgotten, and it may be that, when the question is taken up and seriously considered, it may be found desirable or necessary to impose certain restraints with regard to the character of the arms, or with regard to the character of the people, or with regard to the area within which those changes should come into operation. It may further be that it will be found necessary or desirable to revise the rules with regard to the manner in which the licenses are issued or to the extent to which they are operative. These are questions which require careful consideration, and it is for that purpose that I have considered it necessary that the question should be referred to a Joint Committee of officials and non-officials so that the question may be thoroughly gone into. Now I do not wish to commit myself to any particular opinion with regard to any one of the questions which I have indicated just now. I may, however, say that since the debate on this subject took place on the last occasion, some of us were invited to an informal conference by the Hon'ble the Home Member with a view to discuss some of the provisions of the Arms Act and the rules and regulations thereunder. We have had that discussion, and I do not think that it will be proper for me to refer at the present moment to the proceedings of the informal conference, but I do venture to think that it is by no means impossible; on the contrary, I think it is very probable that if a conference of officials and non-officials sits together to consider the various details of this question, we may come to a settlement which would be acceptable, not only to the Government, but also to the non-official Members of this Council. It is with that object that I have ventured to move this amendment. I do not wish to raise, as I have already said, any sharp controversial issues on this occasion, but I wish it to be clearly understood that on the point of equality between one race and another race, we shall have no compromise, and I venture to think that none of my non-official colleagues will be prepared to enter into any compromise on this point. Let there be perfect equality between one race and another so far as the provisions of the Arms Act are concerned, and then consistently with public safety you may amend the rules and regulations in any manner that the Government may decide upon the recommendations of the Joint Committee. It is in that spirit and with that object that I have ventured to move this amendment, and I earnestly ask my Hon'ble friend Mr. Khaparde to consider whether he would be prepared to accept the amendment which I have just put before this Council."

RESOLUTION re MODIFICATION OF THE INDIAN ARMS ACT.

[18TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.] [Dr. Tej Bahadur Sapru; Mr. G. S. Khaparde; Sir William Vincent.]

The Hon'ble Mr. G. S. Khaparde :—" Sir, I have also considered this matter and talked it over with my friends, and the general view appears to be that the amendment to appoint a Joint Committee suggested by my Hon'ble friend Dr. Sapru should be accepted. I am, therefore, inclined to accept the amendment for a Joint Committee, and in doing so I wish to explain only one point, and that point is this. In my speech introducing this Resolution I did not specially refer to the racial question for this reason, that we do not seek to deprive anybody of the privileges which they have already got. My point is that we should share in those privileges; so we deprive nobody of the privileges which they enjoy at present, but we only increase the number of persons that are so privileged; therefore I did not introduce the racial question into this Resolution. Subject to this, I am willing to accept the amendment moved by my Hon'ble friend Dr. Sapru." 12-25 P.M.

The Hon'ble Sir William Vincent :—" Sir, it would have been more in accordance with the rules if notice of this amendment had been given before the date fixed for the discussion of the Resolution, but I have no wish to press that point now, and on behalf of the Government I am quite prepared to accept it. At the same time, I should like to explain why I do so and to deal with one or two points which have arisen in this debate. In my speech on the last day on which the Council sat, I explained that the Government intended to hold a conference of this nature, to discuss what modifications in the Arms Act or the rules and regulations framed thereunder were necessary, and immediately after the debate, I proceeded to convene a conference of this kind at which, I think, a certain amount of useful work has been done. I have therefore no objection to accepting the amendment which is proposed by the Hon'ble Dr. Sapru, as it really gives effect to what I myself undertook to do and have in part done. 12-27 P.M.

"At the same time, I am afraid I cannot admit that there was any sharp divergence of opinion in this Council as to the propriety of accepting Mr. Khaparde's Resolution. There may have been differences of opinion on points of detail and arguments put forward by different Members, but I cannot remember any one supporting the Resolution in the form in which it was put forward or that there were divergent views on this point, and the very fact that the Hon'ble Dr. Sapru proposes this amendment indicates to my mind that he has some hesitation as to the merits of the original Resolution. I agree with what he has said as to racial distinctions, and it is our intention, in fact it is more than our intention, it is a definitely accepted principle, that those distinctions shall be done away with as was announced by His Excellency last year.

" There were other points which my Hon'ble friend Mr. Bannerjea raised to which I should like to have replied, but as I propose to accept this amendment, and the Hon'ble mover of this amendment is anxious to avoid any contentious note in the debate to-day, I will refrain from doing so."

12-40 P.M.

The Hon'ble Dr. Tej Bahadur Sapru :—" Sir, I have nothing more to add. "

The amendment proposed by the Hon'ble Dr. Sapru was put and agreed to.

The Resolution was then put to the Council and adopted in the following form :—

> ' That this Council recommends to the Governor General in Council that a Committee of official and non-official Members of this Council be appointed to consider and report to the Governor General in Council to what extent the Indian Arms Act and the rules thereunder can be amended.'

RESOLUTION re BOY-SCOUT MOVEMENT IN GOVERNMENT SCHOOLS IN INDIA.

12-41 P.M.

The Hon'ble Mr. G. S. Khaparde :—" Sir, the Resolution which I wish to move reads as follows :—

> ' This Council recommends to the Governor General in Council that Local Governments be directed to initiate a boy-scout movement and prepare a scheme for preliminary training, such as drill, marching, scouting. etc., for all boys in Government schools in India in an ascending scale of efficiency, according to their classes, or aptitude and other qualifications.'

" In moving this Resolution, I feel that I need not say much. This matter came before this Hon'ble Council last year in relation to a Resolution moved by my Hon'ble friend Dr. Sapru. I also believe this matter has been discussed in local Councils also, and the general feeling, both on our side and on the side of the Government, would appear to be in favour of a scouting movement of the kind mentioned by me. Hitherto it has been a case of our asking and of Government promising to encourage this movement. I ask now that it may be systematized, and that in all Government schools as a beginning this movement may be introduced. Its beneficial effects are so well known that I suppose I need not speak about them. It conduces to very good health, it inculcates habits of obedience, it also gives the power of initiative to young people, both first by obedience and afterwards by commanding; then it makes a man very resourceful. He never is at the end of his wits, but makes use of everything that stands in his way. These beneficial effects are a very good thing. They make a man a good citizen, able to help in times of peace, and also able to bear arms if there is a war such as we have now. So that, everything taken together, I believe there is not a word to be said against it and everything to be said in its favour. A very great person, Lord Roberts, was the first person who saw the great capabilities of this movement, and he at one time foresaw the war, not in the form in which it has come, but he had a dim feeling that a great war was coming and he first spoke about conscription. That was not listened to in those days, but it has now come to pass and conscription has been adopted in a modified form everywhere nearly. He also initiated this boy-scout movement and I saw the working of it myself, and I was very favourably impressed by it, and I take the opportunity of introducing this Resolution, and I hope it will meet with the approval of this Hon'ble Council."

12-34 P.M.

The Hon'ble Mr. Malcolm Hogg :—" Sir, my reason for intervening in the discussion of this Resolution is this. The terms 'boy scout' and 'boy-scout movement' are generally and naturally associated with the movement founded and controlled by Sir Robert Baden Powell, and as I am connected with that organisation in Bombay, I feel that I cannot stand aloof from the discussion. Now I take it from the wording of the Resolution, that what the Hon'ble mover intends is, that Government should start in every Government school, as part of the ordinary curriculum, a system of training modelled on the Baden Powell Boy Scout system. I feel bound to point out that the Hon'ble mover seems to have an imperfect appreciation of the objects and the methods of the Boy Scout system. In the first place, the Hon'ble Mr. Khaparde puts in the forefront of his Resolution training in drill, marching, etc., in other words, training of a military or semi-military nature, and if I remember aright, in introducing his Resolution on the Arms Act, he referred to this Resolution and said that if it was passed and acted upon, he presumed that the boys would be given arms as a part of their training. Now, Sir, this is quite contrary to the Boy Scout movement. The Boy Scout movement is not, and never has been, a military or a semi-military movement. Drill of a semi-military nature is permitted sparingly for ordinary purposes of control and discipline, but it forms a very small part of the boy scout's training and the giving of prominence to that portion of the training by any individual scoutmaster is definitely discouraged by the headquarters of the Association. It is quite true that there is much in boy scout training which fits and prepares a boy to be an excellent soldier in times of national emergency, but that result is incidental to, and not the aim of, the movement. Then, again, Mr. Khaparde contemplates that the movement should be introduced on a compulsory basis as a part of the school curriculum. I can imagine nothing more totally opposed to the boy scout spirit than compulsion. The whole spirit and real object of scouting will be lost if it is introduced as a sort of forced plant nurtured by Government on a compulsory basis.

"I do not propose to take up the time of the Council by a lecture on the objects and aims of scouting. Hon'ble Members who are interested in this subject can get all the information they require from the various books published by the Association, but I must say just a word or two to illustrate my contention that the Resolution as it stands displays a very imperfect appreciation of what scouting really means. It is difficult and dangerous to compress into one or two sentences the objects of a movement such as the Boy Scout movement, and I do not want a very brief expression of my personal impressions to be regarded as either a complete or an authoritative statement. But it always seems to me that what the Boy Scout movement aims at principally, is the inculcation of the ideals of true citizenship in the widest sense of the word. The Boy Scout movement aims at teaching a boy that he has a duty to the State of which he is a member and a duty to his fellow-men. It aims further at fitting him to perform those duties in the best possible manner by developing his individual character and by teaching him self-respect and self-reliance. Further, it endeavours to teach him useful practical knowledge of useful practical subjects as the very best basis for self-reliance and for self-respect. Now, I think two things will be obvious from this very brief and imperfect statement of the aims and objects of scouting. The first thing that will be obvious, is the very wide field of choice that must necessarily be left to individual scoutmasters, and indeed to the boys themselves, in the selection of the particular subjects which shall be made the vehicle of instruction. The second thing that will be obvious, is that the selection of scoutmasters is a matter of very great importance and of no little difficulty. It is altogether incorrect to assume that any respectable competent man can be a successful scoutmaster. Success in that direction requires a combination of qualities which is by no means too common. I have, I hope, said enough to show that boy-scouting in the Baden Powell sense of the word, in the sense the word is understood by the Baden Powell movement and Association, is a thing which cannot be started on a large scale and on a compulsory basis under Government auspices. It is essentially a thing which must be started on a small scale at first by individual effort and allowed to develop and grow gradually as the boys get interested in it, and as a supply of suitable scoutmasters is forthcoming.

RESOLUTION re BOY-SCOUT MOVEMENT IN GOVERNMENT SCHOOLS IN INDIA.

[Mr. Malcolm Hogg ; Sir C. Sankaran Nair.] [18TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.]

"It is also very necessary that it should be carefully controlled so that the real ideals of the movement may be maintained and not lost sight of, and that a spurious growth of sham scouting may be checked. I think really what the Hon'ble mover has in mind is, not what I should describe as a system of boy scouting at all ; it is rather a system of cadet corps training, embellished with a few ideas and additions borrowed from the boy scout movement. Well, that may or may not be an excellent thing in itself. But my submission is that it is not boy scouting, and for that reason, as one who takes an interest in the movement, I cannot support the Resolution."

12-41 P.M. The Hon'ble Sir C. Sankaran Nair :—"Sir, I intervene at this stage so that an expression of my opinion on behalf of the Government might render it unnecessary for Hon'ble Members to discuss the various points which have been raised by the Hon'ble Mr. Hogg. So far as we, the Government, are concerned, a short answer to this Resolution moved by my Hon'ble friend is, that we cannot consider the scheme that he has asked for when competent scout masters are not now generally available. When the Hon'ble Mr. Sarma moved his Resolution last year, he rightly laid stress on the fact that progress would depend largely upon the number of good and efficient scoutmasters who could be secured, and I said then in my reply to him that the Government of India would draw the attention of the Local Governments to the necessity of efficient scoutmasters. Accordingly, in our circular letter of March 1917, which I laid on the table this morning, and which was published then, after pointing out that to initiate a troop of boy scouts does not require any permission from Government, we told the Local Governments that in Government Schools where good scoutmasters could be found, they should encourage the establishment of boy scouts and render them such assistance as would make them a success. In selected Government high schools we asked the Governments to initiate a system of boy scouts as opportunity occurs. We cannot now, in the absence of efficient scoutmasters, do more and direct the Local Governments to form troops. Before we take any steps in the direction indicated by the Hon'ble Member, we have to decide whether we can form isolated troops at individual institutions working independently of one another, or whether they should be in subordination to a central organization, or whether they should be incorporated in Baden Powell's Boy Scouts' Association. There are many strong reasons against separate organisations of any kind, whether they are separate organisations for European and Indian boys, or different classes of Indian boys. It seems very desirable that youths all over India, whether European or Indian, should be trained on lines ensuring a community of ideas and ideals of character, so that closer sympathy between the various classes and races might be ensured. The Scout movement should not separate classes or races. With this end in view, it is desirable that all the troops should be placed under some central organisation. If this union is to be achieved, it can only be with the consent and approval of Baden Powell's Boy Scouts' Association. The activities of that Association are now at a standstill practically as they have not got scoutmasters on account of the war. The question of the intervention of Government and the form, if any, that it should take can therefore be only decided on the termination of the war. After examination as to whether Baden Powell's Association is in a position to deal with the question in a satisfactory manner, we intend to take up the question of organisation after the war.

"I would, therefore, ask the Hon'ble Member to withdraw his Resolution, but if he does not propose to withdraw it, I have to oppose it on behalf of Government."

12-45 A.M.

The Hon'ble Mr. G. S. Khaparde :—"It would appear that Government is sympathetic, and it would also appear that there is really no opposition to the movement which I propose. The only difficulty is that there are no good teachers or scoutmasters. Well, there may not be, but I suppose we can begin with such as we have and improve them as time goes on. Personally, when I began to study English we had not a very great English scholar to teach me. We had to begin with the first class student who was deputed to teach the last class. The world has always gone on in that way, and we could not wait until an ideal teacher was available. So the real idea in my mind still remains and the difficulty of securing scoutmasters does not much discourage me.

"Then the next thing the Hon'ble Member said was that the question would be taken in hand after the war. I submit that I thought when I moved this Resolution that it was in aid of recruitment, so that boys will begin to learn and get familiarised with things military as they grow up; and if the war unhappily lasts so long, which I hope it will not, but if it does, these children coming out of these schools and colleges will be only too glad to offer themselves for recruitment. So it is really my part of the assistance that I can make to recruiting why I moved this proposition. Therefore, I am very sorry indeed that I do not see my way to withdrawing it. Of course it may be disposed of in the ordinary way—and we all know what that will be—but the thing still remains and I feel rather strongly about this matter and that it is time that our children should get elementary lessons in drilling and all those things and be rendered fit to take their part in the service of the Empire such as it demands at the present moment."

The Resolution was put and rejected.

[At this stage the Chair was vacated by the Hon'ble the Vice-President and taken by the Hon'ble SIR W. MEYER.]

RESOLUTION re AMENDMENT OF VARIOUS ACTS IN CONNECTION WITH CONFLICTING RULINGS OF DIFFERENT HIGH COURTS.

12-48 P.M.

The Hon'ble Mr. V. J. Patel :—"Sir, I have the honour to move the following Resolution :—

'This Council recommends that the Governor General in Council may be pleased to take steps—

(a) to amend at an early date those sections of the various Acts passed by the Indian Legislative Council in respect of which there have been conflicting rulings of different High Courts; and

(b) to amend at fixed intervals not exceeding five years those sections of the Acts passed by the Indian Legislative Council in respect of which conflicting opinions may, in future, be pronounced by different High Courts.'

My object in bringing this Resolution is to request the Governor General in Council to take such steps as they deem proper with a view to maintain uniformity of law in British India. The substantive and adjective laws in

[Mr. V. J. Patel.] [18TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.]

British India are legislative enactments; and if provisions of these enactments are interpreted in different ways by different High Courts, then the Statute law to a certain extent is converted into a judge-made law.

"A comprehensive consolidation and codification of Indian laws was contemplated by the Charter Act of 1833, and three successive Commissions were appointed for this purpose. When the question of codification was discussed, it was pointed out that every Code should be revised after a certain period—say ten years—when defects could be remedied and judicial interpretations worked into the Code. By this means the usual objections to a Code of want of flexibility and elasticity were to be overcome. What, after all, is a Code or a Statute? It is a text-book enacted by the legislature. Such text-books should not lead to ambiguities or diversities of interpretation. Where there are diverse judicial interpretations of a provision of a Statute, the law stands condemned on the score of uncertainty; and a law that is not certain is a snare and causes mischief. I will enumerate a few glaring instances of diversity of judicial opinion existing in different provinces:—

Whether a Court to which a decree is sent for execution has jurisdiction to execute the decree if the amount or the value of the subject-matter of the suit in which the decree has been passed exceeds the pecuniary limits of its ordinary jurisdiction.

Whether a suit will lie for an office to which no fees are attached.

Whether a decree against a Hindu widow regarding her husband's property binds the reversioners.

Whether the rule of damdupat applies where interest is claimed under a mortgage governed by the Transfer of Property Act.

Whether the Official Assignee is a 'representative' of an insolvent judgment-debtor within the meaning of section 47 of the Civil Procedure Code.

Whether section 6 of the Married Women's Property Act, which provides for insurance by a married man for the benefit of his wife and children, applies to Hindus.

Whether a suit for mesne profits falls under Article 31 of the Second Schedule of the Provincial Small Causes Court Act.

Whether an appeal lies to the High Court under clause 12 of the Letters Patent from the judgment of a single Judge delivered in the exercise of revisional jurisdiction under section 115 of the Civil Procedure Code.

Whether section 141 of the Civil Procedure Code applies to proceedings in execution.

Whether the 'date of issue of notice' referred to in Article 182 of the Limitation Act means the date when the Court passes the order for issuing the notice or the date on which the notice is actually issued.

Whether the powers of the High Court to grant a temporary injunction are confined to rules 1 and 2 of Order 39 of the Civil Procedure Code.

Whether a suit to enforce a mortgage can be brought by or against the manager of a joint Hindu family as such without joining the other members of the family.

Whether the date of the institution of the plaint in a suit by a pauper is the date on which the plaint is presented or the date on which Court-fees are paid on the rejection of the application to sue in forma pauperis.

Whether the benefit of section 6 of the Limitation Act extends to cases where a minor is jointly interested in a decree with other persons who are not under disability.

Whether section 23 of the Limitation Act governs suits for restitution of conjugal rights where demand and refusal are made.

Whether anterior possession without proof of title enables plaintiff to succeed in a suit to recover possession from the dispossessor apart from section 9 of the Specific Relief Act.

Whether a promise by a person on attaining majority to repay money lent and advanced to him during his minority is void.

Whether a decree obtained against one of several joint makers of a promissory note is a bar to a subsequent suit against others.

Whether falsification of record to conceal previous acts of fraud amounts to forgery."

The Hon'ble Sir George Lowndes :—" Sir, I think the Hon'ble Member might show some compassion to other Hon'ble Members by taking this portion of his speech as read. I believe he could make out a list of more than a thousand similar instances."

The Hon'ble Mr. V. J. Patel :—" I am only going to quote a few more."

The Hon'ble the Vice-President (Sir W. Meyer) :—" I think the Hon'ble Member has already quoted a good few."

The Hon'ble Mr. V. J. Patel :—" Well, Sir, these are a few of the cases in which different High Courts have given conflicting decisions, and instances can be multiplied; but it is unnecessary for me to do so in view of my friend the Hon'ble Sir George Lowndes' remarks. The instances that I have already quoted will, I feel sure, suffice to justify this Council to recommend to the Governor General in Council to consider the advisability of taking steps to amend those sections of Acts on which conflicting decisions have been pronounced by different High Courts at various times. So far as past decisions are concerned, my submission is that legislation should be undertaken at an early date, and for the future the rule should be that after intervals of five years all conflicting decisions should be brought under legislation in the same way.

" With these few remarks I move the Resolution."

12-46 P.M.

The Hon'ble Dr. Tej Bahadur Sapru :—" Sir, I rise to oppose this Resolution. While I admit that Judges, like other human beings differ among themselves, I really do not know whether any Act of Parliament or any Act of this Legislative Council can compel them, at any time or under any circumstances, to avoid differences of opinion. Sir, my Hon'ble friend has laid before us a long catalogue of points on which there has been judicial difference of opinion in India, and he has suggested as a remedy for that evil the herculean task for the Legislative Department of the Government of India that they should go through each Act of the Indian legislature from the earliest times, compare the views of the different High Courts and try to restore, what to my mind is an impossible thing, unanimity among the various Judges. I personally think it is an impossible task, and with all the respect I have for my friend and colleague the Hon'ble Mr Muddiman, I very much doubt whether even he would be able to perform this task which is sought to be imposed on his broad shoulders by my friend the Hon'ble Mr. Patel. Sir, even if the Legislative Department of the Government of India were able to perform that task now, what guarantee is there that in the next five years, Judges again will not differ. But perhaps the Hon'ble Member's answer to that question is 'Well, after five years the Legislative Department must again apply themselves to that task.' Sir, I think that it would reduce the whole administration of justice and law to nothing short of a farce to undertake the revision of judicial interpretations of law every five years, and thereby disturb titles which have been established during the preceding five years or transactions which have been entered into upon the strength of a certain interpretation of law during that period.

RESOLUTION re AMENDMENT OF VARIOUS ACTS IN CONNECTION WITH CONFLICITING RULINGS OF DIFFERENT HIGH COURTS.

[Dr. Tej Bahadur Sapru.] [18TH SEPTEMBER, 1918]

But is the case really so hopeless as it has been represented by my Hon'ble friend to be? What happens at present is that when there is a difference of opinion between Judges of one Court, and the difference becomes very acute, the question is referred to a full Bench, and the full Bench generally comes to some satisfactory conclusion. The decision of one Court is binding upon all the subordinate Courts within its jurisdiction. Let us assume, for example, that the Allahabad High Court has come to one particular interpretation, and the Calcutta High Court has come to a different interpretation. The subordinate Courts within the jurisdiction of the Allahabad High Court are bound to follow the view of the Allahabad High Court as against the view of the Calcutta High Court; so that differences of opinion, so far as the subordinate Courts are concerned, do not matter much. But when any serious difference arises between one High Court and another, the question is mooted before the Privy Council and the Privy Council try to settle the law. I, therefore, do not think that any useful purpose will be served by accepting this Resolution, and I do certainly think that the Legislative Department may be asked to employ its time much more usefully than in removing such a multitude of differences between Judges which it can never do and which, I hope, it will never undertake to do."

1 P.M.

The Hon'ble Sir George Lowndes:—Sir, the subject before us is one which I am afraid has not excited great enthusiasm in this Council. It is a counsel of perfection no doubt that is embodied in the Resolution, such as I should naturally expect from the Presidency to which I had the honour to belong; but it is, if I may say so, a counsel which is altogether impracticable of fulfilment. When the Millenium comes, then we may hope to have Judges taking the same views of the same sections of the same laws, but not till then; and I hope I shall have been relieved of my labours here before that. But I have great sympathy in theory, at all events, with the plea which the Hon'ble Member puts forward. I should like to have uniformity of decisions. It is no doubt shocking that men of eminent legal experience should take entirely divergent views of the meaning of plain words of English; but I am afraid that, as long as the world goes on, it will always be so. In fact, I am afraid even in this Council, if I may refer to an earlier stage of to-day's proceedings, my Hon'ble friend has taken an entirely different view of the meaning of certain words in the Government of India Act to what I think must be the view taken by most lawyers in this Council. I need only remind my Hon'ble friend of the ancient adage:

RESOLUTION re AMENDMENT OF VARIOUS ACTS IN CONNECTION WITH CONFLICTING RULINGS OF DIFFERENT HIGH COURTS.

[18TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.] [Sir George Lowndes.]

Quot homines tot sententiae.

That is the real secret of all the divergent views taken of the sections of those laws which my Hon'ble friend Mr. Muddiman and myself try to make so plain to the understandings of Judges in this country.

"But, on the other hand, it is not altogether wrong that there should be divergent views in different provinces. There are a great number of cases which are quoted as conflicting decisions, where the conflict really depends upon the different conditions of the provinces. I need not remind Hon'ble Members that the Hindu law also differs very largely even in provinces which are governed by the Mitakshara. I am afraid that for hundreds of years past different commentators, not judges but the old commentators, have taken entirely different views of what the Mitakshara meant, so that we have now got in different parts of India entirely divergent views on even simple questions, if I may say so, of Hindu law. The Hon'ble Member does not, I understand, propose that we should revise the Hindu law and say what we think the Mitakshara meant. That is a task, which I venture to think would be beyond the powers even of the Legislative Department.

"Putting aside however the number of decisions which vary because of different conditions in the provinces, we have also a second class of conflicting decisions which again, if I may say so, are not very serious. I listened with some amusement to the long list which my Hon'ble friend read out, and on which I ventured to claim some pity for the Council. Many of them were really on points which are of no great importance, I do not mean of no importance in the particular cases, but not points upon which it was important that all judges should take the same view. Such cases could probably be run up to thousands.

"In the next place, I should like to point out to the Council what is, I think, the foundation of a great deal of the evil of divergent decisions, and that is the refusal as far as I can see of many legal authorities to put in force what is the law of this country. It is a law which has been in force since Act XVIII of 1875 was passed. I had better read the words of the Act itself: 'No Court shall be bound to hear cited, or shall receive or treat as an authority binding on it, the report of any case decided by any of the said High Courts (on or after a particular date), other than a report published under the authority of the Governor General in Council.' Now,—I say frankly—that one of the greatest evils of our Courts is the multiplication of reports. We have constantly little points decided, which the judge himself would probably not wish to be reported, and which he never intended to be reported, yet these are perpetuated in every form of law journal, law notes and law compilations of every sort. They are quoted again and again: one refers to another till you get a sort of unending chain of authorities which under the law of the land are not binding on any Court and which no Court ought to take into consideration. That is, I believe, the foundation of a great deal of the complaint about conflicting decisions. The authorised reports contain, I believe, only reports which have been submitted to and approved by the judges before they go out to the world. A great number of the other decisions which are reported as conflicting decisions ought never to be reported at all. I can only say that if the Courts would enforce the Act of 1875, we should have very much fewer complaints about divergent decisions; and we should get rid to a great extent of this enormous mass of reports. I would only ask my lawyer friends in this Council to think what will happen a hundred years hence. A hundred years more of these unauthorised reports, of all these minor publications! what will be the task of the lawyers of that day! what will be the number of cases that will be quoted? What will be the time that would be taken by my Hon'ble friends in arguing even the smallest point of law? Therefore, I repeat that one of the greatest evils connected with our

RESOLUTION re AMENDMENT OF VARIOUS ACTS IN CONNECTION WITH CONFLICTING RULINGS OF DIFFERENT HIGH COURTS.

[Sir George Lowndes.] [18TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.]

Courts is the great number of cases which are reported, most of which ought never to be reported at all, and I would add the great number of Courts which listen to authorities which ought never to have been quoted to them.

"Then, I wish to point out that we do not merely allow this chaos to go on and to accumulate chaotically. Whenever we take up the amendment of a big Act, or the revision or consolidation of Acts, we go through most carefully all the rulings under them, and bring them as nearly as we can into line with what we at all events of the legislature think the law should be. I may instance a very recent case, that of the Provincial Insolvency Bill, which I had the honour to introduce in this Council the other day. We carefully reviewed all the material decisions, and when introducing the Bill I mentioned that there were certain divergent opinions of the Allahabad and Calcutta High Courts which we proposed to deal with in the particular way shown in the Bill. It is not therefore that we in any way neglect this part of our duties. It is only, as the Hon'ble Dr. Sapru said, that the task proposed by the Resolution is far beyond the powers of any department of Government. It would be practically impossible to undertake to revise the whole of our Statute law in this way. I may refer to one amending Bill, which I am sorry to say has been lying in the department, over which I have the honour to preside, for some time past, namely, a Bill to amend the Transfer of Property Act, a subject in which I take very great personal interest. I believe it took two years' solid labour before I came into office to get the Bill into preliminary shape. The number of divergent decisions on little points were very great, and they entailed such an amount of examination and prolonged reading, that the draft took two years' work, and very hard work, of the then Secretary of the Legislative Department, who now sits on the bench beside me,—I mean the Hon'ble the Home Member. And I may add that when I first came here, being much interested in the subject, I spent some two and a half months going through about a quarter of it,—and that even after the labours of my Hon'ble friend. This, I think, will convince the Hon'ble mover of this Resolution that it is rather a light-hearted suggestion to make that we should take up the revision not only of the Transfer of Property Act, but of every other Act, of the Government of India that is now on the Statute-book, that we should examine them seriously and bring in amending Bills to correct all the wrong decisions on them in order that they might be again nice, plain, simple, easy Acts. Does the Hon'ble Member suppose that if we passed such Bills to-day, there would not be divergent decisions again tomorrow? The labour is almost an impossible one, and to suggest seriously that we should undertake this during the period of the war is, I venture to think, a proposition which my Hon'ble friend cannot seriously mean. To undertake a labour of this sort is nearly impossible, and I do not think that the Council will expect it.

"With regard to revision at five years' intervals, that again is a counsel of perfection. It is no doubt desirable, but it cannot be done. If my Hon'ble friend had moved his Resolution, we will say, fifty years ago, and the system had been kept up every five years since then, it might be possible to go on with it now, but at the present day it is a proposition which, though attractive enough, is to my mind utterly impracticable. There is, however, one way in which I think my Hon'ble legal friends might be able to help us very much. There are many practising lawyers in this Council, and if they would themselves take up points which come to their notice in the course of their practice and which are really of importance, and if they would introduce Bills themselves on particular points to bring the law into line with what they think it ought to be, it would be a very good thing. I may mention a very recent instance of this when the Hon'ble Pandit Madan Mohan Malaviya introduced a validating Bill in connection with the Transfer of Property Act. I can only say that we as a Government would be glad to give Hon'ble Members every assistance possible with regard to such Bills, and would welcome any efforts in this direction. I would even suggest to my Hon'ble friend opposite that if he could select out of the—I really forget what it was—the 50 odd cases perhaps that he mentioned to the Council—if he would select one or two of them or possibly, shall we say, 50 out of them, for amendment, if he introduces 50 little amending Bills, on points which he thinks are of sufficient importance, I have no doubt he will be doing a great service to his country. I would only venture to suggest that he must not ask my Department to undertake the drafting of any such Bills before next March."

The Hon'ble Sir Dinshaw Wacha :—"Sir, I am not a lawyer, but I will say one word as a layman. I hope my Hon'ble friend Mr. Patel will bear in mind the very practical suggestions that the Hon'ble the Law Member has made, and I do also hope, Sir, that with the facility, energy and courage which my Hon'ble friend Mr. Patel has displayed on other questions, he may by and by be able to introduce Bills which may perhaps earn for him the fame of an Indian Justinian and inscribe his name as a legislator on a fair and everlasting monument."

The Hon'ble Mr. Patel :—"Sir, In view of the very exhaustive explanation of my Hon'ble friend Sir George Lowndes, I do not press this Resolution to a division, but I beg leave to withdraw it."

The Resolution was by leave of the Council withdrawn.

[At this stage the Hon'ble SIR GEORGE LOWNDES resumed the Chair].

RESOLUTION re APPOINTMENT OF COMMITTEE TO INQUIRE AND REPORT ON THE EFFECT OF PRESS LEGISLATION IN INDIA.

The Hon'ble Mr. G. S. Khaparde :—"Sir, I wish to inquire if it would not be possible to adjourn the consideration of this Resolution till to-morrow. It is a very important matter, and I believe it is somewhat contentious too."

The Hon'ble the Vice-President :—"The question is one of the convenience of the Council. We have got a very large number of Resolutions, and we are anxious to give Hon'ble Members time to move as many of them as possible. But if Hon'ble Members do not object, I am willing to adjourn the Council."

The Hon'ble Mr. G. S. Khaparde :—"If we take up this Resolution to-morrow, there would be only five items of business left. Not much."

The Hon'ble the Vice-President :—"I suggest then that we adjourn till to-morrow."

The Council then adjourned to Thursday, the 19th September, 1918.

NOTICE.

Appointments to the Civil Service in India.

The Secretary of State for India in Council desires to make it clear that the purpose of the Indian Civil Service (Temporary Provisions) Act, 1915, is to render possible, during the continuance of the present war and for a period not exceeding two years thereafter, the appointment to the Indian Civil Service of persons who have been prevented by the war and consequent developments from entering by the usual Open Competition.

1. Open Competitive Examination.

The Annual Open Competition will continue to be held under the normal conditions, but a greatly reduced number of places will be offered for competition while the war continues.

Any person not engaged in military or naval services who desires to enter the Indian Civil Service must enter for the Open Competition, full particulars of which can be obtained from the Civil Service Commissioners, London, W. Candidates must be natural born subjects of His Majesty, and, except in the cases described below, must be between the ages of 22 and 24 on the 1st August in the year of examination. Any candidate who has served in the Army or Navy for three months subsequent to the 4th August 1914 may deduct three months from his age, and any candidate who has served for more than three months may deduct one year from his age. This concession extends to certain forms of service rendered with the armed forces of the Crown in a non combatant capacity, provided that the employment has not been on ordinary commercial terms. Particulars as to the exact terms of the concession can be obtained from the Civil Service Commissioners.

For entry to the examination to be held in 1917 application must be made to the Civil Service Commissioners before the 1st June 1917.

Not less than one-fourth of the persons appointed to the Indian Civil Service during the period in which the Act of 1915 is in force must be admitted through the Open Competition.

2. Appointment without Examination.

Under the special powers conferred by the recent Act, the Secretary of State in Council will fill by nomination in the manner described below not more than three-fourths of the vacancies during the period in question.

To avoid misunderstanding, it is desired to make it clear that those persons only will be eligible for appointment by nomination whose educational qualifications and character would have qualified them for appointment in the normal way had they been successful at the Open Competition.

As regards age the Secretary of State for India in Council has provisionally decided that no candidate will be eligible whose age exceeded 24 years on the 1st August 1915; bt this limit will be open to reduction in the light of future circumstances.

As regards European candidates, the Secretary of State for India has stated in Parliament that no candidate would be eligible for nomination who had not rendered military or naval service during the present war; and that his present intention was not to make nominations until the end of the war, when a strong representative Committee would be constituted to consider and report on the qualifications of the candidates. The Committee will be guided by rules made under the Act, which will specify the conditions of eligibility, such as age-limits, length of military service, education and the like.

The Secretary of State also stated that, in view of the curtailment of the number of posts offered for competition, he proposes, as an exceptional measure, to nominate such number of Indian candidates, from among those who appeared at the Open Competitions in 1915 and later, as may be necessary to bring the number of Indians appointed during the period to the Indian Civil Service up to the average number successful during the preceding ten years. No Indian candidate will be appointed by nomination unless he has competed at the examination, and has been certified by the Civil Service Commissioners to have shown himself to be possessed of the educational qualifications necessary for appointment under normal conditions, to be eligible in respect of health and to be of good moral character.

PROCEEDINGS OF THE INDIAN LEGISLATIVE COUNCIL ASSEMBLED UNDER THE PROVISIONS OF GOVERNMENT OF INDIA ACT, 1915.
(5 & 6 Geo. V, Ch. 61.)

THE Council met at the Council Chamber, Viceregal Lodge, Simla, on Thursday, the 19th September, 1918.

PRESENT :

The Hon'ble SIR GEORGE LOWNDES, K.C.S.I., K.C., Vice-President, presiding, and 55 Members, of whom 49 were Additional Members.

RESOLUTION re APPOINTMENT OF A COMMITTEE TO INQUIRE AND REPORT ON THE EFFECT OF PRESS LEGISLATION IN INDIA.

11-4 A.M.

The Hon'ble Mr. G. S. Khaparde :—"Sir, the Resolution which I have the honour to move reads as follows:—

'This Council recommends to the Governor General in Council that a Committee consisting of an equal number of officials and non-official Indians be appointed to inquire into and report on—

(a) the effect produced on the press in India by the legislation relating to it, and by the Defence of India (Consolidation) Rules 1915; and

b) the moral and material conditions of the press in India.

I wish to make my position clear before I proceed to discuss the terms of the Resolution itself. It is that this press legislation has been passed and I now take it as a fact, but it is time that we should inquire into it. It is probably within the memory of this Council that this legislation, when it was passed, was considerably opposed. It has been in existence for some time, and now it appears to me to be time to make an inquiry into the working of the press law, as well as into the desirability of the law itself. I propose this because publicity is the paladium of democracy, in fact no democracy can exist unless it has got means of knowing what is going on, and a democracy likes to get into all the branches of the administration. In fact, Sir, in the democratic view, I believe all ailments of the body politic are to be treated like tuberculosis by open-air treatment; everything has got to be brought into the open and discussed and thoroughly understood. In our view secrecy is like the closing of a house up for a long time; then that house breeds foul air. Similarly, secrecy leads to trouble, so that nothing should be secret as far as possible. If I remember aright, President Wilson, in discussing the present war and the peace talk that there was about it, said that nothing should be secret, so that even international relations, that is in America are to be matter for public discussion. I say

RESOLUTION re APPOINTMENT OF A COMMITTEE TO INQUIRE AND REPORT ON THE EFFECT OF PRESS LEGISLATION IN INDIA.

[Mr. G. S. Khaparde.] [19TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.]

all this because publicity is essential for the existence of a democracy, and this publicity is secured in various ways. Our Councils and Committees are also a mode of publishing what the real intentions are and of getting them discussed. Similarly, the press and the platform are the two chief instruments of publicity. You never can secure publicity unless the matter is spoken or written about in the public press. My subject is limited : I do not propose to deal with the platform to-day ; I only propose to deal with the press. That press is after all in India a new institution, and it has to be watched and carefully guided ; in fact, as I said before in another Resolution, our ideal is to make it free like the English press. For a democracy to be able to do its work, the people must be able freely to write about it, people must be able freely to meet and talk about it, people must be able to discuss all these things ; and in order to secure proper discussion, I believe it is very important to consider it. The press in fact being one of the chief instruments of democracy, we cannot make it too pure, we cannot make it too strong, we cannot make it too effective. The more effective it is the better. That being so, how does the case stand in India to-day ? As I said before, I do not propose to discuss the legislation or the merits of it, but it has been passed with a considerable amount—of opposition. It has been in working order for some time. We have seen that there are complaints – and fortunately I am not a press man connected with any press or journal, or anything of that kind, but I have seen during what little public life has fallen to my share, that there have been complaints—of various kinds. The difficulty is increased by the circumstance that the existence of certain newspapers is made to depend upon executive orders. I do not want to discuss the merits of the executive orders at this stage, but there the thing stands, the press is an organ of democracy, an organ of publicity, and its existence is made to depend upon an executive order, and that order cannot always be tested, can never be tested so far as I can see. Sir Lawrence Jenkins, Chief Justice of the Calcutta High Court, and now, I believe, a Privy Councillor, remarked in one very well known judgment that the provisions of the Press Act reached almost to the limits of human ingenuity, there is nothing that cannot be brought under it, and I believe His Lordship remarked that the best literature, both English and Indian, could easily be brought under it, and could be caught as he said. That being so, it is all the more necessary that there should be this inquiry. I say this because mine is a case for inquiry. I do not wish to condemn anything, I do not wish to criticise anything, but I wish this Council to agree to inquire into the matter, and I am making out a case for inquiry. This inquiry, I humbly submit, is necessitated by various events that have happened lately, and also by the various expressions of opinion that have been given, some of them judicial pronouncements also, and one of these was the judicial pronouncement of Sir Lawrence Jenkins, who said that the best literature could be caught in it. If that is so, it appears to be necessary and very desirable that it should be inquired into, and if it is really found to be so, then remedies would have to be applied. But to-day's subject is not the application of remedies. When the Committee meets, if the Council agrees, and they pronounce upon it, then it would be time to think about those remedies, if remedies are really required. At present my case is, that this is a matter which requires to be inquired into. It should be inquired into by a Committee of non-official Indians and officials. The principal parts to be inquired into would be as to what the material and moral effect of it has been. According to the statement relating to moral and material progress in India which was supplied to us during the last Delhi Session, it appeared that nearly 35 newspapers had ceased publication up to the year 1917, and to these may be added a few that I can remember, namely, one Mahratta daily paper in Bombay, two in Bengal and one, the 'Observer,' in the Punjab ; so that, roughly speaking, 40 papers have ceased publication. I tried to look into those articles for which they were punished, and I am sorry to say that some of those articles appeared to me to be so innocent that the wonder is that action was taken on them as in the case of the Punjab paper which never dealt with any public question at all. The editor of that paper

RESOLUTION re APPOINTMENT OF A COMMITTEE TO INQUIRE AND REPORT ON THE EFFECT OF PRESS LEGISLATION IN INDIA.

[19TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.] [Mr. G. S. Khaparde ; Mr. Surendra Nath Banerjea.]

expressed opinions different from those of the head of the Administration which, I believe, it is permissible to do, but anyhow he was taken up and dealt with under the Defence of India (Consolidation) Rules. Conditions were imposed that he should only publish Reuter's telegrams, and that everything else that passed through his press should be precensored, that is to say submitted to the officers of Government, who would look at them, and only what they allowed to pass might be published. That appears to me to be rather a high condition for any newspaper to obey. I cannot go into these grievances, but they require to be looked into. Newspaper publication, whatever it might have been, is now rather a difficult matter. We know the events that have lately taken place in Calcutta. One newspaper in that city wrote a few sentences or one sentence about the Prophet, and the Muhammadans gathered together and wanted to protest against it. That meeting was stopped, and now I hear that something like 400 people have been arrested, and they will be tried, I have not heard, however, that the newspaper which wrote this has been taken up or that anything has been done to that newspaper. These things are rising into importance, and they are things which will weigh a great deal with the whole of the population. This is a matter which involves many questions. I do not propose to deal with the right of association, with the right of protest, with the right of meetings. All these things are involved in it, but I do not propose to deal with them to-day, except to say that, in so far as the newspaper article went which provoked all this, I think that ought to have been taken notice of and that does require to be looked into. Anyhow, the material condition is that these 40 papers that have been stopped must have lost a great deal over it. The presses were probably not working and money spent upon them was probably wasted, and so on. That would affect the material condition of the press. In London recently the Press Association or Press Institute—one of the two names, I forget which—made an inquiry and laid down the rule that no publicist should take up any job unless he was paid so much, that is to say, they regulated the minimum wage. In India also a similar thing will be done sooner or later. It ensures respectability, it ensures certain qualifications, and it ensures a certain amount of training. So these restrictions, though they appear as restrictions, have something reasonable at the bottom of them. Well, these things might be done in India too, and then it will be useful to inquire how our press stands, how it has been affected, how many of our presses have gone under, and what is the condition of our people now. That would be a very reasonable and necessary inquiry.

"The moral part of that inquiry would refer to the psychology of the editor and the people who write. If they are writing continually under the threat of being taken up or of their presses, being closed, or of their proprietors and their employés being punished, then the tendency is, human nature being what it is, that their writings are likely to be very bitter. Pressmen writing under such threats would write not in the usual sportsmanlike way of making a joke and taking a joke, but would write bitterly about it, and that writing reflects upon the public opinion, and the public opinion gets bitter in that way. So it requires to be seen what the moral condition of the writer and of the editor is.. ......

The Hon'ble Mr. Surendra Nath Banerjea :—"Moral condition"?

The Hon'ble Mr. G. S. Khaparde :—"Rather, I should call it psychological attitude. That is rather a long word and I did not like to use it. But by moral condition I mean the psychological attitude of the writer, how he feels, whether he agrees or disagrees, and so on. These are all matters that require an inquiry, and that inquiry, I hope, will be made by a Committee. There are in this Council journalists and gentlemen connected with the Press, and they will be appointed to that Committee. They will therefore be able to bring up grievances of which probably I am unaware; they will be able to make suggestions as to remedies such as I probably cannot make.

RESOLUTION re APPOINTMENT OF A COMMITTTE TO INQUIRE AND REPORT ON THE EFFECT OF PRESS LEGISLATION IN INDIA.

[Mr. G. S. Khaparde ; Lieut.-Col. S. L. Aplin] [19TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.]

Anyhow, it is a matter which does require to be inquired into, and this is the chief part of my case. I do not seek to condemn anybody, I do not seek to praise anybody, but I do ask this Hon'ble Council to go into this matter and make up its mind or to have materials put forward on which its mind can be made up. The reason why I lay so much stress upon this matter is, that we are now making for democracy, we are all trying to democratise our institutions in India, and if democracy is deprived of one of its principal instruments in working, then our working would not be satisfactory. It is therefore our duty to look into this matter and to try to do everything in our power to bring the Press in India up to date, that is to make it as free, as strong and as pure as we possibly can. I will not say more at this stage. If it becomes necessary, I shall say something more in my reply.

"I move, Sir, that this Resolution be adopted by the Council."

11-18 A.M. The Hon'ble Lieutenant-Colonel S. L. Aplin:—"Sir, I oppose this Resolution, at least so far as my Province, the Province of Burma, is concerned, on the ground that the proposal to appoint a Committee is inexpedient and unnecessary. It is, I think, inexpedient for two reasons. In the first place, our establishment of officers on account of the war has been reduced to a minimum. There are barely sufficient left to carry on their ordinary duties, and, I submit, it would be very undesirable that they should be overburdened with additional work, unless for really cogent reasons. My second and more important reason is, that if the proposed Committee were appointed, it would very naturally give rise to the impression that, in the opinion of the Government of India, there were grounds at least for supposing, either that the powers conferred by existing legislation were unnecessary, or that they were being exercised without due prudence and discretion. Any such impression would inevitably weaken executive authority, an undesirable result at any time, but especially so when the Empire is at war. But quite apart from any question of expediency, I would submit that the proposed Committee on its merits is quite unnecessary. The Hon'ble mover of the Resolution has laid great stress on publicity, and of course publicity has many advantages; but, I think, he has overlooked how very greatly conditions vary from province to province. There may be possibly in India certain provinces in which the publication of newspapers which vilify Government and Government officials and persistently misrepresent their attitude and intentions is comparatively harmless. I do not know, but I suppose the reason is, that the people are accustomed to it, and consequently little harm is done. But in Burma the people are not accustomed to it, and the free circulation of literature of the kind I have just referred to would undoubtedly have the most mischievous results. So long as there are newspapers which are blind to the responsibilities that uncontrolled freedom implies, so long will it be necessary to have the power to curb their possibilities of mischief.

"I am glad to say that the Burmese press has hitherto been singularly free from any taint of disloyalty or of hostility to Government, and it has been unnecessary to take action against any of them under the Defence of India Rules Apart from the initial taking of security and the issue on two occasions of warnings, no action has been necessary against them under the Press Act. The two occasions I refer to were in 1914 and 1915, respectively. In 1914, a Burmese newspaper was warned for reproducing from English newspapers false news which had been circulated in South America by the Germans. The other case was in 1915, when another Burmese newspaper, which has since ceased to exist, was warned for publishing vague announcements of a disquieting character which caused some excitement among the Burmese. As far as the Burmese press is concerned, therefore, there has been very little cause for complaint. But I regret I cannot say the same of certain Indian newspapers, for it has been found necessary take action against six of them under section 26 of the Post Office Act The action taken has been to intercept all copies of these newspapers arriving by post, and any issues which are found on examination to be seriously objectionable, are confiscated by order of the Local Government. The reason for this action is, that it is desired to protect Burma from the baneful influence of newspapers which frequently express malignant hostility to Government. Hitherto the relations between the Government and the people of Burma have been of the most friendly character, and I submit it would be extremely imprudent, indeed, it would be pressing imprudence to the limits of folly, to run any risk of those relations being disturbed by allowing the free entry into Burma of newspapers whose chief object seems to be to sow the seeds of discord and distrust.

RESOLUTION re APPOINTMENT OF A COMMITTEE TO INQUIRE AND REPORT ON THE EFFECT OF PRESS LEGISLATION IN INDIA.

[19TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.] [Lieut.-Col. S. L. Aplin; Mr. Surendra Nath Banerjea.]

" These are my reasons, Sir, for holding that it is necessary that the Local Government should remain in possession of the powers which it at present possesses. At any time I think it is desirable that Government should possess these powers; but at the present time it is not only desirable, but absolutely necessary. In Burma—and I suppose it is the same in other provinces also—our earnest wish, our paramount desire, is to concentrate our energies on giving all the assistance that we can towards the successful prosecution of the war, and that desire would be frustrated if we had internal discord or unrest, or if the confidence of the people in Government were shaken or disturbed. If my reasons are accepted, if the Council is satisfied that it is necessary for Government to remain in possession of the powers that it already has, it necessarily follows that the appointment of the proposed Committee is not necessary."

The Hon'ble Mr. Surendra Nath Banerjea:—" Sir, as I happen to be a pressman and have been one for the last 40 years, I think it my duty to say what I feel with regard to this Resolution. I will say at once that I desire heartily to associate myself with the Resolution, subject to one small reservation. I protest against the attempt of my Hon'ble friend to institute an inquiry into the moral condition of myself and of pressmen like myself. He has somewhat qualified that observation by the remark that it is not so much our moral condition in respect of which he wants to start an inquisitorial inquiry, but our psychological attitude. I protest against that also. We do not want any inquiry of any kind as regards our moral condition or as regards our psychological attitude. Nevertheless, Sir, I think it is necessary that a Committee of Inquiry should be appointed. This Council is under a special responsibility in regard to this matter. The present Act was an enactment passed by this Council in 1910. Therefore, I contend—and I hope the Council will agree with me—that we are under a sense of special responsibility in regard to this enactment. 11-24 A.M.

" My Hon'ble friend Colonel Aplin has observed that an inquiry would be unnecessary and inexpedient. I wholly dissent from that view. An inquiry does not presuppose that we condemn the administration of the Act. If this Council agrees to appoint a Committee and to institute an inquiry, I think the judgment of the Council will not necessarily postulate the view that we condemn the working of the Act. I will only point out what used to happen in connection with the Government of India in the days of the East India Company. Every 30 years there used to be a Parliamentary inquiry, and such an inquiry was fruitful of the best results. But those inquiries did not pre-suppose that the Government of India, as administered by the East India Company, was open to condemnation. It is necessary from time to time to overhaul our proceedings to see how things are being carried on. They might be carried on with the best of intentions and with the highest wisdom, but a periodical inquiry serves to purify and cleanse the atmosphere; and I say that such an inquiry in regard to this matter will help the Government.

" It is indisputable that there are loud complaints with regard to the administration of this Act. From Bengal I have no complaint to make. The administration of the Act in Bengal has been conducted with judgment, discernment and due deference to public opinion. But, Sir, we cannot overlook the fact that as regards other Provinces there have been complaints—loud and persistent complaints. My Hon'ble friend Mr. Khaparde very properly did not lay any special emphasis upon them; but it is an absolutely indisputable fact that there have been complaints. Are they well founded, or are they unsubstantial? I think it is a matter of the first importance that this question should be decided in the interests of the Government itself. If the complaints are well-founded, obviously it is the duty of the Government to provide remedies, to suggest means by which such complaints may be removed. If they are ill-founded, the inquiry will strengthen the hands of the Government. It will remove once for all the complaints that have been made against the administration of the Act. Therefore, whether the complaints are well-founded or whether they are ill-founded, the inquiry will serve to clear the atmosphere to strengthen the position of Government, or if the inquiry does not strengthen the position of Government, to remove the causes of those complaints. Thus, looking at the matter from all points of view, it seems to me that an inquiry is exactly the sort of thing that is needed now in view of the complaints that are so loudly made against the administration of the Act, not in my province, but in other provinces. In the Punjab, such complaints have been made; in the other provinces they have been repeated. Therefore, it seems to me, Sir, that it is important in the interests of the Government, important in the interests of the administration, of the wise and beneficent administration, of the Act that an inquiry should be made. My friend who has just spoken has observed that this is war time, and officers will have to be taken away from their legitimate duties, to address themselves to the work of this Committee. That is a very small matter; only about half a dozen officers will be required, perhaps not even so many as that. If it is the judgment of this Council as I hope it will be its verdict that an inquiry is necessary, there ought to be no difficulty in furnishing the necessary number of officials, and I am quite sure that we, the non-official Members, have sufficient public spirit and sufficient self-sacrifice to address ourselves to this task. Therefore I do hope that my Hon'ble friend, the Home Member, will be able to associate himself with this Resolution and direct the appointment of a Committee which will have the effect of clearing and purifying the atmosphere, or proving, if it can be proved, that the administration of the Act has been wise, or at any rate of demonstrating the desire of the Government that the Act shall be so administered that no complaints shall be heard in respect of it. With these observations, I desire to associate myself with the Resolution, subject to the reservation to which I have already referred."

RESOLUTION re APPOINTMENT OF A COMMITTEE TO INQUIRE AND REPORT ON THE EFFECT OF PRESS LEGISLATION IN INDIA.

[Mr. Surendra Nath Banerjea; Sir William Vincent.] [19TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.]

11-30 A.M. The Hon'ble Sir William Vincent:— "Sir, this Resolution though nominally directed to an inquiry into the working of the Press Act is really an attack on the administration of that measure. It has been suggested by my Hon'ble friend, Mr. Banerjea, that such an inquiry is desirable as much in the interests of the Government as in the interests of the press; it would, he said, clear the air. Sir, we have had inquiries recently into various matters on which public opinion has been agitated. In response to my Hon'ble colleague's request this year, we appointed Advisory Committees to inquire into the justification for imposing restrictions on internees; in reply to a public demand we appointed last year a Committee to inquire into the existence of sedition and the measures necessary to cope with it. What has been the result? Wherever the inquiry has shown that complaints of grievances are ill-founded, the report is immediately rejected by a certain section of the public and press. We may well say that similar results might be expected from such an inquiry as is contemplated in the present case. If the inquiry showed that the Act was well-administered, why the report would not be accepted and the unfortunate men who were members of the Committee would at once be attacked, as has been the case in the past. On the other hand, the result of appointing such a Committee at this moment would indubitably be, as explained by the Hon'ble Colonel

RESOLUTION re APPOINTMENT OF A COMMITTEE TO INQUIRE AND REPORT ON THE EFFECT OF PRESS LEGISLATION IN INDIA.

[19TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.] [Sir William Vincent ; Mr. Surendra Nath Banerjea.]

Aplin, that an impression would gain ground that the Government was doubtful whether the Act had been well administered or not, that there was some apprehension that it had been worked oppressively, and that the press was not allowed that reasonable liberty which the public interest demands. Any such impression would be entirely ill-founded and without basis. I may say too that the time for moving this Resolution is, in my judgment, most inopportune. It is barely eighteen months ago that a deputation waited on His Excellency the Viceroy to demand a repeal of the Press Act, and His Excellency then, in great detail, and in carefully chosen language, explained his reasons for being unable to comply with that request. This Resolution, as I have said, though nominally directed to an inquiry, is really directed to the same end. Now, I cannot think that any Member of this Council believes that there has been any substantial change in the attitude of the press since that deputation to His Excellency, that there has been any improvement in the tone, or that the case for modifying the law has in any way been strengthened.

"There are, as far as I can see, two charges brought against the Act, firstly, that it is unfairly used for penalising certain papers and presses, and secondly, that it is held in terrorem to stifle reasonable criticism. Sir, I could quote numerous articles from papers which will show that the first of these arguments is entirely untenable. The Government take action in very few cases, and then only after repeated warnings and after securing the best legal advice available. I do not know that it is necessary for me to quote instances of that, but as the Hon'ble Member has mentioned a Bombay paper, I will also quote one, perhaps it is the very paper to which he refers. The extract is one deliberately professing sympathy with the King's enemies. It runs as follows :—

'Whether our chariot of administration be of gold or of silver ; whether a black man or a white man be seated in our chariot of administration ; whether the driver of our chariot of administration be blind or lame ; whether on our chariot of administration the Eagle banner (that is, the German banner) remain flying or the Union Jack remain flying, it does not matter.'

I could quote other examples of the same kind ; I could also give examples of papers guilty of persistent and malignant attacks, not on individual officers, although those attacks have become well-nigh intolerable in certain cases, but deliberate attacks intended to undermine the authority of the Government of India and to promote disaffection towards His Majesty's Government......

The Hon'ble Mr. Surendra Nath Banerjea :—" What is the name of the paper, may I ask ?"

The Hon'ble Sir William Vincent :—" I will give the Hon'ble Member the name later : I do not propose to advertise the paper in this Council. It is not, however, a question of attacks on Government only, but I could also quote articles which have provoked bitter racial and religious feeling which, in the interests of the public peace, it is obviously necessary to stop. I will quote one. It is from a Muhammadan paper, I regret to say :—

'Some perverse, jealous Hindus call the Mussalmans unclean because they slaughter cows. We ask them which is more sinful, to slaughter a cow or to slaughter a daughter ? That is, which community is more unclean, the community prominent men of which pollute their daughters, or the Mussalmans, because they slaughter cows ?'

Now, does this Council think that the Government could possibly allow stuff of this kind to be published and disseminated widecast over the land without danger to the public tranquillity ? There can be only one answer to that question.

"I have here a number of other similar quotations, but I do not wish to weary the Council with them.

"The second charge is, that free criticism of Government and of Government measures is stifled by the action of the Press Act. Well, I have an article here on which no action has been taken at all under the Press Act,

RESOLUTION re APPOINTMENT OF A COMMITTEE TO INQUIRE AND REPORT ON THE EFFECT OF PRESS LEGISLATION IN INDIA.

[Sir William Vincent.] [19TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.]

although I believe the entry of this paper has been prohibited in certain provinces of India. I think it illustrates abundantly the fact that free criticism of Government is allowed. I will read it—

'The cult of the maintenance of the British element in the services not only secures an unwarranted scale of remuneration to satisfy the inexorable demands of the white officials, but enables them to help men of their blood to fleece this country by prostituting their official positions to further missionary propaganda and foreign exploitation. The people's money is freely given away to foist upon an unwilling people a faith to which they are utterly alien and with which they have no sympathy. The foreign exploiter is shown the most flagrant favouritism in the matter of licenses, contracts and other business aids. In the English clubs dotted over the whole country the white official, the missionary and the exploiter are in perpetual conspiracy to drain this land even of its limited wealth.'

Sir, that is an article which has been allowed to be freely published in the presidency where the paper is issued. I do not think it can be said that, if the Government allows articles of that kind to be published, it administers the Press Act too drastically. For myself I feel that the contrary accusation might well be brought against us that we do not use a weapon which has been placed in our hands sufficiently to preserve the public tranquillity and to prevent the dissemination of sedition in this country, and any further relaxation of the press law would, in my judgment, lead to the position in which we were in 1908.

"Now the Council is aware that until 1882 there was a press law in this country which was able at least to prevent open attacks intended to promote disaffection to Government. In 1882, that Act was repealed. The result was the dissemination, wide dissemination, of violent, scurrilous and malignant attacks upon the British Government, attacks which went to undermine the loyalty of the country, and which could not in the interest of good government be tolerated. In 1898, the criminal law was further strengthened, and in 1908, owing to the inadequacy of the measures which had till then been taken, the Incitement to Offences Act was passed. Even that proved insufficient, and in 1910, the present Bill was passed which has been to some extent effective in preventing the dissemination of openly seditious articles. I am glad to hear from my friend Mr. Banerjea that he admits that the Act has been fairly administered in the province of Bengal. I wish to add that the evidence before the Government of India indicates that the same fair treatment has been accorded to printers and publishers in all the other provinces. The only specific case, or the two cases to which my Hon'ble friend Mr. Khapardé referred, as examples to the contrary, were the well-known case of Muhammad Ali and the recent case of the 'Indian Daily News.'

"Now, as to the former case, if it is proposed to quote Sir Lawrence Jenkins on that case, it would be fairer, I think, to quote the whole of what he said. I cannot do this any more than the Hon'ble Mr. Khaparde, but at least I can put other statements of his which are not in accordance with the views which the Hon'ble Member has put forward. In that judgment, the Chief Justice also said 'comprehensive words were designedly used to catch crime and the incitement of crime posing in the guise of innocence.' In another part of this judgment he goes on to say—'Therefore the jurisdiction to pronounce on the wisdom or unwisdom of executive action has been withheld, and rightly withheld, from the judicial authority.' Mr. Justice Stephen who was one of the Judges in the same case had, I may add, no hesitation in finding that a perusal of the pamphlet then under consideration was likely to excite anger which might easily turn in the case of some Indian Muhammadans, to hatred of Christians. In a subsequent case in which the same paper was put before the Court, their Lordships of the Punjab Chief Court expressed themselves in far more definite terms as to the character of the writings, but I doubt if it is necessary for me to refer to it.

"As to the 'Indian Daily News' the position is this. I am glad to have an opportunity of explaining it. Immediately the article of which complaint is made was published, we recognised that it might reasonably and probably cause great offence to the Mussalman community. We at once communicated with the Bengal Government asking them to tell the paper to explain their position and insert an apology. That the 'Indian Daily News' has done. We were not satisfied, however, because we felt that Muhammadan feeling was much excited over this matter, and we then wired down to the Government of Bengal, inquiring whether it was not possible to take action under the Press Act against this offending issue of the paper. We were informed that after taking the best legal advice available, the Bengal Government had ascertained that such action was impossible. I think Lord Ronaldshay explained the whole position in a speech of his recently. The Government were quite alive, therefore, to the danger of that article and have done what is possible. But I was a little surprised to hear the Hon'ble Mr. Khaparde, who is so much in favour of a relaxation of the restrictions on the press, complaining that the Government has not been severe enough in its use of the Act on this occasion.

RESOLUTION re APPOINTMENT OF A COMMITTEE TO INQUIRE AND REPORT ON THE EFFECT OF PRESS LEGISLATION IN INDIA.

[Sir William Vincent.] [19TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.]

"It may be said, Sir, that most papers are managed very creditably, and that therefore we ought to leave it to such papers to control the more mischievous section of the press by their influence. I submit that this argument is of no weight. We freely admit that the great majority of papers are well managed, but that is no reason why we should allow a small but pernicious section of the press to excite disaffection and promote disloyalty in this country. A perusal of the Rowlatt Committee's Report, which we shall have an opportunity of discussing, I hope in a few days, will reveal to Members of this Council what the dangers of an unbridled press mean. I think many of us will also remember the observations of Sir Lawrence Jenkins in the Alipore case in which he definitely found that it was the action of, I think, the 'Yugantar' or some paper of that kind which was responsible for much of the revolutionary crime then prevalent among the young men of that generation.

"As for the Defence of India Rules, they are really nothing like as severe as the Regulations under the Defence of the Realm Act at Home, and if my Hon'ble friend has any knowledge of the severity with which the lady known as DORA is used at Home, he will know that a censorship of the most rigorous character is exercised in England at the present moment. This is also the case in other countries, for instance, in Germany. I should like to see the papers of the kind which are published in India published in Germany at this moment during the war. The editors would get, I think, very short shrift. In Japan, the several press laws are infinitely more severe than in this country. I maintain that the Defence of India Act is used and action under it is really only taken in the interests of the prosecution of the war. Where we have found papers publishing articles prejudicial to recruiting, on which my Hon'ble friend Mr. Thompson will shortly speak, or attempting to prevent persons investing in the War Loan, or exciting racial and religious disputes to such an extent as to endanger the public peace, or expressing sympathy with the King's enemies in a manner which is dangerous to the public interests, then Local Governments have taken, and I hope they will continue to take, action against the offending papers under the Rules.

"Turning to the last part of the Resolution, it has not been suggested that the defects of the Indian Press as to its moral and material condition are in any way the consequence of this Act, at least I did not understand the Hon'ble mover to make that suggestion.

"That there are defects is apparent; the most prominent being a lack of courtesy, a tendency to make unfair and irresponsible attacks on Government and even on Hon'ble Members of this Council from time to time, the substitution of mud-flinging for argument, a general want of temperance and charity; but I cannot see that any inquiry would do away with those defects. All that can be hoped is, that with the growth of honourable traditions and a sense of responsibility and self-respect, the moral restraints on the press will be sufficient to insure its proper conduct and that legislation of the character which is now unfortunately necessary in this land will no longer be needful.

RESOLUTION re APPOINTMENT OF A COMMITTEE TO INQUIRE AND REPORT ON THE EFFECT OF PRESS LEGISLATION IN INDIA.

[Sir William Vincent; Mr. Srinivasa Sastri.] [19TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.]

"No inquiry such as has been suggested would, however, be of any use, and this is the feeling of many in this Council on this general question. I have already said, Sir, the Government is entirely satisfied with the administration of the law at present. They make careful inquiries into each case in which action is taken, and any further Committee at this present moment would in my judgment simply lead to an entirely incorrect impression that the Government of India are suspicious that the Act is being maladministered. 'The Government of India,' people would say, 'last year refused to repeal the Act ; this year they are weakening, they admit there is something wrong and are going to have an inquiry into the Act.' If Hon'ble Members had given me any instances on which to base an inquiry, the position might have been different, but nothing has been put forward except general allegations and a suggestion that an inquiry would satisfy public opinion. Sir, there is a certain class of opinion and a certain section of the press in this country that would complain, whatever action was taken by the Government of India ; their raison d'etre is to attack the Government. It would be useless to attempt to conciliate that section of the press by any action such as that suggested by the Hon'ble mover. I regret, Sir, that for the reasons I have given I must oppose this Resolution."

11-52 A.M. The Hon'ble Mr. Srinivasa Sastri :—" Sir, I am in sympathy with the difficulties of Government. I wish it to be clearly understood that I fully believe certain writings in the press, both recently and some time ago, have given occasion for alarm, both on the part of Government and on the part of the general public interested in the maintenance of peaceful progress. I make no doubt whatever also that the Government have shown great care and discrimination in the administration of the press law, but this is one of those matters in which it is absolutely necessary for attaining full success that Government should be known to act in a thoroughly fair and impartial manner. It is not enough that it so acts ; the important thing is, that it should be recognised to act in that spirit. Where there is a large and widespread feeling that Government is not acting in that spirit, although such a feeling may be ill-founded, I think it would be prudent on the part of Government to go forward a bit and establish, by an impartial and open inquiry, that they have been acting in that spirit. Government stands only to gain by these searching and thorough inquiries. The Hon'ble Sir William Vincent said that 18 months ago a deputation waited on the Viceroy. The Viceroy, of course, refused to grant the request made to him by the deputation, and Sir William says that there has since then been no change in the tone of the press to justify a relaxation of the press law or the rigorous administration of that law. The Hon'ble Sir William Vincent made this statement in order to draw a certain inference. I draw, however, a somewhat different inference. I draw the inference that such measures defeat their own purpose. If after this prolonged administration of the press law, the tone of the press in India has not improved, it might cause Government to pause a little and consider whether, after all, they have gone the right way to improve the tone of the press. I am one of those who think that just as for imperfect education the remedy is more perfect education, just as the remedy for narrow courses of education is the substitution of liberal courses of education, so the remedy for the evils arising from a restricted press is probably a larger freedom, greater habituation of the people to a strong, vigorous and free press.

"Even the bureaucracy in India have a certain amount of education to acquire for their own benefit from the criticism of the press. I was very sorry to hear from Colonel Aplin that in Burma it is necessary, and it is even desirable, to keep out certain organs of the press. I suppose it is understood that the officials of India, having discovered a primitive Arcadia within the limits of British India, desire to keep it so. If so, it might be very well in the eyes of some people to keep the railway and the post office and all such adjuncts of civilization away from

RESOLUTION re APPOINTMENT OF A COMMITTEE TO INQUIRE AND REPORT ON THE EFFECT OF PRESS LEGISLATION IN INDIA.

[19TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.] [Mr. Srinivasa Sastri; Dr. Tej Bahadur Sapru.]

Burma. It struck me, Sir, as Colonel Aplin was speaking, that it might perhaps do great good to Burma to plant and to guarantee the existence of certain well-known organs of the press in India that I might mention. It might do them great good, for look at the way in which they have administered the Post Office Act, and the special powers the Government have in that Province. They have excluded papers of the greatest renown, a paper of the standing of the Hindu. Strong criticism I often read in the Hindu, both of individuals and of Government, but it is a paper, I am proud to say, which sheds credit on my Province. It is a paper of such high standing that the press of any country might be proud of it, and yet the Burma Government think that it is necessary to keep the Hindu out. Leave alone the Hindu which might perhaps at times indulge in strong criticism, which Burma has yet got to learn how to appreciate. Take a paper like the Indian Review, edited and conducted by one of the sturdiest moderates in the country, a paper in which officials are proud to write, a paper which the Government of Madras have from time to time patronised; that Review, a monthly magazine of first-class standing, is also kept out of Burma. I pity the people of Burma who are denied such liberal education as these papers provide, and Colonel Aplin would be well advised to change his attitude to the press somewhat.

"I am very glad, Sir, that the Hon'ble Mr. Khaparde began by referring to one of the fundamental bases of all democracy. There are some truths which even a well-instructed bureaucracy might hear repeated often.

"The necessity for publicity, the necessity for a free press, is one of those things which you cannot have too often brought to the notice of the Government that passes laws like the Press Act and refuses, even after a prolonged period, to conduct a public inquiry into the way in which they have worked. I believe, Sir, that the very breath of democracy is publicity. The Government of India delight in secret reports, in confidential records, in memoranda circulated in the dark. Officials are condemned on the strength of confidential reports; measures are planned and brought to full maturity on the strength of confidential reports; and when we, representatives of the Legislature, are asked to give our sanction to the fabrication of laws, sometimes Hon'ble Members quote from pink and blue papers of which we have had no scrutiny whatever, from which they only read to us extracts, and one-sided extracts, which we are not allowed to examine from end to end. These are measures which no true democrat can countenance, and as often as such a Resolution is brought forward, I think it is our duty to support it. A press law which is evidently founded on the model of Austria, and which is supported by the example of Japan, cannot be a permanent measure on the Statute-book of India. I do not deny that there are times, temporary periods, in the progress of every country when stringent regulations have to be made and worked by a vigilant bureaucracy; but the only condition of their healthy exercise is thorough publicity. The analogy of England is again and again brought forward in these matters, but let me say that the better practice of England should also be carefully borne in mind, because there is no single exercise of arbitrary authority in England which is not immediately scrutinised and brought to book. Government are called upon to make public statements; their measures have to pass through the severe scrutiny of Members of Parliament. It is after several years of the operation of the Press Act, after we have known many papers perish, after we have known the regulations issued under the Press Act neglected by Courts of law and officials, after these things have been borne patiently, that an inquiry into the Press Act and its working is being demanded, and I do not think Government are consulting their best interests when they resist such an appeal."

The Hon'ble Dr. Tej Bahadur Sapru:—"Sir, after the speeches of my friend the Hon'ble Mr. Banerjea and the Hon'ble Mr. Sastri, I 12-8 P.M.

RESOLUTION re APPOINTMENT OF A COMMITTEE TO INQUIRE AND REPORT ON THE EFFECT OF PRESS LEGISLATION IN INDIA.

[Dr. Tej Bahadur Sapru.] [19TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.]

do not think it is necessary to enter into any lengthy discussion of this subject. I would, however, beg leave to make a few observations with regard to the Resolution which has been moved by my friend the Hon'ble Mr. Khaparde. In the first place, it will be observed, that Mr. Khaparde does not want this Council to commit itself to any definite policy. He has not, in so many words, asked for the repeal of the Press Act, nor does he suggest any particular form of modification or change in that Act. He simply gives expression to the view shared by many Indians in this Council and outside it that there is a case for inquiry. It may be that when such a Committee is appointed, the Government may come out triumphant, and may find themselves much stronger than they are now, or it may be that the non-official Members of the Committee may convince the official Members and the Government that there is some case for modification or alteration of the Press Act.

"Now, Sir, it has been pointed out by the Hon'ble the Home Member that the appointment of a Committee like the one suggested by the Hon'ble Mr. Khaparde would amount to a confession on the part of Government that they are satisfied that the Press Act is not well administered. May I in all humility ask whether the refusal to appoint such a Committee on this occasion is going to convince the country that the Press Act is being thoroughly well administered? Nothing of the sort, Sir. The fact of the matter is this, that there is a widespread impression among educated Indians all over India that the Press Act has not been so prudently and wisely administered as it might very well have been, and how are you going to remove that impression? I think, Sir, the impression can only be removed by an open, fair and impartial inquiry. I for one should not for a moment sympathise with any one of the papers which deliberately from day to day excite disaffection or sow the seed of discord and discontent in this country. I for myself should not at all feel sorry or shed a single tear if papers like these cease to exist ; it would be much better for the country and for the Government. If the Hon'ble the Home Member would have told us that papers, such as those from which he read out to us some extracts, had been openly prosecuted and the editors had been brought to justice, I should have congratulated the Government and have felt happy. As an Indian I have no sympathy, Sir, with these papers, but at the same time you cannot, by mere dogmatic assertions that the Press Act is being wisely administered, convince the country that it is being so administered. I offer no remarks and no suggestions with regard to the policy of the Press Act at the present moment ; that is outside the purview of Mr. Khaparde's Resolution. If such a Committee is appointed, it may be that I may have to make certain suggestions with regard to the Press Act but I cannot forget that even the highest judicial authorities have from time to time expressed their great dissatisfaction with the manner in which the Press Act has been framed. Certainly, Sir, the Government cannot be congratulated upon the draftsmanship of their Act ; it is not an Act for which perfection can be claimed. Therefore, whether the ultimate policy of the Government should be to maintain the Press Act on the Statute-book or remove it, that is not a question which we are called upon to discuss to-day. What we are called upon to discuss is, whether it is at all desirable in the interests of public confidence that such a Committee should be appointed. I see absolutely no harm in the appointment of that Committee. On the contrary, I do honestly feel that the Government would be strengthening their position immensely if they accede to the reasonable proposition of my Hon'ble friend Mr. Khaparde.

"As regards the second part of the Resolution, I am afraid my position is more or less the same as that of my distinguished leader the Hon'ble Mr. Banerjea. I do not want any inquiry into the moral and material condition of the press in India, and I do not think that such an inquiry would bear any fruit. I do believe that that part of the Resolution is perfectly unnecessary, and I should think that Mr. Khaparde would not lay any stress particularly on that part of the Resolution."

RESOLUTION re APPOINTMENT OF A COMMITTEE TO INQUIRE AND REPORT ON THE EFFECT OF PRESS LEGISLATION IN INDIA.

[19TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.] [Mr. M. A. Jinnah.]

12-9 P. M.

The Hon'ble Mr. M. A. Jinnah :—"Sir, when the Press Act was passed in 1910, I happened to be a Member of this Council. At that time the position, Sir, was this,—I think the Hon'ble the Home Member will bear me out —that we had got already sufficient provisions in our ordinary Codes and our ordinary laws to deal adequately with most of the offences which he described in his speech, but that could only be done by means of judicial proceedings.

"It was then suggested in 1910 that we had so many instances of papers which I will characterise as erring papers, papers which spread sedition and disaffection, and were the cause more or less of political crimes, that those papers could not well and adequately be dealt with by the weapons which already existed in the armoury of the law. Therefore the Government came before this Council and put forward this case, that the Council must give power to the Executive to deal with such offences, because it was urged that the consequences of adopting judicial proceedings were sometimes worse in their result although it could secure a conviction against the culprit. It was in view of these facts, and particularly because at that time the province of Bengal was not very peaceful, that the Government in 1910 came before this Council and asked for these powers. Sir, if you will refer to the Proceedings of 1910, you will find that almost every non-official Member, feeling as he did that the Press Act was striking a blow at the liberty of the press which we all prize, still came to the conclusion that, having regard to the circumstances, he could not refuse them; and you will find that almost all non-official Members supported the Act, with the exception of one or two. That was in 1910.

"Sir, this Act has the defect of all measures which do not come under the purview of judicial supervision; because it is a measure which has got to be administered by the Executive. This measure has remained on the Statute-book for seven years, and I venture to say that, notwithstanding the extreme instances the Hon'ble the Home Member was pleased to cite, there are cases where this Act has been maladministered and has been oppressively worked. It is no use citing instances of an extreme character. We know all that, and we regret it It was because of these extreme cases that the Government were in a position to come before this Council and ask for these extraordinary powers, which you have got at present. We regret them and we unwillingly gave you that power. But the question to-day is this How has that power been exercised. and how is this Act to be administered? I do not want to go into details. I could give some instances that have come to my knowledge, and I have no hesitation in saying that the Act has been administered in a most arbitrary manner; and you cannot prevent it, you cannot avoid it, because you must remember that we are all human; and when such arbitrary powers are given to Heads of Departments and to Executive Officers, it must be remembered that they are human, they have got likes and dislikes, and they have their prejudices And remember this, that there is no appeal, it is final. Now what we want is this.—Seven years have passed since this Act became law, and we feel that it is time that a proper inquiry was held; and if you hold the inquiry, Sir, I venture to say that the Government themselves in all fairness will be satisfied that this Act should be modified. I do not wish for a single moment that any culprit who is guilty of sedition, who is guilty of causing disaffection, who is guilty of causing race-hatred, should escape; but at the same time, I say, protect the innocent, protect those journalists who are doing their duty and who are serving both the public and the Government by criticising the Government freely, independently, honestly—which is an education for any Government. I know that officials are sensitive to criticism; and we have a very typical example in my Hon'ble friend Colonel Aplin. He is mortally afraid of any criticism going to Burma. Well, I hope that Colonel Aplin will bear in mind some of the remarks that the Hon'ble Mr. Sastri made with regard to that. You are not going to govern the Province of Burma by excluding newspapers. You are not going to make the people of Burma happy by keeping them ignorant. It may be easier to govern them that way, but it is not a model form of government, and even Burma might make some advance.

"Sir, I therefore entirely support the first part of the Resolution."

12-15 P.M.

The Hon'ble Sir Gangadhar Chitnavis :—"Sir, I am one of those who think that such Commissions or Committees as that which has been proposed by my Hon'ble friend Mr. Khaparde go a long way to clear the air and bring over popular opinion on the side of Government Such popular support is essentially necessary for the good government which Government has established in this country, and which they are every day broadening on popular lines. I, therefore, support the Resolution ; but I would like to have this Commission appointed after the war. The war at this stage should be our first consideration, and all of us, I believe, including the Hon'ble Mr. Khaparde, will agree to the suggestion I have made."

12-16 P.M.

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur B. N. Sarma :—"Sir, we are on the eve of the institution of great constitutional changes of importance, and we cannot disguise from ourselves the fact that the Press is a power in the land, and is bound to become from day to day a greater power. It is an established fact that, at any rate among the editors of the Indian press, there is a deep feeling of irritation that the Act is not being administered fairly. The very fact that last year most of the important editors of daily newspapers in India chose to approach the Viceroy for a repeal of the Press Act is proof positive that there is that feeling, whether well-founded or ill-founded. Now, the question is—Is the Government to do something towards allaying that feeling, towards showing that that feeling is not well-founded ; or is the Government to fold its arms and say—'In our opinion the Act has been so wisely administered that nothing more remains to be done.' From time to time we have been told by responsible editors that they have got a great grievance about the way in which officials approach them with regard to articles appearing in the press, and only recently a paper called the 'Observer' in the Punjab published an editorial under the heading 'Ourselves' in which that paper makes certain observations not very creditable to the Province, if true. Now those observations may be absolutely unfounded ; but still there it is, the fact that that paper has chosen to make those observations. An inquiry which should show that the observations are absolutely unfounded would go far towards rehabilitating public opinion in favour of the Government.

"I have only two particular observations to make in connection with this Resolution, and they are these.—We seem to be dissolving ourselves into separate kingdoms, so far as the administration of personal laws intimately connected with the rights of citizenship and press laws is concerned. Each Provincial Government seems to be taking upon itself the duty of preventing the entry of newspapers published in any other province, on the ground that in its judgment those papers are disseminating pernicious doctrines.

"Now, Sir, it seems to me that if a paper is really publishing wrong doctrines, is publishing pernicious doctrines, it is the bounden duty of the Provincial Government in which that paper is published to bring that paper to book, and if that Provincial Government does not perform its duty, it is the duty of the Government of India to direct the attention of the Provincial Government to that task. But it seems to me that a good deal of irritation is bound to prevail if we are to have water-tight compartments among the Provincial Administrations, if a paper which is considered a highly respectable paper, like the 'Hindu,' very highly and justly respected in the Madras Presidency, against which no action whatsoever has been taken at any time by the Madras Government, is prohibited entry into another province. I am not justifying the action of the 'Hindu' or of every article that is published in the 'Hindu'; it is unnecessary to do so for the purpose of the present argument. I am not in the same way here to justify every article that is published in the 'New India,' another highly popular newspaper with large circulation which has been prohibited from entering into the Punjab. We may have reasonable differences of opinion with regard to particular articles, but still the point remains as to whether it is not the duty of the Government of India to take upon themselves the duty of prohibiting such entry if they think that wrong articles have been published, and as to whether it would be safe to leave Provincial Governments to discharge this task, causing immense irritation among the people of the various provinces, and also possibly leading to the introduction of dissolving elements into the composite structure of the Indian Empire. The other point on which I would like to dwell is this; there is not the slightest doubt that if an inquiry is held into the material condition of the press, it would be discovered that improvements could be effected by the action of the Government in the knowledge of facts on the part of newspapers and newspaper editors. It may be that several articles that are written by editors are wrong because they are ignorant of true facts, and are not furnished with information which would check the dissemination of incorrect news. Another point which may be considered by the Committee may be as to whether the Government cannot start, or encourage the starting of, an institution where young men desirous of becoming journalists can be trained in economics and general information. I know personally that many young men approach us with requests for introductions to newspapers, because they wish to take up journalism as a profession. Whether this inquiry would not show that much can be done towards improving the knowledge of newspaper editors, the materials that can be furnished to papers so as to prevent them from falling into ignorance, whether anything can be done in that direction, is a matter which this inquiry would disclose. I, therefore, hope that the Government would be pleased to reconsider this question and appoint a Commission; it may be that the Commission cannot be appointed by the Government all at once, but within a reasonable time a Commission should be appointed to inquire as to what steps should be taken to improve the press and make it vigorous, right-minded and useful for the future progress of India."

RESOLUTION re APPOINTMENT OF A COMMITTEE TO INQUIRE AND REPORT ON THE EFFECT OF PRESS LEGISLATION IN INDIA.

[19TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.] [Rao Bahadur B. N. Sarma; Mr. J. P. Thompson.]

The Hon'ble Mr. J. P. Thompson:—"There is a feeling, Sir, which sometimes finds expression that a discussion of this nature is unprofitable. That is not the way in which I look at it. Hon'ble Members have appealed to us in the name of democracy, and I quite agree that a Resolution like this is one of the necessary forms of democracy, that is to say, that where exceptional powers are entrusted to the Executive if there is any apprehension in the minds of Hon'ble Members who claim to represent the people that those powers have been abused, it is their duty to call on Government to render an account of its stewardship, and it is the Government's duty to lay its cards on the table, as far as possible, and to prove, as we can prove in this case, that the action taken against the press has been action which is within the limits of those powers which were entrusted to us. Now, Sir, before I discuss the Resolution, there is one thing I should like to say. The Punjab is sometimes referred to in the press as though it were one of the dark places of bureaucracy. Speaking for myself, Sir, I can say that I look forward with as keen and intense an interest as any Hon'ble Member present to the time when India will rise to the full height of her political stature and take her place among the sisterhood of self-governing nations which form the British Empire. The progress may be fast or it may be slow; that will depend in the main on Indians themselves, but we in the Punjab from the highest to the lowest are determined that we will do everything in our power to smooth India's path and to help her onward progress to the goal.

"I now turn to the Hon'ble Member's Resolution. It seems to me, Sir, that before the Hon'ble Member can ask Government to appoint such a Committee as he contemplates, it is necessary for him to prove three things. He must first prove that the time is opportune. He, secondly, must prove that some results of practical value are likely to flow from the recommendations of the Committee he advocates; and thirdly, he must show reason to believe that Government has exercised the powers which have been entrusted to it in such a way as to hamper the press, in the discharge of its legitimate duties; and I claim that neither the Hon'ble mover nor any Hon'ble Member who has supported him has succeeded in establishing one of these points. The first point, Sir, is that the time is inopportune. The two Hon'ble Members, who have spoken on behalf of Government in this debate, have given reasons for holding that the time is inopportune. The fact of the matter is that at present the Indian public is suffering from a surfeit of political pabulum; we have had report after report which we have not had time to digest. What the Hon'ble mover recommends can only lead, in my opinion, to an acute attack of political dyspepsia. Besides and beyond this there is the war. I do not propose to touch on that; though it seems sometimes necessary to remind Hon'ble Members that we are in the midst of the greatest war that the world has ever known. But there is one aspect of the war in its relation to the press which, I think, requires emphasis, and that is that the action which has been taken during the war has been action of an emergency nature—I do not propose to cover the whole ground of this Resolution; I will merely confine myself to explaining the policy of the Punjab Government in its application of the Defence of India Act and the Rules thereunder to the press,—that the action which has been taken has been exceptional and necessitated by false rumours and by deliberate attempts to prejudice recruiting, to sow discord among the Allies, to sow discord among the different classes of the community in India, and to glorify our enemies. All of these occasions for interference will disappear as soon as peace is declared; but so long as the war continues, and so long as we in the Punjab have to maintain recruiting at its present pitch, matter of this sort in the press cannot and will not be tolerated.

RESOLUTION re APPOINTMENT OF A COMMITTEE TO INQUIRE AND REPORT ON THE EFFECT OF PRESS LEGISLATION IN INDIA.

[Mr. J. P. Thompson.] [19TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.]

"The second point which the Hon'ble Member will have to prove is, that some practical results will be likely to flow from the recommendations of this Committee. The Committee might possibly recommend that the Press Act should be administered in a different way But the Hon'ble Member speaks of the effect on the press of legislation, and of the moral and material condition of the press. What remedy does he suppose that this Committee is going to recommend? Does he suppose that it will recommend measures for the improvement of the moral and material condition of the press by prescribing an entrance examination before a man takes up the career of a journalist? Does he suppose that it will recommend a vast system of subsidies all over the country for the acquisition by Government of agencies for the supply of news? Perhaps he imagines that it will recommend the establishment of Government papers. In that case Government has already anticipated their recommendations. The Haq, the new war journal in the Punjab, which has, I believe, the largest paying circulation on record in India, has not touched on politics. But the immediate success that has attended it, suggests to my mind that the great events through which we are passing have opened peoples' eyes to the need of something higher and something better than is available in the ordinary journals of the province.

"The third point that the Hon'ble Member has to prove is, that the effect of the Government's action has been to hamper the press in the discharge of its legitimate duties. Let me give the Hon'ble Member some figures. In the Punjab in 1909, the year before the Press Act was passed, there were about 165 newspapers. At the beginning of 1914, before the war broke out, the number had risen to 199. At the beginning of 1918, in spite of the enormous rise in the price of paper, the number had risen to 216. Does the Hon'ble Member think that that looks like repression? Circulation of course has gone down, but that is in the main due to the rise in the price of paper, a calamity which has fallen on the just and the unjust alike, on the staunchest supporters of Government as well as on our bitterest enemies.

RESOLUTION re APPOINTMENT OF A COMMITTEE TO INQUIRE AND REPORT ON THE EFFECT OF PRESS LEGISLATION IN INDIA.

[19TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.] [Mr. J. P. Thompson.]

"Now, Sir, as I said, what I propose to do, is to explain in some detail the action which has been taken by the Punjab Government under the Defence of India Act. That action falls into three classes. The first class consists of cases in which the Punjab Government has prohibited the publication of any war news other than what is contained in Reuter's telegrams. The second class consists of cases in which pre-censorship has been ordered; and the third class comprises those cases in which papers published in other parts of India have been excluded from the Punjab. Now, Sir, when war broke out, there was naturally great fertility in rumours. Rumours are always sure to arise in similar conditions, but what we had to contend with was not only rumours, but the deliberate fabrication of false news. It was only necessary to take action in four cases in this class. Let me give to the Council some examples of the sort of thing with which we had to contend. One paper published a distorted version of an official announcement with regard to the danger from German submarines. In another place, we had an announcement that boys of 12 would be brought out from England to garrison India. Again, we had a most realistic description, I think in July 1915, of the terrible effects of the German bombardment of Paris. Alarmist headlines, such as 'Glorious Austrian victories,' 'Germany the protector of truth and justice,' and headlines of that sort were of frequent occurrence in the papers with which we dealt. We had complaints not only from regimental officers, not only from men who are moving about in the districts, but from the Governments of Burma and the United Provinces in regard to the effect that some of our papers were producing on the minds of people both in the Punjab and in distant parts of India. Action was taken for a time, but it was of little effect. The 'Zamindar,' one of the most notorious papers that India has known, gloated over alleged Turkish victories, magnified the German forces and dwelt on the good qualities of German rule. English papers were often quoted as the sources of most extraordinary items of information. Government at last grew suspicious, and in a test case we found that a Reuter's telegram to the 'Times' which stated that the British fleet had bombarded the Dardanelles and the Turkish reply had been feeble, had been distorted into an announcement that the British fleet had been rapidly silenced by the Turkish æroplanes and the guns from their Forts. Now that kind of announcement is not the kind of announcement—I think all Hon'ble Members will agree with me in saying this—that that kind of announcement is not the kind of announcement that ought to be made in times of war, and I do not think there will be two opinions as to the justification of the action that we took. It is significant of the effect of the orders which were passed that the last case in which it was necessary to prohibit a paper from publishing unauthorised war news was in September 1915. During the last three years we have had no complaints which have led us to take any action.

"The second class of cases in which we have taken action under the Defence of India Act is the class in which we have ordered pre-censorship. There were four cases in this class too. The first two of them were cases of papers which were closely connected with the editor of the 'Zamindar,' and I do not propose to deal with them. But there is one case with which I will deal, as it has been referred to by the Hon'ble Mr. Khaparde, and I think also by one other Hon'ble Member and to which I would invite the attention of the Members of this Council. It is the case of the 'Observer.' The proprietor of the 'Observer' was a gentleman who was formerly on the Punjab Legislative Council, and who was last year convicted and sentenced for offering illegal gratifications with the object of obtaining Government contracts. The editor of the paper had been an Extra Assistant Commissioner in the Punjab, and he was convicted before a Commission under the Act of 1850 of corruption and dismissed from Government service. Not unnaturally perhaps he was a little bitter. Last cold weather he took a very bitter line in regard to the exclusion of two Mahommedan barristers from British East Africa.

RESOLUTION re APPOINTMENT OF A COMMITTEE TO INQUIRE AND REPORT ON THE EFFECT OF PRESS LEGISLATION IN INDIA.

[Mr. J. P. Thompson.] [19TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.]

He added falsehood to his venom when he said they had been excluded on the ground that they were objectionable aliens. After that he launched a series of attacks upon the policy of the Punjab Government as enunciated in His Honour's Budget speech; he accused the Government of harsh and oppressive administration, he denied that the people were contented, he taunted them with their position as hewers of wood and drawers of water. The Editor and proprietor were interviewed, and the proprietor had the amazing effrontery to offer to turn his rag into a pro-Government organ on condition that his son was given contracts by the Munitions Board. Shortly afterwards an order of pre-censorship was passed. The Editor refused to accept it. The paper changed hands, an article appeared, which, I think, the Hon'ble Mr. Sarma has referred to, called 'Ourselves.' It was the introduction of the new editor to his public. We took no notice of it because there was nothing in it which seemed to us to call for action, but it was followed up by a most scurrilous article in which it was suggested that the reason why Government was going to pass over a certain Muhammadan gentleman for a vacancy in the Chief Court was because this gentleman happened to differ from the Lieutenant-Governor in his political views. Thereupon the security was confiscated, and I believe the paper has ceased to exist.

"There was one other case in which we used our powers of pre-censorship in regard to the reports of a public meeting. No Hon'ble Member has referred to the case, but it was a case in which there was a hastily convened meeting summoned in Lahore at which it was expected that certain objectionable speeches would be made. The main promoters of the meeting had been warned for the tone of certain speeches they had made at a meeting some few months before, and it was thought advisable to prevent the publication of reports of the meeting until they had been pre-censored. The reports came up, we found the warnings had been taken to heart, and the ban was removed. Now, Sir, it may be that some Hon'ble Members feel doubts in their minds as to the effect of allowing political agitation on such activities as we are now engaged in, in the Punjab in the way of recruiting. I confess at one time that I felt some doubts in my own mind too, until I spoke to an old zamindar who had taken great interest in recruiting and done much useful work in one of the best districts of the Province. He came to me with the complaint that political agitation would kill recruiting. I asked him how. His answer impressed itself on my memory as being one of the best justifications for the policy of the Punjab Government that I can imagine. He said, 'why, Sir, when we go round recruiting and hold our recruiting meetings, what do we say to the men? We tell them that they have never had such a Government as the British Government, we tell them that Government has poured wealth into their pockets, and that from gratitude alone, if for no other reason, they ought to enlist in the Army, and then,' he said, 'one of these political agitators comes along, and what does he say? He pooh-poohs everything we have said, he tells them that the wealth that is put into their pockets is only put there to be abstracted and sent over-seas, and the effect of everything we have said is dissipated.'

"I now come, Sir, to the third class of paper with which we have dealt. It is the case of papers which we have excluded from the Province, papers published elsewhere. There are only eight of these papers in all, six published in Calcutta and two in Madras, and I notice that the two papers which are published at Madras were not mentioned by the Hon'ble Mr. Sástri among the papers which had been excluded and which might have been admitted. The papers which are published in Calcutta were mostly published under the editorship of men who had taken refuge in Calcutta, because they thought it was a safer vantage-ground than the Punjab from which to launch their thunderbolts. The tone of all these papers was distinctly anti-British. Among them you might find an incitement to a jehad mistranslation of telegrams, alarmist headlines. I remember one of the headlines, a description of the Kaiser which was headed Ek Nirala muhibb-ul-Islam, 'A perfect friend of Islam.' And there were also articles in glorification of Enver Pasha. 'New India' I need hardly deal with. It is unnecessary for me to characterize it in this assembly. The 'Commonweal' is the weekly edition. But I will only say that it was absolutely impossible for us to allow the circulation in the premier recruiting Province in India of a paper which persistently vilified the Punjab Government, and which preached that it might be necessary to consider whether, in view of the terms of the War Cabinet's Communique, it might not be necessary for India to withhold all co-operation from Government in matters connected with the war.

" There are only sixteen cases in all, Sir, in which we have taken action under the Defence of India Act. If we count as one the cases of all papers which are published under the same management, or papers which are off-shoots or successors of papers which have previously been dealt with, you could count the number on the fingers of the two hands. That surely is not much. Our action has sometimes been criticised on the ground that we have no right to interfere with papers in other provinces. It was open to people who took that view to challenge our action in the Courts, but it was the duty of the Punjab Government to keep the atmosphere of our Province clean, wholesome and loyal, and to keep out all contamination, no matter what its source might be.

" Now, Sir, I believe that the main ground on which exception is taken to action under the Defence of India Rules is that it is executive action which is not subjected to the usual judicial checks..................

The Hon'ble Mr. M. A. Jinnah:—" If the Hon'ble Member refers to my speech, that is not correct. I said action taken under the Press Act is not subject to the judicial checks."

The Hon'ble Mr. J. P. Thompson:—" I was not referring to what the Hon'ble Member said, I was merely reviving my recollections of what has frequently appeared in the press, that the objection to action taken under the Defence of India Act is that it is action taken without judicial check. Now, Sir, there must be good reasons why all the belligerent Governments of the world have decided to entrust powers of this sort to the Executive, and the reasons are perfectly obvious. In times of great stress action to be effective must be sharp and sudden, and no action that is not taken decidedly and vigorously can possibly maintain the morale, which is so important a factor in war ....

The Hon'ble Mr. Rangaswamy Ayyangar:—" The Hon'ble Member has exceeded his time-limit."

The Hon'ble the Vice-President:—The Hon'ble Member will no doubt remember he has exceeded his time-limit."

The Hon'ble Mr. J. P. Thompson:—" Yes; and there are reasons I believe in India why the control of the press must be more vigorous than in certain other countries. The real reason, Sir, I believe, is this, that the only cure, and that not a complete one, for an irresponsible press is a responsible Government. Let me give the Council an example of the sort of thing which happens in this country, which would be at once checked by the natural operation of press criticism if it happened in England. There was a leaderette in one of the principal papers in the Punjab the other day in which political capital was endeavoured to be made, and racial hatred was endeavoured to be stirred, out of the alleged difference between the treatment which was accorded by the Bengal Government to a deputation of European planters and the alleged contemptuous rejection of the recommendations of a large number of the Hon'ble Members of this Council in regard to taxation of agricultural incomes during the discussions on the Income-tax Bill last Spring.

RESOLUTION re APPOINTMENT OF A COMMITTEE TO INQUIRE AND REPORT ON THE EFFECT OF PRESS LEGISLATION IN INDIA

[Mr. J. P. Thompson; Mr. Srinavasa Sastri; Mr. M. A. Jinnah; The Vice-President; Mr. G. S. Khaparde.] [19TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.]

"Now, every Hon'ble Member here knows that the main allegation on which that paragraph was based was a lie. I would ask Hon'ble Members to think what would have happened in that case in England. The whole of the opposition press would have fastened on that paragraph like a swarm of flies and they would have overwhelmed that paper with sarcasm, chaff and ridicule, the circulation of the paper would have dropped at once, it would have been discredited, and the editor would probably have been dismissed..................

The Hon'ble Mr. Srinivasa Sastri :—"Is the Hon'ble Member talking of England or of Utopia?"

The Hon'ble Mr. J. P. Thompson :—"I am talking of England. Hon'ble Members will perhaps recollect the effect of the unwise publication by the 'Times' of the 'Piggot letters'........................"

The Hon'ble Mr. M. A. Jinnah :—"May I rise to a point of order. Either, Sir, we must give the Hon'ble Member permission to continue his speech, or he must conclude."

The Hon'ble the Vice-President :—"The Hon'ble Member has exceeded his time already, and must bring his remarks to a close."

12-51 P.M. The Hon'ble Mr. G. S. Khaparde :—"Sir, I should like to preface my reply by quoting an aphorism of the late Mr. Gladstone, and it is that the remedy for abuse of liberty is to grant further liberty. The remedy for the abuse of liberty is not repression, not stoppage, but to give people greater liberty. They will then see the folly of what they have been doing, by actual experience, or as the last speaker, with much of whose remarks I do not agree, expressed it very well, the remedy for irresponsible criticism is the grant of responsible Government. It is the same thing as Mr. Gladstone's aphorism put in different words.

"Now applying this to the criticisms that have been made, I think one can proceed easily and systematically. There are three conditions which the last speaker kindly mentioned which I ought to have fulfilled and which my Resolution ought to have complied with, namely,-

(1) that the time was opportune;

(2) that good results were expected, and

(3) that the Government have not properly carried out the Press Act.

"Well, my reply to the first condition, namely, that the time is opportune, is answered easily. The time is opportune, I submit, and I got the hint of moving this Resolution from Government action itself in the matter of recruitment and in the matter of the circulation of news about the war. Government have recently subsidised a number of papers, and I believe a certain paper has been started by them. It has found the correct remedy. If there are people who publish incorrect news, then the proper remedy is for Government to publish the correct news. That is perfectly right. So, if the Government do this, it is time to say that the inquiry which I propose is perfectly opportune. That being so, the first condition is fulfilled.

"As to the second, whether healthy results are expected, I believe they are. Every inquiry always leads to clearing the ground and to a better understanding of the procedure. I believe human nature is imperfect; in every human institution little abuses creep in, and occasional inquiries sweep away those abuses. That being so, reasonable and good results could easily be expected.

RESOLUTION re APPOINTMENT OF A COMMITTEE TO INQUIRE AND REPORT ON THE EFFECT OF PRESS LEGISLATION IN INDIA.

[19TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.] [Mr. G. S. Khaparde.]

"Lastly, as to whether the Act has not been properly administered. Well, that is exactly the thing which I want to be inquired into. There is a feeling expressed also here by Hon'ble friends of mine and which exists in the minds of the people that the Act has not been properly administered. So this is a question of fact and can only be determined by adducing evidence, and that evidence could be taken by this Committee.

"So, I submit, I have fulfilled all these three conditions imposed by the last speaker.

"Then, going further, the objection has been taken to this inquiry that it implies a certain distrust of the Government. It is said that if Government consented to this inquiry, it would be tantamount to an admission that the Press Act has not worked well or has not been worked well. To my mind the opposition to such an inquiry raises a bad implication. If it is properly administered, if it is very good, why then this opposition to the inquiry proposed by me? It would soon establish their position and perhaps show that I was wrong; and I will be very glad to be demonstrated to be in the wrong, as I do not claim infallibility. So that their very opposition, the fact that this Council is opposed to my Resolution, implies that they do not want all these things to be inquired into.

"Then, some passages published by newspapers have been kindly read out to us by the Hon'ble the Home Member. Well, one of those passages was so highly allegorical and so figurative that, unless you read it in its full context and see what is meant by it, it is rather difficult to classify it. It is like showing a brick of a house to a person and saying 'this is a very good house. This is a brick of it.' From the brick how can you judge whether the house is good or not? It is the arrangement of brick, mortar and other things that makes up a house. So, I humbly submit that this one quotation rather puts me at a disadvantage. Similarly, it is not my case that no paper has ever written a bad article. That is no part of my case at all. In the beginning of my speech I said that this Law had been enacted though it was opposed at the time. Now about eight years have passed over it. It is time to inquire and see how it has worked. I suppose there is nothing unreasonable in such a request. Ordinarily, I believe the rule of the Government of India is that, after a law has been in force ten years, to see how it has been interpreted and whether it requires to be amended. In my own case the period of eight years only falls short of this period by two years The great objection that has been taken is, that in these papers you have numerous attacks made on Government. I am not a position to say 'yes' or 'no' to that, but I can reply to it by saying that, if these attacks have been made, has any endeavour been made to find out why they were made? In the case of a man who commits a theft or crime, it is usual to find out in the theft that the man managed to get money in an illegal way. But in the case of attacks upon a powerful, and I say even a good, Government like the British Government, why should these people be so bad? Are they demented people? Are they mad? If they are mad, why not shut them up in a lunatic asylum? If they make complaints or attacks, by all means go into the reasons and see why the attacks were made and try to remove the causes which led these people to make these attacks. That, I understand, is the usual procedure in matters of this kind. If these people who make these attacks are adjudged as insane, shut them up in a lunatic asylum and be done with it. Otherwise, an inquiry is the usual thing to undertake for a matter of this kind. Unfortunately, more than once German jurisprudence has come in here and these laws are justified on the ground of their existence in Prussia, in Germany, and so on. My obvious reply is that, because these laws obtain in Germany, that is why Germany is so wicked, that is why Germany commits deeds which we call atrocious, which we call savage, which we call barbarous. We are not going to borrow a leaf from these wicked people and put it into our jurisprudence, are we? So, I submit, that these reasons which have been advanced and so far as I have been able to see them, appear to me unsound and incorrect.

"It was asked what is the remedy I propose?

"In the beginning I hoped I made it clear, Sir, that this is not the time for proposing remedies. I proposed an inquiry, and if evils are found to exist then it will be time to devise remedies. I said so in the opening part of my speech, so this question rather falls upon me without effect, it misses the point.

"Then there was in the case of the Punjab action that was explained at considerable length; and in the absence of any inquiry or of any evidence one way or the other, I am willing to believe my Hon'ble friend. But my habit—a habit I suppose I have got from my court life—is that whenever a judgment is pronounced I always like to read the evidence on which that judgment is based; and so far no evidence has been adduced. The committee of inquiry which I hope this Council will agree to appoint may be able to justify my Hon'ble friend, and very likely it will; but that does not weaken my case. My case is for an inquiry. I only ask for an inquiry. There is no reason why an inquiry should do any harm. All inquiries that I have known have done good until this time. Unfortunately the Rowlatt Commission—or rather, I should say, I suppose, the Sedition Commission—was not an open inquiry. There is a Resolution which I am to move, which comes on for hearing on the 23rd of this month, with regard to this matter, and I shall then explain myself at greater length. At present I need only remark that it illustrates my first proposition that democracy always looks to publicity. Democracy rightly or wrongly will always distrust its rulers. This Rowlatt Commission inquiry was in camera, and not in the presence of the persons concerned. I am not going to argue that matter now. I am only pointing out that some recent commissions of inquiry have not been productive of much good, because they were not properly conducted. Twenty empty dishes do not make one full dish ; and so 20 ex parte inquiries do not in the same way make a full inquiry. With regard to this Act, I do not say I condemn it : I only say 'Kindly inquire ; kindly make sure of the ground, and then after the results have been known, we shall be able to suggest remedies,' and I have no doubt that the great administrators who govern this country will be able to deal effectively with this question too.

"Finally, Sir, I wish that the Council may be divided and votes taken on this point, and that the votes may be recorded.

"I forgot to say one thing which, if you, Sir, will kindly permit me, I should like to say before I sit down. The last portion of my Resolution about 'the moral and material conditions of the press in India' appears to have somewhat confused some of my Hon'ble friends. I did not mean much by that. I only wanted to see what effect it would produce ; and if my Hon'ble friends do not like it, I am not particularly insistent on that point."

1-4 P.M. The Hon'ble Sir William Vincent :—"Sir, there is very little, I think, in the Hon'ble mover's closing speech to which I need reply. He attacked the quotations which I cited to illustrate the necessity for a Press Act as allegorical and figurative. Well, the Council heard the quotations and Hon'ble Members can judge for themselves whether this is not a pure subterfuge. The articles were either purely seditious articles, or meant to excite racial feeling, and it is idle to tell this Council that they were allegorical and figurative only. There is nothing in such an argument.

"The other point which the Hon'ble Member made and which I propose to answer was a suggestion that persons who are so unwise as to refuse to recognise the merits of British rule and persist in writing seditious articles should be locked up in lunatic asylums. I am surprised that the Hon'ble Member should suggest such a course to Government. The proposal was a dangerous one for the Hon'ble Member to make. A very dangerous one from more points of view than one............

The Hon'ble Mr. G. S. Khaparde:—"I suggested that their conditions should be inquired into, as to why they write these things."

The Hon'ble Sir William Vincent:—"I will not deal with this point further. There were however one or two more serious arguments that were put up in the course of the debate. The Hon'ble Mr. Sastri argued, if I understood him correctly, that it has been satisfactorily shown that the condition of the press has not been improved by the legislation, and it was time therefore that we inquired as to whether some other method of improving it could not be found. He further suggested that any such inquiry as we had would not only clear the air—no one has ventured to allege that it would satisfy a certain section of public opinion,—but that it would strengthen the hands of Government.

"Well, in regard to the first argument which suggests that the present condition of the Press is due to the Act; the answer is 'see what the condition of the Press was before we had any Press Act' when papers were allowed the utmost license. Now, this is the sort of thing that used to be published then. I will only give two quotations out of many that I have:—

'The Mutiny of 1857 should be regarded as the first War of Indian Independence, and its anniversary should be celebrated annually.'

'There will be a mutiny not of ten or twelve regiments, as in 1857, but a general revolt of the entire population.'

That shows what the condition of the Press was before we had any Press Act. Why should it be supposed that the legislation which has only checked such dangerous statements as that is in any way responsible for, or in any way connected with, the present moral and material condition of the Press.

"I have already answered the argument that an inquiry would strengthen the hands of Government. The Rowlatt Commission was an independent inquiry by able judicial officers, and what has been the result of the report? The very Hon'ble Member who now asks me to appoint a Committee of Enquiry on the Press Act, says 'Hold the Rowlatt Report back, hold it in abeyance.' In one Resolution he asks us for a Committee of Enquiry on one subject, in the next he says 'Hold the result of another important inquiry back!' That is an attitude of which I complain, and I think with some justice........"

The Hon'ble Mr. G. S. Khaparde:—"I believe I asked for an open inquiry."

The Hon'ble Sir William Vincent:—"Sir, may I be allowed to continue my speech without these interruptions?"

The Hon'ble the Vice-President:—"The Hon'ble Mr. Khaparde is justified in pointing out that he did not object to an open inquiry. What he complained of was an in camera inquiry."

The Hon'ble Sir William Vincent:—"Very well, Sir. Then, I submit, that no reason has been made out for this inquiry at all. No specific instances have been given of any misuse of the Act. The Hon'ble Mr. Jinnah said that he could give such instances, but he has not done so. I submit further that the present is a most inopportune time for such an inquiry—a point that I ought to have mentioned in my previous speech but by error I omitted to do so. Here we are engaged in a great war, when it is absolutely essential to maintain the traquillity of the country. Is this a moment in which any step should be taken which would weaken the administration, promote unrest and impede measures taken in the interests of the war.

" I am told that I referred to the law of Germany as justifying the present law. I did compare the law of Germany and England with the Defence of India Act, and I say that both in England and in Germany the restrictions imposed on the Press by the regulations during the war are far more severe than they are in India. And whatever the Hon'ble Member may say of Germany, at least this much must be conceded, that she has been extremely efficient in her conduct of the war.

"Then I am told, Sir, that publicity is the breath of democracy. I am prepared to accept that dictum. I do not believe that officials should or do resent criticism. In fact the Government is subjected to criticism day after day. I myself am criticised, every member of this Government is constantly criticised. But I maintain that there is great difference between criticism -- the freest criticism, the plainest speaking--and license and abuse.

" I will here cite what was said by Sir James FitzJames Stephen on the subject many years ago. In 1870, he said ' The phrase ' liberty of the press ' is mere rhetoric. The question was not whether the press ought or ought not to be free, but whether it ought to be free to excite rebellion.' Sir, if I may substitute for the words ' to excite rebellion ' the words ' to excite disaffection to His Majesty's Government and to the Government of India, to encourage racial and religious hatred,' I believe that those words are equally applicable at this moment. It is the desire to prevent the spread of such disaffection and racial feeling that is at the root of the action which has been taken by the Government of Burma in excluding certain papers from there. I am not aware of the character of the particular papers to which my Hon'ble friend, Mr. Sastri, referred, and I cannot speak of them ; but there are other papers the import of which into Burma has been prohibited, in regard to which the orders are fully justified by the circumstances, and I think that it is not fair to say that the Government of Burma seek to keep the people of that country ignorant—that was the expression used—because they prohibit the import of certain newspapers which in their opinion inculcate disloyalty and sedition.

" I have been told that a prosecution is the proper remedy in such cases. The answer is (and the Hon'ble Member knows this is correct) that the person prosecuted in such a case is given that notoriety and publicity which above all else he desires. He poses then as a martyr before the public. Further as a matter of fact when Government did prosecute the Editor of the ' Yugantar ' before the Act of 1910 was passed, what was the result ? Why, the paper put up a new puppet editor every other week as fast as the old one was prosecuted and convicted. This is the paper, I think, or perhaps one of the papers to which Mr. Jinnah referred as an erring paper. I submit that it would be well sometimes if we were to face facts in this Council and did not always indulge in euphemism in these matters. There is no question of erring papers. The paper was one which openly and avowedly preached disloyalty and sedition.

" As to the inquiry into the moral and material conditions of the Press, I agree with the Hon'ble Mr. Banerjea that no useful purpose would be served by such an inquiry for reasons already given. He is not afraid of any such inquiry, I am sure ; it is merely that he thinks it would serve no useful purpose. Well, I take the same ground in regard to the inquiry proposed into the administration of the Act. We are not afraid of any such inquiry, but we are satisfied that it would serve no useful purpose whatever, and for this reason I must, as I said before, oppose this motion."

[19TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.] [Mr. M. A. Jinnah; The Vice-President; Mr. G. S. Khaparde.]

The Hon'ble Mr. M. A. Jinnah:—"Sir, may I ask that the Resolution be divided into two parts and put to the Council unless Mr. Khaparde withdraws the second part?"

The Hon'ble the Vice-President:—"I propose to put the Resolution in two parts."

The Hon'ble Mr. G. S. Khaparde:—"I omit the second part, Sir. I do not mind the moral and material conditions portion being withdrawn."

The second part of the Resolution was, by leave of the Council, withdrawn.

Rainfall summary for the seven days ending at 8 hrs. on Thursday, the 26th September 1918, based on the Indian Daily Weather Reports of the period.

1. On several days during the week the Bombay monsoon gave fairly general rain in the Peninsula, excluding southeast Madras. Weather was disturbed over the Bay, and it was probably owing to this that rainfall was unusually scanty in northeast India. A disturbance from the west gave a few falls of rain in the extreme north of India and in Baluchistan.

2. Burma.—Nearly general rain fell in Lower Burma every day except the 23rd. Local falls occurred in Upper Burma.

Northeast India, including Orissa.—The falls of rain reported were generally light and scattered.

The United Provinces, Central India and the Central Provinces.—Neemuch, Amraoti and Jagdalpur had light rain.

Northwest India.—Local falls of rain occurred in Kashmir, the north Punjab, the hills of the North-West Frontier Province and northeast Baluchistan.

The Peninsula.—There was nearly general rain in the Konkan on the 23rd, in the south of the Bombay Deccan on the 19th, in Hyderabad on the 22nd, in Mysore and on the north Madras coast on the 25th, and in the Madras Deccan on the 19th, 20th and 22nd.

3. The chief amounts of rainfall reported were as follows :—

September 19th. Port Blair 2·95″, Tavoy 3·34″, Moulmein 2·75″, Diamond Island 1·94″, Toungoo 1·72″, Bijapur 0·90″, Gulbarga 1·40″ and Bellary 1·38″.

„ 20th. Akyab 4·64″, Mandalay 1·30″, Maymyo 1·05″, Sholapur 1·14″ and Kurnool 2·25″.

„ 25th. Victoria Point 4·58″, Toungoo 2·49″, Kyaukpyu 2·39″, Yamethin 1·87″, Jessore 1·28″, Hukitala (False Point) 1·64″, Rawalpindi 0·57″, Belgaum 1·89″, Cocanada 3·73″ and Gopalpur 1·23″.

4. The week's rainfall was 20 per cent. or more in excess in the Bay Islands, Lower Burma, Baluchistan, Hyderabad South, the Madras Deccan and the Madras Coast North. It was 20 per cent. or more in defect in Upper Burma, Assam, Bengal, Bihar and Orissa, the United Provinces, the Punjab, the North-West Frontier Province, Rajputana, Gujarat, Central India, Berar, the Central Provinces, the Konkan, Hyderabad North, Mysore, Malabar and Madras Southeast. No rain usually falls at this time of year in Sind; the rainfall in the remaining divisions of Kashmir and the Bombay Deccan was within 20 per cent. of the normal.

The rainfall from 3rd May to date is 20 per cent. or more in defect in the United Provinces, the Punjab, Kashmir, the North-West Frontier Province, Baluchistan, Sind, Rajputana, Gujarat, Central India, Berar, the Central Provinces West, the Konkan, the Bombay Deccan, Hyderabad, Mysore, Malabar, Madras Southeast and the Madras Deccan. It is 20 per cent. or more in excess in Assam, Bengal and Bihar, and differs from the normal by less than 20 per cent. in the remaining divisions.

Season and Crop Prospects for the week ending Saturday, 21st September 1918.

Burma.—The rainfall during the week was general throughout the Province. It was moderate in Lower Burma and scanty in the dry zone. Transplantation of winter rice has been nearly completed in Lower Burma and in irrigated tracts of Upper Burma. Reaping of early sesamum has been completed. Cultivation of miscellaneous crops continues in Upper Burma. Standing crops are generally in good condition. Cattle are healthy. The price of unhusked rice at Rangoon has risen further and is now considerably above normal. The market for white rice has collapsed owing to prohibition of exports to Calcutta. The price of specials is Rs. 340 per hundred baskets.

Assam.—The weather is seasonable. Manufacture of tea, transplantation of winter rice and harvesting of jute continue. Prospects of crops are fair to good. Cattle disease is reported from three districts. The price of common rice continues rising seasonably.

Bengal.—During the week the rainfall was generally moderate in the northern and eastern districts. Elsewhere it was light. Transplantation of winter paddy has been nearly finished. Weeding is proceeding. Harvesting of autumn paddy has been nearly finished in the eastern and northern districts and has much advanced in the western districts. Steeping and washing of jute are proceeding. Prospects of standing crops are generally fair except in the flood affected areas in some of the districts of Eastern Bengal. Fodder is reported to be insufficient in parts of Rajshahi and Dinajpur. The average price of common rice has risen by about 1·1 per cent.

Bihar and Orissa.—Light rain during the week was general over Orissa. It was scattered in Bihar and Chota Nagpur. Transplantation of paddy has been nearly completed. Harvesting of autumn crops continues. Standing crops are, on the whole, doing well but more rain is urgently wanted in most districts of Orissa. The price of common rice has risen in nine districts, fallen in five and remained stationary in the remaining districts as compared with that of the preceding week. Cattle disease is reported from twelve districts. The condition of standing crops in the Feudatory States of Orissa is, on the whole, good.

United Provinces.—No rain was received during the week and more rain is urgently needed everywhere. Crops have been damaged through drought in some districts. Preparation of land for spring crops, harvesting and irrigation of autumn crops, transplantation of late rice and picking of cotton continue. Standing crops are suffering for want of rain except in the eastern districts. Prospects are unfavourable. Agricultural stock is in good condition but slight cattle disease is still reported from some districts. Fodder, water and market supplies are adequate. Prices have risen sharply.

Punjab.—Except for light showers in parts of a few western districts the weather remained generally dry. Rain is urgently wanted everywhere. Sowings of autumn crops have been completed and are below normal to normal. The condition of standing irrigated crops is average to good. Unirrigated crops are suffering for want of rain. Cotton is being picked and the expected yield is generally normal. Sowings of oilseeds and gram continue in some districts and are generally below normal. Cattle are generally healthy and water is sufficient. Shortage of fodder is reported from some districts. Prices are rising and are generally above scarcity rates. North-West Frontier Province.—Slight rain has fallen in the Peshawar district. Sowings of autumn crops in Bannu and of spring crops in Peshawar are proceeding. Harvesting prospects are average on irrigated and below average on unirrigated areas in Peshawar and Bannu and poor in Dera Ismail Khan owing to want of rain. Cotton is being picked and rice reaped in Peshawar with outturn average. Prices of wheat in Peshawar are 7¼ seers and in Dera Ismail Khan 8½ seers per rupee.

Jammu.—No rain fell during the week. Prices are stationary.

Kashmir.—The week was generally cloudy and mild. Spring crops are being harvested and their outturn is expected to be fair. Operations for autumn crops are commencing. Prices are high.

Rajputana.—The weather during the week was hot and clear. Standing crops and cattle are in fair condition. Fodder is generally sufficient. Prices are rising.

Central India.—The rainfall during the week was partial. It was insufficient in Baghelkhand, Bundelkhand, the Southern States and parts of Gwalior and Malwa. Autumn crops are being weeded. Harvesting has commenced in Gwalior and Bhopal. Preparation of land for and sowing of spring crops in places are in progress. Standing crops are withering in Bundelkhand, in good condition in Bhopal and Malwa and in fair condition elsewhere. Agricultural stock is indifferent in Gwalior and generally good elsewhere. Scarcity of fodder is reported in parts of Gwalior. Prices are high.

Central Provinces.—The weather has been bright and warm with occasional clouds. Eight districts in the southern half of the Province have received light showers of rain, ranging from 15 cents. in Wardha to one inch in Chanda. Cattle are faring well except in parts of Berar where fodder is dear or scarce. Cattle disease is reported in parts of Damoh, Wardha, Chanda, Raipur and Yeotmal. Gram in Amraoti and rice in Chanda and Drug fell by one seer per rupee. Elsewhere prices remained steady or fluctuated slightly, indicating a tendency to rise.

Feudatory States :—More rain is badly required in six States. Crops are generally in good condition.

Bombay.—Slight rain fell during the week in Surat, the Deccan, the Karnatak and the Konkan. More rain is needed everywhere. Standing crops have been damaged by rats and winds in Karachi, by rats in Hyderabad and by insects in Thar and Parkar. They are withering in parts of Sind, Ahmedabad, Surat, Kaira, East Deccan, Kolhapur and Baroda. Their condition is fair to good elsewhere. Recent rain has improved the situation in the Karnatak and Ahmednagar. Preparations for the sowing of spring crops continue in parts of Sind and Dharwar. When cheques are offered in payment of fees, it must be clearly understood that the office cannot hold itself responsible for any delay that may occur in the collection of cash on the cheques; any cheque not payable in Calcutta is subject to commission. In cases where it is not possible to have the fees handed in at the Patent Office, it is preferable to send them by money-order or postal order payable at Calcutta to the Controller of Patents and Designs, and to advise him that they have been so sent. Stamps will not be received in payment of fees.

NOTIFICATION.

Shillong, the 5th September 1918.

No. 3530-R.—The following is published for general information with reference to section 42 of the Land Acquisition Act, I of 1894:—

Memorandum of agreement made this 3rd day of August 1918 between the Burma Oil Company, Limited, a Company registered under the English Companies Act, and having its registered office at 175, West George Street, Glasgow in Scotland, principal place of business in the East at 21, Merchant Street, Rangoon, hereinafter called "the Company" of the one part and the Secretary of State for India in Council (and on his behalf the Chief Commissioner of Assam) hereinafter called "The Secretary of State" of the other part.

Whereas for the purpose of the construction of a Ghat for shipping oil the Company has applied to the Chief Commissioner of Assam for the acquisition under the provisions of the Land Acquisition Act, 1894, of the piece or parcel of land containing 2·01 acres or thereabouts situate in the village of Thandapur pargana Saraspur in the District of Cachar and more particularly described in the schedule hereto and delineated in the plan hereunto annexed.

And whereas the said Chief Commissioner of Assam, being satisfied by an enquiry held under section 40 of the said Act that the proposed acquisition is needed for the aforesaid purpose and that the said work is likely to prove useful to the public, has consented to acquire on behalf of the Company the piece or parcel of land hereinbefore described.

And whereas the said Chief Commissioner of Assam has required the Company under the provisions of section 41 of the abovementioned Act to enter into the agreement with the Secretary of State hereinafter contained. Now this indenture witnesseth that it is hereby agreed and declared as follows:—

1. On demand the Company shall and will pay to the said Chief Commissioner of Assam all and every compensation in respect of the said land tendered, paid or awarded or to be tendered, paid or awarded, by the Collector of Cachar under the Land Acquisition Act, 1894, or by the Court to which a reference under part III of the said Act may be made, or by the Court or Courts to which an appeal from the award of the said Court may be preferred, and all costs, charges and expenses of the proceedings in the aforesaid Courts, or otherwise incidental to the proposed acquisition or payable in respect thereof under the provisions of the said Act.

2. On demand made by the said Collector the obligations of the Company under the last preceding clause not being thereby limited the Company shall and will deposit with the said Collector such sum or sums of money as in his discretion the said Collector may in anticipation estimate to be necessary for the purposes mentioned in the last preceding clause.

3. On payment by the Company of all demands under the foregoing first clause, or, in the discretion of the said Chief Commissioner of Assam (on deposit by the Company of all estimated amounts as provided in the 2nd clause), but not before possession shall have been taken under the provisions of the abovementioned Act, the Secretary of State shall make over possession of the said land to the Company and shall execute and do all such acts and deeds as may be necessary and proper for effectually vesting the same in the Company.

4. The said land shall be held by the Company for the purpose of such a Ghat for shipping oil as is hereinbefore mentioned and without the sanction in writing of the said Chief Commissioner of Assam first had and obtained for no other purpose whatsoever.

5. The said Ghat shall be completed and fully equipped in all respects ready for use within one year from the date on which possession of the said land shall have been given to the Company.

6. Should the said Ghat not be completed (and fully equipped in all respects ready for use) within the period stated in the last preceding clause or within such further period as in his discretion may be prescribed or allowed by the said Chief Commissioner of Assam, or should the said land at any time thereafter cease for a period of six consecutive months, to be held, and used, or cease to be required for the purpose or purposes provided for in the foregoing fourth clause, then and in any such case, the said Chief Commissioner of Assam may summarily re-enter upon and take possession of the said land and thereupon the interest of the Company in the said land shall absolutely cease and determine.

7. On taking such possession, the said Chief Commissioner of Assam may sell or otherwise deal with the said land and structures as he may think proper. Should the said Chief Commissioner of Assam sell the said land and structures the said Chief Commissioner of Assam after deducting the expenses incurred in connection with the said taking of possession and with such sale shall pay the proceeds to the Company. Should the said Chief Commissioner of Assam, on taking possession, decide not to sell the land, it shall repay to the Company all sums received from the Company in respect of all and every compensation as provided in the foregoing first clause (less the Statutory allowance of 15 per cent.), but will not repay any sums paid and received on account of costs, charges and expenses.

8. Any person or Company desiring to ship crude oil in bulk produced in his or their prospecting or mining lease, at this Ghat, shall be allowed to do so on reasonable terms; in case of the parties being unable to agree on the terms, the matter shall be referred to the Deputy Commissioner of Cachar as arbitrator, whose decision shall be final.
